31 Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth.

32 Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blinde.

33 If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.

34 They answered and said unto him [f] Thou wast altogether born in sinnes, and dost thou teach us? And they ‡ cast him out.

35 [7] Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou beleeve on the Sonne of God?

36 He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might beleeve on him?

37 And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

38 And he said, Lord, I beleeve: and he worshipped him.

39 ¶ [8] And Jesus said, For [g] judgement I am come into this world, that they [h] which see not, might see, and that they which see, might be made blinde.

40 And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blinde also?

41 Jesus said unto them, If ye were blinde, ye should have no sinne: but now ye say, we see: therefore your sinne remaineth.

e He is called a sinner in the Hebrew tongue, which is a wicked man, and maketh as it were an art of sinning.

6 Proud wickednesse must needs at length break forth, which in vain lieth hid under a seal of godlinesse.

f Thou art naught even from thy cradle, and as we use to say, There is nothing in thee but sin.

‡ Or, excommunicated him.

7 Most happie is their state which are cast furthest out of the church of the wicked (which proudly boast themselves of the name of the church) that Christ may come nearer to them.

8 Christ doeth lighten all them by the preaching of the gospel, which acknowledge their own darknesse, but such as seem to themselves to see clearly enough, those he altogether blindeth: of which sort are they oftentimes, which have the highest place in the church.

g With great power and authoritie, to doe what is righteous, and just: as if he said, These men take upon them to govern the people of God after their own lust, as though they saw all things, and no man but they: but I will rule far otherwise than these men do: for whom they account for blinde men, them will I lighten, and such as take themselves to be wisest, them will I drown in most grosse darknesse of ignorance. h In these words (Of seeing, and not seeing) there is a secret taunting and check to the Pharisees: for they thought all men blinde but themselves.

Chap. X.

1 Christ is the doore, and the good shepherd. 19 Divers opinions of him. 24 He proveth by his works, that he is Christ the Sonne of God: 39 escapeth the Jews, 40 and went again beyond Jordan, where many beleeved on him.

VErily [1] verily I say unto you, He that entreth not by the doore into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

2 But he that entreth in by the doore, is the shepherd of the sheep.

1 Seeing that by Christ onely we have accesse to the Father, there are neither other true shepherds, than those which come to Christ themselves, and bring others thither also, neither is any to be thought the true sheep-fold but that which is gathered to Christ.

3 To him the [a] porter openeth: and the sheep heare his voice, and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.

5 And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

6 This [b] parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.

7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily verily I say unto you, I am the doore of the sheep.

8 [2] All that [c] ever came before me, are theeves and robbers: but the sheep did not heare them.

9 [3] I am the doore, by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall [d] go in and out, and finde pasture.

10 The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

11 * I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.

12 But he that is an hireling and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.

13 The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling and careth not for the sheep, 14 I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine.

15 As the Father [e] knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.

16 [4] And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall heare my voice; * and there shall be [f] one fold, and one shepherd.

17 [5] Therefore doth my Father love me, * because I [g] lay down my life, that I might take it again.

18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of my self: I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. * This commandment have I received of my Father.

19 ¶ [6] There was a division therefore again among the Jews for these sayings.

20 And many of them said, He hath a devil, and is mad, why heare ye him?

21 Others said, These are not the words of him that hath a devil: can a devil open the eyes of the blinde?

22 ¶ And it was at Jerusalem the * feast of the [h] dedication, and it was winter.

23 [7] And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomons porch.

24 Then came the Jews round about him, & said unto him, How long dost thou ‡ make a In those dayes they used to have a servant alwayes sitting at the doore, and therefore he speaketh after the manner of those dayes.

b This word (Parable) which the Evangelist useth here, signifieth a dark kinde of speech, when words are taken from their naturall meaning, to signifie another thing to us.

2 It maketh no matter, how many, neither how old the false teachers have been.

c These large terms must be applied to the matter he speaketh of. And therefore when he calleth himself the Doore, he calleth all them theeves and robbers which take upon them this name of Doore, which none of the Prophets can, for they shewed the sheep that Christ was the Doore.

3 Onely Christ is the true Pastour, and that onely is the true church which acknowledgeth him to be properly their only Pastour: To him are opposite theeves, which feed not the sheep, but kill them: and hirelings also, which forsake the flock in time of danger, because they feed it onely for their own profit and gain.

d That is, shall live safely: So use the Jews to speak, as Deut. 26, 6. and yet there is a peculiar alluding to the shepherds office.

* Isa. 40, 11. Ezek. 34, 23.

e Loveth me, alloweth me.

4 The calling of the Gentiles.

* Ezek. 37, 22.

f The certain mark of the Catholike church throughout all the world, which hath one head, that is, Christ, the only keeper, and onely shepherd of it.

5 Christ is by the decree of the Father, the only true shepherd of the true church, for he willingly gave his life for his sheep, and by his own power rose again to life.

* Isa. 53. 7, 8.

g He speaketh in the time that now is, because Christs whole life was as it were, a perpetuall death.

* Acts 2, 24.

6 The gospel discovereth hypocrisie, and therefore the world must needs rage when it cometh forth. * 1 Mac. 4, 59. h The feast of the dedication was instituted by Judas Maccabeus and his brethren, after the restoring of Gods true religion by the casting out of Antiochus his garison. 7 The unbeleevers and proud men accuse the gospel of darknesse, which darknesse indeed is within themselves. ‡ Or, hold us in suspense.

92 us to doubt? If thou be the Chriſt tell us plainly.

8 The doctrine of the goſpel is proved from heaven by two witneſſes: both by the puritie of the doctrine, and by miracles.

25 [8] Jeſus anſwered them, I told you, and ye beleeved not: the works that I do in my Fathers name, they bear witneſſe of me.

9 It is no marvell that there doe but a few beleeve, ſeeing that all men are by nature untamed beaſts: yet notwithſtanding God hath his, which he turneth into his sheep, and committeth them unto his Sonne, and preſerveth them againſt the crueltie of all wilde beaſts.

26 [9] But ye beleeve not, [i] becauſe ye are not of my sheep, as I ſaid unto you.

i He giveth a reaſon why they beleeve not, to wit, becauſe they are none of his sheep.

27 My sheep heare my voice, and I know them, and they follow me.

28 And I give unto them eternall life, and they ſhall never periſh, neither ſhall any man pluck them out of my hand.

29 My Father which gave them me, is greater than all: and no man is able to pluck them out of my Fathers hand.

30 I and my Father are one.

10 Chriſt proveth his dignitie by divine works.

31 [10] Then the Jews took up ſtones again to ſtone him.

32 Jeſus anſwered them, Many good works have I ſhewed you from my [k] Father; for which of thoſe works do ye ſtone me?

k Through my Fathers authoritie and power.

33 The Jews anſwered him, ſaying, For a good work we ſtone thee not, but for blaſphemie, and becauſe that thou, being a man, makeſt thy ſelf God.

34 Jeſus anſwered them, * Is it not written in your law, I ſaid, Ye are gods?

* Pſal. 82, 6.

35 If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the ſcripture cannot be [l] broken:

l Void and of none effect.

36 Say ye of him, whom the Father hath ſanctified, and ſent into the world, Thou blaſphemeſt, becauſe I ſaid, I am the Sonne of God?

37 If I do not the works of my Father, beleeve me not.

38 But if I do, though ye beleeve not me, beleeve the works: that ye may know and beleeve that the Father is in me, and I in him.

11 Chriſt ſleeth danger, not of miſtruſt, nor for fear of death, nor that he would be idle, but to gather a church in another place.

39 [11] Therefore they ſought again to take him: but he eſcaped out of their hand, 40 And went away again beyond Jordan, into the place where John at firſt baptized, and there he abode.

41 And many reſorted unto him, and ſaid, John did no miracle: but all things that John ſpake of this man, were true.

42 And many beleeved on him there.

CHAP. XI.

1 Chriſt raiſeth Lazarus foure dayes buried. 45 Many Jews beleeve. 47 The high prieſts and Phariſees gather a councel againſt Chriſt. 49 Caiaphas propheſieth. 54 Jeſus hid himſelf. 55 At the paſſeover they enquire after him, and lay wait for him.

1 Chriſt in reſtoring the ſtinking carcaſe of his friend to life, ſheweth an example both of his mightypower, and alſo of his ſingular good will toward men: which is alſo an image of the reſurrection to come.

NOw [1] a certain man was ſick, named Lazarus of Bethanie, the [a] town of Mary and her ſiſter Martha.

a Where his ſiſters dwelt.

2 (* It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whoſe brother Lazarus was ſick)

* Matth. 26, 7.

3 Therefore his ſiſters ſent unto him, ſaying, Lord, behold, he whom thou loveſt, is ſick.

4 When Jeſus heard that, he ſaid, This ſickneſſe is not unto [b] death, but for the glory of God, that the Sonne of God might be glorified thereby.

b That is to ſay, ſent for the purpoſe to kill him.

5 Now Jeſus loved Martha, and her ſiſter, and Lazarus.

2 In that, that God ſeemeth ſometimes to linger in helping of us, he doth it both for his glory, and for our ſalvation, as the falling out of the matter in the end plainly proveth.

6 [2] When he had heard therefore that he was ſick, he abode two dayes ſtill in the ſame place where he was.

7 Then after that ſaith he to his diſciples, Let us go into Judea again.

3 This onely is the ſure and right way to life, to follow God boldly without fear, who calleth us, and ſhineth before us in the darkneſſe of this world.

8 [3] His diſciples ſay unto him Maſter, the Jews of late ſought to ſtone thee; and goeſt thou thither again?

9 Jeſus anſwered, Are there not [c] twelve houres in the day? If any man walk in the day, he ſtumbleth not, becauſe he ſeeth the light of this world.

c All things are fitly wrought, and brought to paſſe in their ſeaſon.

10 But if a man walk in the night, he ſtumbleth, becauſe there is no light in him.

11 Theſe things ſaid he, and after that, he ſaith unto them, Our friend Lazarus [d] ſleepeth, but I go that I may awake him out of ſleep.

d The Jews uſed a milde kinde of ſpeech, and called death a ſleep, wherupon in other languages the place of buriall where the dead are laid, waiting for the reſurrection, is called A ſleeping-place.

12 Then ſaid his diſciples, Lord, if he ſleep, he ſhall do well.

13 Howbeit Jeſus ſpake of his death: but they thought that he had ſpoken of taking of reſt in ſleep.

14 Then ſaid Jeſus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead.

15 And I am glad for your ſakes, that I was not there (to the intent ye may beleeve) nevertheleſſe, let us go unto him.

16 Then ſaid Thomas, which is called Didymus, unto his fellow diſciples, Let us alſo go, that we may die with him.

17 Then when Jeſus came, he found that he had lien in the grave foure dayes already.

18 (Now Bethany was nigh unto Jeruſalem, [e] about fifteen furlongs off) e That is, about two miles.

19 * And many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.

4 God who is the maker of nature, doth not condemn naturall affections, but ſheweth that they ought to be examined by the rule of faith.

20 Then Martha, aſſoon as ſhe heard that Jeſus was coming, went and met him: but Mary ſat ſtill in the houſe.

21 Then ſayd Martha unto Jeſus, Lord, if thou hadſt been here, my brother had not died.

22 But I know, that even now whatſoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.

23 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Thy brother ſhall [e] riſe again.

e That is, ſhall recover life again.

24 Martha ſaith unto him, * I know that he ſhall riſe again in the reſurrection at the laſt day.

* Luke 14, 14. Chap. 5, 29.

25 Jeſus ſaid unto her, I am the reſurrection, and the * life: he that beleeveth in me, thought he were dead, yet ſhall he live;

* Chap. 5, 35.

26 And whoſoever liveth, and beleeveth in me, ſhall never die. Beleeveſt thou this?

27 She ſaith unto him, Yea, Lord, I beleeve that thou art the Chriſt the Sonne of God which ſhould come into the world.

28 And when ſhe had ſo ſaid, ſhe went her way, and called Mary her ſiſter ſecretly, ſaying, The Maſter is come and calleth for thee.

29 Aſſoon

29 Assoon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came unto him.

30 Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.

31 The Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw Mary that she rose up hastily, and went out, followed her, saying, See goeth unto the grave, to weep there.

32 Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

5 Christ took upon him, together with our flesh, all affections of man (sinne onely excepted) and amongst them especially mercy, and compassion. f These are tokens that he was greatly moved, but yet they were without sinne: and these affections are proper to mans nature. † Gr. he troubled himself. * Chap. 9, 6.

33 [5] When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he [f] groned in the spirit, and [†] was troubled.

34 And said, Where have ye laid him? They say unto him, Lord, come and see.

35 Jesus wept.

36 Then said the Jews, Behold how he loved him.

37 And some of them said, Could not this man, * which opened the eyes of the blinde, have caused that even this man should not have died?

38 Jesus therefore again groning in himself, cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it.

39 Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, Lord, by this time he stinketh: for he hath been dead foure dayes.

40 Jesus saith unto her, Said I not unto thee, that if thou wouldest beleeve thou shouldest see the glory of God?

41 Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lift up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me.

42 And I knew that thou hearest me alwayes: but because of the people which stand by, I said it, that they may beleeve that thou hast sent me.

43 And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus come forth.

44 And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave-clothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.

45 Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, beleeved on him.

6 The last point of hard and yron-like stubbornes is this to proclaim open warre against God, and yet ceaseth not to make a pretence both of godlines and of the profit of the common-wealth. g The Jews called this Councel Sanhedrin: and the word that Johnuseth, is Synedri. h That is, taken away from us by force: for at that time, though the high Priests authority was greatly lessened and decayed, yet there was some kinde of government left among the Jews. 7 The raging and mad company of the false church perswade themselves that they cannot be in safetie, unlesse he be taken away, who onely upholdeth the Church. And so likewise judgeth the wisedome of the flesh in wordly affairs, which is governed by the spirit of giddinesse, or madnesse.

46 [6] But some of them went their wayes to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done.

47 ¶ Then gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a [g] councel, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles.

48 If we let him thus alone, all men will beleeve on him; and the Romanes shall come and [h] take away both our place and nation.

49 [7] And one of them named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same yeare, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all,

50 * Nor consider that it is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not. * Chap. 18, 14.

51 [8] And this spake he not of himself: but being high priest that yeare, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation:

8 Christ doth sometimes so turn the tongues, even of the wicked, that even in cursing, they blesse.

52 And not for that nation onely, but that also he should gather together in one, the children of God that [i] were scattered abroad.

i For they were not gathered together in one countrey, as the Jews were, but to be gathered, from all quarters, from the east to the west.

53 Then from that day forth, they took counsel together for to put him to death.

54 [9] Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews: but went thence unto a countrey neare to the wilderneſse, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.

9 We may give place to the rage of the wicked, when it is expedient so to doe, but yet in such sort, that we swerve not from Gods vocation.

55 ¶ And the Jews passeover was nigh at hand, and many went out of the countrey up to Jerusalem before the passeover, to purifie themselves.

56 Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the temple, What think ye, that he will not come to the feast?

57 Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

CHAP. XII.

1 Jesus excuseth Mary anointing his feet. 9 The people flock to see Lazarus. 10 The high priests consult to kill him. 11 Christ rideth unto Jerusalem. 20 Greeks desire to see Jesus. 23 He foretelleth his death. 37 The Jews are generally blinded: 42 yet many chief rulers beleeve; but do not confesse him: 44 therefore Jesus calleth earnestly for confession of faith.

THen Jesus, six dayes before the passeover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.

2 There they made him a supper, and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment, of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.

4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simons sonne, which should betray him,

5 [1] Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poore?

1 An horrible example in Judas, of a minde blinded with covetousnes, and yet pretending godlinesse.

6 This he said, not that he cared for the poore: but because he was a thief, and * had the bag, and bare what was put therein. * Chap. 13, 29.

7 [2] Then said Jesus, let her alone, against the day of my burying hath she kept this.

2 This extraordinary anointing, which was for a signe, is so allowed of God, that he witnesseth how he will not be worshipped with outward pompe, or costly service, but with almes. ‖ When the light of the gospel sheweth it self, some are found to be curious, and other (which least ought) to be open enemies: others in a rage honour him, whom they will straighway fall from: and very few do so reverently receive him as they ought: notwithstanding, Christ beginneth his spirituall kingdome in the midst of his enemies.

8 For the poore alwayes ye have with you: but me ye have not alwayes.

9 [3] Much people of the Jews therefore knew

94 that he was there: and they came, not for Jeſus ſake onely, but that they might ſee Lazarus alſo, whom he had raiſed from the dead.

10 ¶ But the chief prieſts conſulted, that they might put Lazarus alſo to death.

11 Becauſe that by reaſon of him many of the Jews went away, and beleeved on Jeſus.

* Matth. 21, 8. 12 ¶ * On the next day, much people that were come to the feaſt, when they heard that Jeſus was coming to Jeruſalem, 13 Took branches of palm-trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hoſanna, bleſſed is the King of Iſrael that cometh in the name of the Lord.

14 And Jeſus when he had found a young aſſe, ſat thereon, as it is written,

*Zech. 9, 9. 15 * Fear not, daughter of Sion; behold thy King cometh, ſitting on an aſſes colt.

16 Theſe things underſtood not his diſciples at the firſt: but when Jeſus was glorified, then remembred they that theſe things were written of him, and that they had done theſe things unto him.

17 The people therefore that was with him when he called Lazarus out of his grave, and raiſed him from the dead, bare record.

18 For this cauſe the people alſo met him, for that they heard that he had done this miracle.

4 Even they which go about to oppreſſe Chriſt, are made inſtruments of his glory.

19 4 The Phariſees therefore ſaid among themſelves, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? behold, the world is gone after him.

a After the ſolemn cuſtome the Grecians were firſt ſo called by the name of the countrey of Greece, where they dwelt: but afterward, all that were not of the Jews religion, but worshipped falſe gods, and were alſo called Heathens, were called by this name.

20 ¶ And there were certain Greeks among them, that [a] came up to worship at the feaſt:

21 The ſame came therefore to Philip, which was of Bethſaida of Galilee, and deſired him, ſaying, Sir, we would ſee Jeſus.

22 Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and again, Andrew and Philip told Jeſus.

23 ¶ And Jeſus anſwered them, ſaying, The houre is come, that the Sonne of man ſhould be glorified.

¶ The death of Chriſt is, as it were a ſowing, which ſeemeth to be a dying to the corn, but indeed is the cauſe of a farre greater harveſt: and ſuch as is the condition of the head, ſo ſhall it be of the members.

b A wheat corn dieth when it is changed by vertue of the ground, and becometh a root of a fruitfull blade.

24 ¶ Verily verily I ſay unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground, and [b] die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

* Matth. 10, 39. 25 * He that loveth his life, ſhall loſe it: and he that hateth his life in this world, ſhall keep it unto life eternall.

26 If any man ſerve me, let him follow me, and where I am, there ſhall alſo my ſervant be: if any man ſerve me, him will my Father honour.

6 Whiles Chriſt went about to ſuffer all the puniſhments which is due to our ſins, and whileſt his divinitie did not yet ſhew his might and power ſo farre, as this ſatisfaction might be throughly wrought: now when he is ſtricken with the great heat of the curſe of God, he crieth and prayeth, and deſireth to be releaſed: yet notwithſtanding he preferreth the will and glory of his Father before all things, whoſe obedience the Father alloweth even from heaven. c To wit, of death that is now at hand. d So then the Fathers glory is Chriſt his glory.

27 6 Now is my ſoul troubled, and what ſhall I ſay? Father, ſave me from this [c] houre: but for this cauſe came I unto this houre.

28 Father, [d] glorifie thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, ſaying, I have both glorified it, and will glorifie it again.

29 The people therefore that ſtood by, and heard it, ſaid that it thundered: others ſaid, An angel ſpake to him.

7 Chriſt foretelleth to the deaf, the manner of his death, the overcoming of the devil and the world, and in concluſion, his triumph.

30 7 Jeſus anſwered, and ſaid, This voice came not becauſe of me, but for your ſakes.

31 Now is the judgement of this world: now ſhall the prince of this world be caſt out.

e Chriſt uſed a word which hath a double meaning, for it ſignifieth either To lift up, or To rid out of the way: for his meaning was to put them in minde of his death, but the Jews ſeem to take it another way.

32 And I, if I be [e] lifted up from the earth, will [f] draw all men unto me.

f Chryſoſtome and Theophylact referre this word, All, to all nations, that is, Not to the Jews onely.

33 (This he ſaid, ſignifying what death he ſhould die)

34 The people anſwered him, * We have heard out of the law, that Chriſt abideth for ever: and how ſayeſt thou, The Sonne of man muſt be lift up? who is this Sonne of man?

* Pſal. 110. 4.

35 8 Then Jeſus ſaid unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you, walk while ye have the light, leſt darkneſſe come upon you: for he that walketh in darkneſſe, knoweth not whither he goeth.

8 Unmeaſurable is the mercie of God, but an horrible judgement followeth, if it be contemned.

36 While ye have light, beleeve in the light, that ye may be the [g] children of light. Theſe things ſpake Jeſus and departed, and did hide himſelf from them.

g That is, partakers of light.

37 ¶ 9 But though he had done ſo many miracles before them, yet they beleeved not on him:

9 Faith is not of nature, but of grace.

38 That the ſaying of Eſaias the prophet might be fulfilled, which he ſpake, * Lord, who hath beleeved our report? and to whom hath the [h] arm of the Lord been revealed?

* Iſa. 53, 1. Rom. 10, 16.

h The arme of the Lord, is The goſpel, which is, The power of God to ſalvation, to all that beleeve: And therefore the arme of the Lord is not revealed to them, whoſe hearts the Lord hath not opened.

39 Therefore they could not beleeve, becauſe that Eſaias ſaid again, 40 * He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart, that they ſhould not ſee with their eyes, nor underſtand with their heart, and be converted, and I ſhould heal them.

* Matth. 13, 14.

41 Theſe things ſaid Eſaias, when he ſaw his glory, and ſpake of him.

10 Such as beleeve, are not onely few in number, if they be compared with the unbeleevers, but alſo the moſt of thoſe few (yea, and that eſpecially, the chiefeſt) doe feare men rather than God.

42 ¶ 10 Nevertheleſſe, among the chief rulers alſo, many beleeved on him; but becauſe of the Phariſees they did not confeſſe him, leſt they ſhould be put out of the ſynagogue.

* Chap. 5, 44.

43 * For they loved the praiſe of men more than the praiſe of God.

11 The ſumme of the goſpel, and therefore of ſalvation, which Chriſt witneſſed in the midſt of Jeruſalem, by his crying out, is this, To reſt upon Chriſt through faith, as the onely Saviour appointed and given us of the Father.

44 ¶ 11 Jeſus cried, and ſaid, He that beleeveth on me, beleeveth [i] not on me, but on him that ſent me.

i This word, Not, doth not take any whit of this from Chriſt, which is here ſpoken of, but is in way of correction rather, as if he ſaid, He that beleeveth in me, doth not ſo much beleeve in me, as in him that ſent me. So is it in Mark 9, 37.

45 And he that ſeeth me, ſeeth him that ſent me.

* Chap. 3, 19.

46 * I am come a light into the world, that whoſoever beleeveth on me, ſhould not abide in darkneſſe.

* Chap. 3, 17.

47 * And if any man heare my words and beleeve not, I judge him not; for I came not to judge the world, but to ſave the world.

* Mark 16, 16.

48 He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: * the word that I have ſpoken, the ſame ſhall judge him in the laſt day.

49 For I have not ſpoken of my ſelf; but the Father which ſent me, he gave me a commandment what I ſhould ſay, and what I ſhould ſpeak.

50 And I know that his commandment is life everlaſting: whatſoever I ſpeak therefore, even as the Father ſaid unto me, ſo I ſpeak.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Jesus washeth the disciples feet: exhorteth them to humilitie and charitie. 18 He foretelleth and discovereth to John by a token, that Judas should betray him: 31 commandeth them to love one another: 36 and forewarneth Peter of his deniall.

NOw *[1] before the feast of the passeover, when Jesus knew that his houre was come, that he should depart out of this world, unto the Father, having loved his [a] own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.

2 And supper being ended, (the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simons sonne, to betray him)

3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his [b] hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God,

4 He [c] riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments, and took a towell & girded himself.

5 After that, he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples feet, and to wipe them with the towell wherewith he was girded.

6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?

7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now: but thou shalt know hereafter.

8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast [d] no part with me.

9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet onely, but also my hands and my head.

10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed, needeth not, save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.

11 For he knew who should betray him, therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13 Ye call me Master, and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.

14 If I then your Lord and Master have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one anothers feet.

15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.

16 * Verily verily I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his Lord, neither he that is sent, greater than he that sent him.

17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

18 ¶ * I speak not of you all, I know whom I have chosen: but that the scripture may be fulfilled, * He that eateth bread with me, hath lift up his heel against me.

19 ‡ Now I tell you before it come, that when it is come to passe, ye may beleeve that I am he.

20 * Verily verily I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send, receiveth me: and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me.

21 * When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, and [e] testified, and said, Verily verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.

23 Now there was [f] leaning on Jesus bosome, one of his disciples whom Jesus loved.

24 Simon Peter therefore beckned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.

25 He then lying on Jesus brest, saith unto him, Lord, who is it?

26 Jesus answered, He it is to whom I shall give a ‡ sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the sonne of Simon.

27 And after the sop, Satan entred into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.

28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.

29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast: or that he should give something to the poore.

30 He then having received the sop, went immediately out: and it was night.

31 ¶ [3] Therefore when he was gone out, Jesus said, [g] Now is the Sonne of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.

32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorifie him in himself, and shall straightway glorifie him.

33 * Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me, * and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say unto you.

34 * A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another, as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

35 By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

36 ¶ [5] Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now: but thou shalt follow me afterwards.

37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will * lay down my life for thy sake.

38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily verily I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice.

CHAP. XIIII.

1 Christ comforteth his disciples with the hope of heaven: 6 professeth himself the way, the truth, and the life, and one with the Father: 13 assureth their prayers in his name to be effectuall: 15 requesteth love and obedience: 16 promiseth the Holy Ghost the Comforter: 27 and leaveth his peace with them.

LEt [1] not your heart be troubled: ye beleeve in God, beleeve also in me.

2 In my Fathers house are many mansions: if it were not so, [a] I would have told you, to wit, unlesse there were place enough not onely for me, but for you also, in my Fathers house, I would not thus deceive you with a vain hope, but I would have told you so plainly.

* Matth. 26, 2. 1 Christ no lesse certain of the victory, than of the combate which was at hand, using the signe of washing the feet, doeth partly thereby give an example of singular modestie, and his great love toward his apostles in this notable act, being like, very shortly, to depart from them: and partly, witnesseth unto them, that it is he onely, which washeth away the filth of his people, and that by little and little in their time and season.

a Them of his houshold, that is, His Saints.

b Into his power.

c In that he is said to rise, it argueth that there was a space between the ceremonie of the passeover and this washing of feet, at what time it seemeth that the supper was instituted.

d Unlesse thou suffer me to wash thee, thou shalt have no part in the kingdome of heaven.

* Matth. 10, 24. Chap. 15, 20.

2 The betraying of Christ was not casuall, or a thing that happened by chance, but the Father so ordeined the cause of our salvation, to reconcile us unto himself in his Sonne, and the Sonne did willingly and voluntarily obey the Father.

* Psal. 41, 9.

* Matth. 10, 40.

* Matth. 26, 21.

e He affirmed it openly and soothed it not.

f John his leaning was such, that sitting down in his bed, his head was toward Jesus his head: so that it was an easie matter for him to touch Jesus his bosom: for it is certain that in old time men used not to sit at the table, but lie down on the one side.

3 We have to consider the glorifying of Christ in his ignominie.

g This verse and the next following, are a most plain and evident testimonie of the divinitie of Christ.

4 The eternall glory shall flow by little and little from the members. But in the mean time, we must take good heed, that we passe over the race of this life in brotherly love.

* Chap. 7, 34.

you: I go to [b] prepare a place for you.

3 [a] And if I go and prepare a place for you, I [c] will come again, and receive you unto my self, that where I am, there ye may be also.

4 [a] And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

5 Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest, and how can we know the way?

6 Jesus saith unto him, [d] I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me.

7 [e] If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.

8 Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me, hath seen the Father, and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?

10 [a] Beleevest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you, I speak not of my self: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doth the works.

11 Beleeve me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else beleeve me for the very works sake.

12 [f] Verily verily I say unto you, He that beleeveth on me, the works that I do, shall he do also, and [f] greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto my Father.

13 * And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Sonne.

14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15 ¶ [g] If ye love me, keep my commandments.

16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever.

17 Even the [g] Spirit of truth, whom the [h] world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him, for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

18 I will not leave you [‡] comfortlesse, I will come to you.

19 Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more: but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also.

20 At that day ye shall know, that I am [i] in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

21 He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me, and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, & I will love him, & will [k] manifest my self to him.

22 [l] Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thy self unto us, and not unto the world?

23 Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

24 He that loveth me not, keepeth not my sayings: and the word which you heare, is not mine, but the Fathers which sent me.

25 [a] These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.

26 But the Comforter, which is the holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.

27 [j] Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth, give I unto you, let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

28 [10] Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away; & come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoyce, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is [l] greater than I.

29 And now I have told you before it come to passe, that when it is come to passe, ye might beleeve.

30 [11] Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for the prince of this world cometh, and hath [m] nothing in me.

31 But that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do: arise, let us go hence.

CHAP. XV.

1 The consolation and mutuall love between Christ and his members, under the parable of the vine. 18 A comfort in the hatred and persecution of the world. 26 The office of the holy Ghost, and of the apostles.

1 [1] Am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman.

2 * Every branch in me that beareth not fruit, he taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit.

3 * Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you.

4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of it self, except it abide in the vine: no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

5 I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for [‡] without me ye can do nothing.

6 If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered, and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.

7 [2] If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.

8 [a] Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit, so shall ye be my disciples.

9 [j] As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: [b] continue ye in my love.

b All this speech is by the way of an allegorie, whereby the Lord comforteth his own, declaring to them his departure into heaven, which is, Not to reigne there alone, but to goe before and prepare a place for them.

c Christ went not away from us, to the end to forsake us, but rather that he might at length take us up with him into heaven.

c These words are to be referred to the whole church, and therefore the angel said to the disciples when they were astonished, What stand you gazing up into heaven? This Jesus shall so come as you saw him goe up, Act. 1, 11. and in all places of the scripture, the full comfort of the church is referred to that day when God shall be all in all, and is therefore called the day of redemption.

d Christ onely is the way to true and everlasting life, for he it is in whom the Father hath revealed himself.

e This saying, sheweth unto us both the nature, the will, and office of Christ.

e It is plain by this place, that to know God, and to see God, is all one: Now whereas he said before, that no man saw God at any time, that is to be understood thus, Without Christ, or, Were is not through Christ, no man could ever see, nor saw God at any time: for as Chrysostome saith, The Sonne is a very short and easie setting forth of the Fathers nature unto us.

f The majestie of God sheweth it self most evidently, both in Christs doctrin & deeds.

f The approving of the vertue of Christ is not included within his own person, but it is spread through the body of his whole church.

f That is, not onely doe them, but I can also give other men power to do greater.

* Matth. 7, 7.

g He loveth Christ aright which obeyeth his commandments: and because the same is accompanied with an infinite sort of miseries, although he be absent in body, yet doth he comfort his, with the present vertue of the holy Ghost, whom the world despiseth, because it knoweth him not.

g The holy Ghost is called the Spirit of truth, of the effect which he worketh, because he inspireth the truth into us, whereas otherwise he hath truth in himself.

h Worldly men.

i The Sonne is in the Father after such sort, that he is of one self-same substance with the Father, but he is in his disciples in a certain respect, as an aider and helper of them.

k I will shew my self to him, and be known of him, as if he saw me with his eyes: but this shewing of himself is not bodily, but spirituall, yet so plain as none can be more.

l We must not ask why the Gospel is revealed to some rather than to other, but we must rather take heed that we embrace Christ, who is offered unto us, and that we truly love him, that is to say, that we give our selves wholly to his obedience.

8 It is the office of the holy Ghost to imprint in the mindes of the elect, in their times and seasons, that which Christ once spake.

9 All true felicity cometh to us by Christ alone.

10 So farre is it that we should be sory for the departing of Christ from us, according to the flesh, that we should rather rejoyce for it, seeing that all the blessing of the members dependeth upon the glorifying of the head.

l This is spoken, in that that he is Mediatour, for so the Father is greater than he, in as much as the person to whom request is made, is greater than he that maketh the request.

11 Christ goeth to death not unwillingly but willingly, not as yeelding to the devil, but obeying his Fathers decree.

m As who would say, Satan will by and by set upon me with all the might he can, but he hath no power over me, neither shall he find any such thing in me, as he thinketh he shall.

1 We are of nature dry and fit for nothing, but the fire: Therefore that we may live & be fruitfull, we must first be graffed into Christ, as it were into a vine, by the Fathers hand: and then be daily pruned with a continuall meditation of the word, and the crosse: otherwise, it shall not avail any man at all to have been graffed, unlesse he cleave fast unto the vine, and to draw juyce out of it.

* Matth. 15, 13.

* Chap. 13, 10.

‡ Or, severed from me.

2 He abideth in Christ, which resteth in his doctrine, and therefore bringeth forth good fruit: And the Father will deny such an one nothing.

a As who would say, Herein shall my Father be glorified, and herein also shall you be my disciples, if you bring forth much fruit.

j The love of the Father towards the Sonne, & of the Sonne towards us, & ours towards God & our neigbour, are joyned together with an unseparable knot: and there is nothing more sweet and pleasant than it is. Now this love sheweth it self by the effects: a most perfect example whereof Christ himself exhibiteth unto us.

b That is, in that love wherewith I do love you: which love is on both parts.

10 If ye keep my commandements, ye shall abide in my love: even as I have kept my Fathers commandments, and abide in his love.

11 These things have I spoken unto you that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

12 * This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.

13 Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

14 Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

15 [4] Henceforth I call you not servants, for the servant knoweth not what his lord doth, but I have called you friends: for all things that I have heard of my Father, I have made known unto you.

16 Ye have [5] not chosen me, but [c] I have chosen you, and * ordained you, that you should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you.

17 These things I command you, that ye love one another.

18 [6] If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

19 If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you.

20 * Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than the lord, if they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you: if they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also.

21 [7] But all these things will they do unto you for my names sake, because they know not him that sent me.

22 [d] If I had not come, and spoken unto them, they had not had sinne: but now they have no ‡ cloke for their sinne.

23 He that hateth me, hateth my Father also.

24 If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had sinne: but now have they both seen, and hated both me and my Father.

25 But this cometh to passe, that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their [e] law, * They hated me without a cause.

26 * [8] But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testifie of me.

27 And ye also shall bear witnesse, because ye have been with me from the beginning.

* 1 Chap. 13, 43. 1 Thes. 4, 9. 1 Joh. 3, 11.

4 The doctrin of the gospel (as it is uttered by Christs own mouth) is a most perfect and absolute declaration of the counsel of God, which pertaineth to our salvation, and is committed unto the apostles.

5 Christ is the authour and preserver of the ministerie of the gospel, even to the worlds end: but the ministers have above all things need of prayer and brotherly love.

c This place teacheth us plainly, that our salvation cometh from the only favour and gracious goodnesse of the everlasting God toward us, and of nothing that we do or can deserve.

* Matth. 28, 19.

6 It ought not only not to fear, but rather confirm the faithfull ministers of Christ, when they shall be hated of the world as their master was.

* Matth. 10, 24. Chap. 13, 16.

7 The hatred that the world beareth against Christ, proceedeth of the blockishnesse of the minde, which notwithstanding is voluntary blinde, so that the world can pretend no excuse to cover their fault.

d As who would say, If I had not come, these men would not have stuck to have said still before Gods judgement seat, that they are religious and void of sinne: but seeing I came to them, and they clean refuse me, they can have no cloke for their wickednesse.

e Some time by this word, Law, are meant the five books of Moses, but in this place, the whole Scripture: for the place alledged is in the Psalmes.

* Psal. 35, 19. * Luk. 24, 49. Chap. 14, 26.

8 Against the rage of the wicked, we shall stand surely by the inward testimonie of the holy Ghost: but the holy Ghost speaketh no otherwise, than he speaketh by the mouth of the apostles.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Christ comforteth his disciples against tribulation by the promise of the holy Ghost, and by his resurrection and ascension, 23 assureth their prayers made in his name to be acceptable to his Father. 33 Peace in Christ, and in the world affliction.

1 THese [1] things have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended.

1 The ministers of the gospel must look for all manner of reproches, not only of them which are open enemies, but even of them also which seem to be of the same houshold, and the very pillars of the church.

2 They shall put you out of the synagogues: yea the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doth God service.

3 And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me.

4 But these things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you.

5 But now I go my way to him that sent me, and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?

6 But because I have said these things unto you, sorrow hath filled your heart.

7 [2] Nevertheless, I tell you the truth, it is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you: but if I depart, I will send him unto you.

8 [3] And when he is come, he will [‡a] reprove the [b] world of sinne, and of righteousnesse, and of judgement.

9 Of sinne, because they beleeve not on me.

10 [c] Of righteousnesse, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more.

11 [d] Of judgement, [e] because the prince of this world is judged.

12 [4] I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now:

13 Howbeit, when he the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself: but whatsoever he shall heare, that shall he speak, and he will shew you things to come.

14 [5] He [g] shall glorifie me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

15 All things that the Father hath, are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

16 [6] A [f] little while and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while and ye shall see me, [g] because I go to the Father.

17 Then said some of his disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while and ye shall see me; and, Because I go to the Father.

18 They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? we cannot tell what he saith.

19 Now Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye enquire among your selves of that I said, A little while and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while and ye shall see me?

20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, that ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoyce: and ye shall be sorrowfull, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

21 A woman when she is in travail, hath sorrow, because her houre is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembreth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.

2 The absence of Christ according to the flesh, is profitable to the church, that we may wholly depend upon his spirituall power.

3 The Spirit of God worketh so mightily by the preaching of the word, that he constraineth the world, will it, nill it, to confesse its own unrighteousnesse, and Christs righteousnesse, and almightinesse.

‡ Or, convince.

a He will so reprove the world, that the worldlings shall be able to pretend no excuse.

b He respecteth the time that followed his ascension when as all gainsayers were manifestly reproved through the powring out of the holy Ghost upon the church: So that the very enemies of Christ were reproved of sinne, in that they were constrained, to confesse that they were deceived, in that they beleeved not, and therefore they said to Peter, Acts 2. Men & brethren, what shall we do?

c Of Christ himself: for when the world shall see, that I have powred out the holy Ghost, they shall be constrained to confesse that I was just, and was not condemned of my Father, when I went out of this world.

d Of that authority and power which I have both in heaven and earth.

e That is, because they shall then understand and know indeed that I have overcome the devil, and do govern the world when all men shall see that they set themselves against you in vain: for I will arm you with that heavenly power, wherewith you may destroy every high thing which is lifted up against the knowledge of God. 2 Cor. 10, 12.

4 The doctrin of the apostles proceeded from the holy Ghost, and is most perfect.

5 The holy Ghost bringeth no new doctrin, but teacheth that which was uttered by Christs own mouth, and imprinteth it in our minds.

6 The grace of the holy Ghost is a most lively glasse, wherein Christ is truely beholden with the most sharp sighted eyes of faith, and not with the bleared eyes of the flesh, whereby we feel a continuall joy even in the midst of sorrows.

f When a little time is once past.

g For I passe to eternall glory, so that I shall be much more present with you than I was before: for then you shall feel indeed what I am, and what I am able to do.

row, becauſe her houre is come: but aſſoon as she is delivered of the childe, she remembreth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.

22 And ye now therefore have ſorrow: but I will ſee you again, and your heart ſhall rejoyce, and your joy no man taketh from you.

23 And in that day ye ſhall ask me nothing: * Verily verily I ſay unto you, Whatſoever ye ſhall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.

* Matt. 7,7.

24 Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye ſhall receive, that your joy may be full.

25 [7] Theſe things have I ſpoken unto you in ‡ proverbs: the time cometh when I ſhall no more ſpeak unto you in ‡ proverbs, but I ſhall ſhew you plainly of the Father.

7 The holy Ghoſt, which was powred upon the apoſtles after the aſcenſion of Chriſt, inſtructed both them in all the chiefeſt myſteries and ſecrets of our ſalvation, and alſo by them the church, and will alſo inſtruct it to the end of the world.

26 [8] At that day ye ſhall ask in my name: and I ſay not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you:

8 The ſumme of the worship of God is the invocation of the Father, in the name of the Sonne the mediatour, who is already heard for us, for whom he both abaſed himſelf, and is now alſo glorified.

27 For the Father himſelf loveth you, becauſe ye have loved me, and have beleeved that I came out from God.

28 I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.

29 [9] His diſciples ſaid unto him, Lo, now ſpeakeſt thou plainly, and ſpeakeſt no ‡ proverb.

9 Faith and fooliſh ſecuritie differ very much.

30 Now are we ſure that thou knoweſt all things, and needeſt not that any man ſhould ask thee: by this we beleeve that thou cameſt forth from God.

31 Jeſus anſwered them, Do ye now beleeve?

32 * Behold the houre cometh, yea, is now come, [10] that ye ſhal be ſcattered, every man to ‡ his own, and ſhall leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, becauſe the Father is with me.

* Matth. 26, 31.

10 Neither the wickedneſſe of the world, nor the weakneſſe of his own can diminish any thing of the vertue of Chriſt.
‡ Or, his own home.

33 [11] Theſe things I have ſpoken unto you, that [h] in me ye might have peace, in the world ye ſhall have tribulation: but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world.

11 The ſurety and ſtay of the church dependeth only upon the victorie of Chriſt.

h That in me you might be throughly quieted. For by (peace) is meant in this place, that quiet ſtate of minde which is clean contrary to diſquietneſſe, and heavineſſe.

CHAP. XVII.

1 Chriſt prayeth to his Father to glorifie him. 6 To preſerve his apoſtles 11 in unity, 17 and truth: 20 to glorifie them, and all other beleevers with him in heaven.

THeſe [1] words ſpake Jeſus and lift up his eyes to heaven, and ſaid, [2] Father, the houre is come, glorifie thy Sonne, that thy Sonne alſo may glorifie thee.

1 Jeſus Chriſt the everlaſting high prieſt, being ready ſtraightwayes to offer up himſelf, doth by ſolemn prayers conſecrate himſelf to God the Father, as a ſacrifice, and us together with himſelf. Therefore this prayer was from the beginning, is, and ſhall be to the end of the world, the foundation and ground of the church of God.

2 * As thou haſt given him power over [a] all flesh, that he ſhould give eternall life to as many as thou haſt given him.

3 And this is life eternall, that they might know thee the [b] only true God, and Jeſus Chriſt whom thou haſt ſent.

2 He firſt declareth, that as he came into the world to the end that the Father might ſhew in him, being apprehended by faith, his glory, in ſaving his elect, ſo he applied himſelf to that only: and therefore deſireth of the Father, that he would bleſſe the work which he had finished. * Matth. 28. 18. a Over all men. b He calleth the Father the only very God, to ſet him againſt falſe gods, and not to ſhut out himſelf and the holy Ghoſt, for ſtraightwayes he joyneth the knowledge of the Father and the knowledge of himſelf together, and according to his accuſtomed manner ſetteth forth the whole Godhead in the perſon of the Father: ſo is the Father alone ſaid to be King, immortall, wiſe, and dwelling in light which no man can attain unto, inviſible, Rom. 16, 27. 1 Tim. 1, 17.

4 I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gaveſt me to do.

5 And now, O Father, glorifie thou me with thine own ſelf, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

6 [3] I have manifeſted thy name unto the men which thou gaveſt me out of the world: [c] thine they were, and thou [d] gaveſt them me; and they have kept thy word.

3 Firſt of all, he prayeth for thoſe his diſciples by whom he would have the reſt to be gathered together, and commendeth them unto the Father, having once rejected the whole company of the reprobate) becauſe he received them of him, into his cuſtodie, and for that they embraceing his doctrin ſhall have ſo many and ſo mighty enemies, that there is no way for them to be in ſafetie, but by his help only.
c He ſheweth hereby that everlaſting election and choice, which was hidden in the good will and pleaſure of God, which is the ground work of our ſalvation.
d He ſheweth how that everlaſting and hidden purpoſe of God is declared in Chriſt, by whom we are juſtified and ſanctified, if we lay hold on him by faith, that at length we may come to the glory of the election.

7 Now they have known that all things whatſoever thou haſt given me, are of thee.

8 For I have given unto them the words which thou gaveſt me, and they have received them, * and have known ſurely that I came out from thee, and they have beleeved that thou didſt ſend me.

* Chap. 16, 27.

9 I pray for them, I pray not for the world, but for them which thou haſt given me, for they are thine.

10 And all mine are thine, and thine are mine, and I am glorified in them.

11 And now I am no more in the world, but theſe are in the world, and I come to thee Holy Father, keep through thine own name, thoſe whom thou haſt given me, that they may be [e] one, as we are.

e He ſheweth that his people may peaceably agree and be joyned together in one, that as the Godhead is one, ſo they may be of one minde, and one conſent together.

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: thoſe that thou gaveſt me I have kept, and none of them is loſt, but the ſonne of perdition: * that the ſcripture might be fulfilled.

* Pſal. 109, 8.

13 And now come I to thee, and theſe things I ſpeak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themſelves.

14 I have given them thy word, and the world hath hated them, becauſe they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

15 [4] I pray not that thou ſhouldeſt take them out of the world, but that thou ſhouldeſt keep them from the evil.

4 He ſheweth what manner of deliverance he meaneth, not that they ſhould be in no danger, but that they being preſerved from all, might prove by experience that the doctrin of ſalvation is truth, which they received at his mouth to deliver to other.

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 [f] Sanctifie them through thy truth, thy word is truth.

f That is, make them holy: and that is ſaid to be holy, which is dedicated and made proper to God only.

18 [5] As thou haſt ſent me into the world, even ſo have I alſo ſent them into the world.

5 He addeth moreover, that the apoſtles have a vocation common with them, and therefore that they muſt be holden up by the ſelf-ſame vertue to give up themſelves wholly to God, whereby he being firſt, did conſecrate himſelf to the Father.

19 And for their ſakes I ſanctifie my ſelf, that they alſo might be ‡ ſanctified through the [g] truth.

20 [6] Neither pray I for theſe alone; but for them alſo which ſhall beleeve on me through their word.

21 That they all may be one; as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, that they alſo may be one in us: that the world may beleeve that thou haſt ſent me.

22 And the glory which thou gaveſt me, I have given them: that they may be one, even as we are one.

23 I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world

g The true and ſubſtantiall ſanctification of Chriſt, is ſet againſt the outward purifying.
6 Secondarily, he offereth to God the Father all his, that is, how many ſoever ſhall beleeve in him by the doctrin of the apoſtles: that as he cleaveth unto the Father, receiving from him all fulneſſe, ſo they being joyned with him, may receive life from him, and at length being together beloved in him, may alſo with him enjoy everlaſting glory.

may know that thou haſt ſent me, and haſt loved them, as thou haſt loved me.

* Chap. 12, 26.

24 * Father, I will that they alſo whom thou haſt given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory which thou haſt given me: for thou lovedſt me before the foundation of the world.

7 He communicateth with his by little and little, the knowledge of the Father, which is moſt full in Chriſt the mediatour, that they may in him be beloved of the Father, with the ſelf-ſame love wherewith he loveth the Sonne.

25 O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee, but I have known thee, and theſe have known that thou haſt ſent me.

26 7 And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou haſt loved me, may be in them, and I in them.

Chap. XVIII.

1 Judas betrayeth Jeſus. 6 The officers fall to the ground. 10 Peter ſmiteth off Malchus eare. 12 Jeſus is taken and led unto Annas and Caiaphas. 15 Peters deniall. 19 Jeſus examined before Caiaphas. 28 His arraignement before Pilate. 36 His kingdome. 40 The Jews ask Barabbas to be let looſe.

1 Chriſt goeth of his own accord into a garden, which his betrayer knew, to be taken, that by his obedience, he might take away the ſinne that entred into the world by one mans rebellion, and that in a garden.

WHen 1 Jeſus had ſpoken theſe words, * he went forth with his diſciples over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entred, and his diſciples.

* Matth. 26, 36.

2 And Judas alſo which betrayed him, knew the place: for Jeſus ofttimes reſorted thither with his diſciples.

* Matth. 27, 47.

2 Chriſt who was innocent was taken as a wicked perſon, that we which are wicked might be let go as innocent.

3 Chriſts perſon (but not his vertue) was bound of the adverſaries, when and how he would.

3 * 2 Judas then having received a band of men, and officers from the chief prieſts and Phariſees, cometh thither with lanterns, and torches, and weapons.

4 3 Jeſus therefore knowing all things that ſhould come upon him, went forth, and ſaid unto them, Whom ſeek ye?

5 They anſwered him, Jeſus of Nazareth. Jeſus ſaith unto them, I am he. And Judas alſo which betrayed him, ſtood with them.

6 Aſſoon then as he had ſaid unto them, I am he, they went backward and fell to the ground.

7 Then asked he them again, Whom ſeek ye? and they ſaid, Jeſus of Nazareth.

4 Chriſt doeth not neglect the office of a good paſtour, no not in his greateſt danger.

8 * Jeſus anſwered, I have told you that I am he. If therefore ye ſeek me, let theſe go their way.

* Chap. 17, 12.

9 That the ſaying might be fulfilled which he ſpake, * Of them which thou gaveſt me, have I loſt none.

5 We ought to contain the zeal we bear to God, within the bonds of our vocation.

10 5 Then Simon Peter having a ſword, drew it, and ſmote the high prieſts ſervant, and cut off his right eare: the ſervants name was Malchus.

11 Then ſaid Jeſus unto Peter, Put up thy ſword into the sheath: the cup which my Father hath given me, ſhall I not drink it?

12 Then the band, and the captain, and officers of the Jews took Jeſus, and bound him,

6 Chriſt is brought before an earthly high prieſt to be condemned for our blaſphemies, that we might be quitted of the everlaſting high prieſt himſelf.

13 6 And led him away to Annas firſt (for he was father in law to Caiaphas) which was the high prieſt that ſame yeare. ‡

‡ And Annas ſent Chriſt bound unto Caiaphas the high prieſt, verſe 24.

14 * Now Caiaphas was he which gave counſel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man ſhould die for the people.

15 ¶ * 7 And Simon Peter followed Jeſus, and ſo did another diſciple: that diſciple was known unto the high prieſt, and went in with Jeſus into the palace of the high prieſt.

* Chap. 11, 50. * Matth. 26, 58. 7 A lively example of the fragilitie of man, even in the beſt, when they be once left to themſelves.

16 But Peter ſtood at the doore without. Then went out that other diſciple which was known unto the high prieſt, and ſpake unto her that kept the doore, and brought in Peter.

17 Then ſaith the damſel that kept the doore unto Peter, Art not thou alſo one of this mans diſciples? He ſaith, I am not.

18 And the ſervants and officers ſtood there, who had made a fire of coals, (for it was cold) and they warmed themſelves: and Peter ſtood with them and warmed himſelf.

8 Chriſt defendeth his cauſe but ſlenderly, not that he would withdraw himſelf from death but to ſhew that he was condemned as an innocent.

19 ¶ 8 The high prieſt then asked Jeſus of his diſciples, and of his doctrine.

20 Jeſus anſwered him, I ſpake openly to the world, I ever taught in the ſynagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews alwayes reſort, and in ſecret have I ſaid nothing.

21 Why askeſt thou me? ask them which heard me, what I have ſaid unto them: behold, they know what I ſaid.

‡ Or, with a rod.

22 And when he had thus ſpoken, one of the officers which ſtood by, ſtroke Jeſus ‡ with the palme of his hand, ſaying, Anſwereſt thou the high prieſt ſo?

23 Jeſus anſwered him, If I have ſpoken evil, bear witneſſe of the evil: but if well, why ſmiteſt thou me?

* Matth. 26, 57.

24 * Now Annas had ſent him bound unto Caiaphas the high prieſt.

9 After that men have once fallen, they cannot only, not lift up themſelves by their own ſtrength, but alſo they fall more and more into worſe, untill they be raiſed up again, by a new vertue of God.

25 9 And Simon Peter ſtood and warmed himſelf: * They ſaid therefore unto him, Art not thou alſo one of his diſciples? He denied it, and ſaid, I am not.

* Matth. 26, 69.

26 One of the ſervants of the high prieſt (being his kinſman whoſe eare Peter cut off) ſaith, Did not I ſee thee in the garden with him?

27 Peter then denied again, and immediately the cock crew.

* Matth. 27, 2.

10 The Sonne of God is brought before the judgement ſeat of an earthly and profane man, in whom there is found much leſſe wickedneſſe than in the princes of the people of God: A lively image of the wrath of God againſt ſinne, and therewithall of his great mercy, and laſt of all of his moſt ſevere judgement againſt the ſtubborn contemners of his grace when it is offered unto them.

28 ¶ * 10 Then led they Jeſus a from Caiaphas, unto ‡ the hall of judgement: and it was early, * and they themſelves went not into the judgement hall, leſt they ſhould be defiled: but that they might eat the paſſeover.

a From Caiaphas houſe.

* Acts 10, 28.

29 Pilate then went out unto them, and ſaid, What accuſation bring you againſt this man?

30 They anſwered and ſaid unto him, If he were not a malefactour, we would not have delivered him up unto thee.

31 Then ſaid Pilate unto them, Take ye him and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore ſaid unto him, b It is not lawfull for us to put any man to death:

b For judgements of life and death were taken from them fourtie yeares before the deſtruction of the temple.

32 * That the ſaying of Jeſus might be fulfilled, which he ſpake, c ſignifying what death he ſhould die.

* Matth. 20, 19.

c For Chriſt had foretold that he ſhould be crucified.

33 * Then Pilate entred into the judgement hall again, and called Jeſus, and ſaid unto him, Art thou the king of the Jews?

* Matth. 27, 11.

34 Jeſus anſwered him, Sayeſt thou this thing of thy ſelf, or did others tell it thee of me?

35 Pilate anſwered, Am I a Jew? thine

100 own nation, and the chief prieſts have delivered thee unto me: What haſt thou done?

11 Chriſt avoucheth his ſpirituall kingdome, but rejecteth a worldly.

36 [11] Jeſus anſwered, My kingdome is not of this world: if my kingdome were of this world, then would my ſervants fight, that I ſhould not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdome not from hence.

37 Pilate therefore ſaid unto him, Art thou a king then? Jeſus anſwered, Thou ſayeſt that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cauſe came I into the world, that I ſhould bear witneſſe unto the truth: every one that is of the truth, heareth my voice.

12 It was requiſit that Chriſt ſhould be pronounced innocent, but notwithſtanding (in that that he took upon him our perſon) was to be condemned as a moſt wicked man.
d He ſpeaketh this diſdainfully and ſcoffingly, and not by way of asking a queſtion.

38 [12] Pilate ſaith unto him, [d] What is truth? And when he had ſaid this, he went out again unto the Jews, and ſaith unto them, I finde in him no fault at all.

39 * But ye have a cuſtome, that I ſhould releaſe unto you one at the paſſeover: will ye therefore that I releaſe unto you the king of the Jews?

* Matth. 27, 15.
* Acts 3, 14.
e Word for word, Made a great and foul voice.

40 * Then [e] cried they all again, ſaying, Not this man, but Barabbas. Now Barabbas was a robber.

CHAP. XIX.

1 Chriſt is ſcourged, crowned with thorns, and beaten. 4 Pilate is deſirous to releaſe him, but being overcome with the outrage of the Jews, he delivered him to be crucified. 23 They caſt lots for his garments. 26 He commendeth his mother to John. 28 He dieth. 31 His ſide is pierced. 38 He is buried by Joſeph and Nicodemus.

* Matth. 27, 26.
1 The wiſdome of the fleſh chuſeth of two evils the leaſt, but God curſeth that ſame wiſdome.

THen * Pilate therefore took Jeſus, and [1] ſcourged him.

2 And the ſouldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put on him a purple robe,

3 And ſaid, Hail king of the Jews: and they ſmote him with their hands.

2 Chriſt is again quitted by that ſame mouth wherewith he is afterward condemned.

4 [2] Pilate therefore went forth again, and ſaith unto them, Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that I finde no fault in him.

5 Then came Jeſus forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe: and Pilate ſaith unto them, Behold the man.

a They will have him crucified whom by an old cuſtome of theirs they ſhould have ſtoned and hanged up as convict of blaſphemie: but they deſire to have him crucified after the manner of the Romanes.
3 Pilates conſcience fighteth for Chriſt, but ſtraightway it yeeldeth: becauſe it is not upholden with the ſingular vertue of God.

6 When the chief prieſts therefore and officers ſaw him, they cried out, ſaying: [a] Crucifie him, crucifie him. Pilate ſaith unto them, Take ye him, and crucifie him: for I finde no fault in him.

7 The Jews anſwered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, becauſe he made himſelf the Sonne of God.

8 ¶ [3] When Pilate therefore heard that ſaying, he was the more afraid.

9 And went again into the judgement hall, and ſaith unto Jeſus, Whence art thou? but Jeſus gave him no anſwer.

10 Then ſaith Pilate unto him, Speakeſt thou not unto me? knoweſt thou not, that I have power to crucifie thee, and have power to releaſe thee?

11 Jeſus anſwered, Thou couldeſt have no power at all againſt me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the greater ſinne.

12 And from thenceforth Pilate ſought to releaſe him: but the Jews cried out, ſaying, If thou let this man go, thou art not Cæſars friend: whoſoever maketh himſelf a king, ſpeaketh againſt Ceſar.

4 Pilate condemneth himſelf firſt, with the ſame mouth, wherewith he afterward condemneth Chriſt.
b Gabbatha ſignifieth an high place, as judgement ſeats are.

13 ¶ [4] When Pilate therefore heard that ſaying, he brought Jeſus forth, and ſat down in the judgement ſeat, in a place that is called the pavement, but in the Hebrew, [b] Gabbatha.

14 And it was the preparation of the paſſeover, and about the ſixth houre: and he ſaith unto the Jews, Behold your king.

15 But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucifie him. Pilate ſaith unto them, Shall I crucifie your king? The chief prieſts anſwered, We have no king but Ceſar.

* Matth. 27, 31.
5 Chriſt faſteneth Satan, ſinne and death to the croſſe.

16 * [5] Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified: and they took Jeſus and led him away.

17 And he bearing his croſſe, went forth into a place called the place of a ſcull, which is called in the Hebrew, Golgotha.

18 Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either ſide one, and Jeſus in the midſt.

6 Chriſt ſitting upon the throne of the croſſe, is openly written everlaſting king of all people with his own hand, whoſe mouth condemned him for uſurping a kingdome.

19 ¶ [6] And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the croſſe, and the writing was JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20 This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jeſus was crucified was nigh to the city, and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latine.

21 Then ſaid the chief prieſts of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews, but that he ſaid, I am king of the Jews.

22 Pilate anſwered, What I have written, I have written.

* Matth. 27, 35.
7 Chriſt ſignifieth by the diviſion of his garments amongſt the bloudie butchers (his coat except, that had no ſeame) that it ſhall come to paſſe, that he will ſhortly divide his benefits, and enrich his very enemies throughout the world: but ſo notwithſtanding that the treaſure of his church ſhall remain whole.
* Pſal. 22, 18.

23 ¶ * [7] Then the ſouldiers, when they had crucified Jeſus, took his garments (and made foure parts, to every ſouldier a part) and alſo his coat: now the coat was without ſeam, ‡ woven from the top throughout.

24 They ſaid therefore among themſelves, Let us not rent it, but caſt lots for it, whoſe it ſhall be: * that the ſcripture might be fulfilled, which ſaith, They parted my raiment among them, and for my veſture they did caſt lots. Theſe things therefore the ſouldiers did.

8 Chriſt is a perfect example of all righteouſneſſe, not onely in the keeping of the firſt, but alſo of the ſecond table.
‡ Or, Clopas.

25 ¶ [8] Now there ſtood by the croſſe of Jeſus, his mother, and his mothers ſiſter, Mary the wife of ‡ Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 When Jeſus therefore ſaw his mother, and the diſciple ſtanding by, whom he loved, he ſaith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy ſonne.

27 Then ſaith he to the diſciple, Behold thy mother. And from that houre that diſciple took her unto his own home.

9 Chriſt, when he hath taken the vineger, yeeldeth up the ghoſt, drinking up indeed that moſt bitter and ſharp cup of his Fathers wrath in our name.
* Pſal. 69, 21.
c Galatinus witneſſeth out of the book called Sanhedrin, that the Jews were wont to give them that were executed, vineger mixed with frankincenſe to drink, to make their brains ſomewhat troubled: ſo charitably the Jews provided for the poore mens conſcience, which were executed.

28 ¶ [9] After this, Jeſus knowing that all things were now accomplished, * that the ſcripture might be fulfilled, ſaith, I thirſt.

29 Now there was ſet a [c] veſſel full of vine-

ger: and they filled a ſpunge with vineger, and put it upon hyſſope, and put it to his mouth.

30 When Jeſus therefore had received the vineger, he ſaid, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghoſt.

10 The body of Chriſt which was dead for a ſeaſon, (becauſe it ſo pleaſed him) is wounded, but the leaſt bone of it is not broken: and ſuch is the ſtate of his myſticall bodie.

31 [10] The Jews therefore becauſe it was the preparation, that the bodies ſhould not remain upon the croſſe on the ſabbath-day (for that ſabbath-day was an high day) beſought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

32 Then came the ſouldiers and brake the legs of the firſt, and of the other which was crucified with him.

11 Chriſt being dead upon the croſſe witneſſeth by a double ſigne, that he only is the true ſatisfaction, and the true waſhing for the beleevers.

33 But when they came to Jeſus, and ſaw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs.

34 [11] But one of the ſouldiers with a ſpear [d] pierced his ſide, and forthwith came there out, bloud and water.

d This wound was a moſt manifeſt witneſſe of the death of Chriſt: for the water that iſſued out of this wound gave us plainly to underſtand, that the weapon pierced the very skinne that compaſſeth the heart, which is the veſſel that containeth that water, and that being once wounded, that creature which is ſo pierced, and ſtricken, cannot chuſe but die.

35 And he that ſaw it, bare record, and his record is true: and he knoweth that he ſaith true, that ye might beleeve.

* 36 For theſe things were done, * that the ſcripture ſhould be fulfilled, A bone of him ſhall not be broken.

* Exod. 12, 46. Num. 9, 12. Pſal. 34, 20.

37 * And again another ſcripture ſaith, They ſhall look on him whom they pierced.

* Zech. 12, 10.

38 ¶ * [12] And after this, Joſeph of Arimathea (being a diſciple of Jeſus, but ſecretly for fear of the Jews) beſought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jeſus; and Pilate gave him leave: he came therefore and took the body of Jeſus.

* Matth. 27, 57.

39 And there came alſo Nicodemus, which at the firſt came to Jeſus by night, and brought a mixture of myrrhe and aloes, about an hundred pound weight.

12 Chriſt is openly buried, and in a famous place, Pilate writing and ſuffering it, and that by men which did favour Chriſt, in ſuch wiſe, that yet before that day, they never openly followed him: ſo that by his burial, no man can juſtly doubt either of his death, or reſurrection.

40 Then took they the body of Jeſus, and wound it in linnen clothes, with the ſpices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41 Now in the place where he was crucified, there was a garden, and in the garden a new ſepulchre, wherein was [e] never man yet laid.

e That no man might cavill at his reſurrection, as though ſome other that had been buried there, had riſen, Theophil.

42 There laid they Jeſus therefore, becauſe of the Jews preparation day, for the ſepulchre was nigh at hand.

CHAP. XX.

1 Mary cometh to the ſepulchre: 3 ſo do Peter and John, ignorant of the reſurrection. 11 Jeſus appeareth to Mary Magdalene, 19 and to his diſciples. 24 The incredulity and confeſſion of Thomas. 30 The ſcripture is ſufficient to ſalvation.

* Matth. 28, 1. Mark 16, 1.

THe * [1] firſt day of the week cometh Marie Magdalene early when it was yet dark, unto the ſepulchre, and ſeeth the ſtone taken away from the ſepulchre.

1 Mary Magdalene, Peter and John, are the firſt witneſſes of the reſurrection: and ſuch as cannot juſtly be ſuſpected, for that they themſelves could ſcarcely be perſwaded of it, ſo farre it is off, that they ſhould invent it of ſet purpoſe.

2 Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the * other diſciple whom Jeſus loved, and ſaith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the ſepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

* Chap. 13, 23. and 21, 20.

3 Peter therefore went forth, and that other diſciple, and came to the ſepulchre.

4 So they ran both together, and the other diſciple did outrunne Peter, and came firſt to the ſepulchre.

5 And he ſtouping down, and looking in, ſaw the linen clothes lying, yet went he not in.

6 Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the ſepulchre, and ſeeth the linnen clothes lie.

7 And the napkin that was about his head, not lying with the linnen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by it ſelf.

8 Then went in alſo that other diſciple which came firſt to the ſepulchre, and he ſaw, and beleeved.

9 For as yet they knew not the ſcripture, that he muſt riſe again from the dead.

10 Then the diſciples went away again unto their own home.

11 ¶ But Mary ſtood [a] without at the ſepulchre, weeping: and as she wept, she ſtouped down, and looked into the ſepulchre, a That is, without the cave, which the ſepulchre was cut out of.

12 [2] And ſeeth two angels [b] in white, ſitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jeſus had layen:

2 Two angels are made witneſſes of the Lords reſurrection.
b In white cloathing.

13 And they ſay unto her, Woman, why weepeſt thou? She ſaith unto them, Becauſe they have taken away [c] my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

c Mary ſpake as the common people uſe to ſpeak: for they ſpeak of a dead carkaſſe as they do of a whole man.

14 [3] And when she had thus ſaid, she turned her ſelf back, and ſaw Jeſus ſtanding, and knew not that it was Jeſus.

3 Jeſus witneſſeth by his preſence, that he is truely riſen.

15 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Woman, why weepeſt thou? whom ſeekeſt thou? she ſuppoſing him to be the gardener, ſaith unto him, Sir, if thou haſt born him hence, tell me where thou haſt laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Mary: She turned her ſelf and ſaith unto him, Rabboni, which is to ſay, Maſter.

17 [4] Jeſus ſaid unto her, Touch me not: for I am not yet aſcended to my Father: but go to my [d] brethren, and ſay unto them, I aſcend unto [e] my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God.

4 Chriſt which is riſen is not to be ſought in this world, according to the fleſh, but in heaven by faith, whither he is gone before us.
d By his brethren, he meaneth his diſciples: for in the next verſe following, it is ſaid, that Mary told his diſciples.
e He calleth God his Father, becauſe he is his Father naturally in the God-head, and he ſaith your Father, becauſe he is our Father, by grace, through the adoption of the Sonnes of God: that is, by taking us of his grace to be his ſonnes, Epiphanius.

18 Mary Magdelene came and told the diſciples, that she had ſeen the Lord, and that he had ſpoken theſe things unto her.

19 ¶ * [5] Then the ſame day at evening, being the firſt day of the week, when the [f] doores were ſhut, where the diſciples were aſſembled for fear of the Jews, came Jeſus and ſtood in the midſt, and ſaith unto them, Peace be unto you.

* Mark 16, 14.

5 Chriſt in that that he preſented himſelf before his diſciples ſuddenly, through his divine power, when the gates were ſhut, doth fully aſſure them both of his reſurrection, and alſo of their apoſtleſhip inſpiring them with the Holy Ghoſt who is the miniſtery of the goſpel.

f Either the doores opened to him of their own accord, or the very walls themſelves were a paſſage to him.

20 And when he had ſo ſaid, he ſhewed unto them his hands and his ſide. Then were the diſciples glad when they ſaw the Lord.

21 Then ſaid Jeſus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father hath ſent me, even ſo ſend I you.

22 And when he had ſaid this, he breathed on them, and ſaith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghoſt.

23 * [6] Whoſe ſoever ſinnes ye remit, they are

* Matth. 18, 8. 6 The publiſhing of the forgiveneſſe of ſins, by faith in Chriſt, and the ſetting forth and denouncing the wrath of God in retaining the ſins of the unbeleevers, is the ſumme of the preaching of the goſpel.

102 remitted unto them; and whose soever sinnes ye retain, they are retained.

7 Christ draweth out of the unbeleef of Thomas a certain and sure testimonie of his resurrection.

24 ¶ [7] But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord: but he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not beleeve.

26 ¶ And after eight dayes, again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doores being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.

27 Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands: and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side, and be not faithlesse, but beleeving.

28 And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord, and my God.

8 True faith dependeth upon the mouth of God, and not upon fleshly eyes.

29 [8] Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast beleeved: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have beleeved.

* Chap. 21, 25.

9 To beleeve in Christ the Sonne of God, and our only Saviour, is the end of the doctrin of the gospel, and especially of the history of the resurrection.

30 ¶ * [9] And many other signes truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book.

31 But these are written, that ye might beleeve that Jesus is the Christ the Sonne of God, and that beleeving ye might have life through his name.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Christ appearing again to his disciples, was known of them by the great draught of fishes: 12 He dineth with them: 15 earnestly commandeth Peter to feed his lambes and sheep: 18 foretelleth him of his death: 22 rebuketh his curiositie touching John. 25 The conclusion.

1 In that, that Christ here is not only present but also eateth with his disciples, he giveth a most full assurance of his resurrection.

AFter [1] these things Jesus shewed himself again to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias: and on this wise shewed he himself:

2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sonnes of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing, They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth, and entred into a ship immediately; and that night they caught nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.

‡ Or, Sirs.

5 Then Jesus saith unto them, ‡ Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No.

6 And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall finde. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes.

7 Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved, saith unto Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his fishers [a] coat unto him, (for he was naked) and did cast himself into the sea.

a It was a linnen garment, which could not let his swimming.

8 And the other disciples came in a little ship (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits) dragging the net with fishes.

9 Assoon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus saith unto them, Bring of the fish, which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fishes, an hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.

13 Jesus then cometh and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead.

2 Peter by this triple confession is restored into his former degree from whence he fell by his triple denial: and therewithall is advertised, that he is indeed a pastour, which sheweth his love to Christ, in feeding his sheep.

15 ¶ [2] So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon sonne of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambes.

16 He saith to him again the second time, Simon sonne of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

b It was meet that he that had denied him thrice should confesse him thrice, that Peter might neither doubt of the forgivenesse of his so grievous a sin, nor of his restoring to the office of the apostleship.

17 He said unto him the [b] third time, Simon son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved, because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

3 The violent death of Peter is foretold.

18 [3] Verily verily I say unto thee, when thou wast young, thou [c] girdedst thy self, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another [d] shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest [e] not.

c They that took far journeys, especially in the east countrey, and in those places where the people used long garments, had need to be girded and trussed up.

d He meant that kinde of girding which is used toward captives, when they are bound fast with cords and chains, as who would say, Now thou girdest thy self as thou thinkest best, to go whither thou liketh, but the time will be when thou shalt not gird thee with a girdle but another shall binde thee with chains, and carrie thee whither thou wouldest not.

e Not that Peter suffered ought for the truth of God against his will, for we read that he came with joy and gladnesse, when he returned from the counsel, where he was whipped, but because this will cometh not from the flesh but from that gift of the spirit which is given us from above, therefore he shewed, there should be a certain striving and conflict or repugnance, which also is in us, in all our sufferances as touching the flesh.

19 This spake he, signifying by [f] what death he should glorifie God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me.

f That is: that Peter should die by a violent death.

20 ‡ Then Peter turning about, seeth the disciple * whom Jesus loved, following, which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?

21 Peter seeing him, saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do?

22 Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou me.

23 Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said not unto him, He shall not die: but If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?

‡ We must take heed, that whiles we cast our eyes upon other, we neglect not that which is injoyned us. * Chap. 13, 23. and 20, 2.

24 [5] This is the disciple which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things, and we know that his testimonie is true.

5 The historie of Christ is true and warily written, not for curiositie of men, but for the salvation of the godly. * Chap. 20, 30.

25 * And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world it self could not contain the books that should be written. Amen.

The

THE ACTS.

Of the APOSTLES.

CHAP. I.

Christ preparing his apostles to the beholding of his ascension, gathered them together into the mount Olivet, commandeth them to expect in Ierusalem the sending down of the Holy Ghost, promiseth after few dayes to send it: by vertue whereof they shoud be witnesses unto him, even to the utmost parts of the earth. 9 After his ascension they are warned by two angels to depart, and to set their mindes upon his second coming. 12 They accordingly return, and giving themselves to prayer, choose Matthias apostle in the place of Iudas.

THE [1] former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to [a] do and teach.

2 Untill the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen.

3 [2] To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion, by many [b] infallible proofs, being seen of them fourtie dayes, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdome of God:

4 And ‡ [c] being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, * which, saith he, ye have heard of me.

5 * For John truly baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized [d] with the Holy Ghost, not many dayes hence.

6 [3] When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time [e] restore again the kingdome to Israel?

7 And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the [f] seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.

8 * But ye shall receive ‡ power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

9 *[4] And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their sight.

10 And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven, as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparell.

11 Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus which is taken up [g] from you into heaven, shall so come, in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

12 Then returned they unto Jerusalem, from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a [h] sabbath-dayes journey.

13 [5] And when they were [i] come in, they went up into an upper room, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the son of Alpheus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James.

14 These [k] all continued with [l] one accord in [m] prayer and supplication, with the [n] women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and [o] with his brethren.

15 ¶ [6] And in those dayes Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said, (the number of the [p] names together were about an hundred and twenty)

16 [7] Men and brethren, This scripture must needs have been fulfilled, * which the Holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took Jesus.

17 For he was numbred with us, and had obtained part of this ministery.

18 * Now this man [q] purchased a field with the reward of iniquity, and [r] falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.

19 And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jerusalem, insomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to say, The field of bloud.

20 * For it is written in the book of psalmes, Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein: * [f] And his ‡ bishoprick let another take.

21 [8] Wherefore of these men which have companied with us, all the time that the Lord Jesus [t] went in and out among us, 22 Beginning from the baptisme of John, unto that same day that he was taken up [u] from us, must one be ordained to be a witnesse with us of his resurrection.

23 [9] And they [x] appointed two, Joseph called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed, and said, Thou Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen.

1 A passing over from the history of the gospel, that is, from the historie of the sayings and doings of Christ, unto the Acts of the apostles.

a The acts of Jesus are the miracles and doings which shewed his Godhead and his most perfit holinesse and examples of his doctrine.

2 Christ did not straightwayes ascend into heaven after his resurrection, because he would throughly prove his resurrection, and with his presence confirm his Apostles in the doctrin, which they had heard.

b He calleth those infallible tokens, which are otherwise termed necessary: now in that, that Christ spake, and walked, and ate, and was felt of many, these are sure signes and tokens that he truely rose again.

c They were dispersed here and there, but he gathereth them together that they might altogether be witnesses of his resurrection.

* Luke 24, 49.

* Matth. 3, 11.

d Either of the Father, or of me: so that either the Father or Christ, is set here against John, as the Holy Ghost is against the water, as things answerable the one to the other.

3 We must fight before we triumph: and we ought not curiously to search after those things which God hath not revealed.

e To the old and ancient state.

f That is, the fit occasions that serve to doing of matters which the Lord hath appointed to bring things to passe in. * Chap. 2. 1. ‡ Or, the power of the Holy Ghost coming upon you. * Luke 24, 51. 4 After that Christ had promised the full vertue of the Holy Ghost, wherewith he would govern his church, although he should be absent in body, he took up his body from us into the heavenly tabernacles, there to continue untill the latter day of judgement, as the angels witnesse. g That is, out of your sight.

h About two miles.

5 Ecclesiasticall assemblies to heare the word, and to make common prayer, were first instituted and kept in private houses by the apostles.

i They went into the house, which the church had chosen at that time to be a receit for the whole assembly.

k The Greek word signifieth, an invincible constancie, & steadinesse.

l It is to good purpose, that this concord is mentioned: for those prayers are most acceptable to God, which are made with agreeing mindes and wils.

m The disciples prayed for the sending of the Holy Ghost, and also to be delivered from present dangers, wherewith they were beset.

n For it was behoveable, to have the wives confirmed, who were afterward to be partakers of the dangers with their husbands.

o With his kinsfolks.

6 Peter is made the mouth and interpreter of the whole company of the apostles, either by secret revelation of the Holy Ghost, or by expresse judgement of the congregation.

p Because men are commonly called and enrolled by their names.

7 Peter preventeth the offence that might be taken of the falling away of Judas the betrayer, shewing, that all things which came unto him, were foretold by God.

* Psal. 41, 9.

* Matth. 27, 7.

q Luke considered not Judas his purpose, but that that followed of it, &c so we use to say, that a man hath procured himself harm, not that his will and purpose was so, but in respect of that which followed. r The Greek word signifieth thus much, that Judas fell down flat and was rent in sunder in the midst, with a marvellous huge noise. * Psal. 69, 25. * Psal. 109, 8. ‡ His office and ministerie: David wrote these words against Doeg the kings herdsman: and these words, Shepheard, Sheep, and Flock, are put over to the church office and ministerie, so that the church and the office thereof are called by these names. ‡ Or, office, or, charge. 8 The apostles deliberate upon nothing but first consult, and take advisement by Gods word: and again they do nothing that concerneth and is behoveable for the whole body of the congregation, without making the congregation privie unto it. t Which kinde of speech betokeneth as much in the Hebrew tongue, as the exercising of a publique and painfull office, when they speak of such as are in any publique office. Deut. 31, 2. r Chron. 27, 1. u From our company. 9 The apostles must be chosen immediately from God: and therefore after prayer, Matthias is chosen by lot, which is as it were, Gods own voice. x Openly, and by the voices of all the whole company.

25 That he may take part of this [y] miniſtery and apoſtleſhip, from which Judas by tranſgreſſion [z] fell, that he might go to his own place.

26 And they gave forth their lots, and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbred with the eleven apoſtles.

CHAP. II.

1 The apoſtles filled with the holy Ghoſt, and ſpeaking diverſe languages, are admired by ſome, and derided by others. 14 Whom Peter diſproving, and ſhewing that the apoſtles ſpake by the power of the holy Ghoſt, that Jeſus was riſen from the dead, aſcended into heaven, had poured down the ſame holy Ghoſt, and was the Meſſias, a man known to them to be approved of God by his miracles, wonders and ſignes, and not crucified without his determinate counſel, and foreknowledge: 37 he baptiſeth a great number that were converted, 41 who afterwards devoutly and charitably converſe together: the apoſtles working many miracles, and God daily increaſing his church.

AND [1] when the day of Pentecoſt was [a] fully come, they were [b] all with one accord in one place.

2 And ſuddenly there came a ſound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty winde, and it filled all the houſe where they where ſitting.

3 And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it ſat upon each of them:

4 And they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and began to ſpeak with [c] other tongues, as the [d] Spirit gave them utterance.

5 And there were dwelling at Jeruſalem, Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven.

6 Now [1] when this was noiſed abroad, the multitude came together, and were [‡] confounded, becauſe that every man heard them ſpeak in his own language.

7 And they were all amazed and marvelled, ſaying one to another, Behold, are not all theſe which ſpeak, Galileans?

8 [e] And how heare we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born?

9 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Meſopotamia, and in Judea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Aſia,

10 Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt and in the parts of Libya, about Cyrene, and ſtrangers of Rome, [f] Jews and proſelytes, 11 Cretes and Arabians, we do heare them ſpeak in our tongues the wonderfull works of God.

12 [2] And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, ſaying one to another, What meaneth this?

13 Others [g] mocking ſaid, Theſe men are full of new wine.

14 ¶ But Peter ſtanding up with the eleven, [h] lift up his voice, and ſaid unto them, Ye men of Judea, and all ye that dwell at Jeruſalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words:

15 For theſe are not drunken, as ye ſuppoſe, ſeeing it is but the third [i] houre of the day.

16 * But this is that which was ſpoken by the [k] prophet Joel,

17 [3] And it ſhall come to paſſe in the laſt dayes, (ſaith God) I will poure out of my ſpirit upon [l] all [m] fleſh: and your ſonnes and your daughters ſhall propheſie, and your young men ſhall ſee viſions, and your old men ſhall dream dreams:

18 And on my ſervants, and on my handmaidens I will poure out in thoſe dayes of my ſpirit, and they ſhall propheſie:

19 And I will ſhew wonders in heaven above, and ſignes in the earth beneath; bloud, and fire, and vapour of ſmoke.

20 * The ſunne ſhall be turned into darkneſſe, and the moon into bloud, before that great and notable day of the Lord come.

21 *[4] And it ſhall come to paſſe, that whoſoever ſhall [n] call on the name of the Lord, ſhall be ſaved.

22 [5] Ye men of Iſrael, heare theſe words, Jeſus of Nazareth a man [o] approved of God, among you, by miracles, wonders and ſignes, which God did by him in the midſt of you, as ye your ſelves alſo know:

23 Him, being delivered by the determinate counſel and [p] foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked [q] hands have crucified and [r] ſlain:

24 [6] Whom God hath raiſed up, having looſed the [s] pains of death: becauſe it was not poſſible that he ſhould be holden of it.

25 For David ſpeaketh concerning him, * I foreſaw the Lord alwayes before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I ſhould not be moved.

26 Therefore did my heart rejoyce, and my tongue was glad: moreover alſo, my fleſh ſhall reſt in hope.

27 Becauſe thou wilt not [t] leave my ſoul in hell, neither wilt thou ſuffer thine holy one to ſee corruption.

28 Thou haſt [u] made known to me the ways of life, thou ſhalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, [‡] let me freely ſpeak unto you * of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his ſepulchre is with us unto this day:

30 Therefore being a prophet, * and knowing that God had [x] ſworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loyns, according to the fleſh, he would raiſe up Chriſt, to ſit on his throne:

31 He ſeeing this before, ſpake of the reſurrection of Chriſt, * that his ſoul was not left in hell, neither his fleſh did ſee corruption.

y That he may be fellow & partaker of this miniſterie.
z Departed from, or fallen from: And it is a metaphor taken from the way: For callings are ſignified by the name of wayes, with the Hebrews.

a Word for word, Was fulfilled: that is, Was begun, as Luke 2, 21. For the Hebrews ſay, That a day, or a yeare is fulfilled or ended, when the former dayes or yeares are ended, and the other begun, Jer. 25, 12. And it ſhall come to paſſe, that when ſeventie yeares are fulfilled, I will viſite, &c. For the Lord did not bring home his people, after the ſeventieth yeare was ended, but in the ſeventieth yeare: Now the day of Pentecoſt was the fiftieth day after the feaſt of the paſſeover.
b The twelve apoſtles, which were to be the patriarks as it were of the church.
c He calleth them other tongues, which were not the ſame which the apoſtles uſed commonly, and Mark calleth them new tongues.
d Hereby we underſtand, that the apoſtles uſed not now one tongue, and then an other by hap hazard and at all adventure, or as fantaſticall men uſe to doe, but with good conſideration of their hearers: and to be ſhort, that they ſpake nothing, but as the holy Ghoſt governed their tongues. ‡ Or, when this voice was made. ‡ Or, troubled in minde. e Not that they ſpake with one voice, and many languages were heard, but that the apoſtles ſpake with ſtrange tongues; for alſo the miracle had rather been in the hearers elſe, whereas now it is in the ſpeakers. Nazianzen in his oration of whitſunday. f By Jews, he meaneth them that were both Jews by birth, and Jews by profeſſion of religion, though they were born in other places: and they were Proſelytes, which were Gentiles born, and imbraced the Jewiſh religion. g Gods word pierceth ſome ſo that it driveth them to ſeek out the trueth; and it doeth ſo choke other, that it forceth them to be witneſſes of their own impudencie. g The word which he uſeth here, ſignifieth ſuch a kinde of mocking which is reprochfull and contumelious: And by this reprochfull mocking we ſee, that there is no miracle ſo great and excellent, which the wickednesſe of man dareth not ſpeak evil of. h Peter his boldneſſe is to be marked, wherein the grace of the holy Ghoſt is to be ſeen, even ſtraight after the beginning.

1 The apoſtles being gathered together on a moſt ſolemn feaſt-day in one place, that it might evidently appear to all the world, that they had all one office, one ſpirit, one faith, are by a double ſigne from heaven authoriſed, and anointed with all the moſt excellent gifts of the holy Ghoſt, and eſpecially with an extraordinary, and neceſſary gift of tongues.

i After the ſun riſing, which may be about ſeven or eight of the clock with us.
* Iſa. 44, 3. Joel. 2, 28.
k There is nothing that can diſſolve, queſtions and doubts, but teſtimonie taken out of the prophets: for mens reaſons may be overturned, but Gods voice cannot be overturned.
3 Peter ſeeing the trueth of God againſt the falſe accuſations of men, ſheweth in himſelf and in his fellows, that that is fulfilled which Joel ſpake before concerning the full giving of the holy Ghoſt in the latter dayes: which grace alſo is offered to the whole church, to their certain and undoubted deſtruction, which doe contemne it.
l All without exception, both upon the Jews and Gentiles.
m That is, men. * Joel. 2, 31. * Rom. 10, 13.
4 The chiefeſt uſe of all the gifts of the holy Ghoſt is to bring man to ſalvation by faith.
n This word, Call on, ſignifieth in holy Scriptures. An earneſt praying and craving for help at Gods hand.
5 Chriſt being innocent, was by Gods providence crucified of wicked men.
o Who is by thoſe works which God wrought by him ſo manifeſtly approved and allowed of, that no man can gainſay him.
p Gods everlaſting knowledge going before, which can neither be ſeparated from his determinate counſel, as the Epicures ſay, Neither yet be the cauſe of evil: for God in his everlaſting and unchangeable counſel, appointed the wicked act of Judas to an excellent end: and God doth that well, which the inſtruments doe ill.
q Gods counſel doeth not excuſe the Jews, whoſe hands were wicked.
r The fact is ſaid to be theirs, by whoſe counſel and egging forward it is done.
6 Chriſt (as David foretold) did not onely riſe again, but alſo was in the grave void of all corruption. ſ The death that was full of ſorrow both of body and minde: therefore when death appeared conquerour and victorer over thoſe ſorrows, Chriſt is rightly ſaid to have overcome theſe ſorrows, Chriſt is rightly ſaid to have overcome theſe ſorrows of death, when as being dead, he overcame death, to live for ever with his Father. * Pſal. 16, 8. t Thou wilt not ſuffer me to remain in grave. u Thou haſt opened me the way to the true life. ‡ Or, I may. * 1 Kings 2, 10. * Pſal. 132, 11. x Had ſworn ſolemnly. * Pſal. 16, 10.

32 [7] This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.

33 Therefore being by the [7] right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this, which ye now see and heare.

34 For David is not ascended into the heavens, but he saith himself, * The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 35 Untill I make thy foes thy footstool.

36 Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath [z] made that same Jesus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

37 ¶ Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter, and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

38 * Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sinnes, and ye shall receive the gift of the holy Ghost.

39 For the * promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afarre off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

40 [9] And with many other words did he testifie and exhort, saying, Save your selves from this untoward generation.

41 ¶ [10] Then they that gladly received his word, were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls.

42 [11] And they continued stedfastly in the apostles doctrine and [b] fellowship, and in [c] breaking of bread, and in prayers.

43 [12] And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signes were done by the apostles.

44 [13] And all that beleeved were together, and had all things common,

45 And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need.

46 [14] And they continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread ‡ from house to house, did eat their meat with gladnesse and singlenesse of heart, 47 Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved.

7 Peter witnesseth that Jesus Christ is the appointed everlasting King, which he proveth manifestly by the gifts of the holy Ghost and the testimonie of David.
y Might and power of God.
* Psal. 110, 1.
z Christ is said to be made, because he was advanced to that dignitie, and therefore it is not spoken of his nature, but of his estate and high dignitie.
8 Repentance and remission of sins in Christ, are two principles of the gospel, and therefore of our salvation: and they are obtained by the promises apprehended by faith, and are ratified in us by baptisme, wherewith is joyned the vertue of the holy Ghost.
a The word that is used here, giveth us to understand that it was a free gift.
9 He is truely joyned to the church, which separateth himself from the wicked.
10 A notable example of the vertue of the holy Ghost: but such as are of age, are not baptized, before they make confession of their faith.
11 The marks of the true church are the doctrin of the apostles, the duties of charitie, the pure and simple administration of the sacraments, and true invocations used of all the faithful.
b Communicating of goods, and of all other duties of charitie, as is shewed afterward.
c The Jews used thin loaves, and therefore they did rather breake them than cut them: So by breaking of bread, they understood that living together, and the banquets which they used to keep. And when they kept their love feasts, they used to celebrate the Lords supper, which even in these dayes began to be corrupted, and Paul amendeth it, 1 Cor. 11, 12. So oft as the Lord thinketh it expedient, he bridleth the rage of strangers, that the church may be planted, and have some refreshing.
13 Charitie maketh all things common concerning the use, according as necessitie requireth.
14 The faithfull come together at the beginning with great fruit, not onely to the hearing of the word, but also to meat. ‡ Or, at home.

CHAP. III.

1 Peter preaching to the people that came to see a lame man restored to his feet, 12 professeth the cure not to have been wrought by his or Johns own power, or holinesse, but by God and his Sonne Jesus, and through faith in his name: 13 withall reprehending them for crucifying Jesus, 17 which because they did it through ignorance, and that thereby were fulfilled Gods determinate counsel, and the Scriptures, 19 he exhorteth them by repentance and faith to seek remission of their sinnes, and salvation in the same Jesus.

NOw [1] Peter and John went up together into the temple, at the houre of prayer, being the ninth houre.

2 And a certaine man lame from his mothers wombe was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautifull, to ask almes of them that entred into the temple.

3 Who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked an almes.

4 And Peter fastening his eyes upon him, with John, said, Look on us.

5 And he [a] gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them.

6 Then Peter saith, Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk.

7 And he took him by the right hand, and lift him up, and immediately his feet and ancle-bones received strength.

8 And he leaping up, stood, and walked, and entred with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walking and praising God.

10 And they knew that it was he which sat for almes at the Beautifull gate of the temple: and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him.

11 And as the lame man which was healed, [b] held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomons, greatly wondering.

12 ¶ [2] And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvell ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holinesse we had made this man to walk?

13 The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers hath glorified his sonne Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go.

14 * But ye denied the holy one, and the just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you, 15 And killed the ‡ Prince of [c] life, whom God hath raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses.

16 And his name through faith in his name hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the [d] faith which is by him, hath given him this perfect soundnesse in the presence of you all.

17 [3] And now brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers.

18 But those things which God before had shewed by the [e] mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled.

19 ¶ Repent ye therefore and be converted, that your sinnes may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord.

20 And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you:

1 Christ in healing a man that was born lame, and well knowen to all men, both in place and time very famous, by the hands of his apostles, doeth partly confirm them which beleeved, and partly also calleth others to believe.
a Both with heart and eyes.
b Either because he loved them; who had healed him: or because he feared that if he once let them go out of his sight, he should be lame again.
2 Miracles are appointed to convince the unbelievers, and therefore they doe wickedly abuse them; who standing amased, either at the miracles themselves, or at the instruments and means which it pleaseth God to use, take an occasion to establish idolatry and superstition, by that which God hath provided for the knowledge of his true worship: that is, Christianitie.
* Matth. 27, 20.
‡ Or, author.
c Who hath life in himself, and giveth life to other.
d Because he beleeved on him being raised from the dead, whose name he heard of by us.
3 It is best of all to receive Christ so soon as he is offered unto us; but such as have neglected so great a benefit, through mans weaknesse, have yet repentance for a mean: As for the ignominy of the crosse, we have to set against that, the decree and purpose of God, foretold by the Prophets, of Christ, how that first of all he should be crucified here upon earth, and then he should appear from heaven the judge and restorer of all things, that all beleevers might be saved, and all unbeleevers utterly perish.

21 f Whom the heaven must receive, untill the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets, since the world began.

22 * For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A g prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you, of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye heare in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you.

23 And it shall come to passe, that every soul which will not heare that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people.

24 Yea, and all the prophets from h Samuel, and those that follow after, as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of these dayes.

25 4 Ye are the i children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, * saying unto Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed.

26 Unto you first, God having k raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to blesse you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities.

CHAP. IIII.

1 The rulers of the Jews offended with Peters sermon, 4 (though thousands of the people were converted that heard the word) imprison him and John. 5 After, upon examination, Peter boldly avouching the lame man to be healed by the name of Jesus, and that by the same Jesus onely we must be eternally saved, 13 they command him and John to preach no more in that name, adding also threatning. 23 Whereupon the church fleeth to prayer: 31 and God by moving the place where they were assembled, testified that he heard their prayer, confirming the church with the gift of the holy Ghost, and with mutuall love and charity.

AND 1 as they spake unto the people, the priests and the 1 a captain of the temple, and the Sadduces came upon them,

2 Being grieved that they taught the people, and preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead.

3 And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold unto the next day: for it was now eventide.

4 Howbeit, many of them which heard the word beleeved, and the b number of the men was about five thousand.

5 ¶ And it came to passe on the morrow, that their c rulers, and elders, and Scribes,

6 And Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the d kindred of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem.

7 2 And when they had set them in the midst, they asked, By what power, or by what c name have ye done this?

8 Then Peter filled with the holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel,

9 3 If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole,

10 4 Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole.

11 * This is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.

12 Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other f name g under heaven h given among men whereby we must be saved.

13 ¶ 5 Now when they saw the boldnesse of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and i ignorant men, they marvelled, and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus.

14 And beholding the man which was healed standing with them, they could say nothing against it.

15 But when they had commanded them to go aside out of the councel, they k conferred among themselves, 16 6 Saying, what shall we do to these men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifest to all them that dwell in Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it.

17 But that it spread no further among the people, let us straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name.

18 And they called them, and commanded them not to speak at all, nor teach in the name of Jesus.

19 7 But Peter and John answered and said unto them, Whether it be right in the sight of God, to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye.

20 For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.

21 8 So when they had further threatned them, they let them go, finding nothing how they might punish them, because of the people: for all men glorified God for that which was done.

22 For the man was above fourty yeares old, on whom this miracle of healing was shewed.

23 ¶ 9 And being let go, they went to their own company, and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them.

24 10 And when they heard that, they lift up their voice to God with one accord, and said, Lord, thou art God which hast made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is.

25 * Who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things?

26 The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ.

27 For of a truth against thy holy childe Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the l people of Israel were gathered together,

1 None are commonly more diligent or bolder enemies of the church, than such as professe themselves to be head builders: but the more they rage, the more constantly the faithfull servants of God doe continue.

a The Jews had certain garisons for the guard and safety of the temple and holy things, Matth. 26, 65. These garisons had a captain, such as Eleazarus Ananias the high priests son, was in the time of the warre that was in Judea, being a very impudent and proud young man, Joseph. lib. 2. of the taking of Judea.

b While they thought to diminish the number, they increased them.

c These were they that made the Sanhedrin, which were all of the tribe of Juda, untill Herod used that crueltie against Davids stock.

d Of whom the high priests were wont to be chosen and made, the execution of the yearly office being now changed. 2 Against such as brag of a succession of persons, without a succession of doctrine, and by that means beat down the true ministers of the word, so farre forth as they are able. e By what authoritie. 3 The wolves which succeed true pastours, plead their own cause and not Gods, neither the churches. 4 He is indeed a true shepheard, that teacheth his sheep to hang upon Christ onely, as upon one that is not dead, but hath conquered death, and hath all rule in his own hands.

* Psal. 118, 22. Matth. 21, 42.

g Any where and this setteth forth unto us the largenesse of Christs kingdome.

h Of God.

5 The good libertie and boldnesse of the servants of God doeth yet thus much good, that such as lay hid under a vizard of zeal, doe at length bewray themselves to be indeed wicked men.

i The word used here, is Idiot, which being spoken in comparison had to a magistrate, betokeneth a private man: but when we speak of sciences and studies, it signifieth one that is unlearned: and in account of honour and estimation, it importeth one of base degree and no estimation.

k Laid their heads together.

6 He that flattereth himself in ignorance, commeth at length to doe open wickednesse, and that against his own conscience.

7 We must so obey men to whom we are subject, that especially and before all things we obey God.

8 So farre off are the wicked from doing what they list that contrariwise God useth even that to the setting forth of his glory, which he giveth them leave to doe.

9 The apostles communicate their troubles with the congregation.

* Psal. 2, 1.

l Although the people of Israel was but one people, yet the plurall number is here used, not so much for the twelve tribes, every one of which made a people, as for the great multitude of them, as though many nations had assembled themselves together, as Judges 5, 14.

28 For

28 For to [m] do whatsoever [n] thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done.

29 And now Lord, behold their threatnings: and grant unto thy servants, that with all boldnesse they may speak thy word, 30 By stretching forth thine hand to heal: and that signes and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy childe Jesus.

31 ¶ [11] And when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldnesse.

32 [12] And the multitude of them that beleeved, were of [o] one heart, and of one soul: neither said any of them, that ought of the things which he possessed, was his own, but they had all things common.

33 And with great power gave the apostles witnesse of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was upon them all.

34 [13] Neither was there any among them that lacked, for as many as were possessours of lands or houses, sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold,

35 And laid them down at the apostles feet: and distribution was made unto every man according as he had need.

36 And Joses, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas (which is, being interpreted, The sonne of consolation) a Levite, and of the countrey of Cyprus, 37 Having land, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the apostles feet.

Chap. V.

After that Ananias and Sapphira his wife for their hypocrisie at Peters rebuke had fallen down dead, 12 and that the rest of the apostles had wrought many miracles, 14 to the increase of the faith: 17 the apostles are again imprisoned, 19 but delivered by an angel, bidding them to preach openly to all. 21 When, after their teaching accordingly in the temple, 29 and before the councel, 33 they are in danger to be killed; through the advice of Gamaliel, a great counseller among the Jews, they be kept alive, 40 and are but beaten: for which they glorifie God, and cease no day from preaching.

BUt [1] a certain man named Ananias with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession,

2 And [a] kept back part of the price, his wife also being privie to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apostles feet.

3 But Peter said, Ananias, why hath Satan [b] filled thine heart ‡ to [c] lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land?

4 Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou [d] conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God.

5 And Ananias hearing these words, fell down and gave up the ghost: and great fear came on all them that heard these things.

6 And the young men arose, wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7 And it was about the space of three houres after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in.

8 And Peter answered unto her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much. And she said, Yea, for so much.

9 Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together, to [e] tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thy husband are at the [f] doore, and shall carry thee out.

10 Then fell she down straightway at his feet, and yeelded up the ghost: and the young men came in and found her dead, and carrying her forth, buried her by her husband.

11 [2] And great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard these things.

12 ¶ And by the hands of the apostles were many signes and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomons porch.

13 And of the rest durst no man joyn himself to them: but the people [g] magnified them.

14 And beleevers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women)

15 Insomuch that they brought forth the sick ‡ into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least, the shadow of Peter passing by, might overshadow some of them.

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.

17 ¶ [3] Then the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him, (which is the [h] sect of the Sadduces) and were filled with ‡ indignation, 18 And laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 [4] But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doores and brought them forth, and said, 20 [5] Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the [i] words of this life.

21 [6] And when they heard that, they entred into the temple early in the morning, and taught: but the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the councel together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned, and told,

23 Saying, The prison truly found we shut with all safetie, and the keepers standing without before the doores: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

24 Now when the high priest, and the captain of the temple, and the chief priests heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

25 [7] Then came one and told them, saying, behold, the men whom ye put in prison, are standing in the temple, and teaching the people.

m The wicked execute Gods counsel, though they think nothing of it, but they are not therefore without fault.
n Thou hadst determined of thine absolute authoritie and power.

11 God witnesseth to his church by a visible signe, it is he that will establish it, by shaking the powers both of heaven and earth.

12 An example of the true church, wherein there is content as well in doctrine as in charitie one toward another: And the pastours deliver true doctrine both sincerely, and constantly.
o They agreed both in counsel, will, and purposes.

13 True charitie helpeth the necessitie of the poore with his owne losse: but so that all things be done well and orderly.

1 Luke sheweth by contrary examples, how great a sinne hypocrisie is, especially in them which under a false pretence and cloak of zeal would seem to shine and be chief in the church.
a Craftily took away.
b Fully possessed.
‡ Or, to deceive.
c For when they had appointed that farm or possession for the church, they stuck not at it to keep away part of the price, as though they had to do with men, and not with God, and therefore he saith afterward that they tempted God.
d Hereby is declared an advised and purposed deceit, and the man in admitting the fault in the devils suggestions.

e Look how oft men do things with an evil conscience, so oft they pronounce sentence against themselves, and as much as in them lieth, provoke God to anger, as of set purpose, minding to try whether he be just and almighty or no.
f Are at hand.

2 The Lord by his marvellous vertue bridleth some, that they may not hurt the church: othersome he keepeth in his awe and fear: and othersome he allureth unto him.
g Highly praised them.

3 The more that the church increaseth, the more increaseth the rage of Satan, and therefore they proceed from threatnings to prisoning.
h The word which is used here, is heresie, which signifieth a choice, and so is taken for a right form of learning, or faction, or studie, and course of life, which the Latines call, A sect, at the first this word was indifferently used, but at length it came to be taken onely in evil part, whereupon came the name of Heretick, which is taken for one that goeth astray from sound and wholesome doctrine, after such sort, that he setteth light by the judgement of God and his church, and continueth in his opinion, and breaketh the peace of the church.
‡ Or, envy.

4 Angels are made servants of the servants of God.

5 God doth therefore deliver his, that they may more stoutly provoke his enemies.
i Words, whereby the way unto life is shewed.

6 God mocketh his enemies attempts from above.

7 The more openly that Christs vertue sheweth it self, the more increaseth the madnesse of his enemies, which conspire against him.

8 Tyrants which fear not God, are constrained to fear his servants.

26 [8] Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: (for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned)

27 And when they had brought them, they set them before the councel: and the high priest asked them,

9 It is the propertie of tyrants to set out their own commandments as right and reason, be they never so wicked.

28 [9] Saying, * Did not we straitly command you, that you should not teach in this name? and behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and entred to [k] bring this mans bloud upon us.

* Chap. 4. 18.

k Make us guilty of murdering that man whom yet they will not vouchsafe to name.

29 ¶ [10] Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men.

10 We ought to obey no man, but so farre forth as obeying him we may obey God.

30 [11] The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree.

11 Christ is appointed and in deed declared Prince and preserver of his church in despight of his enemies.

31 Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sinnes.

32 [12] And we are his witnesses of these things, and so is also the Holy Ghost, Whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33 ¶ When they heard that, they were [l] cut to the heart, and took counsel to slay them.

l This betokeneth that they were in a most vehement rage, and marvellously disquieted in mind, for it is a borrowed kinde of speech taken from them which are harshly cut in sunder with a saw.

34 [13] Then stood there up one in the councel, a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a doctour of law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apostles forth a little space, 13 Christ findeth defenders of his cause, even in the very root of his enemies, so oft as he thinketh it needfull.

35 And said unto them, Ye men of Israel, take heed to your selves, what ye intend to do as touching these men.

36 [14] For before these dayes rose up Theudas [m] boasting himself to be some bodie, to whom a number of men, about foure hundred, joyned themselves: who was slain, and all, as many as ‡ obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to nought.

14 In matters of religion we must take good heed, that we attempt nothing under a colour of zeal, beside our vocation.

m To be of some fame.

‡ Or, believed.

37 After this man rose up Judas of Galilee, in the dayes of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he also perished, and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed.

a He dissuadeth his fellowes from murdering the apostles, neither doth he think it good to referre the matter to the Romane magistrate: for the Jews could abide nothing worse, than to have the tyrannie of the Romanes confirmed.

38 And now I say unto you, [n] Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel, or this work [o] be of men, it will come to nought.

o If it be counterfeit and devised.

39 But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it, lest haply ye be found even to fight against God.

40 And to him they agreed: and when they had called the apostles, and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go.

15 The apostles accustomed to suffer and bear words, are at length inured to bear stripes, but yet so, that by that means they become stronger.

41 ¶ [15] And they departed from the presence of the councel, rejoycing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name.

p Both publikly and privately.

42 And daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ.

Chap. VI.

1 The apostles desirous to have the poore regarded for their bodily sustenance, as also carefull themselves to dispense the word of God, the food of the soul, 3 appoint the office of deaconship to seven chosen men: 5 of whom, Stephen, a man full of faith, and of the Holy Ghost, is one: 12 who is taken of those whom he confounded in disputing, 13 and after falsly accused of blasphemy against the law and the temple.

AND [1] in those dayes, when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the [a] Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the [b] daily ministration.

1 When Satan hath assailed the church without, and that to small purpose, and in vain, he assaileth it within, with civill dissension and strife betwixt themselves: But the apostles take occasion thereby to set order in the church.

a Of their parts, which of Grecians became religious Jews.

b In the bestowing of almes according to their necessitie.

2 [2] Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not [c] reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve [d] tables.

2 The office of preaching the word and dispensing the goods of the church, are different one from another, and not rashly to be joyned together, as the apostles doe here institute: And the apostles doe not chuse so much as the deacons without the consent of the church.

c It is such a matter, as we may in no wise accept of it.

d Banquets: though by the name of tables, other offices are also meant, which are anexed to it, such as pertain to the care of the poore.

3 [3] Wherefore brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdome, whom we may appoint over this businesse.

3 In chusing of deacons (much more of ministers) there must be examination both of their learning and manners of life.

4 But we will give our selves continually to prayer, and to the ministerie of the word.

4 The ancient church did with laying on of hands, as it were consecrate to the Lord, such as were lawfully elected.

5 ¶ And the saying pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Tymon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas a proselyte of Antioch.

6 [4] Whom they set before the apostles: and when they had prayed, they [e] laid their hands on them.

e This ceremonie of laying on of hands, came from the Jews, who used this order both in publick affairs, and offering of sacrifices, and also in private prayers and blessings, as appeareth Gen. 28. and the church observed this ceremonie, 1 Tim. 5. 22. Act. 8. 17. but here is no mention made either of cream, or shaving, or rasing, or crossing, &c.

7 [5] And the word of God increased, and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly, and a great company of the priests were obedient to the [f] faith.

5 An happie end of temptation.

f This is the figure metonymia, meaning by faith, the doctrine of the gospel which ingendreth faith.

8 [6] And Stephen full of faith and power, did [g] great wonders and miracles among the people.

6 God exerciseth his church first with evil words and slanders, then with imprisonments, afterward with scourgings, and by these meanes prepareth it in such sort, that at length he causeth it to encounter with Satan and the world, even to bloudshed and death, and that with good successe.

g Excellent & singular good gifts.

9 [7] Then there arose certain of the synagogue, which is called [h] the synagogue of the Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia, and of Asia, disputing with Stephen.

7 Schooles & universities were of old time addicted to false pastours, & were the instruments of Satan to blow abroad and defend false doctrines.

h Of the company and colledge, as it were.

10 [8] And they were not able to resist the wisdome and the spirit by which he spake.

8 False teachers, because they will not be overcome, flee from disputations to manifest and open slandering and false accusations.

11 Then they suborned men which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God.

12 [9] And they stirred up the people, and the elders, and the Scribes, and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to the councel, 9 The first bloudy persecution of the church of Christ, began & sprang from a councel of priests, by the suggestion of the universitie doctours.

13 [10] And set up false witnesses, which said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, and the law.

10 An example of cavillers, or false accusers, which gather false conclusions of things that are well uttered and spoken.

14 For we have heard him say, That this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the ‡ customes which Moses delivered us.

15 And all that ſat in the councel, looking ſtedfaſtly on him, [1] ſaw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

1 Hereby it appeareth that Steven had an excellent and goodly countenance, having a quiet and ſetled minde, a good conſcience and ſure perſwaſion that his cauſe was juſt: For ſeeing he was to ſpeak before the people, God beautified his countenance, to the end that with the very beholding of him, the Jews mindes might be pierced and amaſed.

CHAP. VII.

1 Stephen permitted to anſwer to the accuſation of blaſphemie, 2 sheweth that Abraham worshipped God rightly, and how God choſe the fathers, 20 before Moſes was born, and before the tabernacle and temple were built: 37 That Moſes himſelf witneſſed of Chriſt: 44 and that all outward ceremonies were ordained according to the heavenly pattern to laſt but for a time: 51 reprehendeth their rebellion, and murdering of Chriſt, the juſt one, whom the prophets foretold ſhould come into the world: 54 whereupon they ſtone him to death; who commendeth his ſoul to Jeſus, and humbly prayeth for them.

1 Steven is admitted to plead his cauſe, but to this end and purpoſe, that under a cloke and colour of law, he might be condemned.

THen [1] ſaid the high prieſt, Are theſe things ſo?

2 [2] And he ſaid, Men, brethren, and fathers hearken, The God of [a] glorie appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in [b] Meſopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran,

2 Steven witneſſeth unto the Jews, that he acknowledgeth the true fathers, and the onely true God: and sheweth moreover that they are more ancient than the temple: with all that ſervice appointed by the law, and therefore they ought to lay another foundation of true religion, that is to ſay, the free covenant that God made with the fathers.

a That mighty God fully of glory and majeſtie.

b When he ſaith afterward, verſ. 4. That Abraham came out of Caldea, it is evident that Meſopotamia contained Caldea which was neare unto it, and bordering upon it, and ſo writeth Plin. book 6. chap. 27.

3 And ſaid unto him, * Get thee out of thy countrey, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I ſhall ſhew thee.

4 Then came he out of the land of the Caldeans, and dwelt in Charran: and from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land wherein ye now dwell.

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, no not ſo much as to [c] ſet his foot on, yet he [d] promiſed that he would give it to him for a poſſeſſion, and to his ſeed after him, when as yet he had no childe.

* Gen. 12, 1.

c Not ſo much ground as to ſet his foot upon.

d The promiſe of the poſſeſſion was certain and belonged to Abraham, though his poſterity enjoyed it a great while after his death: and this is the figure Synecdoche.

6 And God ſpake on this wiſe, that his ſeed ſhould ſojourn in a ſtrange land, and that they ſhould bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil [e] foure hundred yeares.

e There are reckoned foure hundred yeares from the beginning of Abrahams progenie, which was at the birth of Iſaac: and foure hundred and thirtie yeares which are ſpoken of by Paul, Gal. 3, 17. from the time that Abraham and his father departed together out of Ur of the Caldeans.

7 And the nation to whom they ſhall be in bondage, will I judge, ſaid God: and after that ſhall they come forth, and ſerve me in this place.

8 * And he gave him the covenant of circumciſion: * and ſo Abraham begat Iſaac, and circumciſed him the eighth day: * and Iſaac begat Jacob, and * Jacob begat the twelve patriarchs.

9 * [3] And the patriarchs moved with envie, ſold Joſeph into Egypt: but God was [f] with him.

3 Steven reckoneth up diligently the horrible miſchiefs of ſome of the Fathers, to teach the Jews that they ought not rashly to reſt in the authoritie or examples of the fathers.

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and * gave him [g] favour and wiſdome in the ſight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governour over Egypt, and all his houſe.

f By this kinde of ſpeech, is meant the peculiar favour that God sheweth men: for he ſeemeth to be away from them, whom he helpeth not: and on the other ſide, he is with them whom he delivered out of whatſoever great troubles. * Gen. 41, 37.

g Gave him favour in Pharaohs ſight for his wiſdome. * Gen. 42, 1. * Gen. 45, 4.

11 Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Chanaan, and great affliction, and our fathers found no ſuſtenance.

12 * But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he ſent out our fathers firſt.

13 * And at the ſecond time Joſeph was made know to his brethren, and Joſephs kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.

14 Then ſent Joſeph, and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, threeſcore and fifteen ſouls.

15 * So Jacob went down into Egypt, * and died, he and our fathers,

* Gen. 46, 5.
* Gen. 49, 33.

16 And [h] were carried over into Sichem, and laid in the ſepulchre that Abraham bought for a ſumme of money of the ſonnes of Emmor the father of Sichem;

h The Patriarchs, the ſonnes of Jacob, though there be mention made of no more than Joſeph, Joſh. 24, 32.

17 But when the time of the promiſe drew nigh, which God had ſworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt.

18 Till another king aroſe, which knew not Joſeph.

19 The ſame [i] dealt ſubtilly with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, ſo that they caſt out their young children, to the end they might not live.

i He deviſeth a ſubtill invention againſt our ſtock, in that he commanded all the males to be caſt out.

20 * In which time Moſes was born, and * was [‡] [k] exceeding fair, and nourished up in his fathers houſe three moneths:

* Exod. 2, 2.
* Heb. 11, 23.
‡ Or, fair to God.
k That childe was born through Gods merciſull goodneſſe and favour, to be of a goodly and faire countenance.

21 And when he was caſt out, Pharaohs daughter took him up, and nourished him for his own ſonne.

22 And Moſes was learned in all the wiſdome of the Egyptians, and was mightie in words, and in deeds.

23 And when he was full fourty yeares old, it came into his heart to viſit his brethren the children of Iſrael.

24 * And ſeeing one of them ſuffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppreſſed, and ſmote the Egyptian:

* Exod. 2, 11.

25 For he ſuppoſed his brethren would have underſtood, how that God by his hand would deliver them, but they underſtood not.

26 * And the next day he ſhewed himſelf unto them as they ſtrove, and would have ſet them at one again, ſaying, Sirs, ye are brethren, why do ye wrong one to another?

* Exod. 2, 13.

27 But he that did his neighbour wrong, thruſt him away, ſaying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us?

28 Wilt thou kill me as thou didſt the Egyptian yeſterday?

29 Then fled Moſes at this ſaying, and was a ſtranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two ſonnes.

30 * And when fourtie yeares were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderneſſe of mount Sina, an [l] angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a buſh.

* Exod. 3, 2.
l Now he calleth the Sonne of God an angel, for he is the angel of great counſel, and therefore ſtraitwayes after he sheweth him, ſaying to Moſes; I am the God of thy Fathers, &c.

31 When Moſes ſaw it, he wondred at the ſight: and as he drew neare to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, 32 Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moſes trembled, and durſt not behold.

33 Then ſaid the Lord to him, Put off thy ſhoes from thy feet: for the place where thou ſtandeſt is holy ground.

34 I have ſeen, I have ſeen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groning, and am come down to deliver 110 them. And now come, I will send thee into Egypt.

35 This Moses whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and judge? the same did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer by the [m] hands of the angel which appeared to him in the bush.

36 He brought them out, after that he had * shewed wonders and signes in the land of Egypt, and in the Red sea,* and in the wilderneſſe fourtie yeares.

37 ¶ [4] This is that Moses which said unto the children of Israel, * A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, ‡ like unto me, him shall ye heare.

38 * This is he that was in the church in the wilderneſſe, with the angel which spake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers: who received the lively oracles to give unto us.

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt, 40 * Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moses, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

41 And they made a [n] calf in those dayes, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoyced in the works of their own hands.

42 Then God turned, and [o] gave them up to worship the [p] host of heaven, * as it is written in the book of the prophets, O ye house of Israel, have ye offered to me slain beasts, and sacrifices, by the space of fourtie yeares in the wilderneſſe?

43 Yea [q] ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the starre of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worship them: and I will carrie you away beyond Babylon.

44 [5] Our fathers had the tabernacle of [r] witneſſe in the wilderneſſe, as he had appointed, speaking unto Moses, * that he should make it according to the fashion that he had seen.

45 Which also our fathers that came after, [s] brought in with Jesus into the [t] possession of the Gentiles, whom God drave out [u] before the face of our fathers, unto the dayes of David.

46 Who found favour before God, and desired to finde a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

47 * [6] But Solomon built him an house.

48 * Howbeit the most High dwelleth not in temples made with hands; as saith the prophet, 49 Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footstool: what house will ye build me, saith the Lord? or what is the place of my rest?

50 Hath not my hand made all these things?

51 ¶ [7] Ye stiff-necked, and [x] uncircumcised in heart and eares, ye do alwayes resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do ye.

52 Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain them which shewed before of the coming of the just one, of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers:

53 Who have received the law by the [y] disposition of angels, and have not kept it.

54 ¶ [8] When they heard these things, they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth.

55 [9] But he being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus [z] standing on the right hand of God.

56 And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Sonne of man standing on the right hand of God.

57 [10] Then they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their eares, and [a] ran upon him with one accord, 58 And cast him out of the citie, and stoned him: and the [b] witnesses laid down their clothes at a young mans feet, whose name was Saul.

59 And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus receive my spirit.

60 [11] And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, [c] lay not this sinne to their charge. And when he had said this, he fel [d] asleep.

9 The nearer that the Martyrs approach to death, the nearer they beholding Christ do rise up even into heaven.

z Ready to confirm him in the confession of the truth, and to receive him to him a This was done in a rage and furie, for at that time the Jews could put no man to death by law, as they confessed before Pilate, saying, that it was not lawfull for them to put any man to death, and therefore it is reported by Joseph. lib. 20. That Ananus a Saduce slew James the brother of the Lord, and for so doing, was accused before Albinus the president of the countrey. b It was appointed by the law, that the witnesses should cast the first stones, Deut. 17, 7. 11 Faith and charitie never forsake the true servants of God, even to the last breath. c The word which he useth here, noteth out such a kinde of imputing or laying to ones charge, as remaineth firme and steady for ever, never to be remitted. d Look 1 Thess. 4, 13.

10 The zeal of hypocrites and superstitious people breaketh out at length into most open madnesse.

CHAP. VIII.

By occasion of the persecution in Jerusalem, the church being planted in Samaria, 5 by Philip the deacon, who preached, did miracles, and baptized many, among the rest Simon the sorcerer, a great seducer of the people; 14 Peter and John come to confirm, and enlarge the church: where by prayer, and imposition of hands, giving the Holy Ghost, 18 when Simon would have bought the like power of them, 20 Peter sharply reproving his hypocrisie, and covetousnesse, and exhorting him to repentance, together with John preaching the word of the Lord, return to Jerusalem. 26 But the angel sendeth Philip to teach, and baptize the Ethiopian eunuch.

AND [1] Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem, and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles.

1 Christ useth the rage of his enemies to the spreading forth and enlarging of his kingdome.

2 [2] And devout men [a] carried Stephen to his buriall, and made great lamentation over him.

2 The godly mourn for Steven after his death, and bury him, shewing therein an example of singular faith and charitie: but no man prayeth to him.

a Amongst all the duties of charity which the godly use, there is no mention made of shrining up of relicks.

3 [3] As for Saul, he made havock of the church, entring into every house, and haling men and women, committed them to prison.

3 The dispersion or scattering abroad of the faithfull, is the joyning together of churches.

4 Therefore they that were scattered abroad, went every where preaching the word.

5 [4] Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.

4 Philip who was before deacon in Jerusalem, is made of God extraordinarily an Evangelist.

6 And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing, and seeing the miracles which he did.

7 For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed.

8 And there was great joy in that city.

9 [5] But

9 [5] But there was a certain man called Simon, which before-time in the ſame city uſed [b] ſorcerie, and [c] bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himſelf was ſome great one.

10 To whom they all gave heed from the leaſt to the greateſt, ſaying, This man is the great power of God.

11 And to him they had regard, becauſe that of long time he had bewitched them with ſorceries.

12 But when they beleeved Philip, preaching the things concerning the kingdome of God, and the name of Jeſus Chriſt, they were baptized both men and women.

13 [6] Then Simon himſelf beleeved alſo: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and ſignes which were done.

14 [7] Now when the apoſtles which were at Jeruſalem, heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they ſent unto them Peter and John.

15 Who when they were come down, prayed for them that they might receive the [d] Holy Ghoſt.

16 (For as yet he was fallen upon none of them: onely they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus)

17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghoſt.

18 [8] And when Simon ſaw that through laying on of the apoſtles hands, the Holy Ghoſt was given, he offered them money, 19 Saying, Give me alſo this power, that on whomſoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghoſt.

20 [9] But Peter ſaid unto him, Thy money perish with thee, becauſe thou haſt thought that the gift of God may be purchaſed with money.

21 Thou haſt neither part nor lot in this [e] matter, for thy heart is not [f] right in the ſight of God.

22 [10] Repent therefore of this thy wickedneſſe, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee.

23 For I perceive that thou art in the [g] gall of bitterneſſe, and in the [h] bond of iniquity.

24 Then anſwered Simon, and ſaid, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of theſe things which ye have ſpoken come upon me.

25 And they when they had teſtified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jeruſalem, and preached the goſpel in many villages of the Samaritanes.

26 [11] And the angel of the Lord ſpake unto Philip, ſaying, Ariſe, and go toward the ſouth, unto the way that goeth down from Jeruſalem unto Gaza, which is deſert.

27 And he aroſe and went: and behold, a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of [i] great authoritie under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treaſure, and had come to Jeruſalem for to worship, 28 Was returning, and ſitting in his chariot read Eſaias the prophet.

29 Then the Spirit ſaid unto Philip, Go neare, and joyn thy ſelf to this chariot.

30 And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him reade the prophet Eſaias, and ſaid, Underſtandeſt thou what thou readeſt?

31 And he ſaid, How can I, except ſome man ſhould [k] guide me? and he deſired Philip that he would come up, and ſit with him.

32 [12] The place of the ſcripture which he read, was this, * He was led as a ſheep to the ſlaughter, and like a lambe dumbe before his ſhearer, ſo opened he not his mouth:

33 In his [l] humiliation, his judgement was taken away: and who ſhall declare his [m] generation? for his life is taken from the earth:

34 And the eunuch anſwered Philip, and ſaid, I pray thee, of whom ſpeaketh the prophet this? of himſelf, or of ſome other man?

35 Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the ſame ſcripture, and preached unto him Jeſus.

36 And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch ſaid, See, here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized?

37 [13] And Philip ſaid, If thou beleeveſt with all thine heart, thou mayeſt. And he anſwered and ſaid, [n] I beleeve that Jeſus Chriſt is the Sonne of God.

38 And he commanded the chariot to ſtand ſtill: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch, and he baptized him.

39 And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch ſaw him no more: and he went on his way, rejoycing.

40 But Philip was found at Azotus: and paſſing through, he preached in all the cities, till he came to Ceſarea.

CHAP. IX.

1 Saul going towards Damaſcus, 4 is ſtricken down to the earth. 10 is called to the apoſtleship. 18 and is baptized by Ananias. 20 He preacheth Chriſt boldly. 23 The Jews lay wait to kill him, 29 ſo do the Grecians: but he eſcapeth both. 31 The church having reſt, Peter healeth Æneas of the palſie, 36 and reſtoreth Tabitha to life.

AND [1] Saul yet [a] breathing out threatnings and ſlaughter againſt the diſciples of the Lord, went unto the high prieſt,

2 And deſired of him letters to Damaſcus to the ſynagogues, that if he found any of this [b] way, whither they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jeruſalem.

3 And as he journeyed he came neare Damaſcus, and ſuddenly there ſhined round about him a light from heaven.

4 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice ſaying unto him, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me?

5 Christ overcometh Satan ſo oft as he liſteth, and carrieth him about as it were in a triumph, in the ſight of them whom he deceived and bewitched.
b The word which is uſed in this place was at the firſt taken in good part, and is borrowed out of the Perſians language, who call their wiſe men by that name, but afterward it was taken in evil part.
c He had ſo allured the Samaritanes with his witchcrafts, that as blinde and mad harebrains they were wholly addicted to him.
6 The wicked and the very reprobate are conſtrained oftentimes to taſte of the good gift of God, but they caſt it up again forthwith.

f Tarſus was a city of Cilicia neare unto Anchiala, which two cities Sardanapalus is ſaid to have built in one day.

12 And hath ſeen in a viſion a man named Ananias, coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his ſight.

13 Then Ananias anſwered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to thy ſaints at Jeruſalem:

14 And here he hath authority from the chief prieſts, to binde all that call on thy name.

15 But the Lord ſaid unto him, Go thy way: for he is a [g] choſen veſſel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Iſrael, g To beare my name in.

16 For I will [h] ſhew him how great things he muſt ſuffer for my names ſake.

h I will ſhew him plainly.

17 And Ananias went his way, and entred into the [i] houſe, and putting his hands on him, ſaid, Brother Saul, the Lord (even Jeſus that appeared unto thee in the way as thou cameſt) hath ſent me, that thou mighteſt receive thy ſight, and be filled with the Holy Ghoſt.

i Into Judas his houſe.

18 And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been ſcales, and he received ſight forthwith, and aroſe, and was baptized.

19 And when he had received meat, he was ſtrengthened. Then was Saul certain dayes with the diſciples which were at Damaſcus.

20 [z] And ſtraightway he preached Chriſt in the ſynagogues, that he is the Sonne of God.

z Paul beginneth ſtraightwayes to execute the office which was enjoyned him, never conſulting with flesh and bloud.

21 But all that heard him were amazed, and ſaid, Is not this he that deſtroyed them, which called on this name in Jeruſalem, and came hither for that intent, that he might bring them bound unto the chief prieſts?

22 [y] But Saul increaſed the more in ſtrength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damaſcus, [k] proving that this is very Chriſt.

y Paul ſtriveth not with his own authoritie alone, but with the teſtimonie of the prophets.
k By conferring places of the Scripture together, as cunning craftſmen do, when they make up any thing, they uſe to gather all parts together, to make them agree fitly one with another.

23 ¶ [4] And after that many dayes were fulfilled, the Jews took counſel to kill him:

4 Paul; who was before a perſecuter: hath now perſecution laid before himſelf, but yet a farre off.

24 * But their laying await was known of Saul: and they watched the gates day and night to kill him.

*2 Cor. 11, 32.

25 [5] Then the diſciples took him by night, and let him down by the wall in a basket.

5 We are not forbidden to avoid and eſchew the dangers and conſpiracies that the enemies of God lay for us, ſo that we ſwarve not from our vocation.

26 [6] And when Saul was come to Jeruſalem, he aſſayed to joyn himſelf to the diſciples, but they were all afraid of him, and beleeved not that he was a diſciple.

6 In ancient time no man was rashly or lightly received into the number of and amongſt the sheep of Chriſt, much leſſe to be a paſtour.

27 But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the apoſtles, and declared unto them how he had ſeen the Lord in the way, and that he had ſpoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damaſcus in the name of Jeſus.

28 [7] And he was [l] with them coming in, and going out at Jeruſalem.

7 The conſtant ſervants of God muſt look for danger after danger: yet God watcheth for them.
l With Peter and James, for he ſaith, that he ſaw none of the apoſtles but them, Gal. 1, 18, 19.

29 And he ſpake boldly in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and diſputed againſt the [m] Grecians: but they went about to ſlay him.

m Look chap. 6, 1.

30 [8] Which when the brethren knew, they brought him down to Ceſarea, and ſent him forth to Tarſus.

8 The miniſters of the word may change their place by the advice and counſel of the congregation and church.

31 [9] Then had the churches reſt throughout all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were [n] edified, and walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghoſt, were multiplied.

9 The end of perſecutions is the building of the church, ſo that we will patiently wait for the Lord.
n This is a borrowed kinde of ſpeech which ſignifieth eſtabliſhment and increaſe.

32 ¶ [10] And it came to paſſe, as Peter paſſed throughout all quarters, he came down alſo to the ſaints which dwelt at Lydda.

10 Peters apoſtleſhip is confirmed by healing of the man that was ſick of the palſie.

33 And there he found a certain man named Æneas, which had kept his bed eight yeares, and was ſick of the palſie.

34 And Peter ſaid unto him, Æneas, Jeſus Chriſt maketh the whole: ariſe, and make thy bed. And he aroſe immediately.

35 And all that dwelt at [o] Lydda, and Saron, ſaw him, and turned to the Lord.

o Lydda, was a city of Paleſtina, and Saron a champion country, and a place of good paſturage, between Ceſarea of Paleſtina, and the mountain Tabor, and the lake of Genezareth, which extendeth it ſelf in great length beyond Joppa.

36 ¶ [11] Now there was at Joppa a certain diſciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas: this woman was full of good works, and alms-deeds which she did.

11 Peter declareth evidently by raiſing up a dead body through the name of Chriſt, that he preached the glad tidings of life.

37 And it came to paſſe in thoſe dayes, that she was ſick, and died: whom when they had waſhed, they laid her in an upper chamber.

38 And foraſmuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the diſciples had heard that Peter was there, they ſent unto him two men, deſiring him that he would not [t] delay to come to them.

39 Then Peter aroſe, and went with them: when he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber: and all the widows ſtood by him weeping, and ſhewing the coats and garments which Dorcas made while she was with them.

40 But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down and prayed, and turning him to the body, ſaid, Tabitha, ariſe. And she opened her eyes: and when she ſaw Peter, she ſat up.

41 And he gave her his hand, and lift her up:

up: and when he had called the saints and widows, presented her alive.

42 And it was known throughout all Joppa, and many beleeved in the Lord.

43 And it came to passe, that he tarried many dayes in Joppa with one Simon a tanner.

CHAP. X.

1 Cornelius a devout man, 5 being commanded by an angel, sendeth for Peter: 11 who by a vision, 15, 20 is taught not to despise the Gentiles. 34 As he preacheth Christ to Cornelius and his company, 44 the Holy Ghost falleth on them, 48 and they are baptized.

1 THere [1] was a certain man in Cesarea, called Cornelius, a centurion of the band called the Italian band,

2 A [a] devout man, and one that feared God with all [b] his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway.

3 He saw in a vision evidently, about the ninth houre of the day, an angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius.

4 And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, [c] What is it Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are [d] come up for a [e] memoriall before God.

5 And now send men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter:

6 He lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea-side: he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do.

7 And when the angel which spake unto Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his houshold servants, and a devout souldier of them that waited on him continually.

8 And when he had declared all these things unto them, he sent them to Joppa.

9 ¶ On the morrow as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the house top to pray, about the sixth houre.

10 And he became very hungry, and would have eaten: but while they made ready, he fell into [f] a trance,

11 And saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet, knit at the [g] foure corners, and let down to the earth:

12 Wherein were [h] all manner of [i] foure-footed beasts of the earth, and wilde beasts, and [k] creeping things, and fowls of the aire.

13 And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill, and eat.

14 [2] But Peter said, Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean.

15 And the voice spake unto him again the second time, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou [l] common.

16 This was done thrice: and the vessel was received up again into heaven.

17 Now while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen, should mean: behold, the men which were sent from Cornelius, had made enquiry for Simons house, and stood before the gate, 18 And called, and asked whether Simon which was surnamed Peter, were lodged there.

19 ¶ While Peter thought on the vision, the spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee.

20 Arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing, for I have sent them.

21 Then Peter went down to the men which were sent unto him from Cornelius; and said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause wherefore ye are come?

22 And they said, Cornelius the centurion, a just man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy angel, to send for thee unto his house, and to heare words of thee.

23 Then called he them in, and lodged them: and on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him.

24 And the morrow after they entred into Cesarea: and Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen and neare friends.

25 [3] And as Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worshipped him.

26 But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up, I my self also am a man.

27 And as he talked with him, he went in, and found many that were come together.

28 And he said unto them, Ye know how that it is an unlawfull thing for a man that is a Jew, to keep company, or come unto one of another nation: but God hath shewed me, that I should not call any man common or unclean.

29 Therefore came I unto you without gainsaying, assoon as I was sent for: I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me.

30 And Cornelius said, Foure dayes ago I was fasting untill [m] this houre, and at the ninth houre I prayed in my house, and behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing, 31 [4] And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God.

32 [5] Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon whose surname is Peter; he is lodged in the house of one Simon a tanner, by the sea-side; who when he cometh, shall speak unto thee.

33 Immediately therefore I sent to thee, and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here present before God, to heare all things that are commanded thee of God.

34 ¶ [6] Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, * Of a truth I perceive that [n] God is no respecter of persons:

35 But in every nation, he that [o] feareth him, and worketh righteousnes, is accepted with him.

1 Peter consecrateth the first fruits of the Gentiles to God by the meanes of two miracles.

a So that he worshipped one God, and was no idolater, neither could be void of faith in Christ, because he was a devout man: but as yet he knew not that he was come.

b This is a great commendation to this man, that he laboured to have all his houshold and familiar friends and acquaintance to be religious, and godly.

c What wilt thou with me lord? for he setteth himself to heare.

d This is a borowed kinde of speech, which the Hebrews use very much, taken from sacrifices, and applied to prayers: for it is said of whose burnt sacrifices, that the smoke and savour of them goeth up into Gods nostrils: so do our prayers as a sweet smelling sacrifice which the lord taketh great pleasure in.

e That is, in so much that they will not suffer God, as it were, to forget thee: for so doeth the scriptures use oftentimes to prattle with us as nurses do with little children, when they frame their tongues to speak.

f For though Peter stand not amazed as one that is tongue tyed, but talketh with God, and is instructed in his mysteries, yet his minde was farre otherwise than it was wont to be, but shortly returned to the old bent.

g So that it seemed to be a foure-square sheet.

h Here is the word (All) which is generall, plainly put for an indefinite and uncertain, that is to say, for some of all sorts, not for all of every sort.

i That is, such as were meet for mens use.

k What is meant by these creeping things, look Levit. 11.

2 Peter profiteth daily in the knowledge of the benefit of Christ, yea, after that he had received the Holy Ghost.

l Do not thou hold them as unclean.

3 Religious adoration or worship agreeth only to God: but civill worship is given to the ministers of the word, although not without danger.

m He meaneth not the self-same houre, but the like, that is about nine of the clock the other day, as it was then nine when he spake to Peter.

4 Cornelius faith sheweth forth it self by prayer and charitie.

5 As faith cometh by hearing, so is it nourished and groweth up by the same.

6 Distinction of nations is taken away by the coming of Christ: And it is evidently seen, by faith and righteousnes who is agreeable to him, or whom he accepteth. * Deut. 10, 17. Rom. 2, 11. 1 Pet. 1, 17. n That God judgeth not after the outward appearance. o By the feare of God the Hebrews understand the whole service of God, whereby we perceive that Cornelius was not void of faith, no more than they were which lived before Christs time: and therefore they deal foolishly which build preparative works and free will, upon this place.

114 and worketh righteouſneſſe, is accepted with him.

36 The word which God ſent unto the [p] children of Iſrael, preaching peace by Jeſus Chriſt (he is Lord of all)

37 [7] That word (I ſay) you know, which was published throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptiſme which John preached:

38 How God [q] anointed Jeſus of Nazareth, with the holy Ghoſt, and with power, who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppreſſed of the devil: for God was with him.

39 And we are witneſſes of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews, and in Jeruſalem, whom they ſlew and hanged on a tree:

40 Him God raiſed up the third day, and ſhewed him openly,

41 Not to all the people, but unto witneſſes, [r] choſen before of God, even to us who did eat and drink with him after he roſe from the dead.

42 And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to teſtifie that it is he which was ordained of God to be the judge of quick and dead.

43 * To him give all the prophets witneſſe, that through his name whoſoever beleeveth in him, ſhall receive remiſſion of ſinnes.

44 ¶ [8] While Peter yet ſpake theſe words, the holy Ghoſt fell on all them which heard the word.

45 And they of the circumciſion which beleeved, were aſtonished, as many as came with Peter, becauſe that on the Gentiles alſo was poured out the gift of the holy Ghoſt.

46 For they heard them ſpeak with tongues, and magnifie God. Then anſwered Peter, 47 [9] Can any man forbid water, that theſe ſhould not be baptized, which have received the holy Ghoſt, as well as we?

48 And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Then prayed they him to tarry certain dayes.

p God gave the Iſraelites to underſtand, that whoſoever liveth godly, is acceptable to God, of what nation ſoever he be, for he preached peace to men through Jeſus Chriſt, who is Lord not of one nation onely, that is, Of the Jews, but of all.

7 The ſumme of the goſpel (which ſhall be made manifeſt at the latter day, when Chriſt himſelf ſhall ſit as Judge both of the quick and dead) is this, That Chriſt promiſed to the fathers, and exhibited in his time with the mighty power of God, (which was by all means ſhewed) and at length crucified to reconcile us to God, did riſe again the third day, that whoſoever beleeveth in him ſhould be ſaved through the remiſſion of ſins.

q The ſtile is taken from an old cuſtome of the Jews, who uſed to anoint their kings & prieſts, whereupon it grew, to call them anointed, upon whom God beſtoweth gifts and vertues.

r This chuſing of the apoſtles is properly given to God: for though God be preſident in the lawfull election of miniſters, yet there is in this place a ſecret oppoſition and ſetting of Gods chuſing and mens voices the one againſt the other, for the apoſtles are immediately appointed of God, and the church miniſters by meanes.

* Jer. 31, 34. Mic. 7, 18.

8 The ſpirit of God ſealeth that in the heart of the hearers, which the miniſter of the word ſpeaketh by the commandement of God, as it appeareth by the effects.

q Baptiſme doth not ſanctifie or make them holy which receive it, but ſealeth up and confirmeth their ſanctification.

CHAP. XI.

1 Peter being accuſed for going in to the Gentiles, 5 maketh his defence, 18 which is accepted. 19 The goſpel being ſpread into Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, Barnabas is ſent to confirm them. 27 The diſciples there are firſt called Chriſtians. 27 They ſend relief to the brethren in Judea in time of famine.

1 Peter being without cauſe reprehended of the unskilfull and ignorant, doeth not object that he ought not to be judged of any, but openly giveth an account of his doing.

AND [1] the apoſtles and brethren that were in Judea, heard that the Gentiles had alſo received the word of God.

2 And when Peter was come up to Jeruſalem, they that were of the circumciſion contended with him,

3 Saying, Thou wenteſt in to men uncircumciſed, and didſt eat with them.

4 But Peter rehearſed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it by order unto them, ſaying,

5 I was in the city of Joppa praying, and in a trance I ſaw a viſion, A certain veſſel deſcend, as it had been a great ſheet, let down from heaven by foure corners, and it came even to me.

6 Upon the which when I had faſtened mine eyes, I conſidered, and ſaw foure-footed beaſts of the earth, and wilde beaſts, and creeping things, and fowls of the aire,

7 And I heard a voice ſaying unto me, Ariſe Peter, ſlay, and eat.

8 But I ſaid, Not ſo, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath at any time entred into my mouth.

9 But the voice anſwered me again from heaven, What God hath cleanſed, that call not thou common.

10 And this was done three times: and all were drawn up again into heaven.

11 And behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the houſe where I was, ſent from Ceſarea unto me.

12 And the Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting. Moreover, theſe ſix brethren accompanied me, and we entred into the mans houſe:

13 And he ſhewed us how he had ſeen an angel in his houſe, which ſtood and ſaid unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whoſe ſurname is Peter:

14 Who ſhall tell thee words, whereby thou and all thy houſe ſhall be ſaved.

15 And as I began to ſpeak, the holy Ghoſt fell on them, * as on us at the beginning. * Chap. 2, 4.

16 Then remembred I the word of the Lord, how that he ſaid, * John indeed baptized with water: but ye ſhall be baptized with the holy Ghoſt. * John 1, 26.

17 Foraſmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who beleeved on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, what was I that I could withſtand God?

18 [2] When they heard theſe things, they held their peace, and glorified God, ſaying, Then hath God alſo to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

19 ¶ * [3] Now they which were ſcattered abroad upon the perſecution that aroſe about Stephen, travelled as farre as Phenice, and Cyprus, and [a] Antioch, preaching the word to none but unto the Jews onely.

20 [4] And ſome of them were men of Cyprus, and Cyrene, which when they were come to Antioch, ſpake unto the Grecians, preaching the Lord Jeſus.

21 And the hand of the Lord was with them: and a great number beleeved, and turned unto the Lord.

22 ¶ [5] Then tidings of theſe things came unto the eares of the church which was in Jeruſalem: and they ſent forth Barnabas, that he ſhould go as farre as Antioch.

23 Who when he came, and had ſeen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, that

2 Such as asked a queſtion of the trueth which they know not, ought to be quietly heard, and muſt alſo quietly yeeld to the declaration thereof.

* Chap. 8, 1.

3 The ſcattering abroad of the church of Jeruſalem, is the cauſe of the gathering together of many others churches.

a He ſpeaketh of Antiochia which was in Syria and bordered upon Cilicia.

4 The church of Antioch, the new Jeruſalem of the Gentiles was extraordinarily called.

5 The apoſtles do not raſhly condemne an extraordinary vocation, but yet they judge it by the effects.

that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord.

24 For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord.

6 There was no contention amongst the apostles either of usurping, or of holding places and degrees.

25 [6] Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul.

26 And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to passe, that a whole yeare they assembled themselves ‡ with the church, and taught much people, and the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch.

‡ Or, in the church.

7 God doeth so wrap up his church with the wicked, in his scourges and plagues which he sendeth upon the earth, that notwithstanding he provideth for it conveniently.

27 ¶ [7] And in these dayes came prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch.

28 And there stood up one of them named Agabus, and signified by the spirit, that there should be great dearth throughout all the world: which came to passe in the dayes of Claudius Cesar.

8 All congregations or churches make one body.
b That is, that thereof the deacons might succour the poore: for it behoved to have all these things done orderly and decently, and therefore it is said, That they sent these things to the elders, that is, To the governours of the church.

29 [8] Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send [b] relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea.

30 Which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

CHAP. XII.

1 King Herod persecuteth the Christians, killeth James, and imprisoneth Peter, whom an angel delivereth upon the prayers of the church. 20 In his pride, taking to himself the honour due to God, he is stricken by an angel, and dieth miserably. 24 After his death the word of God prospereth.

1 God giveth his church a truce but for a little time.
a This name Herod was common to all them that came of the stock of Herod Ascalonites, whose surname was Magnus: but he that is spoken of here, was nephew to Herod the great, sonne to Aristobulus, and father to that Agrippa who is spoken of afterward.
‡ Or, began.

NOw [1] about that time, [a] Herod the king ‡ stretched forth his hands to vex certain of the church.

b Violently, his cause being not once heard.
2 It is an old fashion of tyrants to procure the favour of the wicked with the bloud of the godly.

2 And he [b] killed James the brother of John with the sword.

3 The tyrants and wicked make a gallous for themselves, even then, when they do most according to their own will and fantasie.

3 [2] And because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further, to take Peter also, (Then were the dayes of unleavened bread)

4 [3] And when he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to foure quaternions of souldiers to keep him, intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people.

4 Peter therefore was kept in prison, but ‡ prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him.

4 The prayers of the godly overturn the counsel of tyrants, obtain angels of God, break the prison, unloose the chains, put Satan to flight, and preserve the church.
‡ Or, instant and earnest prayer was made.

6 And when Herod would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two souldiers, bound with two chains, and the keepers before the doore kept the prison.

7 And behold, the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands.

8 And the angel said unto him, Gird thy self, and binde on thy sandals: and so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me.

10 When they were past the first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city, which opened to them of his own accord: and they went out, and passed on through one street; and forthwith the angel departed from him.

11 And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety, that the Lord hath sent this angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

5 Holy meetings in the night, as well of men as women (when they cannot be suffered in the day time) are allowable by the example of the apostles.
6 We obtain more of God than we dare wel hope for.

12 [5] And when he had considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary the mother of John, whose surname was Mark, where many were gathered together, praying.

13 [6] And as Peter knocked at the doore of the gate, a damsel [d] came ‡ to hearken, named Rhoda.

d Out of the place where they were assembled, but not out of the house.
‡ Or, to ask who was there.

14 And when she knew Peters voice, she opened not the gate for gladnesse, but ran in, and told how Peter stood before the gate.

15 And they said unto her, Thou art mad. But she constantly affirmed that it was even so. Then said they, It is his angel.

16 But Peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the doore, and saw him, they were astonished.

7 We may sometimes give place to the rage of the wicked, but yet so that our diligence which ought to be used in Gods businesse, be not a whit slackened.

17 [7] But he beckening unto them with the hand to hold their peace, declared unto them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, Go shew these things unto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and went into another place.

8 Evill counsel falleth out in the end to the hurt of the devisers of it.

18 [8] Now assoon as it was day, there was no small stirre among the souldiers, what was become of Peter.

19 And when Herod had sought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and commanded that they should be put to death. And he went down from Judea to Cesarea, and there abode.

9 A miserable and shamefull example of the end of the enemies of the church.
‡ Or, bare an hostile minde, intending warre.
† Gr. That was over the kings bedchamber.

20 ¶ [9] And Herod ‡ was highly displeased with them of Tyre and Sidon: but they came with one accord to him, and having made Blastus † the kings chamberlain their friend, desired peace, because their countrey was nourished by the kings countrey.

21 And upon a set day, Herod arayed in royall apparel, sat upon his throne, and made an oration unto them.

10 The flatterie of the people, maketh fools fain.
11 God resisteth the proud.
e Josephus recordeth, that this king did not represse those flatterers tongues, and therefore at his death he complained and cried out of their vanitie.

22 [10] And the people gave a shout, saying, It is the voice of a god, and not of a man.

23 [11] And immediately the angel of the Lord smote him, because he [e] gave not God the glory: and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost.

12 Tyrants build up the church by plucking it down.
f They that heard the word of God.
‡ Or, charge, chap. 11, 29, 30.

24 ¶ [12] But the [f] word of God grew and multiplied.

25 And Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem, when they had fulfilled their ‡ ministerie, and took with them John whose surname was Mark.

Chap. XIII.

1 Paul and Barnabas are chosen to go to the Gentiles. 7 Of Sergius Paulus, and Elymas the sorcerer. 13 Paul preacheth at Antioch, that Jesus is Christ. 42 The Gentiles beleeve. 45 but the Jews gainsay, and blaspheme: 46 whereupon they turn to the Gentiles. 48 As many as were ordained to life, beleeved.

1 Paul with Barnabas is again the second time appointed apostle of the Gentiles, not of man, neither by man, but by an extraordinary commandment of the holy Ghost.

‡ Or, Herods foster brother.

a The same was Antipas, which put John Baptist to death.

b Whiles they were busie doing their office, that is, as Chrysostome expoundeth it, while they were preaching.

c The Lord is said To call (whereof this word (calling) cometh, which is usuall in the church) when he causeth that to be, which was not, whether you refer it to the matter it self, or to any qualitie or thing about the matter: and it groweth of this, because when things begin to be, then they have some name: as God his mighty power is also declared thereby, who spake the word, and things were made.

2 Fasts and solemn prayers were used before the laying on of hands.

3 Paul and his companie doe at the first bring Cyprus to the subjection and obedience of Christ.

d Seleucia was a citie of Cilicia, so called of Seleucus one of Alexanders successours.

4 The devil maketh the conquest of Christ more glorious, in that that he setteth himself against him.

g This putteth a difference betwixt it, and Antiochia which was in Syria.

7 In the synagogue of the Jews (according to the patern whereof Christian congregations were instituted first the scriptures were read, then such as were learned, were licensed by the rulers of the synagogue to speak and expound.

NOw [1] there were in the church that was at Antioch, certain prophets and teachers: as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, [‡a] which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul.

2 As they [b] ministred to the Lord, and fasted, the holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul, for the work whereunto I have [c] called them.

3 [2] And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away.

4 ¶ [3] So they being sent forth by the holy Ghost, departed unto [d] Seleucia, and from thence they sailed to Cyprus.

5 And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews: and they had also John to their minister.

6 And when they had gone through the isle unto Paphos, they found a certain sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Barjesus:

7 Which was with the deputy of the countrey, Sergius Paulus, a prudent man: who called for Barnabas and Saul, and desired to heare the word of God.

8 [4] But Elymas the sorcerer (for so is his name by interpretation) withstood them, seeking to turn away the deputy from the faith.

9 Then Saul (who also is called Paul) filled with the holy Ghost, set his eyes on him,

10 [5] And said, O full of all subtility and all [e] mischief, thou childe of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousnesse, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right wayes of the Lord?

11 And now behold, the [f] hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blinde, not seeing the sunne for a season. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darknesse, and he went about seeking some to lead him by the hand.

12 Then the deputy when he saw what was done, beleeved, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord.

13 [6] Now when Paul and his company loosed from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia: and John departing from them, returned to Jerusalem.

14 ¶ But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in [g] Pisidia, and went into the synagogue on the sabbath-day, and sat down.

15 [7] And after the reading of the law and the prophets, the rulers of the synagogue sent unto them, saying, Ye men and brethren, if ye [h] have any word of exhortation for the people, say on.

16 [8] Then Paul stood up, and beckening with his hand, said, Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, give audience.

17 The God of this people of Israel chose our fathers, and [i] exalted the people * when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, * and with an [k] high arm brought he them out of it.

22 And when he had removed him, * he raised up unto them David to be their king, to whom also he gave testimonie, and said, * I have found David the sonne of Jesse, a man after mine own heart, which shall fulfill all my will.

23 * [9] Of this mans seed hath God according to his promise, raised unto Israel a Saviour Jesus:

24 * When John had first preached [n] before his coming, the baptisme of repentance to all the people of Israel.

25 And as John fulfilled his course, he said, * Whom think ye that I am? I am not he. But behold, there cometh one after me, whose shoes of his feet I am not worthy to loose.

26 [10] Men and brethren, children of the stock of Abraham, and whosoever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this salvation sent.

27 [11] For they that dwell at Jerusalem, and their rulers, because they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets which are read every sabbath-day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him.

28 * And though they found no cause of death in him, yet desired they Pilate that he should be slain.

29 And when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a sepulchre.

30 * [12] But God raised him from the dead:

31 And he was seen many dayes of them which came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are his witnesses unto the people.

42 [17] And when the Jews were gone out of the ſynagogue, the Gentiles beſought that theſe words might be preached to them † the next ſabbath.

43 Now when the congregation was broken up, many of the Jews, and religious [r] proſelytes followed Paul and Barnabas, who ſpeaking to them, perſwaded them to continue in the grace of God.

45 [18] But when the Jews, ſaw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and ſpake againſt thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul, contradicting and blaſpheming.

46 [19] Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and ſaid, It was neceſſary that the word of God ſhould firſt have been ſpoken to you: but ſeeing ye put it from you, and [s] judge your ſelves unworthy of everlaſting life; lo, we turn to the Gentiles.

47 For ſo hath the Lord commanded us, ſaying, * I have ſet thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou ſhouldeſt be for ſalvation unto the ends of the earth.

48 And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and as many as were [t] ordained to eternall life, beleeved.

49 And the word of the Lord was publiſhed throughout all the region.

50 [20] But the Jews ſtirred up the [u] devout and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and raiſed perſecution againſt Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coaſts.

51 * [21] But they ſhook off the duſt of their feet againſt them, and came unto Iconium.

1 Paul and Barnabas are perſecuted from Iconium. 8 At Lyſtra Paul healeth a creeple, whereupon they are reputed as gods. 19 Paul is ſtoned. 21 They paſſe through divers churches, confirming the diſciples in faith and patience. 26 Returning to Antioch, they report what God had done with them.

AND [1] it came to paſſe in [a] Iconium, that they went both together into the ſynagogue of the Jews, and ſo ſpake, that a great multitude both of the Jews, and alſo of the Greeks, beleeved.

2 But the [b] unbeleeving Jews ſtirred up the Gentiles, and made their mindes evil-affected againſt the brethren.

3 [2] Long time therefore abode they ſpeaking boldly in the Lord, which gave teſtimony unto the word of his grace, and granted ſignes and wonders to be done by their hands.

4 But the multitude of the city was divided: and part held with the Jews, and part with the apoſtles.

5 And when there was an aſſault made both of the Gentiles, and alſo of the Jews, with their rulers, to uſe them deſpitefully, and to ſtone them,

6 They were ware of it, and [c] fled unto Lyſtra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about.

7 And there they preached the goſpel.

8 ¶ [3] And there ſat a certain man at Lyſtra, impotent in his feet, being a creeple from his mothers wombe, who never had walked.

9 The ſame heard Paul ſpeak; who ſtedfaſtly beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed,

10 Said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet; and he leaped and walked.

11 And when the people ſaw what Paul had done, they lift up their voices, ſaying in the ſpeech of Lycaonia, The gods are come down to us in the likeneſſe of men.

12 And they called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercurius, becauſe he was the chief ſpeaker.

13 Then the prieſt of Jupiter which was before their citie, brought oxen and garlands unto the [d] gates, and would have done ſacrifice with the people.

14 Which when the apoſtles, Barnabas and Paul heard of, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out,

CHAP. XV.

1 Great diſſenſion ariſeth touching circumciſion. 6 The apoſtles conſult about it, 22 and ſend their determination by letters to the churches. 36 Paul and Barnabas, thinking to viſit the brethren together, fall at ſtrife, & depart aſunder.

AND [1] certain [a] men which came down from Judea, taught the brethren, and ſaid, * Except ye be circumciſed after the manner of Moſes, ye cannot be ſaved.

2 [2] When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no ſmall diſſenſion and diſputation with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jeruſalem unto the apoſtles and elders about this queſtion.

3 [b] And being brought on their way by the church, they paſſed through Phenice, and Samaria, declaring the converſion of the Gentiles: and they cauſed great joy unto all the brethren.

4 And when they were come to Jeruſalem, they were received of the church, and of the apoſtles and elders, and they declared all things that God had done with them.

5 But there roſe up certain of the ſect of the Phariſees which beleeved, ſaying, That it was needfull to circumciſe them, and to command them to keep the law of Moſes.

6 ¶ [3] And the apoſtles and elders came together for to conſider of this matter.

7 And when there had been much diſputing, Peter roſe up and ſaid unto them, * [4] Men and brethren, ye know how that a [c] good while ago, God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth ſhould heare the word of the goſpel, and beleeve.

8 And God which knoweth the hearts, bare them witneſſe, giving them the holy Ghoſt, even as he did unto us:

9 And put no [d] difference between us and them, * [e] purifying their hearts by faith.

10 [5] Now therefore [f] why tempt ye God, * to put a yoke upon the neck of the diſciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?

11 But we beleeve that through the grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, we ſhall be ſaved even as they.

12 ¶ [6] Then all the multitude kept ſilence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them.

13 ¶ And after they had held their peace, [g] James anſwered, ſaying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me.

14 [7] Simeon hath declared how God at the firſt did viſit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name.

15 And to this agree the words of the prophets, as it is written,

16 * After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down: and I will build again the ruines thereof, and I will ſet it up:

17 That the reſidue of men might ſeek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, ſaith the Lord, who doeth all theſe things.

18 [h] Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world.

19 [8] Wherefore my ſentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God:

20 But that we write unto them, that they abſtain from [i] pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things ſtrangled, and from bloud.

21 For Moſes of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the ſynagogues every ſabbath-day.

1 The church is at length troubled with diſſention within it ſelf, and the trouble riſeth of the proud and ſtubborn wits of certain evil men: The firſt ſtrife was concerning the office of Chriſt, whether we be ſaved by his only righteouſnes apprehended by faith, or if we have need alſo to obſerve the law. a Epiphanius is of opinion, that this was Cerinthus.

22 [9] Then pleased it the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas: namely, Judas, surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren.

23 And wrote letters by them after this manner, The apostles, and elders, and brethren send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia.

24 [10] Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have [t] troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law, to whom we gave no such commandment:

25 It seemed good unto us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul;

26 Men that have [m] hazarded their lives, for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

27 We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by mouth.

28 [11] For it seemed good to the [n] holy Ghost, and to [o] us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these [p] necessary things;

29 [12] That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from bloud, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep your selves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

30 [13] So when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch, and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epistle.

31 Which when they had read, they rejoyced for the [‡] consolation.

32 And Judas and Silas being prophets also themselves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them.

33 And after they had tarried there a space, they were let go in [q] peace from the brethren unto the apostles.

34 Notwithstanding it pleased Silas to abide there still.

35 Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.

36 ¶ [14] And some dayes after, Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us go again and visit our brethren, in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do.

37 [15] And Barnabas determined to take with them John, whose surname was Mark.

38 But Paul thought not good to take him with them, who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work.

39 [16] And the contention was so [r] sharp between them, that they departed asunder one from the other: and so Barnabas took Mark; and sailed unto Cyprus;

40 And Paul chose Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God.

41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia; confirming the churches.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Paul having circumcised Timothie, 7 and being called by the spirit from one countrey to another, 14 converteth Lydia, 16 casteth out a spirit of divination. 19 For which cause he and Silas are whipped and imprisoned. 26 The prison doores are opened. 31 The jaylour is converted, 37 and they are delivered.

THen [1] came he to Derbe and Lystra: and behold, a certain disciple was there, * named Timotheus, the sonne of a certain woman which was a [a] Jewesse, and beleeved: but his father was a Greek:

2 Which was [b] well reported of by the brethren that were at Lystra and Iconium.

3 [2] Him would Paul have to go forth with him, and took and circumcised him, because of the Jews which were in those quarters: for they knew all that his father was a Greek.

4 [3] And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the [c] decrees for to keep, * that were ordained of the apostles and elders which were at Jerusalem.

5 And so were the churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily.

6 [4] Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia, and the region of Galatia, and were [d] forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in Asia,

7 After they were come to Mysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not.

8 And they passing by Mysia, came down to Troas.

9 [5] And a vision appeared to Paul in the night: There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.

10 [6] And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering, that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them.

11 Therefore loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis;

12 And from thence to Philippi, which is [‡] the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a colony: and we were in that city abiding certain dayes.

13 [7] And on the sabbath we went out of the city by a rivers side, where [e] prayer was wont to be made, and we sat down, and spake unto the women which resorted thither.

14 ¶ [8] And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul.

15 [9] And when she was baptized, and her houshold, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged

9 In a lawfull Synode, neither they which are appointed and chosen judges, appoint and determine any thing tyrannously, or upon a lordlines, neither doth the common multitude set themselves tumultuously against them which sit as judges by the word of God: as the like order also is holden in publishing and ratifying those things which have been so determined and agreed upon.

10 The Councill of Jerusalem concludeth, that they trouble mens consciences, which teach us to seek salvation in any other meanes than in Christ only apprehended by faith, from whence soever they come, and whomsoever they pretend to be authour of their vocation.

t A borrowed kinde of speech taken of them which pull down that which was built up: and it is a very usuall metaphore in the scriptures, to say the church is built for the church is planted and stablished.

m For the gospel sake.

11 That is, a lawfull Councill, which the holy Ghost ruleth.

n First they make mention of the holy Ghost, that it may not seem to be any mans work.

o Not that men have any authority of themselves, but to shew the faithfulnesse that they used in their ministerie and labour.

p This was no precise necessitie, but in respect of the state of that time, that the Gentiles and the Jews might more peaceably live together with lesse occasion of quarrell.

12 Charitie is requisite even in things indifferent.

13 It is requisite for all people to know certainly what to hold in matters of faith and religion, and not that the church by ignorance and knowing nothing, should depend upon the pleasure of a few.

q This is an Hebrew kinde of speech, which is as much to say, as the brethren wished them all prosperous successe, and the church dismissed them with good leave. 14 Congregations or churches do easily degenerate, unlesse they be diligently seen unto, and therefore went these apostles to oversee such as they had planted, and for this cause also Synodes were instituted and appointed. 15 A lamentable example of discord between excellent men and very great friends, yet not for profane or their private affaires, neither yet for doctrine. 16 God useth the faults of his servants to the profit and building of the church, yet we have to take heed, even in the best matters, that we passe not measure in our heat:

r They were in great heat: But herein we have to consider the force of Gods counsel: for by this means it came to passe, that the doctrine of the gospel was exercised in many places.

b Both for his godlinesse and honestie.

2 Timothie is circumcised, not simply for any necessitie, but in respect of the time onely to win the Jews.

3 Charitie is to be observed in things indifferent, that so regard be had both of the weak, and the quietnesse of the church.

c Those decrees which he spake of in the former chapter.

16 ¶ [10] And it came to paſſe, as we went to prayer, a certain damſel, poſſeſſed with a ſpirit ‡ [f] of divination, met us, which brought her maſters much gain by ſoothſaying:

17 The ſame followed Paul, and us, and cried, ſaying, Theſe men are the ſervants of the moſt high God, which ſhew unto us the way of ſalvation.

18 And this did ſhe [g] many dayes: but Paul being grieved, turned and ſaid to the ſpirit, I command thee in the name of Jeſus Chriſt to come out of her. And he came out the ſame houre.

11 Covetouſneſſe of lucre and gain is an occaſion of perſecuting the truth, In the mean ſeaſon, God ſparing Timothie, calleth Paul and Silas as the ſtronger to battel.

h Because he would be more ſure of them, he ſet them faſt in the ſtocks.
15 The prayers of the godly do ſhake both heaven and earth.

19 ¶ [11] And when her maſters ſaw that the hope of their gains was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the ‡ market-place, unto the rulers.

20 [12] And brought them to the magiſtrates, ſaying, Theſe men being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our citie, 21 [13] And teach cuſtomes which are not lawfull for us to receive, neither to obſerve, being Romanes.

22 [14] And the multitude roſe up together againſt them, and the magiſtrates rent off their clothes, * and commanded to beat them.

23 And when they had laid many ſtripes upon them, they caſt them into priſon, charging the jaylour to keep them ſafely.

24 Who having received ſuch a charge, thruſt them into the inner priſon, and made their feet [h] faſt in the ſtocks.

25 ¶ [15] And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and ſang praiſes unto God: and the priſoners heard them.

26 And ſuddenly there was a great earthquake, ſo that the foundations of the priſon were ſhaken: and immediately all the doores were opened, and every ones bands were looſed.

16 The mercifull Lord, ſo oft as he liſteth, draweth men to life even through the midſt of death, and whereas juſtly they deſerved great puniſhment, he ſheweth them great mercy.
17 In meanes which are eſpecially extraordinary, we ought not to move one foot forward, unleſſe that God go before us.

27 [16] And the keeper of the priſon awaking out of his ſleep, and ſeeing the priſon doores open, he drew out his ſword, and would have killed himſelf, ſuppoſing that the priſoners had been fled.

28 [17] But Paul cried with a loud voice, ſaying, Do thy ſelf no harm, for we are all here.

29 Then he called for a light, and ſprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, 30 And brought them out, and ſaid, Sirs, what muſt I do to be ſaved?

31 And they ſaid, Beleeve on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and thou ſhalt be ſaved, and thy houſe.

32 And they ſpake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his houſe.

18 God with one ſelf-ſame hand woundeth and healeth when it pleaſeth him.

33 [18] And he took them the ſame houre of the night, and waſhed their ſtripes, and was baptized, he and all his, ſtraightway.

34 And when he had brought them into his houſe, he ſet meat before them, and rejoyced, beleeving in God with all his houſe.

19 Shame and confuſion is in proceſſe of time the reward of wicked and unjuſt magiſtrates.

35 [19] And when it was day, the magiſtrates ſent the ſergeants, ſaying, Let thoſe men go.

36 And the keeper of the priſon told this ſaying to Paul, The magiſtrates have ſent to let you go: now therefore depart, and go in peace.

20 We muſt not render injury for injury, and yet notwithſtanding it is lawfull for us to uſe ſuch help as God giveth us, to bridle the outragiouſneſſe of the wicked, that they hurt not other in like ſort.
21 The wicked are not moved with the feare of God, but with the feare of men: and by that meanes alſo God provideth for his, when it is needfull.
22 We may eſchew dangers, ſo that we never neglect our duetie.
* Verſe 14.

37 [20] But Paul ſaid unto them, They have beaten us openly uncondemned, being Romanes, and have caſt us into priſon, and now do they thruſt us out privily? nay verily, but let them come themſelves and fetch us out.

38 [21] And the ſergeants told theſe words unto the magiſtrates: and they feared when they heard that they were Romanes.

39 And they came and beſought them, and brought them out, and deſired them, to depart out of the city.

40 [22] And they went out of the priſon, * and entred into the houſe of Lydia, and when they had ſeen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

Chap. XVII.

1 Paul preacheth at Theſſalonica: 4 where ſome beleeve, and others perſecute him. 10 He is ſent to Berea, and preacheth there. 13 Being perſecuted at Theſſalonica, 15 he cometh to Athens, and diſputeth and preacheth the living God to them unknown, 34 whereby many are converted unto Chriſt.

NOw [1] when they had paſſed through Amphipolis, and Apollonia, they came to Theſſalonica, where was a ſynagogue of the Jews.

1 The caſting out of Silas and Paul was the ſaving of many other.

2 And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three ſabbath-dayes reaſoned with them out of the ſcriptures,

3 [2] Opening and alledging, that Chriſt muſt needs have ſuffered, and riſen again from the dead: and that this Jeſus whom I preach unto you, is Chriſt.

2 Chriſt is therefore the Mediatour, becauſe he was crucified and roſe again: much leſſe is he to be rejected, becauſe the croſſe is ignominious.

4 And ſome of them beleeved, and conſorted with Paul and Silas: and of the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.

3 Although the zeal of the unfaithfull ſeem never ſo godly, yet at length it is found to have neither truth nor equity: But yet the wicked cannot doe what they liſt, for even among themſelves God ſtirreth up ſome, whoſe help he uſeth to the diliverance of his.

5 ¶ [3] But the Jews which beleeved not, moved with envy, took unto them certain [a] lewd fellows of the baſer ſort, and gathered a company, and ſet all the city on an uprore, and aſſaulted the houſe of Jaſon, and ſought to bring them out to the people.

a Certain companions which doe nothing but walk the ſtreets, wicked men, to be hired for every mans money to do any miſchief, ſuch as we commonly call the raſcals & very ſink and dunghill knaves of all towns and cities.

6 And when they found them not, they drew Jaſon, and certain brethren unto the rulers of the city, crying, Theſe that have turned the [b] world upſide down, are come hither alſo, b Into what countrey and place ſoever they come, they cauſe ſedition and tumult.

7 Whom Jaſon hath received: and theſe all do contrary to the decrees of Ceſar, ſaying, that there is another king, one Jeſus.

8 And they troubled the people, and the rulers of the citie, when they heard theſe things.

c When Jaſon had put them in good aſſurance that they ſhould appear.

9 And when they had taken [c] ſecurity of Jaſon, and of the other, they let them go.

4 That is indeed the wiſedome of the ſpirit, which alwayes ſetteth the glory of God before it ſelf, as a mark whereunto it directeth it ſelf, and never ſwarveth from it.

10 ¶ [4] And the brethren immediately ſent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who coming thither, went into the ſynagogue of the Jews.

11 [5] Theſe

11 [5] Theſe were more [d] noble than thoſe in Theſſalonica, in that they received the word with all readineſſe of minde, and ſearched the ſcriptures daily, whether thoſe things were ſo.

12 Therefore many of them beleeved: alſo of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men not a few.

13 [6] But when the Jews of Theſſalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither alſo, and ſtirred up the people.

14 [7] And then immediately the brethren ſent away Paul, to go as it were to the ſea: but Silas, and Timotheus abode there ſtil.

15 [8] And they that conducted Paul, [e] brought him unto Athens, and receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timotheus, for to come to him with all ſpeed, they departed.

16 ¶ [9] Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his ſpirit was [f] ſtirred in him, when he ſaw the city ‡wholy given to [g] idolatry.

17 Therefore diſputed he in the ſynagogue with the Jews, and with the devout perſons, and in the market daily with them that [h] met with him.

18 [10] Then certain philoſophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoicks, encountred him: and ſome ſaid, What will this ‡[i] babler ſay? other ſome, He ſeemeth to be a ſetter forth of ſtrange gods: becauſe he preached unto them Jeſus, and the reſurrection.

19 And they took him, and brought him unto ‡[k] Areopagus, ſaying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou ſpeakeſt, is?

20 For thou bringeſt certain ſtrange things to our eares: we would know therefore what theſe things mean.

21 [11] (For all the Athenians and ſtrangers which were there, ſpent their time in nothing els, but either to tel or to hear ſome new thing)

22 ¶ [12] Then Paul ſtood in the midſt of ‡Mars hill, and ſaid, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too ſuperſtitious.

23 For as I paſſed by, and beheld your ‡[m] devotions, I found an altar with this inſcription, To the [n] unknown God. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worſhip, him declare I unto you.

24 * [13] God that made the world, and all things therein, ſeeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands:

25 Neither is worſhipped with mens hands, *as though he needed any thing, ſeeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things.

26 [14] And hath made of [o] one bloud, all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the time before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation:

27 That they ſhould ſeek the Lord if haply they might [p] feel after him, and finde him, though he be not farre from every one of us.

28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being, as certain alſo of your own poets have ſaid, For we are alſo his offspring.

29 Foraſmuch then as we are the offspring of God, *we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or ſilver, or ſtone [q] graven by art and mans device.

30 [15] And the times of this ignorance God winked at, but now commandeth all men every where to repent;

31 Becauſe he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteouſneſſe, by that man whom he hath ordained, whereof he hath ‡ given [r] aſſurance unto all men, in that he hath raiſed him from the dead.

32 ¶ [16] And when they heard of the reſurrection of the dead, ſome mocked; and others ſaid, We will heare thee again of this matter.

33 So Paul departed from among them.

34 Howbeit, certain men clave unto him, and beleeved; among the which was Dionyſius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

Chap. XVIII.

3 Paul laboureth with his hands, and preacheth at Corinth to the Gentiles. 9 The Lord encourageth him in a viſion. 12 He is accuſed before Gallio the deputy, but is diſmiſſed. 18 Afterwards paſſing from city to city, he ſtrengthened the diſciples. 24 Apollos being more perfectly inſtructed by Aquila and Priſcilla, 28 preacheth Chriſt with great efficacy.

After [1] theſe things, Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth,

2 And found a certain Jew named * Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priſcilla (becauſe that [a] Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome) and came unto them.

3 And becauſe he was of the ſame craft, he abode with them, and wrought (for by their occupation they were tent-makers)

4 [2] And he reaſoned in the ſynagogue every ſabbath, and [b] perſwaded the Jews, and the Greeks.

5 And when Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, Paul was [c] preſſed in ſpirit, and teſtified to the Jews, that Jeſus was Chriſt.

6 [3] And when they oppoſed themſelves, and blaſphemed, * he ſhook his raiment, and ſaid unto them, Your [d] bloud be upon your own heads, I am clean; from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.

7 ¶ And he departed thence, and entred into a certain mans houſe, named Juſtus, one that worſhipped God, whoſe houſe joyned hard to the ſynagogue.

8 * And Criſpus the chief ruler of the ſynagogue, beleeved on the Lord with all his

9 [4] Then spake the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace:

10 For I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee, to hurt thee; for I have much people in this city.

† Gr. sat there, o Word for word, sat, whereupon they in former time, took the name of their bishops seat: but Paul sat, that is continued teaching the word of God: and this kinde of seat belongeth nothing to them, which never saw their seats with a minde to teach in them. 5 The wicked are never weary of evil doing, but the Lord mocketh their endevours marvellously.

11 And he †[o] continued there a yeare and six moneths, teaching the word of God among them.

12 ¶ [5] And when Gallio was the deputie of [f]Achaia, the Jews made insurrection with one accord against Paul, and brought him to the judgement seat, 13 Saying, This fellow perswadeth men to worship God contrary to the law.

14 And when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews, If it were a matter of wrong, or wicked lewdnesse, O ye Jews, [g] reason would that I should bear with you.

f That is, of Grecia. yet the Romanes did not call him deputie of Grecia, but of Achaia, because the Romanes brought the Grecians into subjection, by the Achaians, which in those dayes were Princes of Grecia, as Pausanias recordeth. g As much as in right I could. h As if a man have not spoken well as the case of your religion standeth. i For this profane man thinketh that the controversie of religion, is but a braul about words, and for no matter of substance. 6 Paul is made all to all, to winne all to Christ. k Cenchrea was an haven of the Corinthians. l That is Paul. 7 The apostles were carried about not by the will of man, but by the leading of the holy Ghost. * 1 Cor. 4, 19. 16 And he drave them from the judgement seat.

17 Then all the Greeks took Sosthenes, the chief ruler of the synagogue, and beat him before the judgement-seat; and Gallio cared for none of those things.

18 ¶ [6] And Paul after this, tarried there yet a good while, and then took his leave of the brethren, and sailed thence into Syria, and with him Priscilla and Aquila: having shorn his head in [k] Cenchrea: for [l] he had a vow.

19 And he came to Ephesus, and left them there: but he himself entred into the synagogue, and reasoned with the Jews.

20 [7] When they desired him to tarrie longer time with them, he consented not:

21 But bad them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep this feast that cometh, in Jerusalem; but I will return again unto you, *[m] if God will: and he sailed from Ephesus.

22 And when he had landed at Cesarea, and gone up and saluted the church, he went down to Antioch.

23 And after he had spent some time there, he departed, and went over all the countrey of Galatia and Phrygia in order, strenghtening all the disciples.

24 ¶ *[8] And a certain Jew named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man, and [n] mightie in the scriptures, came to Ephesus.

25 This man was instructed in the way of the Lord, and being fervent in the spirit, he spake and taught diligently the things of the Lord, knowing onely the baptisme of John.

o The way that leadeth to God.

26 And he began to speak boldly in the synagogue: whom when Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the [o] way of God more perfectly.

27 And when he was disposed to passe into Achaia, the brethren wrote, exhorting the disciples to receive him; who, when he was come, helped them much which had beleeved through [p] grace.

p Through Gods gracious favour, or by those excellent gifts which God had bestowed upon him.

CHAP. XIX.

6 The holy Ghost is given by Pauls hands. 9 The Iews blaspheme his doctrine, which is confirmed by the miracles. 13 The Iewish exorcists 16 are beaten by the devill. 19 Conjuring books are burnt. 24 Demetrius, for love of gain, raiseth an uprore against Paul, 35 which is appeased by the town-clerk.

1 Paul being no thing offended at the rudenesse of the Ephesians, planteth a church amongst them.

AND [1] it came to passe, that while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper coasts, came to Ephesus, and finding certain disciples,

2 He said unto them, Have ye received the [a] holy Ghost since ye beleeved? and they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any holy Ghost.

a Those excellent gifts of the holy Ghost, which were in those dayes in the church.

3 [a] And he said unto them, [b] Unto what then were ye baptized? and they said, Unto [c] Johns baptisme.

a John did only begin to instruct the disciples whom Christ would make perfect. b In what doctrin then are you taught and instructed? c To be baptized into Iohns baptisme, is to professe the doctrin which Iohn preached and sealed with his baptisme.

4 Then said Paul, * John verily baptized with the baptisme of repentance, saying unto the people, That they should beleeve on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.

* Matth. 3, 1.

5 When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

6 And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the holy Ghost came on them, and they spake with tongues, and prophesied.

7 And all the men were about twelve.

8 And he went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three moneths, disputing and perswading the things concerning the kingdome of God.

3 For a man to separate himself and others from infidels which are utterly disparate, it is not to divide the church, but rather to unite it, and make it one.

9 [3] But when diverswere hardened, and beleeved not, but spake evil of that [d] way before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, disputing daily in the school of one [e] Tyrannus.

d By, this word, Way, the Hebrews understand any kinde of life, and here it is taken for Christianity. e This was a mans proper name.

10 And this continued by the space of two yeares, so that all they which dwelt in Asia, heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks.

11 And God wrought speciall miracles by the hands of Paul.

12 So that from his bodie were brought unto the sick, handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.

13 ¶ [4] Then certain of the vagabond Jews, [f] exorcists, took upon them to call over them which had evil spirits, the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth.

4 Satan is constrained to give witnesse against himself. f So were they called which cast out devils by conjuring them in the name of God: and in the beginning of the church, they which had the gift of working miracles, and laid their hands on them that were possessed with devils, were also so called.

14 And there were seven sonnes of one Sceva a Jew, and chief of the priests, which did so.

15 And the evil spirit answered and said, Jesus I know, and Paul I know, but who are ye?

16 And the man in whom the evil spirit was, leapt on them, and overcame them, and [5] pre-

g He prevailed against them, though they strove never so much.

[g] prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded.

17 And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks also dwelling at Ephesus, and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.

5 Conjuring and sorcerie is condemned by open testimony, and by the authoritie of the apostle.

18 [5] And many that beleeved came, and h confessed, and shewed their deeds.

h Confessed their errours, and detested them openly, being terrified with the feare of the judgement of God: and what is this to careshrift?

19 Many also of them which used curious arts, brought their books together, and burned them before all men; and they counted the price of them, and found it i fiftie thousand pieces of silver.

i They that make the least value of it, reckon it to be about eight hundred pounds English.

20 So mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed.

6 Paul is never wearie.

21 ¶ [6] After these things were ended, Paul purposed in the k spirit, when he had passed through Macedonia, and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I must also see Rome.

k By the motion of Gods spirit: therefore we may not say that Paul ran hand over head to death, but as the spirit of God led him.

22 So he sent into Macedonia two of them that ministred unto him, Timotheus and Erastus, but he himself stayed in Asia for a season.

7 Gain cloaked with a shew of religion, is the very cause wherefore idolatrie is stoutly and stubbornly defended.

23 [7] And the same time there arose no small stirre about that way.

l These were certain counterfeit temples with Dianas picture in them, which they bought that worshipped her.

24 For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, which made silver l shrines for Diana, brought no small gain unto the craftsmen.

25 Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth.

26 Moreover, ye see and heare, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath perswaded and turned away much people, saying, that they be no gods which are made with hands.

m As if he said, if Paul go on thus as he hath begun, to confute the opinion which men have of Dianas image, all this our gain will come to nought.

27 So that not onely this our m craft is in danger to be set at nought: but also that the temple of the great goddesse Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia, and the world worshippeth.

28 And when they heard these sayings, they were full of wrath, and cryed out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

29 And the whole citie was filled with confusion, and having caught Gaius and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, Pauls companions in travel, they rushed with one accord into the theatre.

30 And when Paul would have entred in unto the people, the disciples suffered him not.

n There ought to be in all Christians and especially in the ministers, an invincible constancie, which may not by any stormes or assaults be overcome, which notwithstanding must suffer it self modestly to be governed by wisdome.

31 [8] And certain of the chief of Asia, which were his friends, sent unto him, desiring him that he would not adventure himself into the theatre.

32 Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was confused, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together.

33 And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And Alexander beckened with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people.

34 [9] But when they knew that he was a Jew, all with one voice about the space of two houres cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

9 In stead of reason, the idolaters are sufficiently contented with their own madnesse and outcries, and those are the greatest defences that they have

35 [10] And when the town-clerk had appeased the people, he said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the citie of the Ephesians is † a worshipper of the great goddesse Diana, and of the image which fell down from [n] Jupiter?

10 An example of a politick man who redeemeth peace and quietnesse with lies, which Paul would never have done.

n The Ephesians beleeved superstitiously that the image of Diana came down from heaven to them.

36 Seeing then that these things cannot be spoken against, ye ought o to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly.

o Have ought to accuse any man of 37 For ye have brought hither these men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blasphemers of your goddesse.

38 Wherefore if Demetrius and the craftsmen which are with him, have a° matter against any man, ‡ [p] the law is open, and there are [q] deputies, let them implead one another.

‡ Or, the court dayes are kept.

p For there are certain dayes appointed for civill causes and matters of judgement, and the deputies sit.

q By the deputies are meant also the deputies substitutes, that is, such as did sit for them.

39 But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters, it shall be determined in a ‡ [r] lawfull assembly.

r He speaketh of a lawful assembly, not only to except against the disordered hurly burly of the people, but also against all meeting and coming together, which was not by order: for there were certain dayes appointed to call the people together in.

40 For we are in danger to be called in question for this dayes uprore, there being no cause whereby we may give an account of this concourse.

41 And when he had thus spoken, he dismissed the assembly.

CHAP. XX.

1 Paul goeth to Macedonia. 7 He celebrateth the Lords supper, and preacheth. 9 Eutychus having fallen down dead 10 is raised to life. 17 At Miletus he calleth the elders together, telleth them what shall befall to himself, 28 committeth Gods flock to them, 29 warneth them of false teachers, 32 commendeth them to God, 36 prayeth with them, and goeth his way.

AND [1] after the uprore was ceased, Paul called unto him the disciples, and embraced them, and departed for to go into Macedonia.

1 Paul departeth from Ephesus by the consent of the church, not to be idle or at rest, but to take paines in another place.

2 And when he had gone over those parts, and had given them [a] much exhortation, he came into Greece, a For after so great touble, there was need of a long exhortation.

3 [2] And there abode three moneths: and when the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia.

2 A froward zeal is the guider and instructer to murders: and we are not debarred by the wisdome of God to prevent the endeavours of wicked men.

4 And there accompanied him into Asia, Sopater of Berea: and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus: and Gaius of Derbe and Timotheus: and of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus.

5 These going before, tarried for us at Troas.

6 And we sailed away from Philippi, after the dayes of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five dayes, where we abode seven dayes.

3 Assemblies in the night time cannot be justly condemned, neither ought, when the cause is good.

7 [3] And upon the b first day of the week, when the disciples came together * to break bread, Paul preached unto them, readie to depart on the morrow, and continued his speech untill midnight.

b Word for word, The first day of the sabbath, that is, upon the Lords day: so that by this place, and by 1 Cor. 16, 2. it is not amisse gathered, that in those dayes the Christians were wont to assemble themselves solemnly together upon that day. * Chap. 2, 46.

8 [4] And there were many lights in the upper

4 The devil minding to trouble the church with a great offence, giveth a singular occasion to confirm the gospel.

124 chamber where they were gathered together.

9 And there ſat in a window a certain young man named Eutichus, being fallen into a deep ſleep, and as Paul was long preaching, he ſunk down with ſleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.

10 And Paul went down, and fell on him, and embracing him, ſaid, Trouble not your ſelves, for his life is in him.

11 When he therefore was come up again, & had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, ſo he departed.

12 And they brought the young man alive, and were not a little comforted.

13 ¶ And we went before to ſhip, and ſailed unto Aſſos, there intending to take in Paul: for ſo had he appointed, minding himſelf to go afoot.

14 And when he met with us at Aſſos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene.

15 And we ſailed thence, and came the next day over againſt Chios, and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium: and the next day we came to Miletus.

5 Paul an earneſt and diligent follower of Chriſt, making haſte to his bonds without any ceaſing or ſtopping in his race, doeth firſt of all as it were make his teſtament, wherein he giveth an account of his former life, defendeth the doctrin which he taught, and exhorteth the paſtours of the church to perſevere and go forward with continuance in their office.

16 [5]For Paul had determined to ſail by Epheſus, becauſe he would not ſpend the time in Aſia: for he haſted, if it were poſſible for him, to be at Jeruſalem the day of Pentecoſt.

17 ¶ And from [c] Miletus he ſent to Epheſus, and called the elders of the church.

c According as the ſituation of theſe places is ſet forth, that diſtance betwen Ephetus and Miletum, was about 40 furlongs, which maketh almoſt fifue Dutch miles.

18 [6] And when they were come to him, he ſaid unto them, Ye know from the firſt day that I came into Aſia, after what manner I have been with you at all ſeaſons,

6 A lively image of a true paſtour.

19 Serving the Lord with all humilitie of minde, and with many tears, and temptations which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews:

20 And how I kept back [d] nothing that was profitable unto you, but have ſhewed you, and have taught you publickly, and from houſe to houſe, d I refrained not to ſpeak, neither diſſembled in any reſpect whatſoever, either for feare or lucres ſake.

21 Teſtifying both to the Jews, and alſo to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

22 [7]And now behold, I go [e] bound in the ſpirit unto Jeruſalem, not knowing the things that ſhall befall me there:

7 He teſtifieth that he goeth to his bonds by the commandement of God.

23 Save that the holy Ghoſt witneſſeth in every city, ſaying, that bonds and afflictions ‡ abide me.

e He calleth that motion of the holy Ghoſt, which inforced him to take his journey to Jeruſalem, the bond of the ſpirit, whom he followed with all his heart.

‡ Or, wait for me.

24 But none of theſe things move me, neither count I my life dear unto my ſelf; ſo that I might finiſh my courſe with joy, and the miniſterie, which I have received of the Lord Jeſus, to teſtifie the goſpel of the grace of God.

25 And now behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdome of God, ſhall ſee my face no more.

26 Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am [f] pure from the bloud of all men.

f If you do perish, yet there shall be no fault in me, Look, chap. 18, 6.

27 [8] For I have not ſhunned to declare unto you all the counſel of God.

8 The doctrin of the apoſtles is moſt perfect and abſolute,

28 ¶ Take heed therefore unto your ſelves, and to all the flock, over the which the holy Ghoſt hath made you overſeers, to [g] feed the church of God, which he hath [h] purchaſed with his [i] own bloud.

g To keep it, to feed and govern it.

h A notable ſentence for Chriſts God-head: which ſheweth plainly in his perſon, how that by reaſon of the joyning together of the two natures in his own perſon, that which is proper to one is ſpoken of the other, being taken in the derivative, and not in the primitive: which in old time the godly fathers termed, a communicating or fellowship of proprieties, that is to ſay, a making common of that to two which belongeth but to one.

i This word, That, ſheweth the excellencie of this bloud.

29 [9]For I know this, that after my departing ſhall grievous wolves enter in among you, not ſparing the flock.

9 A prophecie of paſtours that ſhould ſtraightway degenerate into wolves, againſt ſuch as boaſt and brag only of a ſucceſſion of perſons

30 Alſo of your own ſelves ſhall men ariſe, ſpeaking perverſe things, to [k] draw away diſciples after them.

k This is great miſerie, to want the preſence of ſuch a ſhepherd, but greater to have wolves enter in.

31 Therefore watch, and remember that by the ſpace of three yeares, I ceaſed not to warn every one night and day with tears.

32 [10] And now brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an [l] inheritance among all them which are ſanctified.

10 The power of God, and his free promiſes revealed in his word, are the props and upholders of the miniſtery of the goſpel.

l As children, and therefore of free love and good will.

33 [11] I have coveted no mans ſilver, or gold, or apparell.

11 Paſtours muſt before all things beware of covetouſneſſe.

34 Yea, you your ſelves know, * that theſe hands have miniſtred unto my neceſſities, and to them that were with me.

* 1 Cor. 4, 12. 1 Theſſ. 2, 9. 2 Theſſ. 3, 8.

35 I have ſhewed you all things, how that ſo labouring, ye ought to [m] ſupport the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jeſus, how he ſaid, It is more bleſſed to give than to receive.

m As it were by reaching out the hand to them, which otherwiſe are about to ſlip and fall away, and ſo to ſtay them.

36 ¶ And when he had thus ſpoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all.

37 [12] And they all wept ſore, and fell on Pauls neck, and kiſſed him.

12 The goſpel doth not take away naturall affections, but ruleth and bridleth them in good order.

38 Sorrowing moſt of all for the words which he ſpake, that they ſhould ſee his face no more. And they accompanied him unto the ſhip.

CHAP. XXI.

Paul will not by any means be diſſwaded from going to Ieruſalem. 9 Philips daughters propheteſſes. 17 Paul cometh to Ieruſalem: 27 where he is apprehended, and in great danger, 31 but by the chief captain is reſcued, and permitted to ſpeak to the people.

AND [1] it came to paſſe, that after we were gotten from them, and had lanched, we came with a ſtraight courſe unto Coos, and the day following unto Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara.

1 Not only men ſimply, but even our friends, and ſuch as are endued with the Spirit of God, do ſometimes go about to hinder the courſe of our vocation: but it is our part to go forward without all ſtopping or ſtaggering, after that we are ſure of our calling from God.

2 And finding a ſhip ſailing over unto Phenicia, we went aboard, and ſet forth.

3 Now when we had diſcovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and ſailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ſhip was to unlade her burden.

4 And finding diſciples, we tarried there ſeven dayes; who ſaid to Paul through the [2] Spirit, that he ſhould not go up to Jeruſalem.

2 They foretold through the Spirit what dangers hanged over Pauls head: and this they did as prophets: but of a fleſhly affection they prayed him from going to Jeruſalem.

5 And when we had accompliſhed thoſe dayes, we departed, and went our way, and they all brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and we kneeled down on the ſhore, and prayed.

6 And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ſhip, and they returned home again.

7 And when we had finiſhed our courſe from Tyre, we came to Ptolomais, and ſaluted the the brethren, and abode with them one day.

8 And the next day we that were of Pauls company departed, and came unto Ceſarea, and we entred into the houſe of Philip the euangeliſt, (*which was one of the[b] ſeven) and abode with him.

9 And the ſame man had foure daughters, virgins, which did[c] propheſie.

10 And as we tarried there many dayes, there came down from Judea a certain prophet, named Agabus.

11 And when he was come unto us, he took Pauls girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and ſaid, Thus ſaith the holy Ghoſt, So ſhall the Jews at Jeruſalem binde the man that oweth this girdle, and ſhall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12 And when we heard theſe things, both we and they of that place, beſought him not to go up to Jeruſalem.

13 Then Paul anſwered, What mean ye to weep, and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound onely, but alſo to die at Jeruſalem for the name of the Lord Jeſus.

14 [2] And when he would not be perſwaded, we ceaſed, ſaying, The will of the Lord be done.

15 And after thoſe dayes we took up our carriages, and went up to Jeruſalem.

16 There went with us alſo certain of the diſciples of Ceſarea, and brought with them one Mnaſon of Cyprus, an old diſciple, with whom we ſhould lodge.

17 And when we were come to Jeruſalem, the brethren received us gladly.

18 And the day following Paul went in with us unto James, and all the elders were preſent.

19 [3] And when he had ſaluted them, he declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his miniſterie.

20 [4] And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and ſaid unto him, Thou ſeeſt, brother, how many thouſands of Jews there are which beleeve, and they are all zealous of the law.

21 And they are informed of thee that thou teacheſt all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forſake Moſes, ſaying, that they ought not to circumciſe their children, neither to walk after the cuſtomes.

22 What is it therefore? the multitude muſt needs come together: for they will heare that thou art come.

23 Do therefore this that we ſay to thee: we have foure men which have a vow on them;

24 Them take, and [d] purifie thy ſelf with them, and be at [e] charges with them, that they may * ſhave their heads: and all may know that thoſe things whereof they were informed concerning thee, are nothing, but that thou thy ſelf alſo walkeſt orderly, and keepeſt the law.

25 As touching the Gentiles which beleeve, 125
*we have written and concluded, that they obſerve no ſuch thing, ſave onely that they keep themſelves from things offered to idols, and from bloud, and from ſtrangled, and from fornication. * Chap. 15, 20.

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himſelf with them, entred into the temple, *to ſignifie the accompliſhment of the dayes of purification, untill that an offering ſhould be offered for every one of them. * Num. 6, 13. f The prieſts were to be advertiſed of the accompliſhment of the dayes of the purification, becauſe there were ſacrifices to be offered the ſame day that their vow was ended.

27 [5] And when the ſeven dayes were almoſt ended, the Jews which were of Aſia, when they ſaw him in the temple, ſtirred up all the people, and laid hands on him, 5 A prepoſterous zeal is the cauſe of great confuſion and great miſchiefs.

28 Crying out, Men of Iſrael, help: this is the man that teacheth all men every where againſt the people, and the law, and this place: and farther, brought Grecks alſo into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place.

29 (For they had ſeen before with him in the city, Trophimus an Epheſian, whom they ſuppoſed that Paul had brought into the temple)

30 And all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doores were ſhut.

31 [6] And as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band that all Jeruſalem was in an uprore. 6 God ſinketh ſome, even amongſt the wicked, and prophane themſelves, to hinder the endeavours of the reſt.

32 Who immediately took ſouldiers, and centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they ſaw the chief captain and the ſouldiers, they left beating of Paul.

33 Then the chief captain came neare and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains, and demanded who he was, and what he had done.

34 And ſome cried one thing, ſome another, among the multitude; and when he could not know the certaintie for the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the caſtle.

35 And when he came upon the ſtairs, ſo it was that he was born of the ſouldiers, for the violence of the people.

36 For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him.

37 And as Paul was to be led into the caſtle, he ſaid unto the chief captain, May I ſpeak unto thee? Who ſaid, Canſt thou ſpeak Greek?

38 * Art not thou that [g] Egyptian which before theſe dayes madeſt an uprore, and leddeſt out into the wilderneſſe foure thouſand men that were murderers? * Chap. 5, 36. g Touching this Egyptian which aſſembled thirty thouſand men, reade Joſephus book, 2 chap 12.

39 But Paul ſaid, I am a man which am a Jew of Tarſus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city; and I beſeech thee, ſuffer me to ſpeak unto the people.

40 And when he had given him licenſe, Paul ſtood on the ſtairs, and beckened with the hand unto the people; and when there was made a great ſilence, he ſpake unto them in the Hebrew tongue ſaying,

* Chap. 6, 5. b He ſpeaketh of the ſeven deacons which he mentioned before Chap. 6.

c They had a peculiar gift of foretelling things to come.

2 The will of God bridleth all affections in them which earneſtly ſeek the glory of God.

3 God is to be praiſed, who is the authour of all good ſayings and deeds.

4 In things indifferent (of which ſort were not the traditions of the phariſees, but the ceremonies of the law, untill ſuch time as Chriſtian libertie was more fully revealed to the Jews) charitie willeth us to conform or apply our ſelves willingly, ſo farre as we may, to our brethren which do not ſtubbornly and maliciouſly reſiſt the truth, but are not throughly inſtructed eſpecially if the queſtion be of a whole multitude.

d That is, conſecrate thy ſelf, for he ſpeaketh not here of the unclean, but of ſuch as be ſubject to the vow of the Nazarites.

e That it may be known, that thou waſt not only preſent at the vow, but alſo a chief man in it: and therefore it is ſaid afterwards, that Paul declared the dayes of purification: for although the charges for the Nazarites offerings were appointed, yet they might adde ſomewhat unto them, * Num. 6, 18. Chap. 18, 18.

CHAP. XXII.

1 Paul declareth at large, how he was converted to the faith, 17 and called to his apoſtle-ſhip. 22 At the very mentioning of the Gentiles, the people exclaim on him. 24 He ſhould have been ſcourged, 25 but claiming the priviledge of a Romane he eſcapeth.

MEn, brethren, and fathers, heare ye my defence, which I make now unto you.

2 (And when they heard that he ſpake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more ſilence: and he ſaith)

3 * [1] I am verily a man which am a Jew, born in Tarſus a citie in Cilicia yet brought up in this citie, at the [2] feet of Gamaliel, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous towards God, as ye all are this day.

4 * And I perſecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into priſons both men and women.

5 As alſo the high prieſt doth bear me witneſſe, and all the eſtate of the elders: from whom alſo I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damaſcus, to bring them which were there, bound unto Jeruſalem, for to be puniſhed.

6 And it came to paſſe, that as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damaſcus about noon, ſuddenly there ſhone from heaven a great light round about me.

7 And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice ſaying unto me, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me?

8 And I anſwered, Who art thou Lord? And he ſayd unto me, I am Jeſus of Nazareth whom thou perſecuteſt.

9 And they that were with me, ſaw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that ſpake to me.

10 And I ſaid, What ſhall I do, Lord? And the Lord ſaid unto me, Ariſe, and go into Damaſcus, and there it ſhall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

11 And when I could not ſee for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into Damaſcus.

12 And one Ananias, a devout man according to the law; having a good report of all the Jews which dwelt there, 13 Came unto me, and ſtood, and ſaid unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy ſight. And the ſame houre I looked up upon him.

14 And he ſaid, The God of our fathers hath choſen thee, that thou ſhouldeſt know his will, and ſee that Juſt one, and ſhouldeſt heare the voice of his mouth.

15 For thou ſhalt be his witneſſe unto all men, of what thou haſt ſeen and heard.

16 And now why tarrieſt thou? ariſe, and be baptized, and waſh away thy ſinnes, calling on the name of the Lord.

17 And it came to paſſe, that when I was come again to Jeruſalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a trance;

18 And ſaw him ſaying unto me, Make haſte, and get thee quickly out of Jeruſalem: for they will not receive thy teſtimony concerning me.

19 And I ſaid, Lord, they know that I impriſoned, and beat in every ſynagogue them that beleeved on thee.

20 * And when the bloud of thy martyr Stephen was ſhed, I alſo was ſtanding by, and conſenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that [b] ſlew him.

21 And he ſaid unto me, Depart: for I will ſend thee farre hence unto the Gentiles.

22 [2] And they gave him audience unto this word, and then lift up their voices, and ſaid, Away with ſuch a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he ſhould live.

23 And as they [c] cried out and caſt off their clothes, and threw duſt into the aire, 24 [3] The chief captain commanded him to be brought into the caſtle, and bade that he ſhould be examined by ſcourging: that he might know wherefore they cried ſo againſt him.

25 [4] And as they bound him with thongs, Paul ſaid unto the centurion that ſtood by, Is it lawfull for you to ſcourge a man that is a Romane, and uncondemned?

26 When the centurion heard that, he went and told the chief captain, ſaying, Take heed what thou doſt, for this man is a Romane.

27 Then the chief captain came, and ſaid unto him, Tell me, art thou a Romane? He ſaid, Yea.

28 And the chief captain anſwered, With a great ſumme obtained I this freedome. And Paul ſaid, But I was free born.

29 Then ſtraightway they departed from him which ſhould have ‡ examined him: and the chief captain alſo was afraid after he knew that he was a [d] Romane, and becauſe he had bound him.

30 On the morrow, becauſe he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accuſed of the Jews, he looſed him from his bands, and commanded the chief prieſts and all their councel to appeare, and brought Paul down and ſet him before them.

* Chap. 22, 39.
1 Paul making a ſhort declaration of his former life, proveth both his vocation and doctrin to be of God.
a That is, his daily hearer: the reaſon of this ſpeech is this, for that they which teach, ſit commonly in the higher place, ſpeaking to their ſchollars which ſit upon forms beneath: and therefore he ſaith, at the feet of Gamaliel.
* Chap. 8, 3.

* Chap. 7, 58.
b This is properly ſpoken: for Steven was murdered of a ſort of cut-throats, not by order of juſtice, but by open force: for at that time the Jews could not put any man to death by law.
2 Stout and ſtubborn pride will neither it ſelf imbrace the truth neither ſuffer other to receive it.
c The deſcription of a ſeditious hurly burly, and of an harebraind and mad multitude.
3 The wiſdome of the flesh doth not conſider what is juſt but what is profitable, and therewithall meaſure the profit, according as it appeareth preſently.
4 There is no cauſe why we may not uſe thoſe lawfull means which God giveth us, to repell or put away an injurie.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 As Paul pleadeth his cauſe, 2 Ananias commandeth them to ſmite him. 7 Diſſenſion among his accuſers. 11 God encourageth him. 14 The Iews laying wait for Paul, 20 it is declared unto the chief captain. 27 He ſendeth him to Felix the governour.

AND [1] Paul earneſtly beholding the counſel, ſaid, Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conſcience before God, untill this day.

2 [2] And the high prieſt Ananias commanded them that ſtood by him, to ſmite him on the mouth.

3 [3] Then ſaid Paul unto him, God [a] ſhall ſmite thee, [b] thou whited wall: for ſitteſt thou to judge me after the law, and commandeſt me to be ſmitten [c] contrary to the law?

4 And they that ſtood by, ſaid, Revileſt thou Gods high prieſt?

5 [4] Then ſaid Paul, I wiſt not brethren, that he

1 Paul againſt the falſe accuſations of his enemies, ſetteth a good conſcience, for proof whereof he repeateth the whole courſe of his life.
2 Hypocrites are conſtrained at length to bewray themſelves by their intemperancie.
3 It is lawfull for us to complain of injuries, and to ſummon the wicked to the judgement ſeat of God, ſo that we do it without hatred, and with a quiet and peaceable minde.

a It appeareth plainly by the Greek phraſe that Paul did not curſe the high prieſt, but only pronounce the punishment of God againſt him. b This is a vehement and ſharp ſpeech, but yet not reproachfull: For the godly may ſpeak roundly and yet be void of the bitter affection of a ſharp and angry minde. c For the law commandeth the judge to heare the perſon that is accuſed patiently, and to pronounce the ſentence adviſedly. 4 We muſt willingly and from the heart give honour to magiſtrates, although they be tyrants, was the high prieſt: For it is written, * Thou ſhalt not ſpeak evil of the ruler of thy people.

6 [5] But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadduces, and the other Phariſees, he cried out in the councel, Men and brethren, * I am a Phariſee, the ſonne of a Phariſee: * of the hope and reſurrection of the dead, I am called in queſtion.

7 [6] And when he had ſo ſaid, there aroſe a diſſenſion between the Phariſees and the Sadduces: and the multitude was divided.

8 *[7] For the Sadduces ſay that there is no reſurrection, neither [d] angel nor ſpirit; but the Phariſees confeſſe both.

9 [8] And there aroſe a great cry: and the [e] Scribes that were of the Phariſees part aroſe, and ſtrove, ſaying, We finde no evil in this man: but if a ſpirit or an angel hath ſpoken to him, let us not fight againſt God.

10 [9] And when there aroſe a great diſſenſion, the chief captain fearing leſt Paul ſhould have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the ſouldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the caſtle.

11 And the night following, the Lord ſtood by him, and ſaid, be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou haſt teſtified of me in Jeruſalem, ſo muſt thou bear witneſſe at Rome.

12 [10] And when it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, and bound themſelves [f] under a curſe, ſaying, that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

13 And they were more than fourty which had made this conſpiracy.

14 And they came to the chief prieſts and elders, and ſaid, We have bound our ſelves under a great curſe, that we will eat nothing untill we have ſlain Paul.

15 Now therefore ye with the [g] councel, ſignifie to the chief captain, that he bring him down unto you to morrow, as though ye would enquire ſomething more perfectly concerning him: and we, or ever he come neare, are ready to kill him.

16 And when Pauls ſiſters ſonne heard of their lying in wait, he went and entred into the caſtle, and told Paul.

17 [11] Then Paul called one of the centurions unto him, and ſaid, Bring this young man unto the chief captain: for he hath a certain thing to tell him.

18 So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and ſaid, Paul the Priſoner called me unto him, and prayed me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath ſomething to ſay unto thee.

19 Then the chief captain took him by the hand, and went with him aſide privately, and asked him, What is that thou haſt to tell me?

20 And he ſaid, The Jews have agreed to deſire thee, that thou wouldeſt bring down Paul to morrow into the councel, as though they would enquire ſomewhat of him more perfectly.

21 But do not thou yeeld unto them: for there lie in wait for him of them more than fourty men, which have bound themſelves with an oath, that they will neither eat nor drink till they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promiſe from thee. 127

22 [12] So the chief captain then let the young man depart, and charged him, See thou tell no man, that thou haſt ſhewed theſe things to me.

23 And he called unto him two centurions, ſaying, Make ready two hundred ſouldiers to go to Ceſarea, and horſemen threeſcore and ten, and ſpearmen two hundred, at the third houre of the night.

24 And provide them beaſts, that they may ſet Paul on, and bring him ſafe unto Felix the governour.

25 And he wrote a letter after this manner.

26 [13] Claudius Lyſias, unto the moſt excellent governour Felix, ſendeth greeting.

27 This man was taken of the Jews, and ſhould have been killed of them: then came I with an armie, and reſcued him, having underſtood that he was a Romane.

28 And when I would have known the cauſe wherefore they accuſed him, I brought him forth into their councel:

29 Whom I perceived to be accuſed of queſtions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds.

30 And when it was told me, how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I ſent ſtraightway to thee, and gave commandment to his accuſers alſo, to ſay before thee what they had againſt him. Farewell.

31 Then the ſouldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul and brought him by night to Antipatris.

32 On the morrow they left the horſemen to go with him, and returned to the caſtle.

33 Who when they came to Ceſarea and delivered the epiſtle to the governour, preſented Paul alſo before him.

34 And when the governour had read the letter, he asked of what province he was. And when he underſtood that he was of Cilicia:

35 I will heare thee, ſaid he, when thine accuſers are alſo come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herods judgement hall.

Chap. XXIIII.

1 Paul being accuſed by Tertullus the oratour, 19 anſwereth for his life and doctrine. 24 He preacheth Chriſt to the governour and his wife. 26 The governour hopeth for a bribe, but in vain. 27 At laſt going out of his office, he leaveth Paul in priſon.

1 [1] And after five dayes, Ananias the high prieſt deſcended with the elders, and with a certain oratour named Tertullus, who enformed the governour againſt Paul.

2 And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuſe him, ſaying, Seeing that [a] by 12 There is no counſel againſt the Lord and his ſervants.

13 Lyſias is ſuddenly made by the Lord, Pauls patron.

1 Hypocrites, when they cannot doe what they would do by force and deceit, at length they go about to compaſſe it by a ſhew of law.

a Felix ruled that province with great crueltie and covetouſnes, and yet Ioſephus recordeth that he did many worthy things, as that he took Eleazar the captain of certaine cut-throats, and put that deceiving wretch the Egyptian to flight, which cauſed great troubles in Judea.

b He useth a word which the Stoiks defined to be a perfite duti and behaviour.

thee we enjoy great quietnesse, and that very b worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence,

3 We accept it alwayes, and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thankfulnesse.

4 Notwithstanding, that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee, that thou wouldest heare us of thy clemencie a few words.

c Word for word, a plague.
d As you would say, a ringleader, or ensigne bearer.
e So they called the Christians, scoffingly, of the towns name where they thought that Christ was born, whereupon it came, that Julian the Apostate called him Galilean.

5 For we have found this man a c pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a d ringleader of the sect of the e Nazarenes.

6 Who also hath gone about to profane the temple: whom we took, and would have judged according to our law.

7 But the chief captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands.

8 Commanding his accusers to come unto thee: by examining of whom, thy self mayest take knowledge of all these things, whereof we accuse him.

f Confirmed Tertullus his saying 1 Tertullus by the devils rhetorique beginning with flattery, maketh an end with lyes, but Paul using heavenly eloquence, and but a simple beginning, casteth off from himself the crime of sedition, wherewith he was burdened, with a simple deniall.
g Paul pleaded his cause two yeares before Felix departed out of the province, Chap. 27. but he had governed Trachonite, Batavia, and Galaunite, before that Claudius made him governour of Judea: Iosephus in the historie of the Iews warre, lib. 2. Chap. 11.
h They cannot lay forth before thee, and prove by good reasons.
3 Paul goeth in the case of religion, from a state of conjecture to a state of qualitie, not onely not denying that religion which was objected against him, but also proving it to be true, to be heavenly, and from God, and to be the oldest of all religions.
i Here this word Heresie, or Sect, is taken in good part.
4 Paul in conclusion telleth the thing which was done cruely, which Tertullus had before divers wayes corrupted.

k And while I was busie about those things.
l Hereby it appeareth that these of Asia were Paul his enemies, and those that stirred up the people against him.

* Chap. 23, 6.

9 And the Jews also f assented, saying, that these things were so.

10 1 Then Paul, after that the governour had beckened unto him to speak, answered, Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of g many yeares a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for my self:

11 Because that thou mayest understand, that there are yet but twelve dayes since I went up to Jerusalem for to worship,

12 And they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither raising up the people, neither in the synagogues, nor in the citie:

13 Neither can they h prove the things whereof they now accuse me.

14 3 But this I confesse unto thee, that after the way which they call i heresie, so worship I the God of my fathers, beleeving all things which are written in the law and the prophets:

15 And have hope towards God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust.

16 And herein do I exercise my self to have alwayes a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men.

17 4 Now after many yeares, I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings.

18 * k Whereupon certain Jews from l Asia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult.

19 Who ought to have been here before thee, and object, if they had ought against me.

20 Or else let these same here say, if they have found any evil doing in me, while I stood before the m councel, 21 Except it be for this one voice, that I cried standing among them, * Touching the resurrection of the dead, I am called in question by you this day.

22 5 And when Felix heard these things, having more perfect knowledge of that way, he deferred them, and said, when Lysias the chief captain shall come down, I will know the n uttermost of your matter.

5 The judge suspendeth his sentence, because the matter is doubtfull.
n Felix could not judge whether he had done wickedly in the matters of his religion or no, untill he had better understanding of that way which Paul professed: and as for other matters, touching the sedition, he thinketh good to deferre it till he heare Lysias, and therefore he gave Paul somewhat more libertie.

23 6 And he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have libertie, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister, or come unto him.

24 And after certain dayes, when Felix came with his wife o Drusilla, which was a Jewesse, he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in Christ.

25 And as he reasoned of righteousnesse, temperance, and judgement to come, Felix trembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I wil call for thee.

6 God is a most faithfull keeper of his servants, and the force of the truth is wonderfull, even amongst men which are otherwise prophane.
o This Drusilla was Agrippa his sister, of whom Luke speaketh afterward, a very harlot and licentious woman, and being the wife of Azizus King of the Emesens, who was circumcised, departed from him, and went to this Felix the brother of one Pallas, who was sometime Nero his bondman.

26 He hoped also that money should have been give him of Paul, that the might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftner, and communed with him.

27 7 But after two yeares, Portius Festus came into Felix room: and Felix willing to shew the Jews a p pleasure, left Paul bound.

7 In a naughtie minde, that is, guiltie to it self, although sometime there be some shew of equitie, yet by and by it will be extinguished: but in the meane season we have need of patience, and that continually.
p For whereas he had behaved himself very wickedly in the province, had it not beene for favour of his brother Pallas, he should have dyed for it: so that we may gather hereby, why he would have pleasured the Iews.

CHAP. XXV.

1 The Iews accuse Paul before Festus. 8 He answereth for himself, 11 and appealeth unto Cesar. 14 Afterwards Festus openeth his matter to king Agrippa, 23 and he is brought forth. 25 Festus cleareth him to have done nothing worthy of death.

NOw 1 when Festus was come into the province, after three dayes he ascended from Cesarea to Jerusalem.

1 Satans ministers are subtill, and diligent in seeking all occasions: but God who watcheth for his, hindreth all their counsels easily.

2 Then the high priest, and the chief of the Jews enformed him against Paul, and besought him,

3 And desired favour against him that he would send for him to Jerusalem, laying wait in the way to kill him.

4 But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Cesarea, and that he himself would depart shortly thither.

5 Let them therefore, said he, which among you are able, go down with me, and accuse this man, if there be any wickednesse in him.

6 2 And when he had tarried among them ‡ more than ten dayes, he went down unto Cesarea, and the next day sitting in the judgement seat, commanded Paul to be brought.

2 We may repell an injury justly, but not with injury.
‡ Or, as some copies reade, no more than eight or ten dayes.

7 And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jerusalem, stood round about, and laid many and grievous complaints against Paul, which they could a not prove.

a They could not prove them certainely, and with undoubted reasons.

8 While he answered for himself, Neither against the law of the Jews, neither against the temple, nor yet against Cesar, have I offended any thing at all.

9 3 But Festus willing to do the Jews a pleasure, answered Paul, and said, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?

3 God doth not onely turn away the counsel of the wicked, but also turneth it upon their own heads.

10 Then

10 Then ſaid Paul, I ſtand at Ceſars judgement-ſeat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knoweſt.

11 For if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuſe not to die: but if there be none of theſe things whereof theſe accuſe me, no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Ceſar.

12 Then Feſtus when he had conferred with the councel, anſwered, Haſt thou appealed unto Ceſar? unto Ceſar ſhalt thou go.

13 [4] And after certain dayes, king [b] Agrippa and Bernice came unto Ceſarea to ſalute Feſtus.

14 And when they had been there many dayes, Feſtus declared Pauls cauſe unto the king, ſaying, There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix:

15 About whom, when I was at Jeruſalem, the chief prieſts and the elders of the Jews enformed me, deſiring to have judgement againſt him.

16 To whom I anſwered, It is not the manner of the Romanes to [c] deliver any man to die, before that he which is accuſed, have the accuſers face to face, and have licence to anſwer for himſelf concerning the crime laid againſt him.

17 Therefore when they were come hither, without any delay on the morrow I ſat on the judgement-ſeat, and I commanded the man to be brought forth.

18 Againſt whom when the accuſers ſtood up, they brought none accuſation of ſuch things as I ſuppoſed:

19 [5] But had certain queſtions againſt him of their own [d] ſupperſtition, and of one Jeſus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.

20 And becauſe ‡ I doubted of ſuch manner of queſtions, I asked him whether he would go to Jeruſalem, and there be judged of theſe matters.

21 But when Paul had appealed to be reſerved unto the ‡ hearing of Auguſtus, I commanded him to be kept till I might ſend him to Ceſar.

22 [6] Then Agrippa ſaid unto Feſtus, I would alſo heare the man my ſelf. To morrow, ſaid he, thou ſhalt heare him.

23 And on the morrow when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, with great [e] pomp, and was entred into the place of hearing, with the chief captains, and principall men of the citie, at Feſtus commandment Paul was brought forth.

24 And Feſtus ſaid, King Agrippa, and all men which are here preſent with us, ye ſee this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have dealt with me, both at Jeruſalem, and alſo here, crying that he ought not to live any longer.

25 But when I found that he had committed nothing worthy of death, and that he himſelf hath appealed to Auguſtus, I have determined to ſend him.

26 Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my lord: wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and ſpecially before thee, O king Agrippa, that after examination had, I might have ſomewhat to write.

27 For it ſeemeth to me unreaſonable to ſend a priſoner, and not withal to ſignifie the crimes laid againſt him.

Chap. XXVI.

2 Paul in the preſence of Agrippa, declareth his life from his childhood, 12 and how miraculouſly he was converted, and called to his apoſtleſhip. 24 Feſtus chargeth him to be mad, whereunto he anſwereth modeſtly. 28 Agrippa is almoſt perſwaded be to a Chriſtian. 31 The whole company pronounce him innocent.

THen Agrippa ſaid unto Paul, Thou art permitted to ſpeak for thy ſelf. Then Paul ſtretched forth the hand, and anſwered for himſelf.

2 [1] I think my ſelf happy, king Agrippa, becauſe I ſhall anſwer for my ſelf this day before thee, touching all the things whereof I am accuſed of the Jews:

3 Eſpecially, becauſe I know thee to be expert in all cuſtomes and queſtions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beſeech thee to heare me patiently.

4 [2] My manner of life from my youth, which was at the firſt among mine own nation at Jeruſalem, know all the Jews.

5 Which [a] knew me from the [b] beginning, (if they would teſtifie) that after the [c] moſt ſtraiteſt ſect of our religion, I lived a Phariſee.

6 [3] And now I ſtand, and am judged for the hope of the promiſe made of God unto our fathers.

7 Unto which promiſe our twelve tribes inſtantly ſerving God day and night, hope to come: for which hopes ſake, king Agrippa, I am accuſed of the Jews.

8 [4] Why ſhould it be thought a thing incredibile with you, that God ſhould raiſe the dead?

9 I verily thought with my ſelf, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jeſus of Nazareth.

10 * Which thing I alſo did in Jeruſalem, and many of the ſaints did I ſhut up in priſon, having received authority from the chief prieſts, and when they were put to death I gave my [d] voice againſt them.

11 And I puniſhed them oft in every ſynagogue, and [e] compelled them to blaſpheme: and being exceedingly mad againſt them, I perſecuted them even unto ſtrange cities.

12 * Whereupon as I went to Damaſcus, with authoritie and commiſſion from the chief prieſts:

13 At midday, O king, I ſaw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightneſſe of the ſunne, ſhining round about me, and them which journeyed with me.

14 And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard

I heard

130 I heard a voice ſpeaking unto me, and ſaying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? it is hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks.

15 And I ſaid, Who art thou, Lord? And he ſaid, I am Jeſus whom thou perſecuteſt.

16 But riſe, and ſtand upon thy feet, for I have appeared unto thee for this purpoſe, to make thee a miniſter and a witneſſe both of theſe things which thou haſt ſeen, and of thoſe things in the which I will appear unto thee.

17 Delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I ſend thee, 18 [5] To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkneſſe to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveneſſe of ſinnes, and inheritance among them which are ſanctified by faith that is in me.

19 [6] Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not diſobedient unto the heavenly viſion:

20 But ſhewed firſt unto them of Damaſcus, and at Jeruſalem, and throughout all the coaſts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they ſhould repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.

21 For theſe cauſes the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.

22 [7] Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witneſſing both to [f] ſmal and great, ſaying none other things than thoſe which the prophets and Moſes did ſay ſhould come:

23 That Chriſt ſhould [g] ſuffer, and that he ſhould be the [h] firſt that ſhould riſe from the dead, and ſhould ſhew [i] light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

24 [g] And as he thus ſpake for himſelf, Feſtus ſaith with a loud voice, Paul thou art beſide thy ſelf, much learning doth make thee mad.

25 But he ſaid, [j] I am not mad, moſt noble Feſtus; but ſpeak forth the words of truth and ſoberneſſe.

26 For the king knoweth of theſe things, before whom alſo I ſpeak freely: for I am perſwaded that none of theſe thing are hidden from him: for this thing was not done in a [k] corner.

27 [9] King Agrippa, beleeveſt thou the prophets? I know that thou beleeveſt.

28 Then Agrippa ſaid unto Paul, Almoſt thou perſwadeſt me to be a Chriſtian.

29 And Paul ſaid, I [l] would to God, that not onely thou, but alſo all that heare me this day, were both almoſt, and altogether ſuch as I am, except theſe bonds.

30 [10] And when he had thus ſpoken, the king roſe up, and the governour, and Bernice, and they that ſat with them.

31 And when they were gone aſide, they talked between themſelves, ſaying, This man doeth nothing worthy of death, or of bonds.

32 Then ſaid Agrippa unto Feſtus, This man might have been ſet at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Ceſar.

AND [1] when it was determined that we ſhould ſail into Italy, they delivered Paul and certain other priſoners, unto one named Julius, a centurion of Auguſtus band.

2 And entring into a ſhip of Adramyttium, we lanched, meaning to ſail by the coaſts of Aſia, one Ariſtarchus a Macedonian, of Theſſalonica, being with us.

3 And the next day we touched at Sidon. And Julius courteouſly entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refreſh himſelf.

4 And when we had lanched from thence, we ſailed under Cyprus, becauſe the windes were contrary.

5 And when we had ſailed over the ſea of Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra a city of Lycia.

10 And ſaid unto them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with ‡ hurt and much damage, not onely of the lading and ſhip, but alſo of our lives.

11 [3] Nevertheleſſe, the centurion beleeved the maſter and the owner of the ſhip, more than thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul.

12 And becauſe the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part adviſed to depart thence alſo, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, and there to winter; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the ſouth-weſt, and north-weſt.

13 And when the ſouth-winde blew ſoftly, ſuppoſing that they had obtained their purpoſe, looſing thence they ſailed cloſe by Crete.

14 But not long after there ‡ aroſe againſt [c] it a tempeſtuous winde, called [d] Euroclydon.

15 And when the ſhip was caught, and could not bear up into the winde, we let her drive.

7 Chriſt is the end of the law and the prophets.

f To every one.

g That Chriſt ſhould not be ſuch a king as the Iews dreamed of, but one appointed to beare our miſeries, and the puniſhment of our ſinnes.

h The firſt of the, which are raiſed from the dead.

i Life, yea and that a moſt bleſſed life, which ſhall be endleſſe: and this is ſet againſt darkneſſe, which almoſt in all tongues ſignifieth, ſometimes death, and ſometimes miſerie and calamitie.

8 The wiſedome of God is madneſſe to fools, yet notwithſtanding we muſt boldly avouch the truth.

k Secretly and privily.

9 Paul as it were forgetting himſelf that he ſtood a priſoner to defend his cauſe, forgetteth not the office of his apoſtleſhip.

l I would to God that not only almoſt, but throughly and altogether both thou and all that heare me this day, might be made as I am, my bonds only excepted.

10 Paul is ſolemnly quit, and yet not diſmiſſed.

1 Paul with many other priſoners, and through the midſt of many deaths, is brought to Rome, but yet by Gods own hand as it were, and ſet forth and cõmended unto the world with many ſingular teſtimonies.

‡ Or, Candy,

2 Which was an high hill of Crete.

3 Gods providence taketh not away the cauſes which God uſed as meanes, but rather ordereth and diſpoſeth their right uſe, even then when he openeth an extraordinary iſſue.

b This is meant of the Iews faſt which they kept in the feaſt of expiation, as we reade, Levit. 23, 27. which fell in the ſeventh moneth, which we call October, and is not good for navigation or ſailing.

‡ Or, injury.

3 Men caſt themſelves willingly into an infinite ſort of dangers, when they chuſe to follow their own wiſedome rather than God, ſpeaking by the mouth of his ſervants.

‡ Or, beat.

c By Crete, from whoſe ſhore our ſhip was driven by that meanes.

d Northeaſt.

used helps, undergirding the ship; and fearing leſt they ſhould fall into the quickſands, ſtrake ſail, and ſo were driven.

4 The end proveth that none provide worſe for themſelves, than they which commit themſelves to be governed only by their own wiſedome.

18 [4] And being exceedingly toſſed with a tempeſt, the next day they lightened the ſhip;

19 And the third day we caſt out with our own hands the tackling of the ſhip.

20 And when neither ſunne, nor ſtarres in many dayes appeared, and no ſmall tempeſt lay on us, all hope that we ſhould be ſaved, was then taken away.

5 God ſpareth the wicked for a time, for his elect and choſens ſake.

21 [5] But after long abſtinence, Paul ſtood forth in the midſt of them, and ſaid, Sirs, ye ſhould have hearkened unto me, and not have looſed from Crete, and to have gained this harm and loſſe.

22 And now I exhort you to be of good cheer: for there ſhall be no loſſe of any mans life among you, but of the ſhip.

23 For there ſtood by me this night the angel of God whoſe I am, and whom I ſerve, 24 Saying, Fear not Paul, thou muſt be brought before Ceſar; and lo, God hath given thee all them that ſail with thee.

6 The promiſe is made effectuall through faith.

25 [6] Wherefore ſirs, be of good cheer: for I beleeve God, that it ſhall be even as it was told me.

26 Howbeit we muſt be caſt upon a certain iſland.

7 We attain and come to the promiſed and ſure ſalvation through the midſt of tempeſts, and death it ſelf.

27 [7] But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down in [e] Adria about midnight, the ſhipmen deemed that they [f] drew neare to ſome countrey:

e For Ptolome writeth, that the Adriaticall ſea beareth upon the eaſt ſhoar of Cicilia.

28 And ſounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they ſounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms.

f That ſome countrey approched unto them.

29 Then fearing leſt we ſhould have fallen upon rocks, they caſt foure anchors out of the ſtern, and wiſhed for the day.

8 There is none ſo foul an act, whereunto diſtruſt and an evil conſcience, do not enforce men.

30 [8] And as the ſhipmen were about to flee out of the ſhip, when they had let down the boat into the ſea, under colour as though they would have caſt anchors out of the foreſhip, 9 Although the performing of Gods promiſes doeth not ſimply depend upon ſecond cauſes, yet they make themſelves unworthy of Gods bountifulneſſe, which doe not embrace thoſe meanes which God offereth them, either upon raſhneſſe or diſtruſt.

31 [9] Paul ſaid to the centurion, and to the ſouldiers, Except theſe abide in the ſhip, ye cannot be ſaved.

32 Then the ſouldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off.

10 When the world trembleth, the faithfull alone be not only quiet, but confirm others by their example.

33 [10] And while the day was coming on, Paul beſought them all to take meat, ſaying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued faſting, having taken nothing.

34 Wherefore I pray you to take ſome meat, for this is for your health: for there ſhall not an [g] hair fall from the head of any of you, g This is a proverb which the Hebrews uſe, whereby is meant, that they ſhall be ſafe, and not one of them perish.

35 And when he had thus ſpoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in preſence of them all, and when he had broken it, he began to eat.

36 Then were they all of good cheer, and they alſo took ſome meat.

37 And we were in all in the ſhip, two hundred threeſcore and ſixteen ſouls. 131

38 And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ſhip, and caſt out the wheat into the ſea.

11 Then are tempeſts moſt of all to be feared and looked for, when the port or haven is neareſt.

39 [11] And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they diſcovered a certain [h] creek with a ſhore, into the which they were minded, if it were poſſible, to thruſt in the ſhip.

h A creek is a ſea within land, as the Adriaticall ſea, and the Perſian ſea.

40 And when they had ‡taken up the anchors, they committed themſelves unto the ſea, and looſed the rudder-bands, and hoiſed up the main ſail to the winde, and made toward ſhore.

i So is Iſthmus called, becauſe the ſea toucheth it on both ſides.

41 And falling into a place where [i] two ſeas met, they ran the ſhip aground, and the forepart ſtuck faſt, and remained unmoveable, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves.

12 There is no where more unfaithfulneſſe, and unthankfulneſſe than in unbeleevers.

42 [12] And the ſouldiers counſel was to kill the priſoners, leſt any of them ſhould ſwim out, and eſcape.

13 God findeth, even amongſt his enemies, them whoſe help he uſeth to preſerve his.

43 [13] But the centurion willing to ſave Paul, kept them from their purpoſe, and commanded that they which could ſwim, ſhould caſt themſelves firſt into the ſea, and get to land:

14 The goodneſſe of God overcometh mans malice.

34 [14] And the reſt, ſome on boards, and ſome on broken pieces of the ſhip: And ſo it came to paſſe they eſcaped all ſafe to land.

Chap. XXVIII.

1 Paul after his ſhipwrack is kindly entertained of the barbarians. 5 The viper on his hand hurteth him not. 8 He healeth many diſeaſes in the iſland. 11 They depart towards Rome, 17 He declareth to the Iews the cauſe his coming. 24 After his preaching ſome were perſwaded, and ſome beleeved not. 30 Yet he preacheth there two yeares.

AND when they were eſcaped, then they knew that the iſland was called [a] Melita.

a That is it, which at this day we call Malta.

2 And the barbarous people ſhewed us no little kindneſſe: for they kindled a fire and received us every one becauſe of the preſent rain, and becauſe of the cold.

1 The godly are ſure to have danger upon danger, but they have alwayes a glorious iſſue.

3 [1] And when Paul had gathered a bundle of ſticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and faſtened on his hand.

2 Although adverſitie be the puniſhment of ſin, yet ſeeing that God in puniſhing of men doth not alwayes reſpect ſin, they judge raſhly, which either dos not wait for the end, or doe judge and eſteem of men, according to proſperitie or adverſitie.

4 [2] And when the barbarians ſaw the venemous beaſt hang on his hand, they ſaid among themſelves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom though he hath eſcaped the ſea, yet [b] vengeance ſuffereth not to live.

b Right and reaſon.

5 And he ſhook off the beaſt into the fire, and felt no harm.

c The Greek word ſignifieth, To be inflamed, or To ſwell: moreover, Dioſcorides in his 6 book, chap. 38. witneſſeth that the biting of a viper, cauſeth a ſwelling of the body, and ſo ſaith Nicander, in his remedies againſt poyſons.

6 Howbeit they looked when he ſhould have [c] ſwollen, or fallen down dead ſuddenly: [3] but after they had looked a great while, and ſaw no harm come to him, they changed their mindes, and ſaid that he was a God.

3 There is nothing more unconſtant every way, than they which are ignorant of true religion.

7 [4] In the ſame quarters were poſſeſſions of the chief man of the iſland, whoſe name was Publius, who received us and lodged us three dayes courteouſly.

4 It never yet repented any man, that received the ſervant of God, were he never ſo miſerable and poore.

8 And it came to paſſe that the father of Publius lay ſick of a fever, and of a bloudy flix, to whom Paul entred in, and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him.

10 [6] Who also honoured us with many honours, and when we departed, they laded us with such things as were necessary.

11 [7] And after three moneths we departed in a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the isle, whose [d] signe was Castor and Pollux.

12 And landing at Syracuse, we tarried there three dayes.

13 And from thence we set a compasse, and came to Rhegium, and after one day the southwinde blew, and we came the next day to Puteoli:

14 [8] Where we found brethren, and were desired to tarry with them seven dayes: and so we went toward Rome.

15 [9] And from thence, when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us as farre as [e] Appii-forum, and the Three taverns: whom when Paul saw, he thanked God, and took courage.

16 And when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the prisoners to the captain of the guard, but Paul was suffered to dwell by [f] himself, with a souldier that kept him.

17 [10] And it came to passe, that after three dayes, Paul called the chief of the Jews together. And when they were come together, he said unto them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing against the people or customes of our fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romanes.

18 Who when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there was no cause of death in me.

19 [11] But when the Jews spake against it, I was constrained to appeal unto Cesar, not that I had ought to accuse my nation of.

20 For this cause therefore have I called for you, to see you, and to speak with you: because that for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain.

21 And they said unto him, we neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came, shewed or spake any harm of thee.

22 But we desire to heare of thee what thou thinkest: for as concerning this sect, we know that every where it is spoken against.

23 [12] And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging, to whom he expounded and [g] testified the kingdome of God, perswading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets from morning till evening.

24 [13] And some beleeved the things which were spoken, and some beleeved not.

25 And when they agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word, Well spake the holy Ghost by Esaias the prophet, unto our fathers.

26 [14] Saying, *Go unto this people, and say, Hearing ye shall heare, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and not perceive.

27 For the heart of this people is waxed grosse, and their eares are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they [h] closed; lest they should see with their eyes, and heare with their eares, and understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.

28 [15] Be it known therefore unto you, that the salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will heare it.

29 [16] And when he had said these words, the Jews departed, and had great reasoning among themselves.

30 [17] And Paul dwelt two whole yeares in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, 31 Preaching the kingdome of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

5 Although Paul were a captive, yet the vertue of God was not captive.
6 God doeth well to strangers for his childrens sake.
7 Idols do not defile the saints, which do in no wise consent unto them.
d So they used to deck the fore-part of their ships, whereupon their ships were called by such names.
8 God boweth and bendeth the hearts even of prophane men, as it pleaseth him to favour his.
9 God never suffereth his to be afflicted above their strength.
e Appius way, was a pavement made by Appius the blinde, with the help of his souldiers, long and broad, and runneth out toward the sea, and there were three tavernes in it.
f Not in a common prison, but in a house which he hired for himself.
10 Paul in every place remembreth himself to be an apostle.
11 We may use the meanes which God giveth us, but so, that we seek the Glory of God and not our selves.
12 The law and the gospel agree well together.
g By good reasons, and proved, that the kingdome of God, foretold them by the prophets, was come.
13 The gospel is a savour of life to them that beleeve, and a savour of death to them that be disobedient.
14 The unbelevers do willingly resist the trueth, and yet not by chance.
* Isa. 6, 9. Matth. 13, 14. Mark 4, 12. Luke 8, 10. Iohn 12, 40. Rom. 11, 8.
h They made as though they saw not that which they saw against their wills, yea they did see, but they would not see.
15 The unbelief of the reprobate and castawayes, cannot cause the trueth of God to be of none effect.
16 Not the gospel, but the contempt of the gospel is the cause of strife and debate.
17 The word of God cannot be bound.

THE

The epistle of PAUL the apostle, TO THE ROMANES.

CHAP. I.

1 Paul commendeth his calling, to the Romanes, 9 and his desire to come to them. 18 What his gospel is, and the righteousnesse which it sheweth. 18 God is angry with all manner of sinne. 21 What were the sinnes of the Gentiles.

1 PAul [a] a [2] servant [3] of Jesus Christ, called to be an [b] apostle, * [c] separated unto the gospel of God,

2 (Which he had promised afore by his prophets in the holy scriptures)

3 [3] Concerning his [d] Sonne Jesus Christ our Lord, which was [e] made of the seed of David [f] according to the flesh,

4 And † [g] declared to be the Sonne of God [h] with power, according to the spirit of holinesse, by the resurrection from the dead.

5 [i] By whom we have received [k] grace and apostleship ‡ [l] for obedience to the faith [m] among all nations for his name.

6 Among whom are ye also the [n] called of Jesus Christ.

7 To all that be in Rome, beloved of God, called to be saints: [o] Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 [4] First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, that your faith is [p] spoken of throughout the [q] whole world.

9 For God is my witnesse, whom I serve ‖ with my [r] spirit in the [s] gospel of his Sonne, that without ceasing I make mention of you alwayes in my prayers,

10 Making request (if by any means now at length I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God) to come unto you.

11 For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spirituall gift, to the end you may be established, 12 That is, that I may be [t] comforted together ‡ with you, by the mutuall faith both of you and me.

13 Now I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that oftentimes I purposed to come unto you (but was let hitherto) that I might have some fruit ‡ among you also even as among other Gentiles.

14 I am debter both to the Greeks, and to the barbarians, both to the wise, and to the unwise.

15 So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at [u] Rome also.

16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: [5] for it is the [x] power of God unto salvation, to every one that beleeveth, to the Jew first, and also to the [y] Greek.

17 [6] For therein is the righteousnesse of God revealed from faith to [z] faith: [7] as it is written, * The just shall live by faith.

18 [8] For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against [a] all ungodlinesse, and unrighteousnesse of men; who hold the [b] truth in unrighteousnesse.

19 [9] Because that which may be known of God, is manifest ‡ in [c] them, for God hath shewed it unto them.

20 For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being [d] understood by the things that are made, even his eternall power and Godhead, ‡ so that they are without excuse.

21 Because that when they knew God, they [e] glorified him not as God, neither were thankfull, but became [f] vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkned.

22 [g] Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools:

23 And changed the glory of the [h] uncorruptible * God, into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and fourefooted beasts, and creeping things.

24 [10] Wherefore [i] God also [k] gave them up to uncleanesse, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves:

25 Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creatour, who is blessed for ever. Amen.

1 The first part of the epistle containing a most profitable preface, unto verse 16.
2 He moving the Romanes to give diligent eare unto him, in that he sheweth that he cometh not in his own name, but as Gods messenger unto the Gentiles, entreateth with them of the weightiest matter that is, promised long since of God, by many fit witnesses, and now at the length performed indeed.
a Minister, for this word Servant is not taken in this place as set against this word Freeman, but declareth his ministrie and office.
b Whereas he said before in a generall terme, that he was a minister, now he commeth to a more speciall name, and saith, and that he took not upon him this office of his own head, but being called of God, and therefore in this his writing to the Romanes, doth nothing but his duetie.
* Acts 13, 2.
c Appointed of God to preach the gospel.
3 By declaring the sum of the doctrin of the Gospel, he stirreth up the Romanes to good consideration of the matter whereof he treateth: So then he sheweth that Christ (who is the very substance, and sum of the gospel) is the only Son of God the Father, who as touching his humanitie, is made of the seed of David, but touching his divine and spirituall nature, whereby he sanctified himself, is begotten of the Father from everlasting, as by his mighty resurrection manifestly appeareth.
d This is a plain testimonie of the person of Christ, that he is but one, and of his two natures, and their properties.
e Which took flesh of the Virgine, David his daughter.
f As he is man: for this word, Flesh, by the figure Synecdoche, is taken for man.
g Shewed and made manifest.
h The divine and mighty power is set against the weaknesse of the flesh; for that overcame death.
i Of whom.
k This marvellous, liberall and gracious gift, which is given me, the least of all the saints, to preach, &c. Ephesians 3, 8.
‡ Or, to the obedience of faith.
l That men through faith might obey God.
m For his names sake.
n Which through Gods goodnesse are Christs.
o Gods free good will: by peace, the Hebrews meane a prosperous successe in all things.
4 He procureth their favourable patience, in that he reckoneth up their true commendation, and his true apostolique good will toward them, confirmed by taking God himself to witnesse.
p Because your faith is such, that it is commended in all churches.
q In all churches.
‡ Or, in my spirit.
r Very willingly and with all my heart. s In preaching his Son.
t Though Paul were never so excellent, yet by teaching the church, he might be instructed by it.
‡ Or, in you.
u He meaneth all them that dwell at Rome, though some of them were not Romanes, Look the end of the epistle.
5 The second part of the epistle unto the beginning of the 9 chapter. Now the whole end and purpose of the disputation is this: that is to say, to shew that there is but one way to attain unto salvation (which is set forth unto us of God in the gospel, without any difference of nations) and that is Jesus Christ apprehended by faith.
x God his mighty and effectuall instrument to save men by.
y When this word Grecian, is set against this word Jew, then doeth it signifie a gentile.
6 The confirmation of the former proposition: we are taught in the gospel, that we are justified before God by faith, which increaseth daily: and therefore also saved.
z From faith which increaseth daily.
7 The proof as well of the first as of the second proposition, out of Habakuk, who attributeth and giveth unto faith both justice and life before God.
* Hab. 2, 4.
8 Another confirmation of that principall question: All men being considered within themselves, or without Christ, are guiltie both of ungodlinesse and also unrighteousnesse, and therefore are subject to condemnation: Therefore must they needs seek righteousnesse in some other.
a Against all kindes of ungodlinesse.
b By truth, Paul meaneth all the light that is left in man since his fall, not as though they being led thereby were able to come into favour with God, but that their own reason might condemne them of wickednesse both against God and man.
9 Their ungodlines he proveth hereby, that although all men have a most clear and evident glasse wherein to behold the everlasting and almightie nature of God, even in his creatures, yet have they fallen away from those principles, to most foolish and fond devices of their own brains, in constituting and appointing the service of God.
‡ Or, to them.
c In their hearts.
d Thou seest not God, and yet thou acknowledgest him as God by his works, &c.
‡ Or, that they may be.
e They did not honour him with that honour and service which was meet for his everlasting power and God-head.
f As if he said, became so mad of themselves.
g Or, Thought themselves.
h For the true God they took another.
* Psal. 106, 20.
10 The unrighteousnesse of men he setteth forth, first, in this, that even against nature following their lusts, they defiled themselves one with another by the just judgement of God.
i The contempt of religion is the fountain of all mischief.
k As a just judge.

26 For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections: for even their women did change the naturall use into that which is against nature.

27 And likewise also the men, leaving the naturall use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another, men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that [l] recompense of their errour which was meet.

28 [m] And even as they did not like [‡] to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to [‡] a [m] reprobate minde, to do those things which are not convenient:

29 Being filled with all unrighteousnesse, fornication, wickednesse, covetousnesse, maliciousnesse, full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, whisperers,

30 Backbiters, haters of God, despitefull, proud, boasters, inventers of evil things, disobedient to parents,

31 Without understanding, [n] covenant-breakers, [‡] without naturall affection, implacable, unmercifull;

32 Who knowing the [o] judgement of God, (that they which commit such things are worthy of death) not onely do the same, but [‡] have [p] pleasure in them that do them.

Chap. II.

1 They that sinne, though they condemn it in others, cannot excuse themselves, 6 and much lesse escape the judgement of God, 9 whether they be Jews or Gentiles. 14 The Gentiles cannot escape, 17 nor the Jews, 35 whom their circumcision shall not profit, if they keep not the law.

THerefore [t] thou are inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thy self: for thou that judgest, doest the same things.

2 But we are [a] sure that the judgement of God is according to [b] truth, against them which commit such things.

3 And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgement of God?

4 [2] Or despisest thou the riches of his goodnesse, and forbearance, and long-suffering, not knowing that the goodnesse of God leadeth thee to repentance?

5 But after thy hardnesse and impenitent heart, * [c] treasurest up unto thy self wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgement of God.

6 [3] * Who will render to every man according to his deeds:

7 To them, who by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for [d] glory, and honour, and immortalitie; eternall life:

8 But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the [e] truth, but obey unrighteousnesse; [f] indignation, and wrath;

9 Tribulation and anguish upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the † Gentile.

10 But glory, honour, and peace, to every man that worketh good, to the Jew first, and also to the † Gentile.

11 For there is no [g] respect of persons with God.

12 [4] For as many as have sinned without law, shall also perish without law: and as many as have sinned in the law, shall be judged by the law, 13 ([5] For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be [h] justified.

14 [6] For when the Gentiles which have [i] not the law, do by [k] nature the things contained in the law, these having not the law, are a law unto themselves:

15 Which shew the work of the law [l] written in their hearts, [‡] their conscience also bearing witnesse, and their thoughts [‡] the mean while accusing, or else excusing one another)

16 [7] In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to [m] my gospel.

17 [8] Behold, thou art called a Jew, and restest in the law, and makest thy boast of God:

18 And knowest his will, and [‡] [n] approvest the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law,

19 And art confident that thou thy self art a guide of the blinde, a light of them which are in darknesse, 20 An instructer of the foolish, a teacher of babes, which hast the [o] form of knowledge and of the truth in the [p] law.

21 Thou therefore which teachest another, teachest thou not thy self? thou that preachest a man should not steal, dost thou steal?

22 Thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou commit sacriledge?

23 Thou that makest thy boast of the law, through breaking the law dishonourest thou God?

24 For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles, through you, as it is * written.

25 [9] For circumcision verily profiteth, if thou keep the law: but if thou be a breaker of the law, thy circumcision is made uncircumcision.

26 Therefore, [q] if the uncircumcision keep the righteousnesse of the law, shall not his t He convinceth them which would seem to be exempt out of the number of other men, because they reprehend other mens faults, and saith, that they are least of all to be excused, for if they were well and narrowly searched (as God surely doeth) they themselves would be found guiltie in those things which they reprehend, and punish in other: so that in condemning other, they pronounce sentence against themselves.

a Paul alledgeth no places of scripture, for he reasoneth generally against all men: but he bringeth such reasons as every man is perswaded of in his minde, so that the devil himself is not able to pluck them clean out.

b Considering and judging things aright, and not by any outward shew.

e By truth, he meaneth that knowledge which we have of nature.

f Gods indignation against sinners, which shall quickly be kindled.

† Gr. Greek.

g God doeth not measure men either by their bloud or by their countrey, either to receive them or to cast them away.

4 He applieth that generall accusation of mankind, particulary both to the Gentiles, and to the Jews.

5 He preventeth an objection which might be made by the Jews, whom the law doth not excuse, but condemne, because that not the hearing of the law, but the keeping of the law doth justifie.

h Shall be pronounced just before Gods judgement seat: which is true indeed if any such could be found that had fulfilled the law: but seeing Abraham was not justified by the law, but by faith, it followeth that no man can be justified by works.

6 He preventeth an objection which might be made by the Gentiles, who although they have not the law of Moses, yet they have no reason whereby they may excuse their wickednesse, in that they have somewhat written in their hearts in stead of a law, as men, that forbid and punish some things as wicked, and commend other some as good.

i Not simply, but in comparison of the Jews.

k Command honest things, and forbid dishonest.

7 God deferreth many judgements, which notwithstanding he will execute at their convenient time by Jesus Christ, with a most strait examination, not onely of words and deeds, but of thoughts also, be they never so hidden or secret.

p As though he said, that the Jews under a colour of an outward serving of God, challenged all to themselves, when as indeed, they did nothing lesse than observe the law. * Isa. 52, 5. Ezek. 36. 20, 23.

9 He precisely preventeth their objection, which set an holinesse in circumcision, and the outward observation of the law: so that he sheweth that the outward circumcision, if it be separated from the inward, doeth not only not justifie, but also condemne them that are indeed circumcised, of whom it requireth that, which it signifieth, that is to say cleannesse of the heart, and the whole life according to the commandment of the law, so that if there be a man uncircumcised according to the flesh, who is circumcised in heart, he is far better and more to be counted of, than any Jew that is circumcised according to the flesh onely.

q This is the figure Metonymia, for if the uncircumcised.

uncircumcision be counted for r circumcision?
27 And shall not f uncircumcision which is by nature, if it fulfill the law, judge thee, who by the t letter and circumcision dost transgresse the law?
28 For he is not a Jew, which is one u outwardly, neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh.
29 But he is a Jew, which is one inwardly, and circumcision is that of the heart, in the x spirit, and not in the letter, whose praise is not of men but of God.

r The state and condition of the uncircumcised.
f He which is uncircumcised by nature and bloud.
t Paul useth oftentimes to set the letter against the spirit: but in this place, the circumcision which is according to the letter, is the cutting off of the foreskin, but the circumcision of the spirit, is the circumcision of the heart, that is to say, the spirituall end of the ceremonie is true holinesse and righteousnesse, whereby the people of God is known from prophane and heathenish men. u By the outward ceremonie only. x Whose force is inward, and in the heart.

Chap. III.

1 The Jews prerogative: 3 which they have not lost. 9 Howbeit, the law conviuceth them also of sinne. 20 Therefore no flesh is justified by the law, 28 but all without difference, by faith onely: 31 and yet the law is not abolished.

1 WHat y advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision?
2 Much every way: a chiefly, because that unto them were committed the b oracles of God.
3 For what if some did not c beleeve? shall their unbelief make the d faith of God without effect?
4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a liar, as it is written, * That thou mightest be e justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome f when thou art judged.
5 z But if our g unrighteousnesse commend the righteousnesse of God, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance? (I speak as a h man)
6 God forbid: for then how shall God judge the world?
7 i For if the i truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glorie; why yet am I also judged as a sinner?
8 And not rather, as we be slanderously reported, and as some affirm that we say, Let us do evil, that good may come? whose damnation is just.
9 k What then? are we better than they? No in no wise: for we have before † proved both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all k under sinne, 10 As it is written, There is none righteous, no not one:
11 There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God.
12 They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable, there is none that doeth good, no not one.
13 Their throat is an open sepulchre, with their tongues they have used deceit, the poison of asps is under their lips:
14 Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitternesse.
15 Their feet are swift to shed bloud.
16 Destruction and misery are in their wayes:
17 And the l way of peace have they not known.
18 There is no fear of God before their eyes.
19 § Now we know that what things soever the m law saith, it saith 6 to them who are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become ‡ n guilty before God.
20 Therefore by the deeds o of the law, there shall no p flesh be q justified in his r sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sinne.
21 7 But now the righteousnesse of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets.
22 s Even the righteousnesse of God, which is by faith of t Jesus Christ unto all, and upon all them that beleeve: for there is no difference:
23 For all have sinned, and come short of the u glory of God.
24 9 Being justified v freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Jesus Christ:
25 10 Whom God hath ‡ set forth to be a propitiation, through faith in his x bloud, to declare his righteousnesse for the ‡ remission of sinnes that are y past, through the z forbearance of God.
26 To declare, I say, a at this time his righteousnesse: that he might be b just, and the c justifier of him which d beleeveth in Jesus.
27 11 Where is boasting then? it is excluded: By what e law? of works? Nay: but by the law of faith.
28 Therefore we conclude, that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law.
29 12 Is he the God of the f Jews onely? is he not also of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also:
30 Seeing it is one God which shall justifie the g circumcision by faith, and uncircumcision through faith.
31 13 Do we then make h void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we i establish the law.

1 An innocent and peaceable life.
5 He proveth that this grievous accusation which is uttered by David and Esaias, doth properly concern the Jews.
m The law of Moses.
6 A conclusion of all the former disputation, from the 18 vers. of the first chapter. Therefore saith the apostle, No man can hope to be justified by any law, whether it be that generall law, or the particular law of Moses, and therefore to be saved, seeing it appeareth (as we have already proved) by comparing the law and mans life together that all men are sinners, and therefore worthy of condemnation in the sight of God.
‡ Or, subject to the judgement of God.
n Be found guiltie before God.
o By that, that the law can by us be performed.
p Flesh is here taken for man, as in many other places, and furthermore hath greater force: for it is put to shew the contrarietie betwixt God and man: as if you would say, Man who is nothing else but a piece of flesh defiled with sin, and God who is most pure and most perfect in himself.
q Absolved before the judgement seat of God.
r A secret setting of the righteousnesse which is before men, be they never so just, against the justice which can stand before God, but the righteousnesse of Christ onely.
7 Therefore saith the apostle, Lest that men should perish, God doeth now exhibit that which he promised of old, that is to say, A way whereby we may be justified and saved before him without the law.
8 The matter, as it were, of this righteousnesse is Christ Jesus, apprehended by faith, and for this end offered to all people, as without him all people are shut out from the kingdome of God.
§ Which we give to Jesus Christ, or which resteth upon him.
t By the glory of God, is meant that mark which we all shoot at, that is, everlasting life, which standeth in that we are made partakers of the glory of God.
9 Therefore this righteousnesse touching us, is altogether freely given, for it standeth upon those things which we have not done our selves, but such as Christ hath suffered for our sakes, to deliver us from sinne.
u Of his free gift, and meer liberality.
10 God then is the author of that free justification, because it pleased him: and Christ is he which suffered punishment for our sinnes, and in whom we have remission of them: and mean whereby we apprehend Christ, is faith. To be short, the end is the setting forth of the goodnesse of God, that by this meanes it may appeare, that he is mercifull indeed, and constant in his promises, as he that freely, and of meer grace, justifieth the beleevers.
x This name of bloud, calleth us back to the figure of the old sacrifices, the truth and substance of which sacrifice is in Christ.
‡ Or, passing over.
y Of those sinnes which we have committed, when we were his enemies.
z Through his patience, and suffering nature.
a To wit, when Paul wrote this.
b That he might be found exceeding true and faithfull.
c Making him just, and without blame, by imputing Christs righteousnesse unto him.
d Of the number of them which by faith lay hold upon Christ: contrary to whom are they, which look to be saved by circumcision, that is, by the law.
11 An argument to prove this conclusion, that we are justified by faith, without works, taken from the end of justification. The end of justification is the glory of God alone: therefore we are justified by faith without works: for if we were alone justified, either by our own works only, or partly, by faith, and partly by works the glory of this justification should not be wholly given to God.
e By what doctrine? now the doctrine of works hath this condition joyned with it, if thou doest: and the doctrine of faith, hath this condition, if thou beleevest.
12 Another argument of an absurditie: if justification depended upon the law of Moses, then should God be a Saviour to the Jews onely. Again, if he should save the Jews after one sort, and the Gentiles after another, he should not be one, and like himself. Therefore he will justifie both of them, after one self-same manner, that is to say, By faith. Moreover, this argument must be joyned to that which followeth next, that this conclusion may be firm and evident.
f God is said to be their God, after the manner of the scripture, whom he loveth and rendreth.
g The circumcised.
13 The taking away of an objection: yet is not the law taken away therefore, but is rather established, as it shall be declared in his proper place.
h Vain, void, to no purpose, and no force.
i We make it effectuall and strong.

1 The first meeting with, or pretenting an objection of the Jews: what then have the Jews no more preferment than the Gentiles? yes, that have they, saith the apostle on Gods behalf, for he committed the tables of the covenant to them, so that the unbelief of a few, cannot cause the whole nation without exception to be cast away of God, who is true, and who also useth their unworthinesse to commend and set forth his goodnesse.
a The Jews state and condition was chiefest.
b Words.
c Brake the covenant.
d The faith that God gave.
* Isa. 51, 4.
e That thy justice might be plainly seen.
f For asmuch as thou shewedst forth an evident token of thy righteousnesse, constancie, and faith, by preserving him who had broken his covenant.
2 Another prevention issuing out of the former answer: that the justice of God is in such sort commended and set forth by our unrighteousnesse, that therefore God forgetteth not that he is the Judge of the world, and therefore a most severe revenger of unrighteousnesse.
g Treacherie, and all the fruits thereof.
h Therefore I speak not these words in mine own person, as though I thought so, but this is the talk of mans wisdome, which is not subject to the will of God.
3 A third objection, which addeth somewhat to the former: If sins doe turn to the glory of God, they are not only not to be punished, but we ought rather to give our selves to them: which blasphemie Paul contenting himself to curse and detest, pronounceth just punishment against such blasphemers.
i The truth and constancie.
4 Another answer to the first objection: that the Jews, if they be considered in themselves, are no better than other men are: as it hath been long since pronounced by the mouth of the prophets.
‡ Gr. charged.
k Are guiltie of sin.

Chap. IIII.

1 Abrahams faith was imputed to him for righteousnesse, 10 before he was circumcised. 13 By faith onely he and his seed received the promise. 16 Abraham is the father of all that beleeve. 24 Our faith also shall be imputed to us for righteousnesse.

WHat [1] shall we say then, that Abraham our father, as pertaining to the [a] flesh, hath found?

2 [2] For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory, but not before God.

3 [3] For what saith the scripture? Abraham beleeved God, and it was counted unto him for righteousnesse.

4 [4] Now to him that [b] worketh, is the reward not [c] reckoned of grace, but of debt.

5 But to him that worketh not, but beleeveth on him that [d] justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousnesse.

6 [5] Even as David also describeth the blessednesse of the man unto whom God imputeth righteousnesse without works,

7 Saying, Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sinnes are covered.

8 Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sinne.

9 [6] Cometh this [e] blessednesse then upon the circumcision onely, or upon the uncircumcision also? for we say that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteousnesse.

10 [7] How was it then reckoned? when he was in circumcision, or in uncircumcision? not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision.

11 [8] And he received the [f] signe of circumcision, a [g] seal of the righteousnesse of the faith, which he had yet being uncircumcised: [9] that he might be the father of all them that beleeve, though they be not circumcised; that righteousnesse might be imputed unto them also:

12 [10] And the father of circumcision to them who are not of the circumcision onely, but also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being yet uncircumcised.

13 [11] For the promise that he should be the [h] heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his seed through the [i] law, but through the righteousnesse of faith.

14 [12] For if they which are of the [k] law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect.

15 [13] Because the law worketh wrath: for where no law is, there is no transgression.

16 [14] Therefore it is of faith, that it might be by grace; to the end the promise might be sure to all the [l] seed, [15] not to that onely which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all,

17 (As it is written, * I have made thee a [16] father of many nations) † before him whom he beleeved, even [m] God who [n] quickeneth the dead, and [o] calleth those things which be not as though they were:

18 [17] Who against hope beleeved in hope, that he might become the father of many nations: according to that which was spoken, * So shall thy seed be.

19 [p] And being not weak in faith, he considered not his own body now [q] dead, when he was about an hundred yeare old, neither yet the deadnesse of Sara's wombe.

20 He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving [r] glory to God:

21 And being [s] fully perswaded, that what he had promised, he was able also to perform.

22 And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousnesse.

23 [18] Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him:

24 But for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, if we beleeve on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead, 25 Who was delivered for our [t] offences, and was raised again for our justification.

1 A new argument of great weight taken from the example of Abraham, the father of all beleevers: And this is the proposition, If Abraham be considered in himself, by his works he hath deserved nothing wherein to rejoyce with God.
a By works, as appeareth in the next verse.
2 A preventing of an objection. Abraham may well rejoyce, and extoll himself amongst men, but not with God.
3 A confirmation of the proposition: Abraham was justified by imputation of faith: therefore freely without any respect of his works.
4 The first proof of the confirmation, taken of contraries: to him that deserveth any thing by his labour, the wages is not counted by favour, but by debt: but to him that hath done nothing but beleeveth in him which promiseth freely, faith is imputed.
b To him that hath deserved any thing by his work.
c Is not reckoned nor given him.
d That maketh him, which is wicked in himself, just in Christ.
5 Another proof of the same confirmation: David putteth blessednesse in free pardon of sinnes: therefore justification also.
6 A new proposition: that this manner of justification belongeth both to the uncircumcised, and also to the circumcised: as is declared in the person of Abraham.
e This saying of David, wherein he pronounceth them blessed.
7 He proveth that it belongeth to the uncircumcised (for there was no doubt of the circumcised) in this sort: Abraham was justified in uncircumcision, therefore this justification belongeth also to uncircumcised. Nay, it doth not appertain to the circumcised, in respect of their circumcision, much lesse are the uncircumcised shut out for their uncircumcision.
8 A preventing of an objection. Why then was Abraham circumcised, if he were already justified? That the gift of the righteousnesse (saith he) might be confirmed in him.
f Circumcision, which is a signe: as we say, The sacrament of baptisme, for baptisme which is a sacrament.
g Circumcision was called before, A signe, in respect of the outward ceremony: now Paul sheweth the force and substance of that signe, that is, to what end it is used, to wit, not only to signifie, but also to seal up the righteousnesse of faith, whereby we come to possesse Christ himself: for the Holy Ghost worketh that inwardly in deed, which the sacrament being joyned with the word, doe represent.
9 An applying of the example of Abraham to the uncircumcised beleevers, whose father also he maketh Abraham.
10 An applying of the same example, to the circumcised beleevers, whose father Abraham is, but yet by faith.
11 A reason why the seed of Abraham is to be esteemed by faith, because that Abraham himself through faith was made partaker of that promise, whereby he was made the father of all nations.
h That all the nations of the world should be his children: or, by the world may be understood the land of Canaan.
i For works that he had done, or upon this condition that he should fulfill the law.
12 A double confirmation of that reason: the one is that the promise cannot be apprehended by the law, and therefore it should be frustrate: the other, that the condition of faith should be joyned in vain to that promise which should be apprehended by works.
k If they be heirs which have fulfilled the law.
13 A reason of the first confirmation, why the promise cannot be apprehended by the law: because that the law doth not reconcile God and us, but rather denounceth his anger against us, for so much as no man can observe it.
14 The conclusion of this argument: The salvation and justification of the posterity of Abraham (that is, of the church which is gathered together of all people) proceedeth of faith, which layeth hold on the promise made unto Abraham, and which promise Abraham himself first of all laid hold on.
l To all the beleevers.
15 That is to say, not onely of them which beleeve and are also circumcised according to the law, but of them also which without circumcision, and in respect of faith onely, are counted amongst the children of Abraham.
* Gen. 17, 5.

r Acknowledged and praised God, as most gracious and true.
s A description of true faith.
18 The rule of justification is alwayes one, both in Abraham and in all the faithfull: that is to say, faith in God, who after that there was made a full satisfaction for our sins in Christ our mediatour, raised him from the dead, that we also being justified, might be saved in him.
t To pay the ransome for our sinnes.

Chap. V.

1 Being justified by faith, we have peace with God, 2 and joy in our hope, 8 that sith we were reconciled by his bloud, when we were enemies, 10 we shall much more be saved being reconciled. 12 As sinne and death came by Adam, 17 so much more righteousnesse and life by Jesus Christ. 20 Where sinne abounded, grace did superabound.

THerefore being [1] justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

2 [2] By whom also we have [a] accesse by faith into this grace [b] wherein we [c] stand. [3] and [d] rejoyce in hope of the glory of God.

3 [4] And not onely so, but we glory in tribulations also, [5] knowing that tribulation worketh patience:

4 And patience, experience: and experience, hope:

5 [6] And hope maketh not ashamed, because

1 Another argument taken of the effects: we are justified with that which truely appeaseth our conscience before God: but faith in Christ doth appease our conscience and not the law, as it was before said, therefore by faith we are justified and not by the law.
2 Whereas quietnesse of conscience is attributed to faith, it is to be referred to Christ, who is the giver of faith it self, and in whom faith it self is effectuall.
a He sheweth that our acceptance, with the Authour is by the Sonne.
b By which grace, that is, by which gracious love and good will, or that state whereinto we are graciously taken.
c We stand stedfast.
3 A preventing of an objection against them, which beholding the daily miseries and calamities of the church, think that the Christians dream, when they brag of their felicitie: to whom the apostle answereth, That their felicity is laid up under hope in another place: which hope is so certain and sure, that they doe no lesse rejoyce for that happinesse, than if they did presently enjoy it.
d Our mindes are not only quiet and setled, but also we are marvellously glad: and conceive great joy for that heavenly inheritance, which waiteth for us.
4 Tribulation it self giveth us divers, and sundry wayes, occasion to rejoyce, much lesse doth it make us miserable.
5 Afflictions accustome us to patience, and patience assureth us of the goodnesse of God, and this experience confirmeth and fostereth our hope, which never deceiveth us.
6 The ground of hope is an assured testimony of the conscience, by the gift of the holy Ghost, that we are beloved of God, and this is nothing else but that which we call faith, whereof it followeth, that through faith our consciences are quieted.

the [c] love of God is shed abroad in our hearts, by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us.

6 [7] For when we were yet without strength, ‡ in due [f] time Christ died for the ungodly.

7 [8] For scarcely [g] for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die.

8 But God [h] commendeth his love towards us, in that while we were yet [i] sinners, Christ died for us.

9 Much more then being now justified by his bloud, we shall be saved from [k] wrath through him.

10 For if when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Sonne: much more being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life.

11 [9] And not onely so, but we also joy in God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

12 [10] Wherefore, as by [l] one man [m] sinne entred into the world, and death by sinne: and so death passed upon all men, ‡ for [n] that all have sinned.

13 [11] For untill [o] the law sin was in the world: but sin is not [p] imputed when there is no law.

14 [12] Nevertheleſſe, death reigned from Adam to Moses, even [q] over them that had not sinned after the [r] similitude of Adams transgression, [13] who is the figure of him that was to come:

15 [14] But not as the offence, so also is the free gift. For if through the offence of [s] one, many be dead; much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many.

16 [15] And not as it was by one that sinned, so is the gift: for the judgement was by one to condemnation: but the free gift is of many offences unto [t] justification.

17 [16] For if ‡ by one mans offence, death reigned by one, much more they which receive abundance of grace, and of the gift of righteousnes, shall [u] reigne in life by one, Jesus Christ.

18 [17] Therefore as ‡ by the offence of one judgement came upon all men to condemnation: even so ‡ by the righteousneſſe of one, the free gift came upon all men unto [x] justification of life.

19 [18] For as by one mans [y] disobedience [z] many were made sinners: so by the obedience of one, shall many be made righteous.

20 [19] Moreover, the law [a] entred, that the offence might abound: but where sinne abounded, grace did much [b] more abound.

21 That as sin hath reigned unto death, even so might grace reigne through righteousneſſe unto eternall life, by Jesus Christ our Lord.

c Wherewith he loveth us.
7 A sure comfort in adversitie, that our peace and quietnesse of conscience be not troubled: for he that so lovedthem that were of no strength and while they were yet sinners, that he died for them, how can he neglect them being now sanctified and living in him?
‡ Or, according to the time.
f In time fit and convenient which the Father had appointed.
8 An amplifying of the loveof God toward us, so that we cannot doubt of it, who delivered Christ to death for the unjust, and for them of whom hecould receive no commodity, and (that more is, for his very enemies) How can it be then that Christ being now alive, should not save them from destruction, whom by his death he justifieth, and reconcileth?
g In the stead of some just man.
h He setteth out his love unto us, that in the midst of our afflictions, we may know assuredly, he will be present with us.
i While sinne reigned in us.
k From affliction and destruction.
9 He now passeth over to the other part of justification, which consisteth in the free imputation of the obedience of Christ, so that to the remission of sinnes, there is added moreover and besides, the gift of Christs righteousneſſe imputed, or put upon us by faith, whichswalloweth up that unrighteousneſſe which flowed from Adam into us, and all the fruits thereof: so that in Christ we do not only cease to be unjust, but we begin also to be just. 10 From Adam in whom all have sinned, both guiltnesse and death (which is the punishment of the guiltinesse) came upon all. l By Adam, who is compared with Christ, like to him in this, that both of them make those which are theirs, partakers of that they have: but they are unlike in this, that Adam deriveth sinne into them that are his, even of nature, and that to death: but Christ maketh them that are his, partakers of his righteousneſſe by grace, and that unto life. m By sinne, is meant that disease which is ours by inheritance, and men commonly call it originall sinne: for so he useth to call that sinne in the singular number, whereas if he spake of the fruits of it, he useth the plurall number, calling them sinnes. ‡ Or, in whom. n That is, in Adam. 11 That this is so, that both guiltinesse and death began not after the giving and transgressing of Moses law, it appeareth manifestly by that, that men died before that law was given, for in that they died, sinne which is the cause of death, was then: and in such sort, that it was also imputed: whereupon it followeth that there was then some law, the breach whereof was the cause of death. o Even from Adam to Moses. p Where there is no law made, no man is punished as faulty and guilty. 12 But that this law was not that universall law, and that that death did not proceed from any actuall sinne of every one particularly, it appeareth hereby, that the very infants which neither could ever know or transgresse that naturall law, are notwithstanding dead as well as Adam. q Our infants. r Not after that sort as they sinne that are of moe yeares, following their lusts: but yet the whole posterity was corrupted in Adam, when as he wittingly and willingly sinned. 13 Now that first Adam answereth the latter, who is Christ, as it is afterward declared. 14 Adam and Christ are compared together in this respect, that both of them doe give and yeeld to theirs, that which is their own: but herein first they differ, that Adam by nature hath spread his fault to the destruction of many, but Christs obedience hath by grace overflowed to many. s That is, Adam. 15 Another inequality consisteth in this, that by Adams one offence men are guilty, but the righteousneſſe of Christ imputed to us freely, doth not only absolve us from that one fault, but from all other. t To the sentence of absolution, whereby we are quit and pronounced righteous. 16 The third differeence is, that the righteousneſſe of Christ being imputed unto us by grace, is of greater power to bring life, than the offence of Adam is to addict his posterity to death. ‡ Or, by one offence. u Be partakers of true and everlasting life. 17 Therefore to be short, as by one mans offence, the guiltinesse came on all men, to make them subject to death: so on the contrary side, the righteousneſſe of Christ, which by Gods mercy is imputed to all beleevers, justified them, that they may become partakers of everlasting life.
‡ Or, by one offence. ‡ Or. by one righteousneſſe.

x Not onely because our sins are forgiven us, but also because the righteousneſſe of Christ is imputed unto us.
18 The ground of this whole comparison is this, that these two men are set as two stocks, or roots, so that out of the one, sin by nature, out of the other, righteousneſſe by grace, doth spring forth upon others. y So then, sin entred not into us onely by following the steps of our forefather, but we take corruption of him by inheritance.
z This word, Many, is set against this word, A few. 19 A preventing of an objection: why then did the law of Moses enter thereupon? that men might be so much the more guilty, & the benefit of God in Christ Jesus be so much the more glorious. a Besides that disease, which all men were infected withall by being defiled with one mans sinne, the law entred. b Grace was powered so plentifull from heaven, that it did not onely countervail sinne, but above measure passed it.

CHAP. VI.

1 We may not live in sinne, 2 for we are dead unto it, 3 as appeareth by our baptisme. 12 Let not sin reigne any more, 18 because we have yeelded our selves to the service of righteousneſſe, 23 and for that death is the wages of sinne.

WHat [1] shall we say then? shall we continue in [a] sinne, that grace may abound?

2 [2] God forbid: how shall we that are [b] dead to sinne, live any longer therein?

3 [3] Know ye not, that so many of us as ‡ were baptized into [c] Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death?

4 Therefore we are buried with him by baptisme into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by [d] the glory of the Father, even so [e] we also should walk in newneſſe of life.

5 [4] For if we have been planted together in the [f] likeneſſe of his death: we shall be also in [g] the likeneſſe of his resurrection:

6 Knowing this, that our [h] old man is crucified with [i] him, that the [k] body of sinne might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not [l] serve sin.

7 [5] For he that is dead, is ‡ freed from sinne.

8 Now if we be dead with Christ, we beleeve that we shall also live with him:

9 Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more, death hath no more dominion over him.

10 For in that he died, he died unto sinne [m] once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto [n] God.

11 Likewise reckon ye also your selves to be deadin deed unto sinne: but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

12 [6] Let not [o] sinne therefore reigne in your mortall body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof.

1 He passeth now to another benefit of Christ, which is called sanctification or regeneration.
a In that corruption, for though the guiltinesse of sinne be not imputed to us, yet the corruption remaineth still in us: the which sanctification, that followeth justification killeth by little and little.
2 The benefit of Justification and sanctification are alwayes joyned together inseparably, and both of them proceed from Christ by the grace of God: Now sanctification is the abolishing of sinne, that is of our naturall corruption, into whose place succeedeth the cleannesse and pureneſſe of nature reformed.
b They are said of Paul to be dead to sin, which are in such sort made partakers of the vertue of Christ, that that naturall corruption is dead in them, that is, the force of it is put out, and it bringeth not forth his bitter fruits: And on the other side they are said to live to sinne which are in the flesh, that is, whom the Spirit of God hath not delivered from the slavery of the corruption of nature. 3 There are three parts of this sanctification: to wit, the death of the old man, or sin, his buriall, and the resurrection of the new man descending into us from the vertue of the death, buriall, and resurrection of Christ, of which benefit our baptisme is a signe and pledge.
‡ Or, are. c To the end that growing up in one with him, we should receive his strength, to quench sin in us, and to make us new men. d That Christ himself being discharged of his infirmitie and weakneſſe, might live in glory with God for ever. e And we which are his members rise for this end, that being made partakers of the self-same vertue, we should begin to lead a new life, as though we were already in heaven. 4 The death of sin and the life of righteousneſſe or our ingrafting into Christ, and growing up into one with him, cannot be separated by any meanes, neither in death nor life: whereby it followeth, that no man is sanctified, which liveth still to sin, and therefore is no man made partaker of Christ by faith, which repenteth not and turneth not from his wickednesse: for as he said before, the law is not subverted but established by faith. f Insomuch as by meanes of the strength which cometh from him to us we so die to sin, as he is dead. g For we become every day more perfite than other: for we shall never be perfectly sanctified, as long as we live here. h All our whole nature, as we are conceived & born into this world with sin, which is called old, partly by comparing that old Adam with Christ, & partly also in respect of the deformation of our corrupt nature, which we change with a new. i Our corrupt nature is attributed to Christ, not indeed, but by imputation. k That naughtinesse which sticketh fast in us. l The end of sanctification which we shoot at and shall at length come to, to wit, when God shall be all in all. 5 He proveth it by the effects of death, using a comparison of Christ the head with his members. ‡ Gr. justified. m Once for all. n With God. 6 An exhortation to contend & strive with corruption & all the effects thereof. o By reigning, S. Paul meaneth that chief and high rule, which no man striveth against, and if any do, yet it is in vain

13 Neither [p] yeeld ye your [q] members as † [r] instruments of unrighteousnesse unto sinne: but yeeld your selves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousnesse unto God.

14 [7] For sinne shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace.

15 [s] What then? shall we sinne, because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid.

16 Know ye not, that to whom ye yeeld your selves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey: whether of sinne unto death, or of obedience unto righteousnesse?

17 [9] But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sinne, but ye have obeyed from the heart that [t] form of doctrine † which was delivered you.

18 Being then made free from sinne, ye became the servants of righteousnesse.

19 I speak after the manner of men, because of the infirmity of your flesh: for as ye have yeelded your members servants to uncleanesse and to iniquity, unto iniquity, even so now yeeld your members servants to righteousnesse, unto holinesse.

20 For when ye were the servants of sinne, ye were [u] free † from righteousnesse.

21 [10] What fruit had ye then in those things, whereof yeare now ashamed? for the [u] end of those things is death.

22 But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holinesse, and the end everlasting life.

23 [11] For the wages of sin is death: but the gift of God is eternall life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

r As instruments to commit wickednes withall.
7 He granteth, that sinne is not yet so dead in us that it is utterly extinct: but he promiseth victory to them that contend manfully, because we have the grace of God given us, which worketh so that the law is not now in us the power and instrument of sinne.
8 To be under the law and under sinne, signifie all one, in respect of them which are not sanctified, as on the contrary side, to be under grace and righteousnesse, agree to them that are regenerate. Now these are contraries, so that one cannot agree with the other: Therefore let righteousnesse expell sinne.
9 By nature we are slaves to sinne and free from righteousnesse, but by the grace of God we are made servants to righteousnesse, and therefore free from sinne.
s This kinde of speech hath a force in it: for he meaneth thereby that the doctrin of the gospel is likeunto a certain mould which we are cast into to be framed and fashioned like unto it.

Chap. VII.

1 No law hath power over a man longer than he liveth. 4 But we are dead to the law. 7 Yet is not the law sinne, 12 but holy, just, good, 16 as I acknowledge who am grieved because I cannot keep it.

KNow [1] ye not brethren (for I speak to them that know the law) how that the law hath dominion over a man, as long as he liveth?

2 For the woman which hath an husband, is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth: but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband.

3 So then if while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be [a] called an adultéresse: but if her husband be dead, she is free from that law; so that she is no adultéresse, though she be married to another man.

4 [2] Wherefore my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the [b] body of Christ, that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth [c] fruit unto [d] God.

1 By propounding the similitude of marriage, he compareth the state of man, both before and after regeneration together. The law of matrimonie, saith he, is this, that so long as the husband liveth, the marriage abideth in force, but if he be dead, the woman may marry again.
a That is, shee shall be an adultresse, by the consent and judgement of all men.
2 An application of the similitude thus. So, saith he, doth it fare with us: for now we are joyned to the Spirit, as it were to the second husband, by whom we must bring forth new children: we are dead in respect of the first husband, but in respect of the latter, we are as it were raised from the dead. b That is, in the body of Christ, to give us to understand, how strait and near that fellowship is betwixt Christ and his members. c He calleth the children, which the wife hath by her husband, fruit. d Which are acceptable to God.

6 But now we are delivered from the law, ‡ that [i] being dead [k] wherein we were [l] held, that we should serve in [m] newnesse of spirit, and not in the oldnesse of the [n] letter.

7 [4] What shall we say then? is the law sinne? God forbid. Nay, I had not known sinne, but by the law: for I had not known ‡ [o] lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet.

8 But sinne taking occasion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiscence. For without the law sinne was [p] dead.

9 [5] For I was alive without the [q] law once, but when the commandment [r] came, sinne revived, and I [r] died.

10 And the commandment which was ordained to life, I found to be unto death.

11 For sinne taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it slew me.

12 [6] Wherefore the law is holy, and the [t] commandment holy, and just, and good.

13 [7] Was then that which is good, [u] made death unto me? God forbid. But sinne that it might [x] appeare sinne, working death in me by that which is good: that sinne by the commandment might become [y] exceeding sinfull.

14 [8] For we know that the law is spirituall: but I am carnall, sold under sinne.

15 [9] For that which I do, I † [10] allow not: for what I [11] would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I.

16 If then I do that which I would not, I consent unto the law, that it is good.

3 A declaration of the former saying: for the concupiscences (saith he) which the law stirred up in us, were in us, as it were an husband, of whom we brought forth very deadly and cursed children. But now since that husband is dead, and so consequently being delivered from the force of that killing law, we have passed into the governance of the Spirit, so that we bring forth now, not those rotten and dead, but lively children.
e When we were in the state of the first marriage, which he calleth in the next verse following, the oldnesse of the letter.

g He saith not, of the law, but by the law, because they spring of sinne, which dwelleth within us, and taketh occasion to work thus in us, by reason of the restraint that the law maketh, not that the fault is in the law, but in our selves.
h Wrought their strength.
‡ Or, being dead to that.
i As if he said, The bond which bound us, is dead, and vanished away, in so much that sinne which held us, hath not now wherewith to hold us. k For this husband is within us. l Satan is an unjust possessour, for he brought us in bondage of sinne and himself, deceitfully: and yet notwithstanding so long as we are sinners, we sinne willingly. m As becometh them which after the death of their old husband, are joyned to the Spirit: as whom the Spirit of God hath made new men. n By the letter, he meaneth the law, in respect of that old condition: for before that our will be framed by the Holy Ghost, the law speaketh but to deaf men, and therefore it is dumbe and dead to us, as touching the fulfilling of it. 4 An objection, What then? are the law and sinne all one, and doe they agree together? nay, saith he: Sinne is reproved and condemned by the law. But because sinne cannot abide to be reproved, and was not in a manner felt, untill it was provoked and stirred up by the law, it taketh occasion thereby to be more outragious, and yet by no fault of the law. ‡ Or, concupiscence. o By the word. Lust, in this place he meaneth not evil lusts themselves, but the fountain from whence they spring, for the very heathen Philosophers themselves condemned wicked lusts, though somewhat darkly. But as for this fountain of them, they could not so much as suspect it, and yet it is the very seat of that naturall and unclean spot and filth. p Though sinne be in us, yet it is not known for sinne, neither doth it so rage, as it rageth after that the law is known. 5 He setteth himself before us for an example, in whom all men may behold, first, what they are by nature before they earnestly think upon the law of God: to wit, blockish, and heady to sinne and wickednesse, without all true sense and feeling of sinne, then what manner of persons they become, when their conscience is reproved by the testimony of the law, to wit, stubborn and more inflamed with the desire of sinne, than ever they were before. q When I knew not the law, then me thought I lived in deed: for my conscience never troubled me, because I knew not my disease. r When I began to understand the commandement. s In sinne, or by sinne. 6 The conclusion, That the law of it self is holy, but all the fault is in us which abuse the law. t Touching not coveting. 7 The proposition: that the law is not the cause of death, but our corrupt nature being therewith not onely discovered, but also stirred up: and took occasion thereby to rebell, as when the more that things are forbidden us, the more we desire them, and from hence cometh the guiltinesse, and occasion of death. u Beareth it the blame of my death? x That sinne might shew it self to be sinne, and bewray it self to be that, which it is in deed. y As evil as it could, shewing all the venome it could. 8 The cause of this matter, is this, because that the law requireth a heavenly pureness, but men such as they be born, are bondslaves of corruption, which they willingly serve. 9 He setteth himself being regenerate, before us, for an example, in whom may easily appeare the strife of the Spirit, and the flesh, and therefore of the law of God, and our wickednesse: For since that the law in a man not regenerate bringeth forth death onely, therefore in him, it may easily be accused: but seeing that in a man which is regenerate, it bringeth forth good fruit, it doth better appeare that evil actions proceed not from the law but from sinne, that is, from our corrupt nature: And therefore the apostle teacheth also what the true use of the law is, in reproving sinne in the regenerate, unto the end of the chapter: as a little before (to wit, from the seventh verse unto this fifteenth) he declareth the use of it in them which are not regenerate. † Gr. know. 10 The deeds of my life, saith he, answer not, nay, they are contrary to my will: Therefore by the consent of my will with the law, and repugnance with the deeds of my life it appeareth evidently, that the law and a right ruled will, doe perswade one thing, but corruption which hath her seat also in the regenerate, another thing. 11 It is to be noted that one self-same man is said to will and not to will, in divers respects: to wit, he is said to will, in that, that he is regenerate by grace: and not to will, in that, that he is not regenerate, or in that, that he is such an one as he was born. But because the part which is regenerate at length becometh conquerour, therefore Paul sustaining the part of the regenerate, speaketh in such sort as if the corruption which sinneth willingly, were something without a man: although afterward he granteth that this evil is in his flesh, or in his members.

17 Now

17 Now then, it is no more I that do it: but [z] ſinne that dwelleth in me.

18 [12] For I know, that in me (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing: for to will is preſent with me, but how to perform that which is good, [a] I finde not.

19 For the good that I would, I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do.

20 Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but ſinne that dwelleth in me.

21 [13] I finde then a law, that when I would do good, evil is preſent with me.

22 For I delight in the law of God, after the [b] inward man.

23 But I ſee another law in my members, warring againſt the law of my [c] minde, and bringing me into captivitie to the law of ſinne, which is in my members.

24 [14] O [d] wretched man that I am, whoſhall deliver me from ‡ the body of this death!

25 I [e] thank God, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. So then, with the minde I [f] my ſelf ſerve the law of God: but with the flesh, the law of ſin.

z That naturall corruption, which cleaveth faſt even to them that are regenerate, & not clean conquered. 12 This vice, or ſinne, or law of ſinne, doth wholly poſſeſſe thoſe men which are not regenerate, and hindreth them or holdeth them back that are regenerate. a This doth indeed agree to that man, whom the grace of God hath made a new man: for where the ſpirit is not, how can there be any ſtrife there? 13 The concluſion: As the law of God exhorteth to goodneſſe, ſo doth the law of ſinne (that is, the corruption wherein we are born) force us to wickedneſſe, but the ſpirit, that is, our minde, in that that it is the regenerate, conſenteth with the law of God: but the flesh, that is, the whole naturall man, is bondſlave to the law of ſinne. Therefore to be ſhort, wickedneſſe and death are not of the law, but of ſinne, which reigneth in them that are not regenerate: for they neither will, nor doe good: but will, and do evil: but in them that are regenerate, it ſtriveth againſt the ſpirit or law of the minde ſo that they cannot neither live ſo well as they would, or be ſo void of ſinne as they would. b The inward man, and the new man are all one, and are anſwerable and ſet as contrary to the old man, neither doth this word, Inward man, ſignifie mans minde and reaſon, and the old man, the powers that are under them, as the Philoſophers imagine, but by the outward man is meant whatſoever is either without or within a man from top to toe, ſo long as that man is not born anew by the grace of God. c That law of the mind in this place, is not to be underſtood of the minde as it is naturally, and as our minde is from our birth, but of the minde which is renewed by the ſpirit of God. 14 It is a miſerable thing to be yet in part ſubject to ſinne, which of its own nature maketh us guilty of death: but we muſt crie to the Lord, who will by death it ſelf at length make us conquerours, as we are already conquerours in Chriſt. d Wearied with miſerable and continuall conflicts. ‡ Or, this body of death. e He recovereth himſelf and ſheweth us that he reſteth onely in Chriſt. f This is the true perfection of them that are born anew, to confeſſe that they are imperfect.

Chap. VIII.

1 They that are in Chriſt, and live according to the Spirit, are free from condemnation. 5, 23 What harm cometh of the flesh, 6, 14 and what good of the Spirit, 17 and what of being Gods childe, 19 whoſe glorious deliverance all things long for, 29 was beforehand decreed from God. 38 What can ſever us from his love?

1 THere is [1] therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Chriſt Jeſus, who [2] walk not after the [a] flesh, but after the Spirit.

2 [3] For the [b] law of the Spirit of [c] life, in [d] Chriſt Jeſus, hath made me [e] free from the law of ſinne and death.

3 [4] For what the law could [f] not do, in that it was weak through the [g] flesh, God ſending his own Sonne, in the likeneſſe of [h] ſinfull flesh, & † for [i] ſinne [k] condemned ſinne in the flesh:

4 That the [l] righteouſneſſe of the law might be fulfilled [5] in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the ſpirit.

5 [6] For they that are after the [m] flesh, do minde the things of the flesh: but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit.

6 [7] For † to be carnally minded, is death: [8] but † to be ſpiritually minded, is life and peace:

7 [9] Becauſe † the carnall minde is enmitie againſt God: for it is not ſubject to the law of God, neither indeed can be.

8 [10] So then they that are in the flesh, cannot pleaſe God.

9 [11] But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if ſo be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Chriſt he is none of his.

10 [12] And if Chriſt be in you, the [n] body is dead becauſe of ſinne: but the Spirit is life, becauſe of righteouſneſſe.

11 [13] But if the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, dwell in you: he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortall bodies, ‡ by his Spirit that [o] dwelleth in you.

12 [14] Therefore, brethren, we are debters, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh.

13 [15] For if ye live after the flesh, ye ſhall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortifie the deeds of the body, ye ſhall live.

14 [16] For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the Sonnes of God.

15 [17] For ye have not received the [p] ſpirit of bondage [q] again to fear: but ye have received the Spirit of [r] adoption, whereby we crie, Abba, Father.

16 The Spirit it ſelf beareth witneſſe with our ſpirit, that we are the children of God.

17 [18] And if children, then heirs, [s] heirs of God, and joynt heirs with Chriſt: [19] if ſo be

1 A concluſion of all the former diſputation, from verſe 16. chap. 1. even to this place: ſeeing that we being juſtified by faith in Chriſt, do obtain remiſſion of ſins, and imputation of righteouſneſſe, and are alſo ſanctified, it followeth thereof, that they that are grafted into Chriſt by faith, are out of all fear of condemnation.

2 The fruits of the Spirit, or effects of ſanctification which is begun in us, do not ingraft us into Chriſt, but do declare that we are grafted into him. a Follow not the flesh for their guide: for he is not ſaid to live after the flesh, that hath the holy Ghoſt for his guide. though ſometimes he ſtep away. 3 A preventing of an objection: ſeeing that the vertue of the Spirit which is in us, is ſo weak, how may we gather thereby, that there is no condemnation to them that have that vertue? Becauſe ſaith he, that vertue of the quickening ſpirit which is ſo weak in us, is moſt perfect and moſt mighty in Chriſt and being imputed unto us which beleeve, cauſeth us to be ſo accompted of, as though there were no reliques of corruption and death in us. Therefore hitherto, Paul diſputed of remiſſion of ſinnes, and imputation of fulfilling the law, and alſo of ſanctification which is begun in us: but now he ſpeaketh of the perfit imputation of Chriſts manhood, which part was neceſſarily required to the full appeaſing of our conſciences. For our ſinnes are defaced by the bloud of Chriſt, and the guiltineſſe of our corruption is covered with the imputation of Chriſts obedience, and the corruption it ſelf (which the apoſtle calleth ſinfull ſinne) is healed in us by little and little by the gift of ſanctification: but yet lacketh beſide that another remedy, to wit, the perfit ſanctification of Chriſts own flesh, which alſo is to us imputed. b The power and authority of the Spirit, againſt which is ſet the tyranny of ſinne. c Which mortifieth the old man, and quickeneth the new men. d To wit, abſolutely and perfectly. e For Chriſts ſanctification being imputed to us, perfiteth our ſanctification which is begun in us. 4 He uſeth no argument here, but expoundeth the myſterie of ſanctification which is imputed unto us: for becauſe, ſaith he, that the vertue of the law was nor ſuch (and that by reaſon of the corruption of our nature) that it could make man pure and perfit, and for that it rather kindled the diſeaſe of ſinne, than did put it out to extinguiſh it, therefore God clothed his Sonne with flesh like unto our ſinfull flesh, wherein he utterly abolished our corruption, that being accompted throughly pure & without fault in him, apprehended & laid hold on by faith, we might be found to have fully that ſingular perfection which the law requireth, and therefore that there might be no condemnation in us. f Which is not proper to the law, but cometh by our fault. g In man not born anew, whoſe diſeaſe the law could point out, but it could not healit. h Of mans nature which is corrupt through ſinne, untill he ſanctified it.

wiſdome of the flesh is death becauſe ſaith he, it is the enemy of God. † Gr. the minding of the Spirit. 9 A reaſon why the flesh is enemie to God, becauſe it neither will, neither can, be ſubject to him, and by flesh he meaneth a man not regenerate. † Gr. the minding of the flesh. 10 The concluſion. Therefore they that walk after the flesh, cannot pleaſe God: whereby it followeth, that they are not graffed into Chriſt. 11 He cometh to the others, to wit, to them which walk after the ſpirit, of whom we have to underſtand contrary things to the former: and firſt of all, he defineth what it is to be in the Spirit, or to be ſanctified: to wit, to have the ſpirit of God dwelling in us. Then he declareth that ſanctification is ſo joyned and knit to our graffing in Chriſt, that it can by no means be ſeparated. 12 He confirmeth the faithfull againſt the reliques of flesh and ſinne granting that they are yet (as appeareth by the corruption which is in them) touching one of their parts (which he calleth the body, that is to ſay, a lump) which is not yet purged from this earthly filthineſſe in death: but thereby withall willing them to doubt nothing of the happy ſucceſſe of this combate, becauſe that even this little ſpark of the ſpirit, (that is, of the grace of regeneration) which appeareth to be in them by the fruits of righteouſneſſe, is the ſeed of life. n The flesh, or all that, which as yet ſticketh faſt in the cleſts of ſinne and death. 13 A confirmation of the former ſentence. You have the ſelf ſame Spirit which Chriſt hath: Therefore at length it ſhall doe the ſame in you, that it did in Chriſt, to wit, when all infirmities being utterly laid aſide, and death overcome, it ſhall clothe you with heavenly glory. ‡ Or, becauſe of his Spirit. o By the vertue and power of it which ſheweth the ſame might, firſt in our head, and daily worketh in his members. 14 An exhortation to oppreſſe the flesh daily more and more by the vertue of the ſpirit of the regeneration, becauſe (ſaith he) you are debters unto God, forſomuch as you have received ſo many benefits of him. 15 Another reaſon of the profit that enſueth: for ſuch as ſtrive and fight valiantly, ſhall have everlaſting life. 16 A confirmation of this reaſon: for they be the children of God, which are governed by his Spirit, therefore ſhall they have life everlaſting. 17 He declareth and expoundeth by the way in theſe two verſes, by what right this name to be called the children of God, is given to the beleever, becauſe ſaith he, they have received the grace of the goſpel, wherein God ſheweth himſelf, not (as before in the publiſhing of the law) terrible and fearfull but a moſt benigne and loving Father in Chriſt, ſo that with great boldneſſe we call him Father the holy Ghoſt ſealing this adoption in our hearts by faith. p By the Spirit, is meant the holy Ghoſt whom we are ſaid to receive, when he worketh in our mindes. q Which feare is ſtirred up in our mindes by the preaching of the law. r Which ſealeth our adoption in our mindes, and therefore openeth our mouthes. 18 A proof of the in conſequent of the confirmation: becauſe that he which is the Sonne of God, doth enjoy God with Chriſt. s Partakers of our fathers goods, and that freely, becauſe we are children by adoption. 19 Now Paul teacheth by what way the ſonnes of God do come to that felicitie, to wit, by the croſſe, as Chriſt himſelf did: and therewithall openeth unto them fountains of comfort: as firſt that we have Chriſt a companion and fellow of our afflictions: ſecondly, that we ſhall be alſo his fellows in that everlaſting glory.

140 that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together.

18 [20] For I [t] reckon, that the sufferings of this present time, are not worthie to be compared with the glorie which shall be revealed in us.

19 [21] For the earnest expectation of the [u] creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sonnes of God.

20 For the creature was made subject to [x] vanitie, [y] not willingly, but by reason of [z] him who hath subjected the same in [a] hope:

21 Because the creature it self also shall be delivered from the [b] bondage of corruption, into the glorious libertie of the children of God.

22 For we know that [t] the whole creation groneth, and [c] travelleth in pain together until now.

23 [22] And not only they, but our [d] selves also, which have the first-fruits of the spirit, even we our selves grone within our selves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the* [e] redemption of our body.

24 [23] For we are saved by hope: but hope that is seen, is not [f] hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?

25 But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it.

26 [24] Likewise the Spirit also [g] helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit it self maketh [h] intercession for us with gronings which cannot be uttered.

27 And he that searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the [i] minde of the Spirit, [t] because he maketh intercession for the saints [k] according to the will of God.

28 [25] And we know that [l] all things work together for good, to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his [m] purpose.

29 For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Sonne, that he might be the first-born among may brethren.

30 Moreover, whom he did [n] predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified.

31 [26] What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us?

32 He that spared not his own Sonne, but delivered him up for us all: how shall he not with him also freely [o] give us all things?

33 [27] Who shall lay any thing to the charge of Gods elect? It is [p] God that justifieth:

34 Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us.

35 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distresse, or persecution, or famine, or nakednesse, or perill, or sword?

36 (As it is written, * For thy sake we are killed all the day long, we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter)

37 [r] Nay in all these things we are more than conquerers, through him that loved us.

38 For I am perswaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,

39 Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

20 Thirdly, that this glory which we look for, doth a thousand parts surmount the miserie of our afflictions.

t All being well considered, I gather.

21 Fourthly, he plainly teacheth us, that we shall certainly be renewed from that confusion and horrible deformation of the whole world, which cannot be continuall, as it was not at the beginning. But as it had a beginning by the sinne of man for whom it was made by the ordinance of God, so shall it at length be restored with the elect.

u All this world.

x Is subject to a vanishing and flitting state.

y Not by their naturall inclination.

z That they should obey the creatours commandment, whom it pleaseth to shew by their fickle state, how greatly he was displeased with man.

a God would not make the world subject to an everlasting curse, for the sinne of man, but gave it in hope that it should be restored.

b From the corruption which they are now subject to, they shall be delivered and changed into that blessed state of incorruption, which shall be revealed, when the sonnes of God shall be advanced to glory.

c By this word is meant, not only exceeding sorrow, but also the fruit that followeth of it.

d Even from the bottom of our hearts. * Luke 21, 28.

e That last restoring, which shall be the accomplishment of our adoption. 23 Sixtly, hope is necessarily joyned with faith: seeing then that we beleeve those things which we are not yet in possession of, and hope respecteth not the thing that is present, we must therefore hope and patiently wait for that which we beleeve shall come to passe.

f This is spoken by the figure metonymie: Hope, for that which is hoped for. 24 Seventhly there is no cause why we shoud faint under the burthen of afflictions, seeing that prayers minister unto us a most sure help which cannot be frustrate, seeing they proceed from the Spirit of God which dwelleth in us.

g Beareth our burden, as it were, that we faint not under it.

h Provoketh us to prayers, and telleth us, as it were, within, what we shall say, and how we shall grone.

i What sobs and sighs proceed from the instinct of his spirit.

k Because he teacheth the godly to pray according to Gods will. 25 Eightly, we are not afflicted either by chance, or to our harm, but by Gods providence, for our great profit: who as he chose us from the beginning, so hath he predestinate us to be made like to the image of his Sonne: and therefore will bring us in his time, being called and justified to glory, by the crosse.

l Not onely afflictions, but whatsoever else.

m He calleth that, purpose, which God hath from everlasting appointed with himself according to his good will and pleasure.

n He useth the time past for the time present, as the Hebrews use, who sometime set down the thing that is to come, by the time that is past to signifie the certainty of it: and he hath also a regard to gods continuall working. 26 Ninthly, we have no cause to feare that the Lord will not give us whatsoever is profitable for us seeing that he hath not spared his own Sonne to save us.

o Give us freely.

27 A most glorious and comfortable conclusion of the whole second part of this epistle, that is of the treatise of justification. There are no accusers that we have need to be afraid of before God, seeing that God himself absolveth us as just: and therefore much lesse need we to feare damnation, seeing that we rest upon the death and resurrection of the almighty power and defence of Jesus Christ. Therefore what can there be so weighty in this life, or of so great force and power, that might feare us, as though we might fall from the love of God, wherewith he loveth us in Christ? Surely nothing, seeing that it is in it self most constant and sure, and also in us being confirmed by stedfast faith.

p Who pronounceth us not only guiltlesse but also perfitly just in his Sonne. q Wherewith Christ loveth us. * Psal. 44, 22. r We are not only not overcome with so great and many miseries and calamities, but also more than conquerours in all of them.

CHAP. IX.

1 Paul is sorie for the Jews. 7 All the seed of Abraham were not the children of the promise. 18 God hath mercy upon whom he will. 21 The potter may do with his clay what he list. 25 The calling of the Gentiles, and rejecting of the Jews were foretold. 32 The cause why so few Jews embraced the righteousnesse of faith.

I Say [1] the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience also bearing me witnesse in the holy Ghost.

2 That I have great heavinesse and continuall sorrow in my heart.

3 For I could wish that my self were [t] [a] accursed from Christ, for my brethren my kinsmen according to the [b] flesh:

4 Who are Israelites: to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the [c] glorie, and the [t] [d] covenants, and the giving of the [e] law, and the [f] service of God, and the [g] promises:

5 Whose are the fathers, and of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came, who is over all, [2] God blessed for ever. Amen.

6 [3] Not as though the word of God hath taken none effect. For they are not all [h] Israel, which are of Israel:

7 Neither because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children: [4] but in* [i] Isaac shall thy seed be called.

1 The third part of this epistle, even to the twelfth chapter, wherein Paul ascendeth to the higher causes of faith: and first of all, because he purposed to speak much of the casting off of the Jews, he useth an insinuation, declaring by a double or triple oath, and by witnessing of his great desire towards their salvation, his singular love towards them, and therewithall granting unto them all their prerogatives.

a The apostle loved his brethren so entirely, that if it had been possible, he would have been ready to have redeemed the casting away of the Israelites with the losse of his own soul for ever: for this word, Accursed, betokeneth as much in this place.

b Being brethren by flesh, as of one nation and countrey. c The ark of the covenant, which was a token of Gods presence. ‡ Or, testaments. d The tables of the covenant, and this is spoken by the figure metonymie. e Of the judiciall law. f The ceremoniall law. g Which were made to Abraham and to his posterity. 2 A most manifest testimony of the Godhead and divinity of Christ. 3 He entreth into the handling of predestination, by a kinde of preventing an objection: How may it be, that Israel is cast off, but that therewithall we must also make the covenant which God made with Abraham and his seed, frustrate and void? He answereth therefore, that Gods word is true, although that Israel be cast off, for the election of the people of Israel is so generall and common, that notwithstanding the same God chuseth by his secret counsel, such as it pleaseth him. So then, this is the proposition and state of this treatise: The grace of salvation is offered generally in such sort that notwithstanding it, the efficacie thereof pertaineth onely to the elect. h Israel in the first place, is taken for Jacob, and in the second, for the Israelites. 4 The first proof is taken from the example of Abrahams own house, wherein Isaac only was accounted the sonne, and that by Gods ordinance: although that Ismael also was born of Abraham, and circumcised before Isaac.

* Gen. 21, 12. i Isaac shall be thy true and naturall sonne, and therefore heire of thy blessing.

8 [5] That is, They which are the children of the [k] flesh, these are not the children of God: but the children of the [l] promise are counted for the seed.

9 [6] For this is the word of promise, * At this time will I come, and Sara shall have a sonne.

10 [7] And not only this, but when Rebecca also had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac,

11 (For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the [m] purpose of God according to election [8] might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth)

12 [9] It was said unto her, The * ‡ elder shall serve the ‡ younger.

13 As it is written, * Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated.

14 [10] What shall we say then? is there [n] unrighteousnesse with God? God forbid.

15 [11] For he saith to Moses, * I will have [o] mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have [p] compassion on whom I will have compassion.

16 [12] So then it is not of him that [q] willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy.

17 [13] For the [r] scripture saith unto Pharaoh, * Even for this same purpose have I [r] raised thee up, that I might [14] shew my power in thee, and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth.

18 [15] Therefore hath he mercy on whom [t] he will have mercy, and whom he will, he hardeneth.

19 [16] Thou wilt say then unto me, Why doth he yet finde fault? For who hath resisted his will?

20 [17] Nay, but O man, who art thou that ‡ replyest against God? * [18] shall the thing formed say to him that [u] formed it, Why hast thou made me thus?

21 [19] Hath not the * potter power over the clay, of the same lump to make one [20] vessel unto [x] honour, and another unto [21] dishonour?

22 [22] What if God, willing to shew his wrath, and to make his power known, endured with much long-suffering the [y] vessels of wrath ‡ fitted to [23] destruction:

23 And that he might make known the [z] riches of his glory on the vessels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory?

24 [24] Even us whom he hath called, not of the [a] Jews onely, but also of the Gentiles.

25 [25] As he saith also in Osee, * I will call them my people, which were not my people: and her, beloved, which was not beloved.

26 * And it shall come to passe, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people; there shall they be called, The children of the living God.

27 [26] Esaias also crieth concerning Israel, * Though the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved.

28 For he will finish ‡ the work, and cut it short in righteousnesse: because a [b] short work will the Lord make upon the earth.

29 And as Esaias said before, * Except the Lord of [c] sabaoth had left us a [d] seed, we had been as Sodoma, and been made like unto Gomorra.

30 [27] What shall we say then? That the Gen-5 A generall application of the former proof or example.

k Which are born of Abraham by the course of nature.
l Which are born by vertue of the promise.
6 A reason of that application: Because that Isaac was born by the vertue of the promise and therefore he was not chosen, nay, he was not at all, but by the free will of God: whereby it followeth, that the promise is the fountain of predestination, and not the flesh, from which promise the particular election proceedeth, that is, that the elect be born elect, and not that they be first born, and then after elected in respect of God who doth predestinate.
* Gen. 18, 10.
7 Another forcible proof taken from the example of Esau and Jacob, which were both born of the same Isaac, which was the son of the promise, of one mother, and at one birth, and not at divers, as Ismael and Isaac were: and yet notwithstanding, Esau being cast off, onely Jacob was chosen: and that before their birth, that neither any goodnesse of Jacobs, might be thought to be the cause of his election, neither any wickednesse of Esaus, of his casting away.
m Gods decree which proceedeth of his meer good will, whereby it pleaseth him to chuse one, and refuse the other.
8 Paul saith not, Might be made, but, Being made might remain. Therefore they are deceived which make foreseen faith the cause of election, and foreknown infidelitie the cause of reprobation.
9 He proveth the casting away of Esau, by that, that he was made servant to his brother: and proveth the chusing of Jacob, by that, that he was made lord of his brother, although his brother was the first begotten. And lest any man might take this saying of God, and referre it to externall things, the apostle sheweth out of Malachi, who is a good interpreter of Moses, that the servitude of Esau was joyned with the hatred of God, and the lordship of Jacob, with the love of God.
* Gen. 25, 23. ‡ Or, greater. ‡ Or, lesser. * Mal. 1. 2, 3.
10 The first objection, If God doth love or hate upon no consideration of worthinesse, or unworthinesse, then is he unjust, because he may love them which are unworthy, and hate them that are worthy. The apostle detesteth this blasphemie, and afterward answereth it severally, point by point.
n Mans wit knoweth no other causes of love or hatred, but those that are in the persons, and thereupon this objection riseth.
He answereth first, touching them which are chosen to salvation: in the chusing of whom he denieth that God may seem unjust, although he chuse and predestinate to salvation them that are not yet born, without any respect of worthinesse: because he bringeth not the chosen to the appointed end, but by the meanes of his mercy, which is a cause next under predestination. Now mercie presupposeth miserie, and again, miserie presupposeth sinne or voluntary corruption of mankinde, and corruption presupposeth a pure and perfect creation. Moreover, mercie is shewed by her degrees: to wit, by calling, by faith, by justification and sanctification, so that at length we come to glorification, as the apostle will shew afterward. Now all these things orderly following the purpose of God, doe clearely prove that he can by no means seem unjust in loving and saving his.
* Exod. 33, 19.
o I will be mercifull and favourable to whom I list to be favourable.
p I will have compassion on whomsoever I list to have compassion.
12 The conclusion of the answer: therefore God is not unjust in chusing and saving of his free goodnesse, such as it pleaseth him: as he also answered Moses when he prayed for all the people.
q By will, he meaneth the thought and endeavour of heart, and by running, good works, to neither of which he giveth the praise, but onely to the mercie of God.
13 Now he answereth concerning the reprobate, or them whom God hateth, being not yet born, and hath appointed to destruction without any respect of unworthinesse. And first of all he proveth this to be true, by alledging the ordinance of God himself, touching Pharaoh, whom he stirred up to this purpose, that he might be glorified in his hardening and just punishing.
r God so speaketh unto Pharaoh in the scripture, or, the scripture bringeth in God, so speaking to Pharaoh.
* Exod. 9, 16.
‡ Brought thee into this world.
14 Secondly, he bringeth the end of Gods counsel, to shew that there is no unrighteousnesse in him. Now this chiefest end is, not properly and simply the destruction of the wicked, but Gods glory which appeareth in their rightfull punishment.
15 A conclusion of the full answer to the first objection: therefore seeing God doth not save them whom he freely chose according to his good will and pleasure, but by justifying and sanctifying them by his grace, his counsel in saving them cannot seem unjust. And again there is no unjustice in the everlasting counsel of God, touching the destruction of them whom he listeth to destroy, for that he hardeneth before he destroyeth: Therefore the third answer for the maintenance of Gods justice in the everlasting counsel of reprobation, consisteth in this word, Hardening: which notwithstanding he concealed in the former verse, because the historie of Pharaoh was well known. But the force of the word is great, for hardning which is set against mercie, presupposeth the same things that mercy did, to wit, a voluntarie corruption, wherein the reprobates are hardened: and again, corruption presupposeth a perfect state of creation. Moreover, this hardening also is voluntary, for God so hardeneth, being offended with corruption, that he useth their own will whom he hardeneth, to the executing of that judgement. Then follow the fruits of hardening, to wit, unbelief and sinne, which are the true and proper causes of the condemnation of the reprobate. Why doeth he then appoint to destruction? Because he will: Why doth he harden? Because they are corrupt. Why doeth he condemn? Because they are sinners. Where is then unrighteousnesse? Nay, if he should destroy all after this sort, to whom should he doe injurie?
t Whom it pleased him to appoint to shew his favour upon.
16 Another objection, but onely for the reprobate, rising upon the former answer. It God doe appoint to everlasting destruction, such as he listeth, and if that cannot be hindered nor withstanded, that he hath once decreed, how doeth he justly condemn them, which perish by his will?
17 The apostle doth not answer that it is not Gods will, for that God doth not either reject or elect according to his pleasure, which thing the wicked call blasphemie, but he rather granteth his adversarie both the antecedents, to wit, that it is Gods will, and that it must of necessity so fall out, yet he denieth that God is therefore to be thought an unjust revenger of the wicked: for seeing it appeareth by manifest proof, that this is the will of God, and his doing, what impudencie is it for man, which is but dust and ashes, to dispute with God, and as it were to call him into judgement? Now if any man say that the doubt is not so dissolved and answered, I answer, that there is no farther demonstration in any matter, because it is grounded upon this principall, That the will of God is the rule of righteousnesse.
‡ Or, answerest again, or disputest with God.
* Isa. 45, 9.
18 An amplification of the former answer, taken from a comparison, whereby also it appeareth that Gods determinate counsel is set of Paul the highest of all causes: so that it dependeth not upon any respect of the second causes, but doth rather frame and direct them.
u This similitude agreeth very fitly to the first creation of mankinde.
19 Alluding to the creation of Adam, he compareth mankinde not yet made, (but in the creatours minde) to a lump of clay: whereof afterward God made and doth daily make according as he purposed from everlasting, both such as should be elect, and such as should be reprobate, as also this word, Making, declareth.
* Jer. 18, 6. Wisd. 15, 7.
20 Whereas in the objection propounded, mention was only made of vessels to dishonour, yet he speaketh of the other also in this answer, for that he proveth the Creatour to be just in either of them, as the rule of contraries requireth.
x To honest uses.
21 Seeing then, that in the name of dishonour, the ignominy of everlasting death is signified, they speak with Paul, which say, that some are made of God to most just destruction, and they that are offended with this kinde of speech bewray their own folly.
22 The second answer is this, that God, moreover and besides that he doth justly decree whatsoever he doth decree, useth that moderation in executing of his decrees as declareth his singular lenitie even in the reprobate, in that, that he suffereth them a long time, and permitteth them to enjoy many and singular benefits, until at length he justly condemne them: and that to good end and purpose, to wit to shew himself to be an enemie and revenger of wickednesse, that it may appeare what power he is of by these severe judgements, and finally by comparison of contraries to set forth indeed, how great his mercy is towards the elect.
y By vessels, the Hebrews understand all kindes of instruments.
‡ Or, made up.
23 Therefore again, we may say with Paul, That some men are made of God the creatour to destruction.
z The unmeasurable and marvellous greatnesse.
24 Having established the doctrine of the eternall predestination of God on both parts, that is, as well of the reprobate, as of the elect, he endeth now to shew the use of it, teaching us that we ought not to seek the testimonie of it in the secret counsel of God, but by the vocation which is made manifest, and set forth in the church, propounding unto us the example of the Jews and Gentiles, that the doctrine may be better perceived.
a He sayeth not that all and every one of the Jews are called, but some of the Jews, and some of the Gentiles.
25 Our vocation or calling is free, and of grace, even as our predestination is: and therefore there is no cause, why either our own unworthinesse, or the unworthinesse of our ancestors should cause us to think that we are not the elect and chosen of God, if we be called of him, and so embrace through faith the salvation that is offered us.
* Hos. 2, 23. 1 Pet. 2, 10. Hos. 1, 10.
26 Contrariwise. Neither any outward generall calling, neither any worthinesse of our ancestors, is a sufficient witnesse of election, unlesse by faith and belief we answer Gods calling: which thing came to passe in the Jews, as the Lord had forewarned.
* Isa. 10. 22, 23.
‡ Or, the account.
b God purposeth to bring the unkinde and unthankfull people to an extream fewnesse.
* Isa. 1, 9.
c Armies, by which word, the chiefest power that is, is given to God.
d Even a very few.
27 The declaration and manifestation of our election, is our calling, apprehended by faith, as it came to passe in the Gentiles.

tiles

142 tiles which followed not after [c] righteouſneſſe, have attained to righteouſneſſe, even the righteouſneſſe which is of faith:

31 [28] But Iſrael, which followed after the law of righteouſneſſe, hath not attained to the law of righteouſneſſe.

32 Wherefore? Becauſe they ſought it, not by faith, but as it were by the [f] works of the law: for they ſtumbled at that ſtumbling ſtone, 33 As it is written, * Behold, I lay in Sion a ſtumbling ſtone, and rock of offence: and whoſoever beleeveth on him, ſhall not be ‡ aſhamed.

c So then the Gentiles had no works to prepare and procure Gods mercy beforehand: and as for that the Gentiles attained to that which they ſought not for, the mercy of God is to be thanked for it: and in that the Jews attained not to that which they ſought after, they can thank none for it but themſelves, becauſe they ſought it not aright.

28 The pride of men is the cauſe that they contemn vocation, ſo that the cauſe of their damnation need not to be ſought for any other where but in themſelves. f Seeking to come by righteouſneſſe, they followed the law of righteouſneſſe. * Iſa. 8, 14. and 28, 16. 1 Pet. 2, 6. ‡ Or, confounded.

CHAP. X.

5 The ſcripture ſheweth the difference betwixt the righteouſneſſe of the law, and this of faith, 11 and that all, both Jew and Gentile, that beleeve, ſhall not be confounded, 18 and that the Gentiles ſhall receive the word, and beleeve. 19 Iſrael was not ignorant of theſe things.

BRethren [1] my hearts deſire and prayer to God for Iſrael is, that they might be ſaved.

2 For I bear them record, that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge.

3 [2] For they [a] being ignorant of Gods righteouſneſſe, and going about to [b] eſtabliſh their own righteouſneſſe, have not ſubmitted themſelves unto the righteouſneſſe of God.

4 [3] For Chriſt is the [c] end of the law for righteouſneſſe to [d] every one that beleeveth.

5 [4] For Moſes deſcribeth the righteouſneſſe which is of the law, that * the man which doth thoſe things, ſhall live by them.

6 But the righteouſneſſe which is of faith, ſpeaketh on this wiſe, * [e] Say not in thine heart, Who ſhall aſcend into heaven? (that is to bring Chriſt down from above)

7 Or who ſhall deſcend into the deep? (that is to bring up Chriſt again from the dead) [f]

8 [5] But what ſaith it? * [f] The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is the word of faith which we preach.

9 [6] That if thou ſhalt [g] confeſſe with thy mouth the Lord Jeſus, and ſhalt beleeve in thine heart, that [h] God hath raiſed him from the dead, thou ſhalt be ſaved.

10 For with the heart man [i] beleeveth unto righteouſneſſe, and with the mouth confeſſion is made unto ſalvation.

11 [7] For the ſcripture ſaith, * Whoſoever [k] beleeveth on him, ſhall not be aſhamed.

12 For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the ſame Lord over all, is rich unto all that call upon him.

13 * [8] For whoſoever ſhall call upon the name of the Lord, ſhall be ſaved:

14 How then ſhall they call on him in whom they have not beleeved? [9] and how ſhall they beleeve in him of whom they have not heard? and how ſhall they heare without a preacher?

15 And how ſhall they preach, except they be ſent? as it is written? * How beautifull are the feet of them that preach the goſpel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!

16 [10] But they have not [l] all obeyed the goſpel. For Eſaias ſaith, * Lord, who hath beleeved † our ‡ report?

17 [11] So then, faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by [m] the word of God.

18 [12] But I ſay, Have they not heard? Yes verily, * their ſound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world.

19 [13] But I ſay, Did not Iſrael know? Firſt, Moſes ſaith, * I will provoke you to jealouſie, by them that are [n] no people, and by a foolish nation I will anger you.

20 But Eſaias is very [o] bold, and ſaith, * I was found of them that ſought me not: I was made manifeſt unto them that asked not after me.

21 But to Iſrael he ſaith, * All day long I have ſtretched forth my hands unto a diſobedient and gain-ſaying people.

1 Purpoſing to ſet forth in the Jews an example of marvellous obſtinacie, he uſeth an inſinuation.

2 The firſt entrance into the vocation unto ſalvation, is to renounce our own righteouſneſſe: the next is to embrace that righteouſneſſe by faith, which God freely offereth us in the goſpel.

a The ignorance of the law which we ought to know, excuſeth none before God, eſpecially it excuſeth not them that are of his houſhold.

b Ignorance hath alway pride joyned with it.

3 The proof: the law it ſelf hath reſpect unto Chriſt, that ſuch as beleeve in him ſhould be ſaved. Therefore the calling to ſalvation by the works of the law, is vain and foolish: but Chriſt is offered for ſalvation to every beleever.

c The end of the law is, to juſtifie them that keep the law: but ſeeing we do not obſerve the law through the fault of our fleſh, we attain not not this end: but Chriſt ſalveth this diſeaſe, for he fulfilled the law for us. d Not onely to the Jews, but alſo to the Gentiles. 4 That the law regardeth and tendeth to Chriſt, this is a manifeſt proof, for that it popoundeth ſuch a condition as can be, and is fulfilled of none but of Chriſt onely: which being imputed unto us by faith, our conſcience is quieted, ſo that now no man can ask, who can aſcend up into heaven, or bring us from hell, ſeeing the goſpel teacheth that both of theſe is done by Chriſt, and that for their ſakes, which with true faith embrace him which calleth them. * Levit. 18, 5. Ezek 20, 11. Gal. 3, 12. * Deut. 30, 12. e Think not with thy ſelf, as men that are ſtaggering uſe to doe. 5 Vocation cometh by the word preached. * Deut. 30, 14. f By the word, Moſes underſtood the law which the Lord publiſhed with his own voice: and Paul applieth it to the preaching of the goſpel, which was the perfection of the law. 6 That is, indeed true faith which is ſetled not onely in the head, but alſo in the heart of man, whereof alſo we give teſtimonie by outward life, and which tendeth to Chriſt as to our alone and onely Saviour, even as he ſetteth forth himſelf in his word. g If thou profeſſe plainly, ſincerely, and openly, that thou takeſt Jeſus only to be thy Lord and Saviour. h The Father who is ſaid to have raiſed the Sonne from the dead: and this is not ſpoken to ſhut out the divinitie of the Sonne: but to ſet forth the Fathers counſel touching our redemption in the reſurrection of the Sonne. i Faith is ſaid to juſtifie, and furthermore ſeeing the confeſſion of the mouth, is an effect of faith, and confeſſion is the way to come to ſalvation, it followeth that faith is alſo ſaid to ſave. 7 Now he proveth the other part which he propounded afore in the fourth verſe, to wit, that Chriſt calleth whomſoever he liſteth without any difference, and this he confirmeth by a double teſtimonie. * Iſai 28, 16.

k To beleeve in God, is to yeeld and conſent to Gods his promiſe of our ſalvation by Chriſt, and that not onely in generall, but when we know that the promiſes pertain to us, whereupon riſeth a ſure truſt. * Joel 2, 32. Acts 2, 21.

8 True calling upon the name of God is the teſtimonie of true faith, and true faith of true vocation or calling, and true calling of true election.

9 That is, true faith, which ſeeketh God in his word, and that preached: according as God hath appointed in the church. * Iſa. 52, 7. Nahum 1, 15.

10 Whereſoever faith is, there is alſo the word, but not contrariwiſe, whereſoever the word is, there is faith alſo: for many refuſe and reject the word. l He ſpeaketh this becauſe of the Jews. * Iſa. 53, 1. John 12, 38.

† Gr. the hearing of us. ‡ Or, preaching.

11 A concluſion of the former gradation: we muſt aſcend from faith to our vocation, as by our vocation we came to the teſtimonie of our election.

m By Gods commandement. 12 An objection: If calling be a teſtimonie of election, were not the Jews called? why ſhould I not grant that, ſaith the apoſtle, ſeeing that there is no nation which hath not been called? much leſſe can I ſay, that the Jews were not called * Pſal. 19, 4. 13 The defender and maintainer of the Jews cauſe, goeth on ſtill to ask, whether the Jews alſo knew not God which called them, Eſai (ſaith the apoſtle) denieth it: and witneſſeth that the goſpel was tranſlated from them to the gentiles, becauſe the Jews neglected it. And there withall the apoſtle teacheth, that that outward and univerſall calling, which is ſet forth by the creation of the world, ſufficeth not to the knowledge of God: yea, and that the particular alſo which is by the word of God, is of it ſelf of ſmall or no efficacie, unleſſe it be apprehended or laid hold on by faith, by the gift of God, otherwiſe by unbelief it is made unprofitable, and that by the onely fault of man, who can pretend no ignorance. * Deut. 32, 21.

n He calleth all prophane people, becauſe not being the Lords people, they are as no people.

o Speaketh without feare. * Iſa. 65, 1. * Iſa. 65, 2.

CHAP. XI.

1 God hath not caſt off all Iſrael. 7 Some were elected though the reſt were hardened. 16 There is hope of their converſion. 18 The Gentiles may not inſult upon them. 26 For there is a promiſe of their ſalvation. 33 Gods judgements are unſearchable.

I Say then, [1] Hath God caſt away his people? God forbid. For [2] I alſo am an Iſraelite of the ſeed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

2 [3] God hath not caſt away his people which he [a] foreknew. [4] Wot ye not what the ſcripture ſaith of Elias? how he maketh interceſſion to God againſt Iſrael, ſaying,

3 * Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged

1 Now the apoſtle ſheweth how this doctrine is to be applied to others, abiding ſtill in his propounded cauſe. Therefore he teacheth us, that all the Jews in particular, are not caſt away, and therefore we ought not to pronounce rashly of private perſons, whether they be of the number of the elect, or not. 2 The firſt proof: I am a Jew and yet elected, therefore we may, and ought fully to reſolve upon our election, as hath been before ſaid: but of another mans we cannot be ſo certainly reſolved, and yet ours may cauſe us to hope well of others. 3 The ſecond proof: Becauſe that God is faithfull in his league or covenant, although men be unfaithfull: ſo then, ſeeing that God hath ſaid, that he will be the God of his unto a thouſand generations, we muſt take heed, that we think not that the whole race and off ſpring is caſt off, by reaſon of the unbelief of a few, but rather that we hope well of every member of the church, becauſe of Gods league and covenant. a Which he loved and choſe from everlaſting. 4 The third proof taken from the anſwer that was made to Elias: even then alſo, when there appeare openly to the face of the world no elect, yet God knew his elect and choſen, and of them alſo great ſtore and number. Whereupon this alſo is concluded, that we ought not raſhly to pronounce of any man as of a reprobate, ſeeing that the church is oftentimes brought to that ſtate, that even the moſt watchfull and ſharp ſighted paſtours, think it to be clean extinct and put out. * 1 Kings 19, 14.

digged down thine altars, and I am left alone, and they ſeek my life.

4 But what ſaith the anſwer of God unto him? * I have [b] reſerved to my ſelf ſeven thouſand men, who have not bowed the knee to the image of [c] Baal.

5 Even ſo then at this preſent time alſo there is a remnant according to the [d] election of grace.

6 [s] And if by grace, then is it [e] no more of works: otherwiſe grace is no more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace, otherwiſe work is no more work.

7 What then? Iſrael hath not obtained that which he ſeeketh for, but the election hath obtained it, and the reſt were ‡ [f] blinded:

8 [6] According as it is written, * God hath given them the ſpirit of ‡ [g] ſlumber, * eyes that they [h] ſhould not ſee, and eares that they ſhould not heare unto this day.

9 And David ſaith, * [i] Let their table be made a ſnare, and a trap, and a ſtumbling block, and a recompenſe unto them.

10 * Let their eyes be darkened, that they may not ſee, and bowe down their back alway.

11 [7] I ſay then, Have they ſtumbled that they ſhould fall? God forbid: but rather through their fall ſalvation is come unto the Gentiles for to provoke them to jealouſie.

12 Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the ‡ diminiſhing of them the [k] riches of the Gentiles: how much more their [l] fulneſſe?

13 [8] For I ſpeak to you Gentiles, in as much as I am the apoſtle of the Gentiles, [m] I magnifie mine office:

14 If by any means I may provoke to emulation, them which are my flesh, and might ſave ſome of them.

15 For if the caſting away of them be the reconciling of the world: what ſhall the receiving of them be, [n] but life from the dead?

16 [9] For if the [o] firſt-fruit be holy, the lump is alſo holy: and if the root [p] be holy, ſo are the branches.

17 [10] And if ſome of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wilde olive-tree, wert graffed in ‡ [q] amongſt them, and with them [r] partakeſt of the root and fatneſſe of olive-tree:

18 [s] Boaſt not againſt the branches: but if thou boaſt, thou beareſt not the root, but the root thee.

19 Thou wilt ſay then, The branches were broken off, that I might be graffed in.

20 Well: becauſe of unbelief they were broken off, and thou ſtandeſt by faith. Be not high minded, but [t] fear.

21 For if God ſpared not the [u] naturall branches, take heed leſt he alſo ſpare not thee.

22 [11] Behold therefore the [x] goodneſſe, and ſeveritie of God: on them which fell, ſeveritie; but towards thee, [y] goodneſſe, if thou continue in his goodneſſe: otherwiſe thou alſo ſhalt be cut off.

23 [12] And they alſo, if they bide not ſtill in unbelief, ſhall be graffed in: for God is able to graff them in again.

24 For if thou wert cut out of the olive-tree which is wilde by [z] nature, and wert graffed contrarie to nature into a [a] good olive-tree: how much more ſhall theſe which be the naturall branches, be graffed into their own olive-tree?

25 [13] For I would not, brethren, that ye ſhould be ignorant of this myſterie (leſt ye ſhould be wiſe in your own [b] conceits) that ‡ blindneſſe in part is happened to Iſrael, untill the fulneſſe of the Gentiles be [c] come in.

26 And ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved, as it is written. * There ſhall come out of Sion the deliverer, and ſhall turn away ungodlineſſe from Jacob.

27 For this is my covenant unto them, when I ſhall take away their ſinnes.

28 [14] As concerning the [d] goſpel, they are enemies for your ſake: but as touching the [e] election, they are beloved for the fathers ſake.

29 [15] For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

30 [16] For as ye in times paſt have not ‡ beleeved God, yet have now obtained mercie through their unbelief:

31 Even ſo have theſe alſo now not ‡ beleeved, that through your mercie they alſo may obtain mercie.

* 1 Kings 19, 18.
b He ſpeaketh of remnants and reſerved people which were choſen from everlaſting, and not of remnants that ſhould be choſen afterward, for they are not choſen, becauſe they were not idolaters: but therefore they were not idolaters, becauſe they were choſen and elect.
c Baal ſignifieth as much as Maſter or Patron, or one in whoſe power another is, which name the idolaters at this day give their idols, naming them Patrons, and Patroneſſes, or Ladies.
d The election of grace is not whereby men choſe grace, but whereby God choſe us of his grace and goodneſſe.
5 Although that all be not elect and choſen, yet let them that are elected, remember that they are freely choſen: and let them that ſtubbornly refuſe the grace and free mercy of God, impute it unto themſelves.
e This ſaying, beateth down flat to the ground all the doctrine of all kindes and manner of works, whereby our juſtifiers of themſelves doe teach, that works are either wholly, or partly the cauſe of our juſtification.
‡ Or, hardened.
f Look Mark 3, 5.
6 And yet this hardneſſe of heart cometh not but by Gods juſt decree and judgement: and yet without fault, when as he ſo puniſheth the unthankfull by taking from them all ſenſe and perſeverance, and by doubling their darkneſſe, that the benefits of God which are offered unto them, doe redound to their juſt deſtruction.
* Iſa. 29, 10.
‡ Or, remorſe.
g A very dead ſleep, which taketh away all ſenſe.
* Iſa. 6, 9.
h That is, eyes unfit to ſee.
* Pſal. 69, 22.
i As unhappie birds are inticed to death by that which is their ſuſtenance, ſo did that only thing turn to the Jews deſtruction, out of which they ſought life, to wit, the law of God, for the prepoſterous zeal whereof they refuſed the goſpel.
* Pſal. 69, 23.
7 God appointed this caſting off the Jews, that it might be an occaſion to call the Gentiles: and again, might turn this calling of the Gentiles, to be an occaſion to reſtore the Jews, to wit, that they being inflamed and provoked by emulation of the Gentiles, might themſelves at length embrace the goſpel. And hereby we may learn, that the ſeveritie of God ſerveth as well to the ſetting forth of his glorie, as his mercy doth, and alſo that God preparеth himſelf a way to mercie, by his ſeveritie: ſo that we ought not raſhly to deſpaire of any man, nor proudly triumph over other men, but rather provoke them to an holy emulation, that God may be glorified in them alſo.
‡ Or, decay, or loſſe.
k By riches, he meaneth the knowledge of the goſpel, to everlaſting life: and by the world, all nations diſperſed throughout the whole world.
l Of the Jews, when the whole nation, without exception ſhall come to Chriſt.
8 He witneſſeth by his own example, that he goeth before all other in this behalf.
m I make noble and famous.
n It ſhall come to paſſe, that when the Jews come to the goſpel, the world ſhall, as it were, quicken again, and riſe up from death to life.
9 The nation of the Jews being conſidered in their ſtock, and root, that is, in Abraham, is holy, although that many of the branches be cut off. Therefore in judging of our brethren, we muſt not ſtick in their unworthineſſe, to think that they are at once all caſt off, but we ought to conſider the root of the covenant, and rather go back to their anceſtors which were faithfull that we may know that the bleſſing of the covenant reſteth in ſome of their poſteritie, as we alſo finde proof hereof in our ſelves.
o He alludeth to the firſt fruits of thoſe loaves, by the offering whereof all the whole crop of corn was ſanctified, and they might uſe the reſt of the yeare following with good conſcience.
p Abraham.
10 There is no cauſe why the Gentiles which have obtained mercie, ſhould triump over the Jews which contemn the grace of God, ſeeing they are graffed into the Jews anceſtors. But let them rather take heed, that that alſo be not found in them which is worthily condemned in the Jews. And hereof alſo this generall doctrine may be gathered and taken, that we ought to be ſtudious of Gods glorie, even in reſpect of our neighbours: ſo far ought we to be from bragging and glorying, for that, that we are preferred before others by a ſingular grace.
‡ Or, for them.
q In place of theſe boughs which are broken off.
r It is againſt the common courſe of husbandrie, that the barren juyce of the imp is changed with the juyce of the good tree.
s We may rejoyce in the Lord, but ſo that we deſpiſe not the Jews, whom we ought rather to provoke to that good ſtriving with us.
‡ See that thou ſtand in awe of God modeſtly and carefully.
u He calleth them naturall, not becauſe they had any holineſſe of nature, but becauſe they were born of them whom the Lord ſet apart for himſelf from other nations, by his league and covenant, which he freely made with them.
11 Seeing the matter is ſelf declareth that election cometh not by inheritance (although the fault be in men, and not in God, why the bleſſing of God is not perpetuall) we muſt take good heed that that be not found in our ſelves, which we think blameworthy in others, for the election is ſure, but they that are truely elect and ingraffed, are not proud in themſelves with contempt of other, but with due reverence to God, and love towards their neighbour, run to the mark which is ſet before them.
x The tender and loving heart.
y In that ſtate which God his bountifullneſſe hath advanced thee unto, and we muſt mark here, that he ſpeaketh not of the election of every private man, which remaineth ſtedfaſt for ever but of the election of the whole nation.
12 Many are now for a ſeaſon cut off, that is, are without the root which in their time ſhall be graffed in: and againe there are a great ſort, which after a ſort, and touching the outward ſhew, ſeem to be ingraffed, which notwithſtanding through their own fault afterward are cut off, and clean caſt away: Which thing is eſpecially to be conſidered in nations and peoples as in the Gentiles and Jews.
z Underſtand nature, not as it was firſt made, but as it was corrupted in Adam, and ſo derived from him to his poſteritie.
a Into the people of the Jews, which God had ſanctified of his meer grace: and he ſpeaketh of the whole nation, not of every one apart.
13 The blindneſſe of the Jews is neither ſo univerſall, that the Lord hath no elect in that nation, neither ſhall it be continuall: for there ſhall be a time wherein they alſo (as the prophets have fore warned) ſhall effectually embrace that, which they doe now ſtubbornly, for the moſt part, reject and refuſe.
b That ye be not proud within your ſelves.
‡ Or, hardneſſe.
c Into the church.
* Iſa. 59, 20.
14 Again, that he may joyn the Jews and Gentiles together as it were in one body, and eſpecially may teach what duetie the Gentiles owe to the Jews, he beateth this into their heads, that the nation of the Jews is not utterly caſt off without hope of recoverie.
d Foraſmuch as they receive it not.
e In that that God reſpecteth not what they deſerve, but what he promiſed to Abraham.
15 The reaſon or proof, becauſe the covenant made with that nation of life everlaſting, cannot be fruſtrate and vain.
16 Another reaſon: Becauſe that although they which are hardned, are worthily puniſhed, yet hath not this ſtubbornneſſe of the Jews ſo come to paſſe properly for an hatred to that nation, but that an entrie might be, as it were, opened to bring in the Gentiles, and afterward the Jews, being inflamed with emulation of that mercie which is ſhewed to the Gentiles, might themſelves alſo be partakers of the ſame benefit, and ſo it might appeare that both Jews and Gentiles are ſaved only by the free mercy and grace of God, which could not have been ſo manifeſt, if at the beginning God had brought all together into the church, or if he had ſaved the nation of the Jews without this interruption.
‡ Or, obeyed.
‡ Or, obeyed.

32 For God hath ‡ concluded them f all in unbelief, that he might have mercie upon all.

33 17 O the depth of the riches both of the wisdome and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his g judgements, and his h wayes past finding out!

34 * 18 For who hath known the minde of the Lord, or who hath been his counseller?

35 Or who hath i first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again?

36 For of him, and through him, and k to him are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen.

‡ Or, shut them all up together.
f Both Jews and Gentiles.
17 The apostle cryeth out as astonished with this wonderfull wisdome of God, which he teacheth us, ought to be religiously reverenced, and not curiously, and profanely to be searched beyond the compasse of that, that God hath revealed unto us.
g The course that he holdeth in governing all things both generally and particularly. h The order of his counsels and doings. * Isa. 40, 13. Wisd. 9, 13. 1 Cor. 2, 16. 18 He bridleth three manner of wayes, the wicked boldnesse of man: First, because that God is above all most wise, and therefore it is very absurd, and plainly godlesse to measure him by our follie. Moreover, because he is debtour to no man, and therefore no man can complain of injurie done unto him. Thirdly, because all things are made for his glory, and therefore we must referre all things to his glorie, much lesse may we contend and debate the matter with him. i This saying overthroweth the doctrine of foreseen works and merits. k To wit, for God, to whose glorie all things are referred, not only things that were made, but especially his new works which he worketh in his elect.

Chap. XII.

1 Gods mercies must move us to please God. 3 No man must think too well of himself, 6 but attend every one on that calling, wherein he is placed. 9 Love, and many other duties are required of us. 19 Revenge is specially forbidden.

I Beseech 1 you therefore, brethren, a by the mercies of God, that ye b present your c bodies d a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your e reasonable service.

2 2 And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your f minde, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable and perfect will of God.

3 3 For g I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself h more highly than he ought to think, but to think ‡ i soberly according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of k faith.

4 4 For as we have many members in one bodie, and all members have not the same office:

5 So we being many are one bodie in Christ, and every one members one of another.

6 5 Having then gifts, differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophesie, let us prophesie according to the l proportion of faith.

7 Or ministerie, let us wait on our ministring: or he that m teacheth, on teaching:

1 The fourth part of this epistle, which after finishing of the chief points of Christian doctrin, consisteth in declaring of precepts of Christian life. And first of all he giveth generall precepts and grounds, the chiefest whereof is this, that every man consecrate himself wholly to the spirituall service of God, and so as it were sacrifice himself, trusting to the grace of God.
a By this preface he sheweth that Gods glory is the utmost end of all our doings.
b In times past the sacrifices were presented before the altar: but now the altar is every where.
c Your selves: in times past, other bodies than our own now our own must be offered.
d In time past, dead sacrifices were offered, but now we must offer such as have the spirit of life in them. e Spirituall. 2 The second precept is this, That we take not other mens opinions or manners for a rule of life, but that we wholly renouncing this world, set before us as a mark, the will of God as it is manifested and opened unto us in his word. f Why then there is no place left for reason, which the heathen philosophers places as a queen in a castell, nor for mans free will, which the popish schoolmen dream on, if the minde must be renewed, Look Ephes. 1, 18. and 2, 3. and 4, 17. and Col. 1, 21. 3 Thirdly, he admonisheth us very earnestly, that every man keep himself within the bounds of his vocation, and that every man be wise according to the measure of grace that God hath given him. g I charge. h That he please not himself too much, as they do, which perswade themselves they know more than indeed they doe. † Gr. to sobrietie. i We shall be sober, if we take not that upon us, which we have not, and if we brag not of that we have. k By faith he meaneth the knowledge of God in Christ, and the gifts which the Holy Ghost powreth upon the faithfull. 4 There is a double reason of the precept going afore: the one is, because God hath not commited every thing to be done of every man: and therefore he doth backwardly, and not only unprofitably, but also to the great disprofit of others, wearieth himself and others, which passeth the bounds of his vocation: the other is, for that this diversitie and inequalitie of vocations and gifts redoundeth to our commoditie: seeing that the same is therefore instituted and appointed, that we should be bound one to another. Whereupon it followeth, that no man ought to be grieved thereat, seeing that the use of every private gift is common. 5 That which he spake before in generall, he applieth particularly to the holy functions, wherein men offend with great danger. And he divideth them into two parts: to wit, into prophets and deacons: and again, he divideth the prophets into doctours and pastours. And of deacons he maketh three sorts, to wit, the one to be such as are (as it were) treasures of the church coffers, whom he calleth properly Deacons: the other to be the governours of the discipline, who are called Seniours, or elders: the third, to be such as properly served in the help of the poore, of which sort the company of widows were. l That every man observe the measure of that which is revealed unto him. m Whose office is only to expound the Scriptures.

8 Or he that n exhorteth, on exhortation: he that o giveth, let him do it ‡ with simplicitie: he that p ruleth, with diligence: he that q sheweth mercie, with cheerfulnesse.

9 6 Let love be without dissimulation: abhorre that which is evil, cleave to that which is good.

10 Be kindly affectioned one to another, ‡ with brotherly love, in honour preferring one another.

11 Not slothfull in businesse: r fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.

12 7 Rejoying in hope, patient in tribulation, continuing instant in prayer.

13 s Distributing to the t necessitie of saints, given to hospitalite.

14 Blesse them which persecute you, blesse and curse not.

15 Rejoyce with them that do rejoyce, and weep with them that weep.

16 Be of the same minde one towards another. Minde not high things, but ‡ condescend to men of u low estate. Be x not wise in your own conceits.

17 Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men.

18 If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men.

19 Dearly beloved, avenge not your selves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, * Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord.

q They that are busied about tending on the poore, must doe it with cheerfullnesse, lest they adde sorrow to sorrow.
6 Now he cometh to the duties, of the second table, which he deriveth from charity, which is, as it were, the fountain of them all. And he defineth Christian charity, by sinceritie, hatred of evil, earnest study of good things, good affection to help our neighbour, and whose finall end is the glory of God.
‡ Or, in the love of the brethren.
r This piece is well put in for it maketh difference between Christian duties and philosophicall duties.
7 He reckoneth up divers other vertues together with their effects, to wit, hope, patience in tribulation equanimity, continuance in prayer, liberalitie toward the saints, hospitalitie, moderation of mind, even in helping our enemies, a self same feeling with others, as well in adversitie as prosperitie, modestie, endeavour to maintain honest concord, so nigh as we may with all men, which cannot be extinguished by any mans injuries. s A true rule of charitie, when we are no lesse touched with other mens wants, than with our own, and having that feeling, help them as much as we can. t Not upon pleasures and needlesse duties, but upon necessarie uses. ‡ Or, be contented with mean things. u There is nothing that doth so much break concord as ambition, when as every man lotheth a base estate, and seeketh ambitiously to be aloft. x Be not puffed up with opinion of your own wisdome. * Deut. 32, 35. * Prov. 25, 21. y After this sort doeth Solomon point out the wrath of God that hangeth over a man.

Chap. XIII.

1 Subjection, and many other duties we owe to the magistrates. 8 Love is the fulfilling of the law. 11 Gluttony and drunkennesse, and the works of darknesse, are out of season in the time of the gospel.

LEt 1 every a soul be subject unto the higher b powers. 3 For there is no power but of God: the powers that be, are ‡ b ordained of God.

2 Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist, shall receive to themselves damnation.

3 4 For rulers are not a terrour to good works, but to the evil: 5 wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same.

4 For he is the minister of God to thee for good: 6 but if thou do that which is evil, be

1 Now he sheweth severally what subjects owe to their magistrates, to wit, obedience: from which he sheweth that no man is free: and in such sort, that it is not only due to the highest magistrate himself, but also even to the basest, which hath any office under him.
a Yea though an apostle, though an euangelist, though a prophet: Chrysostome. Therefore the tyrannie of the pope over all kingdomes, must down to the ground. 2 A reason taken of the nature of the thing it self: For to what purpose are they placed in higher degree, but that the inferiours should be subject unto them? 3 Another argument of great force: Because God is author of this order: so that such as are rebels, ought to know, that they make warre with God himself: wherefore they cannot but purchase to themselves great miserie and calamitie. ‡ Or, ordered. b Be distributed: for some are greater, some smaller. 4 The third argument, taken from the end wherefore they were made, which is most profitable: for that God by this means preserveth the good, and bridleth the wicked: by which words, the magistrates themselves are put in mind of that dutie which they owe to their subjects. 5 An excellent way to bear this yoke, not only without grief but also with a great profit. 6 God hath armed the magistrat even with a revenging sword.

afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain: for he is the minister of God, [c] a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil.

5 [7] Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not onely for wrath, but [d] also for conscience sake.

6 [8] For this cause pay you tribute also: for they are Gods ministers, attending continually upon this very thing.

7 Render therefore to all their dues, tribute to whom tribute is due, custome to whom custome, [e] fear to whom fear, honour to whom [f] honour.

8 [9] Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: [10] for he that loveth another, hath fulfilled the [g] law.

9 For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witnesse, Thou shalt not covet: and if there be any other commandment, it is [h] briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy self.

10 Love worketh no ill to his neighbour, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

11 [11] And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we beleeved.

12 The night is farre spent, the day is [i] at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of [k] darknesse, and let us put on the armour of light.

13 Let us walk † honestly as in the day, not in rioting and drunkennesse, not in chambering and wantonnesse, not in strife and envying.

14 But [l] put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof.

c By whom God revengeth the wicked.
7 The conclusion: We must obey the magistrate, not onely for feare of punishment, but much more because that (although the magistrate hath no power over the conscience of man, yet seeing he is Gods minister) he cannot be resisted by any good conscience.
d So farre as lawfully we may: for if unlawfull things be commanded us, we must answer as Peter teacheth us, It is better to obey God than men.
8 He reckoneth up the chiefest things wherein consisteth the obedience of subjects.
e Obedience, and that from the heart.
f Reverence, which (as reason is) we must give to the magistrate.
9 He sheweth how very few judgements need to be executed, to wit, if wee so order our life as no man may justly require any thing of us, besides that onely, that we owe one to another, by the perpetuall law of charitie.
10 He commendeth charitie, as an abridgement of the whole law.
g Hath not onely done one commandement, but performed generally that which the law commandeth.
h For the whole law commandeth nothing else, but that we love God, and our neighbour.
i But seeing Paul speaketh here of the duties we owe one to another, we must restrain this word, law, to the second table.
11 An amplification taken of the circumstance of the time: which also it self putteth us in mind of our duetie, seeing that this remaineth, after that the darknesse of ignorance and wicked afflictions by the knowledge of Gods trueth be driven out of us, that we order our life according to that certain and sure rule of all righteousnesse and honestie, being fully grounded upon the vertue of the Spirit of Christ.
i In other places we are said to be in the light, but yet so, that it appeareth not as yet what we are, for as yet we see, but as it were in the twilight.
k That kinde of life which they lead, that flee the light.
‡ Or, decently.
l To put on Christ, is to possesse Christ, to have him in us, and us in him.

Chap. XIIII.

3 Men may not contemne nor condemne one the other for things indifferent: 13 but take heed that they give no offence in them: 15 For that the apostle proveth unlawfull by many reasons.

1 [1] Him [a] that is weak in the faith receive you, but † not to [b] doubtfull disputations.

2 [2] For one [c] beleeveth that he may eat all things: another who is weak, eateth herbs.

3 [3] Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, judge him that eateth. For [4] God hath received him.

1 Now he sheweth how we ought to behave our selves toward our brethren in matters and things indifferent, offending in the use of them, not of malice, or damnable superstition, but for lack of knowledge of the benefit of Christ. And thus he teacheth that they are to be instructed gently, and patiently, and so that we apply our selves to their ignorance in such matters, according to the rule of charitie.
a Doe not for a matter or thing that is indifferent, and such as you may doe or not doe, shun his company but take him to you.
‡ Or, not to judge his doubtfull thoughts.
b To make him by your doubtfull and uncertain disputations, goe away more in doubt than he came, or start back with a troubled conscience.
2 He propoundeth for an example the diffetence of meats, which some thought was necessarily to be observed, as a thing prescribed by the law (not knowing that it was taken away) whereas on the contrary side, such as had profited in the knowledge of the gospel, knew well that this schoolmastership of the law was abolished.
c Knoweth by faith.
3 In such a matter, saith the apostle, let neither them which know their libertie, proudly despise their weak brother, neither let the unlearned crabbedly or forwardly condemne that, that they understand not.
4 The first reason: Because that seeing both he that eateth, and he that eateth not, is notwithstanding the member of Christ, neither he which eateth not, can justly be contemned, neither he which eateth, be justly condemned: Now the first proposition is declared in the sixt verse following.

4 [5] Who art thou that judgest another mans servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth. Yea, he shall be holden up? for God is able to make him stand.

5 [6] One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. [7] Let [d] every man be ‡ fully perswaded in his own mind.

6 [8] He that [e] regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the LORD; and he that regardeth not the day, to the [f] Lord he doth not regard it. He that [g] eateth, eateth to the Lord, [9] for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth [h] not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.

7 [10] For none of us liveth to [i] himself, and no man dieth to himself.

8 For whether we live, we live unto the Lord: and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lords.

9 For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.

10 [11] But why doest thou judge thy brother? or why doest thou set at nought thy brother? * we shall all stand before the judgement-seat of Christ.

11 For it is written, *[k] As I live saith the Lord, every knee shall bowe to me, and every tongue shall [l] confesse to God.

12 So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God:

13 [12] Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge [m] this rather, that no man put a stumblingblock, or an occasion to fall in his brothers way.

14 [13] I know, and am perswaded by the [n] Lord Jesus, that there is nothing † unclean of [o] it self:

5 Another reason which hangeth upon the former: why the ruder and more unlearned ought not to be condemned of the more skilfull, as men without hope of salvation: because saith, the apostle, he that is ignorant to day, may be indued to morrow with further knowledge, or that he may also stand sure: Therefore it belongeth to God and not unto man, to pronounce that sentence of condemnation.
6 Another example of the difference of dayes according to the law.
7 He setteth against this contempt, and hastie or rash judgements, a continuall desire to profit, that the strong may be certainly perswaded of their libertie, of what manner and sort it is and how they ought to use it: and again the weak may daily profite, least either they abuse the gift of God, or these please themselves in their infirmitie.
d That he may say in his conscience, that he knoweth and is perswaded by Jesus Christ, that nothing is unclean of it self, and this perswasion must be grounded upon the word of God.
‡ Or, fully assured.
8 A reason taken from the nature of indifferent things, which a man may with a good conscience doe, and omit: forseeing that the difference of dayes and meats was appointed by God, how could they which as yet understood not the abrogating of the law, and yet otherwise acknowledged Christ as their Saviour, with good conscience neglect that which they knew was commanded of God? And on the contrarie side, they that knew the benefit of Christ in this behalf, did with good conscience neither observe dayes nor meats: Therefore saith the apostle, vers. 10. Let not the strong condemne the weak for these things, seeing that the weak brethren are brethren notwithstanding. Now if any man would draw this doctrin to these our times and ages, let him know that the apostle speaketh of such things indifferent, as they which thought them not to be indifferent, had a ground in the law, and were deceived by simple ignorance, and not of malice, (for to such the apostle yeelded not, not not for a moment) nor superstition, but of a religious fear of God.

e Observeth precisely.
f God shall judge whether he do well or no: And therefore you should rather strive about this, how everie one of you may be allowed of God, than to think upon other mens doings.
g He that maketh no difference of meats.
9 So the apostle sheweth that he speaketh of the faithfull, both strong and weak: But what if we have to do with infidels? Then must we here take heed of two things, as also is declared in the epistle to the Corinthians. The one is, that we count not their superstition among things indifferent as they did which sate downe to meate in idols temples: the other is, that then also when the matter is indifferent (as to buy a thing offered to idols, in the butchers stambles, and to eat it at home, or in a private banquet) we wound not the conscience of our weak brother.
h He that toucheth not meats which he taketh to be unclean by the law.
10 We must not stick, saith he, in the meat it self, but in the use of the meat, so that he is justly to be reprehended that liveth so, that he casteth not his eyes upon God, for both our life, and our death is dedicated to him: and for this cause Christ hath properly died, and not simply, that we might eat this meat or that.
i Hath respect to himself onely, which the Hebrews utter after this sort. Doeth well to his own soul.
11 The conclusion: we must leave to God his right, and therefore in matters, which according as the conscience is affected, are either good or evil, the strong must not despise their weak brethren, much lesse condemne them. But this consequent cannot be taken of equall force in the contrary, to wit, that the weak should not judge the strong, because the weak doe not know, that they which do not observe a day and eat, observe it not to the Lord, and eat to the Lord, as the strong men know that the weak which observe a day and eat not, observe the day to the Lord, and eat not to the Lord. * 2 Cor. 5, 10. * Isa. 45, 23.
k This is a form of an oath, proper to God onely, for he and none but he liveth, and hath his being himself.
l Shall acknowledge me for God.
12 After that he hath concluded what is not to be done, he sheweth what is to be done: to wit, we must take heed that we doe not utterly cast down with abusing our liberty, our brother which is not yet strong.
m He rebuketh by the way these malicious judgers of others, which occupie their heads about nothing, but to finde fault with their brethrens life, whereas they should rather bestow their wits upon this, that they doe not with their disdainfulnesse either cast their brethren clean down, or give them some offence.
13 The prevening of an objection: It is true that the schoolmastership of the law is taken away by the benefit of Christ, to such as know it, but yet notwithstanding we have to consider in the use of this libertie, what is expedient, that we may have regard of our weak brother, seeing that our libertie is not lost thereby.

16 16 Let not then your good be evil spoken of.

17 17 For the kingdome of God is not meat and drink, but righteousnesse and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.

18 For he that p in these things serveth Christ, is acceptable to God, and approved of men.

19 18 Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edifie another.

20 For meat destroy not the work of God. * All things indeed are pure; but it is evil for that man who eateth with offence.

21 It is good neither to eat * flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.

22 19 Hast thou q faith? have it to thy self before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he r alloweth.

23 And he that † s doubteth, is damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: for whatsoever is not of faith, is sinne.

* Tit. 1, 15. * 1 Cor. 8, 13.

1 Now the apostle reasoneth generally of tolerating or bearing with the weak by all means, so farre forth as may be for their profit.

a And despise others.

b For his profit and edification.

2 A confirmation taken of the example of Christ, who suffered all things, to bring not only the weak, but also his most cruell enemies, overcoming them with patience, to his Father.

* Psal. 69, 9.

3 The preventing of an objection: Such things as are cited out of the examples of the ancients, are propounded unto us to this end and purpose, that according to the example of our Fathers, we should in patience and hope bear one with another.

c By Moses and the prophets.

d The scriptures are said to teach and comfort because God useth them to teach and comfort his people withall.

4 We must take an example of patience of God: that both the weak and the strong, serving God with a mutuall consent, may bring one another to God, as Christ also received us unto himself, although we were never so unworthy.

* 1 Cor. 1, 10.

e He did not disdain us, but received us of his own accord, to make us partakers of Gods glory.

5 An applying of the example of Christ to the Jews, whom he vouchsafed this honour for the promises which he made unto their Fathers, although they were never so unworthy, that he executed the office of a minister among them with marvellous patience: therefore much lesse ought the Gentiles despise them for certain faults, whom the Son of God so much esteemed.

p He that liveth peaceably, and dieth righteously, through the Holy Ghost. 18 A generall conclusion: The use of this libertie, yea, and our whole life ought to be referred to the edifying one of another, in so much that we esteem that thing unlawfull by reason of the offence of our brother, which is of it self pure and lawfull.

19 He giveth a double warning in these matters: one, which pertaineth to the strong, that he which hath obtained a sure knowledge of this libertie, keep that treasure, to the end he may use it wisely and profitably, as hath been said: the other which respecteth the weak, that they do nothing rashly by other mens example with a wavering conscience, for that cannot be done without sin, whereof we are not perswaded by the word of God, that he liketh and approveth it.

CHAP. XV.

1 The strong must bear with the weak. 2 We may not please our selves, 3 for Christ did not so, 7 but receive one the other, as Christ did us all, 8 both Jews, 9 and Gentiles. 15 Paul excuseth his writing, 28 and promiseth to see them, 30 and requesteth their prayers.

WE 1 then that are strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not a to please our selves.

2 Let every one of us please his neighbour for his b good to edification.

3 2 For even Christ pleased not himself, but as it is written, * The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me.

4 3 For whatsoever things were written c aforetime, were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the d scriptures might have hope.

5 4 * Now the God of patience and consolation, grant you to be like minded one towards another, † according to Christ Jesus:

6 That ye may with one mind and one mouth glorifie God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

7 Wherefore receive ye one another, as Christ also e received us, to the glory of God.

8 5 Now I say that Jesus Christ was a minister of the f circumcision for the g truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers:

9 6 And that the Gentiles might glorifie God for his mercy, as it is written, * For this cause I will h confesse to thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy name.

10 And again he saith, * Rejoyceye Gentiles, and laud him all ye people.

11 And again, * Praise the Lord all ye Gentiles, and laud him all ye people.

12 And again Esaias saith, * There shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise to reigne over the Gentiles, in him shall the Gentiles trust.

13 7 Now the God of i hope fill you with k all joy & peace in beleeving, that ye may abound in hope through the power of the holy Ghost.

14 8 And I my self also am perswaded of you my brethren, that l ye also are full of goodnesse, filled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one another.

15 Nevertheless, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you, in some sort, as putting you in mind, because of the grace that is given to me of God,

16 That I should be the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministring the gospel of God, that the † m offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost.

17 9 I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jesus Christ, in those things which pertain to God.

18 For I will not dare to speak of any of those things, which n Christ hath not wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient, by word and deed, 19 Through o mighty signes and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God, so that from Jerusalem and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the gospel of Christ.

20 Yea, so have I strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build upon another mans foundation:

21 But as it is written, * To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see: and they that have not heard, shall understand.

22 10 For which cause also I have been † much hindred from coming to you.

23 But now having no more place in these parts, and having a great desire these many yeares to come unto you:

m By the offering up of the Gentiles he meaneth the Gentiles themselves, whom he offered to God as a sacrifice.

9 He commendeth his apostleship highly by the effects, but yet so, that moreover and besides that, he speaketh all things truly, in giveth all the glory to God as the only author: and doth not properly respect himself, but this rather, that man might lesse doubt of the doctrin which he propounded unto them.

n Christ was so with me in all things, and by all means, that if I would never so fain, yet I cannot say, what he hath done by me to bring the Gentiles to obey the gospel.

3 Paul willeth the brethren to greet many, 17 and adviseth them to take heed of those which cause dissension and offences, 21 and after sundry salutations endeth with praise and thanks to God.

1 [1] Commend unto you Phebe our sister, which is a servant of the church which is at Cenchrea:

2 That ye receive her in the [a] Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever businesse she hath need of you: for she hath been a succourer of many, and of my self also.

3 Greet Priscilla and Aquila my helpers in Christ Jesus.

5 Likewise greet [b] the church that is in their house. Salute my wel beloved Epenetus, who is the [c] first-fruits of Achaia unto Christ.

6 Greet Mary, who bestowed much labour on us.

7 Salute Andronicus and Junia my kinsmen and my fellow-prisoners, who are of note among the apostles, who also were in [d] Christ before me.

8 Greet Amplias my beloved in the Lord.

9 Salute Urbane our helper in Christ, and Stachys my beloved.

10 Salute Apelles approved in Christ. Salute them which are of Aristobulus [‡] houshold.

11 Salute Herodion my kinsman. Greet them that be of the [‡] houshold of Narcissus, which are in the Lord.

12 Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, who labour in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, which laboured much in the Lord.

22 I Tertius, who [k] wrote this epistle, salute you in the Lord.

23 Gaius mine hoste, and of the whole church saluteth you. Erastus the chamberlain of the city saluteth you, and Quartus a brother.

24 [6] The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

25 [7] Now to him that is of power to stablish you according to my gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ, (according to the revelation of the [l] mystery, which was kept secret since the world began,

26 But now is made [m] manifest, and by the scriptures of the prophets according to the commandment of the everlasting God, made known to all nations for the obedience of faith)

27 To God onely wise, be glory through Jesus Christ for ever. Amen.

¶ Written to the Romanes from Corinthus, and sent by Phebe servant of the church at Cenchrea.

1 Having made an end of the whole disputation, he cometh now to familiar commendations and salutations and that to good consideration and purpose, to wit, that the Romanes might know who are most to be honoured and made accompt of amongst them: and also whom they ought to set before them to follow: and therefore he attributeth unto every one of them peculiar and singular testimonies.
a For Christs sake, which is proper to the Christian, for the heathen philosophers have resemblances of the same vertues.
b The companie of the faithfull, for in so great a citie as that was, there were divers companies.
c For he was the first of Achaia that beleeved in Christ: and this kinde of speech is an allusion to the ceremonies of the law.
d Ingraffed by faith.

e He called that an holy kisse, which proceedeth from an heart that is full of that holy love: now this is to be referred to the manner used in those dayes.
2 As by, namely, describing them which were worthy of commendation, he sufficiently declared whom they ought to hear and follow, so doeth he now paint out unto them whom they ought to take heed of, yet he nameth them not, for that it was not needfull.
f Warily and diligently, as though you should scout out for you enemies in a watch tower.
g The word which he useth, signifieth a promising, which performeth nothing, and if thou heareſt any such, thou mayest assure thy self that he that promiseth thee, is more carefull of thy matters than of his own.
3 Simplicitie must be joyned with wisedome.
h Furnished with the knowledge of the trueth and wisdome, that you may embrace good things, and eschew evil, bewate of the deceits and snares of false prophets, and resist them openly: and this place doeth plainly destroy the papists faith of credit, whereas they maintain it to be sufficient for one man to beleeve as another man beleeveth, without further knowledge, or examination what the matter is, or what ground it hath: using these daily speeches, We beleeve as our fathers beleeved, and we beleeve as the church beleeved.

i As men that know no way to deceive, much lesse do deceive indeed. with a certain hope of victorie. ‡ Or, tread. 5 He annexeth salutations, partly to renew mutuall friendship, and partly to the end that this epistle might be of some weight with the Romanes, having the confirmation of so many that subscribed unto it. k Wrote it as Paul uttered it. 6 Now taking his leave of them this third time, he wisheth that unto them, whereupon dependeth all the force of the former doctrine. 7 He setteth forth the power and wisdome of God with great thanksgiving, which especially appear in the gospel, and maketh mention also of the calling of the gentiles, to confirm the Romanes in the hope of this salvation.
l That secret, and hidden thing, that is to say, the calling of the gentiles. m Offered and exhibited to all nations to be known.

The first epistle of PAUL, the apostle, TO THE CORINTHIANS.

CHAP. I.

After his salutation and thanksgiving, 10 he exhorteth them to unitie, 12 and reproveth their dissensions. 18 God destroyeth the wisedome of the wise 21 by the foolishnesse of preaching, and 26 calleth not the wise, mighty, and noble, but 27, 28 the foolish, weak, and men of no account.

1 The inscription of the epistle, wherein he chiefly goeth about to procure the good will of the Corinthians towards him, yet notwithstanding, so that alwayes he letteth them to wit, that he is the servant of God, and not of men.

PAul [1] called to be an [2] apostle of Jesus Christ, through the will of God, and [3] Sosthenes our brother,

2 [4] Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that * are [5] sanctified in [a] Christ Jesus, *[b] called to be saints, with all that in every place [c] call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours.

3 [6] Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 [7] I thank my God alwayes on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ,

5 That in every thing ye are enriched by him [g] in [d] all utterance, and in all knowledge:

6 [9] Even as the testimony of Christ was [e] confirmed in you.

7 So that ye come behinde in no gift; [10] waiting for the † [f] coming of our Lord Jesus Christ,

8 [11] Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be [g] blamelesse in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 * God is [h] faithfull, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Sonne Jesus Christ our Lord.

10 [12] Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all [13] speak the same thing, and that there be no † divisions among you: but that ye be perfectly [i] joyned together in the same minde, and in the same judgement.

11 [14] For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you.

12 Now [k] this I say, that every one of you saith, I am of Paul, and I of * Apollo, and I of Cephas, and I of Christ.

13 [15] Is Christ divided? was [16] Paul crucified for you? or were ye [17] baptized in the name of Paul?

14 [18] I thank God, that I baptized none of you, but * Crispus and Gaius.

15 Lest any should say, that I had baptized in mine own name.

16 And I baptized also the houshold of Stephanas: besides, I know not whether I baptized any other.

17 [19] For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel: * [20] not with [l] wisdome of [l] words, lest the [21] crosse of Christ should be made of none effect.

18 For the [m] preaching of the crosse is to them that perish, foolishnesse: but unto us which are saved it is the * [n] power of God.

19 [22] For it is written. * I will destroy the wisdome of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent.

2 If he be an apostle, then he must be heard, although he sometime reprehend them sharply, seeing he hath not his own cause in hand, but is a messenger that bringeth the commandements of Christ.

3 He joyneth Sosthenes with himself, that this doctrine might be confirmed by two witnesses.

4 It is a church of God, although it hath great faults in it, so that it obey them which admonish it.

* Acts 15, 9.

5 A true definition of the Catholique church which is one.

a The father sanctifieth us, that is to say, separateth us from the wicked, in giving us to his Son, that he may be in us, and we in him.

* Rom. 1, 7.

b Whom God of his graciousgoodnes and meer love hath separated for himself: or whom God hath called to holinesse: the first of these two expositions, sheweth from whence our sanctification cometh: and the second sheweth to what end it tendeth. c He is said properly to call on God, who cryeth unto the Lord when he is in danger, and craveth help at his hands, and by the figure synecdoche it is taken for all the service of God: and therefore to call upon Christs name, is to acknowledge, and take him for very God. 6 The foundation and the life of the church, is Christ Jesus, given of the Father. 7 Going about to condemn many vices, he beginneth with a true commendation of their vertues, lest he might seem after to descend to chiding, being moved with malice or envie: yet so, that he referreth all to God, as the authour of them, and that in Christ, that the Corinthians might be more ashamed to prophane and abuse the holy gifts of God. 8 He toucheth that by name, which they most abused. d Seeing that whiles we live here, we know but in part, and prophecie in part, this word (All) must be restrained to the present state of the faithfull: but by (utterance) he meaneth not a vain kinde of babling, but the gift of holy eloquence, which the Corinthians abused. 9 He sheweth, that the true use of these gifts consisteth herein, that the mighty power of Christ might thereby be set forth in them, that hereafter it might evidently appear, how wickedly they abused them to glory and ambition. e By those excellent gifts of the holy Ghost. 10 He sayeth by the way, that there is no cause why they should please themselves so much in those gifts which they had received, seeing that those were nothing in comparison of them which are to be looked for.

f He speaketh of the last coming of Christ. 11 He testifieth that he hopeth well of them hereafter, that they may more patiently abide his reprehension afterward. And yet together therewithall sheweth that as well the beginning as the accomplishing of our salvation, is onely the work of God. g He calleth them blamelesse, not whom man never found fault with, but with whom no man can justly finde fault, that is to say, them which are in Christ Jesus, in whom there is no condemnation. See Luke 1, 6. * 1 Thess. 5, 24.

h True and constant, who doeth not onely call us, but giveth us the gift of perseverance also. 12 Having made an end of the preface, he cometh to the matter it self, beginning with a most grave obtestation, as though they should hear Christ himself speaking, and not Paul. 13 The first part of this epistle, wherein his purpose is, to call back the Corinthians to brotherly concord, and to take away all occasion of discord. So then this first part concerneth the taking away of schismes. Now a schisme is when men which otherwise agree and consent together in doctrine do yet separate themselves one from another.

i Knit together, as a body that consisteth of all his parts fitly knit together.

14 He beginneth his reprehension and chiding by taking away of an objection: for that he understood by good witnesses, that there were many factions among them. And therewithall he openeth the cause of dissentions, because that some did hang on one doctour, some on another, and some were so addicted to themselves, that they neglected all doctours and teachers, calling themselves the disciples of Christ onely, shutting forth their teachers.

k The matter I would say to you, is this.

* Acts 18, 24.

15 The first reason why schismes ought to be eschewed: because Christ seemeth by that means, to be divided and torn in pieces, who cannot be the head of two divers and disagreeing bodies, being himself one. 16 Another reason: because they cannot without great injurie to God, so hang of men as of Christ: which thing no doubt they do, which allow whatsoever some man speaketh, even for his persons sake: as these men allowed one self same gospel being uttered of one man, and did lothe it being uttered of another man. So that these factions were called by the names of their teachers. Now Paul setteth down his own name, not onely to grieve no man, but also to shew that he pleadeth not his own cause. 17 The third reason taken of the form and end of baptisme, wherein we make a promise to Christ, calling also on the name of the Father, and the holy Ghost. Therefore although a man do not fall from the doctrin of Christ, yet if he hang upon some certain teachers, and despise others, he forsaketh Christ: for if he hold Christ his onely master, he wou'd hear him, teaching by whomsoever. 18 He protesteth that he speaketh so much the more boldly of these things, because that through Gods providence, he is void of all suspition of challenging disciples unto himself, and taking them from others. Whereby we may understand, that not the scholars onely, but the teachers also are here reprehended, which gather themselves flocks apart. * Acts 18, 8. 19 The taking away of an objection: that he gave not himself to baptize many amongst them: not for the contempt of baptisme, but because he was chiefly occupied in delivering the doctrin, and committed them that received his doctrin to others to be baptized, whereof he had store. And so he declared sufficiently how far he was from all ambition: whereas on the other side, they whom he reprehendeth, as though they gathered disciples unto themselves and not unto Christ, bragged most ambitiously of numbers, which they had baptized. 2 Petr. 1, 16.

20 Now he turneth himself to the doctors themselves, which pleased themselves in brave and ambitious eloquence to the end that they might draw more disciples after them. He confesseth plainly that he was unlike unto them, opposing gravely, as it became an apostle, his example against their perverse judgements: So that this is another place of this epistle, touching the observing of a godly simplicity both in words and sentences, in teaching of the gospel.

l Which eloquence which Paul casteth off from him, not only, as not necessarie, but also as flat contrarie to the office of his apostleship: and yet had Paul his kinde of eloquence, but it was heavenly, not of man, and void of painted words.

‡ Or. speech.

21 The reason why he useth not the pomp of words and painted speach: because it was Gods will to bring the world to his obedience by that way, whereby the most idiots amongst men might understand that this work was done of God himself, without the art of man. Therefore as salvation is set forth unto us in the gospel by the crosse of Christ, than which nothing is more contemptible, and more farre from life, so God would have the manner of the preaching of the crosse, most different from those meanes, which men do use to draw and entice other, either to heare or beleeve: therefore it pleased him by a certain kinde of most wise folly, to triumph over the most foolish wisdome of the world, as he hath said before by Esay, that he would. And hereby we may gather, that both these doctours which where puffed up with ambitious eloquence, and also their hearers, strayed farre away from the end and mark of their vocation.

m The preaching of Christ crucified, or the kinde of speech which we use. * Rom. 1, 16.

n It is that wherein he declareth his marvellous power in saving his elect, which would not so evidently appeare, if it hanged upon any help of man, for so man might attribute that to himself, which is proper onely to the crosse of Christ.

22 The apostle proveth, that this ought not onely not to seem strange, seeing that it was foretold so long before, but declareth further, that God is wont to punish the pride of the world in such sort, which so pleaseth it self in its own wisdome: and therefore that that is vain, yea a thing of nothing, and such as God rejecteth as unprofitable, which they so carefully laboured for, and made so great accompt of. * Isa. 29, 14.

20 * Where is the wise? where is the o scribe? where is the p disputer of this world?
hath not God made foolish the wisdome of this world?

21 * 23 For after that, in the wisdome of God, the q world by r wisdome knew not God, 24 it pleased God by the s foolishnesse of preaching to save them that beleeve.

22 25 For the Jews require a signe, and the Geeeks seek after wisdome.

23 But we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks, foolishnesse:

24 But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ, the power of God, and the wisdome of God.

25 Because the foolishnesse of God is wiser than men: and the weakenesse of God is stronger than men.

26 26 For ye see your t calling, brethren, how that not many wise men u after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called.

27 But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world, to confound the wise: and God hath chosen the weak things of the world, to confound the things which are mighty:

28 And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which x are not, to bring to y nought things that are;

29 That z no flesh should glory in his presence.

30 But of him a are ye in Christ Jesus, 27 who of God is made unto us wisdome, and righte-ousnesse, and sanctification, and redemption:

31 That according as it is written, * b He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

* Isa. 33, 18.
o Where art thou, O thou learned fellow? and thou that spendest thy dayes in turning thy books?
p Thou that spendest all thy time in seeking out the secret things of this world, and in expounding all hard questions: and thus triumpheth he against all the men of this world, for there was not one of them that could so much as dream upon this secret and hidden mysterie.
* Rom. 1, 20.
23 He sheweth that the pride of men was worthily punished of God, because they would not behold God, as meet was they should, in the most clear glasse of the wisdome of the world, which is the workmanship of the world.
q By the world he meaneth all men which are not born a new, but remain as they were, when they were first born.
r In the workmanship of this world, which hath the marvellous wisdome of God engraved in it, so that every man may behold it.
24 The goodnesse of God is wonderfull, for while he goeth about to punish the pride of this world, he is very provident and carefull for the salvation of it, and teacheth men to become fools, that they may be wise to God.
s So he calleth the preaching of the Gospel, as the enemies supposed it: but in the mean season he taunteth them very sharply, who had rather charge God with folly, than acknowledge their own, and crave pardon for it. 25 A declaration of that which he said: that the preaching of the gospel, is foolish. It is foolish, saith he, to them whom God hath not endued with new light, that is to say, to all men being considered in themselves: for the Jews require miracles, and the Grecians arguments, which they may comprehend by their wits and wisdome: and therefore they do not onely not beleeve the gospel, but also they mock at it. Notwithstanding in this foolish preaching, there is the great vertue and wisedome of God, but such as those onely which are called do perceive: God shewing most plainly, that even then when mad men think him most foolish, he is farre wiser than they are: and that he surmounteth all their might and power, when he useth most vile & abject things, as it hath appeared in the fruit of the preaching of the gospel. 26 A confirmation taken of those things which came to passe at Corinth, where the church especially consisted of the basest and common people, insomuch that the philosophers of Greece were driven to shame when they saw that they could do nothing with their wisdome and eloquence, in comparison of the apostles, whom notwithstanding they called idiots and unlearned. And herewithall doeth he beat down their pride: for God did not preferre them before those noble and wise men because they should be proud, but that they might be constrained, even whether they would or not, to rejoyce in the Lord, by whose mercy, although they were the most abjects of all, they had obtained in Christ, both this wisdome, and all things necessarie to salvation.
t What way the Lord hath taken in calling you.
u After that kinde of wisdome which men make accompt of, as though there were none else: who because they are carnall, know not spirituall wisdome.
x Which in mans judgement are almost nothing.
y To shew that they are vain and unprofitable, and nothing worth: See Rom. 3, 31.
z Flesh, is oft, as we see, taken for the whole man: and he useth this word, Flesh, very fitly, to set the weak and miserable condition of man, and the majestie of God, one against the other.
a Whom he cast down before, now he lifteth up, yea, higher than all men: yet so, that he sheweth them, that all their worthinesse is without themselves, that is, standeth in Christ, and that of God. 27 He teacheth, that especially and above all things the gospel ought not to be contemned, seeing it containeth the chiefest things that are to be desired, to wit, true wisdome, the true way to obtain righteousnesse, the true way to live honestly and godly, the true deliverance from all miseries and calamities. * Jer. 9, 23, 24.
b Let him yeeld all to God, and give him thanks: and so by this place is mans free will beaten down, which the Papists so dream of.

Chap. II.

He declareth that his preaching, 1 though it bring not excellency of speech, or of 4 humane wisdome: yet consisteth in the 4, 5 power of God: and so farre excelleth 6 the wisdome of this world, and 9 humane sense, as that 14 the naturall man cannot understand it.

1 He returneth to the 17 verse of the former chapter, that is to say, to his own example: confessing that he used not among them either excellencie of words or inticing speech of mans wisedome, but with great simplicitie of speech both knew and preached Jesus Christ crucified, humble, and abject as touching the flesh.

AND 1 I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech, or of wisdome, declaring unto you the a testimony of God.

2 For I b determined not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified.

3 And I was with you in c weakenesse, and in fear, and in much trembling.

4 And my speech, & my preaching * was not with † enticing words of mans wisdom, 2 but in d demonstration of the Spirit, and of power:

5 ‡ That your faith should not † stand in the wisdome of men, but in the power of God.

6 4 Howbeit we speak wisdome among them that are e perfect: yet not the wisdome of this world, nor of the f princes of this world, that come to nought.

7 5 But we speak the wisdome of God in a g mystery, even the hidden wisdome h which God ordained before the world unto our glory.

8 7 Which none of the princes of this world knew: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the h Lord of glory.

9 8 But as it is written, * Eye hath not seen, nor eare heard, neither have entred into the i heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 9 But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit k searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

11 10 For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the l spirit of man which is in him?
even so the things of God knoweth no man,
but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received, not the m spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God, 11 that we might n know the things that are freely given to us of God.

13 * 12 Which things also we speak, not in the words which mans wisdome teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; o comparing spirituall things with spirituall.

a The gospel.
b I purposed not to professe any knowledge but the knowledge of Christ and him crucified.
c He setteth weakenesse against excellencie of words, and therefore joyneth with it feare and trembling, which are companions of true modestie, not such feare and trembling as terrifie the conscience, but such as are contrarie to vanitie and pride.
* 2 Pet. 1, 16.
‡ Or, perswasible.
2 He turneth that now, to the commendation of his ministery, which he had granted to his adversaries: for it's vertue and power, which they knew well enough, was so much the more excellent, because it had no worldly help joyned with it.
d By plain evidence he meaneth such a proof, as is made by certain and necessarie reasons.
3 And he telleth the Corinthians that he did it for their great profit, because they might thereby know manifestly that the gospel was from heaven. Therefore he prively rebuketh them, because that in seeking vain ostentation, they willingly deprived themselves of the greatest help of their faith.
† Gr. be.
4 Another argument taken of the nature of the thing, that is, of the gospel, which is true wisdome, but known to them onely which are desirous of perfection: and is unsavorie to them which otherwise excell in the world, but yet vainly and frailly.
e Those are called perfect here, not which had gotten perfection alreadie, but such as tend to it, as Phil. 3, 15. so that perfect, is set against weak.
f They that are wiser, richer, or mightier than other men are.
5 He sheweth the cause why this wisdome cannot be perceived of those excellent worldly wits, to wit, because indeed it is so deep, that they cannot attain unto it.
g Which men could not so much as dream of.
6 He taketh away an objection: If it be so hard, when, and how is it known? God, saith he, determined with himself from the beginning, that which his purpose was to bring forth at this time out of his secrets, for the salvation of men.
7 He taketh away another objection: why then, how cometh it to passe, that this wisdome was so rejected of men of highest authoritie, that they crucified Christ himself? Paul answereth: because they knew not Christ such as he was.
h That mightie God, full of true majestie and glory: Now this place hath in it a most evident proof of the divinitie of Christ, and of his joyning of the two natures in one, which hath this in it, that that which is proper to the manhood alone, is vouched of the Godhead joyned with the manhood: which kinde of speech, is called of the old fathers, A making common of things belonging to some one, with other to whom they do not belong.
8 Another objection: But how could it be that those wittie men could not perceive this wisedome? Paul answereth? Because we preach those things which passe all mens understanding. * Isa. 64, 4.
i Man cannot so much as think on them, much lesse conceive of them with his senses.
9 A question: If it surmount the capacitie of men, how can it be understood of any man, or how can you declare and preach it? by a peculiar lightning by Gods Spirit, wherewith whosoever is inspired, he can enter even into the very secrets of God.
k There is nothing so secret and hidden in God, but the Spirit of God pierceth into it.
10 He setteth that forth by a similitude, which he spake of the inspiration of the Spirit. As the force of mans wit searcheth out things pertaining to man, so doeth our minde by that power of the Holy Ghost understand heavenly things.
l The minde of man which is endued with the ableneſse to understand and judge.
m The Spirit which we have received, doeth not teach us things of this world, but lifteth us up to God, and this place teacheth us against the Papist, what faith is, from whence it cometh, and what force it is of.
11 That which he spake generally he restraineth now to those things which God hath opened unto us of our salvation in Christ: lest that any man shou'd separate the Spirit from the preaching of the word and Christ: or should think that those fantasticall men are governed by the Spirit of God, which wandering besides the word, thrust upon us their vain imaginations for the secrets of God.
n This word (know) is taken here in his proper sense for true knowledge, which the Spirit of God worketh in us.
12 Now he returneth to his purpose, and concludeth the argument which he began verse 6. and it is thus: The words must be applyed to the matter, and the matter must be set forth with words which are meet and convenient for it: now this wisedome is spirituall and not of man, and therefore it must be delivered by a spirituall kinde of teaching, and not by enticing words of mans eloquence, that the simple, and yet wonderfull majestie of the Holy Ghost may therein appear. * 2 Pet. 1, 16.
o Applying the words unto the matter, to wit, that as we teach spirituall things, so must our kinde of teaching be spirituall.

150 13 Again he preventeth an offence or stumbling block: How cometh it to passe, that so few allow these things? This is not to be marvelled at, saith the apostle, seeing that men in their naturall powers (as they tearm them) are not endued with that 14 [13] But the [p] naturall man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishnesse unto him: neither can he know them, because they are [q] spiritually discerned.

15 [14] But he that is spirituall, ‡ [r] judgeth all things, yet [15] he himself is judged of [s] no man.

16 * [16] For who hath known the minde of the Lord, that he † may [t] instruct him? But we have the [u] minde of Christ.

facultie whereby spirituall things are discerned (which facultie cometh another way) and therefore they account spirituall wisedome as folly: and it is as if he should say, It is no marvell that blind men cannot judge of colours, seeing that they lack the sight of their eyes, and therefore light is to them as darknesse. p The man that hath no further light of understanding, than that which he brought with him, even from his mothers womb as Jude defineth it, Jude 19. q By the vertue of the holy Ghost, Prov. 27, 19. 14 He amplifieth the matter by contraries. ‡ Or, discerneth. r Understandeth and discerneth. 15 The wisedome of the flesh, saith Paul, determineth nothing certainly, no not in its own affairs, much lesse can it discern strange, that is, spirituall things. But the Spirit of God, wherewith spirituall men are endued, can be deceived by no means, and therefore be reproved of no man. s Of no man: for when the Prophets are judged of the Prophets, it is the Spirit that judgeth, and not the man. * Isa. 40, 13. Rom. 11, 34. 16 A reason of the former saying: for he is called spirituall, which hath learned that by the vertue of the spirit, which Christ hath taught us, Now if that which we have learned of that Master, could be reproved of any man, he must needs be wiser than God: whereupon it followeth, that they are not onely foolish, but also wicked, which think that they can devise something that is either more perfect, or that they can teach the wisedome of God a better way than they knew or taught, which undoubtedly were indued with Gods Spirit. † Gr. shall. t Lay his head to his, and teach him what he should do. u We are endued with the Spirit of Christ, who openeth unto us those secrets, which by all other means are unsearchable, and also all truth whatsoever.

Chap. III.

2 Milk is fit for children. 3 Strife and division, arguments of a fleshly minde. 7 He that planteth, and he that watereth, is nothing. 9 The ministers are Gods fellow-workmen. 11 Christ the onely foundation. 16 Men the temples of God, 17 which must be kept holy. 19 The wisdome of this world is foolishnesse with God.

1 Having declared the worthines of heavenly wisedome and of the gospel, and having generally condemned, the blindnes of mans minde, now at length he applieth it particularly to the Corinthians, calling them carnall, that is, such in whom as yet the flesh prevaileth against the Spirit. And he bringeth a double testimonie of it: first, for that he had proved them to be such, in so much that he dealt with them no otherwise than with ignorant men, and such as are almost babes in the doctrin of godlines, and secondly, because they shewed in deed by these dissentions, which sprang up by reason of the vertue of the Spirit, and heavenly wisedome, that they had

AND [1] I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spirituall, but as unto [a] carnall, even as unto babes in Christ.

2 I have fed you with milk, and not with [b] meat: for hitherto ye were not [c] able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able.

3 For ye are yet carnall: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and ‡ divisions, are ye not carnall, and walk † as [d] men?

4 For while one saith, I am of Paul, and another, I am of Apollo, are ye not carnall?

5 [2] Who then is Paul, and who is Apollo, but ministers by whom ye beleeved, even as the Lord gave to every man?

6 [3] I have planted, Apollo watered: but God gave the increase.

7 So then, neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth: but God that giveth the increase.

8 Now he that planteth, and he that watereth, are one: * and every man shall receive his own reward, according to his own labour.

profited very litle or nothing. a He calleth them carnall, which are as yet ignorant, and therefore to expresse it the better, he termeth them babes. b Substantiall meat, or strong meat. c To be fed by me with substantiall meat: therefore as the Corinthians grew up in age, so the apostle nourishing them by teaching, first with milk, then with strong meat, which difference was onely but in the manner of teaching. ‡ Or, factions. † Gr. according to man. d By the square and compasse of mans wit and judgement. 2 After that he hath sufficiently reprehended ambitious teachers, and their foolish esteemers, now he sheweth how the true ministers are to be esteemed, that we attribute not unto them more or lesse than we ought to do. Therefore he teacheth us, that they are they by whom we are brought to faith and salvation, but yet as the ministers of God, and such as doe nothing of themselves, but God so working by them as it pleaseth him to furnish them with his gifts. Therefore we have not to mark or consider what minister it is that speaketh, but what is spoken: and we must depend only upon him which speaketh by his servants. 3 He beautifieth the former sentence with two similitudes: first, comparing the company of the faithfull to a field which God maketh fruitfull: when it is sowed and watered through the labour of his servants: next, by comparing it to an house, which indeed the Lord buildeth, but by the hands of his workmen, some of whom he useth in laying the foundation, others in building of it up. Now, both these similitudes tend to this purpose, to shew that all things are wholly accomplished by gods onely authoritie and might, so that we must onely have an eye to him. Moreover, although that God useth some in the better part of the work, we must not therefore contemne other, in respect of them, and much lesse may we divide or set them apart, (as these factious men did) seeing that all of them labour in Gods businesse, and in such sort, that they serve to finish one self same work, although by a divers manner of working, insomuch that they need one anothers help. * Psal. 62, 12. Gal. 6, 5.

9 For we are [e] labourers together with God, ye are Gods ‡ husbandrie, ye are Gods building.

10 According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master-builder I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. [4] But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.

11 [5] For other foundation can no man lay, than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

12 [6] Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble:

13 [7] Every mans work shall be made manifest. For the day shall declare it, because it † shall be revealed by fire, and the fire shall trie every mans work, of what sort it is.

14 If any mans work abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward.

15 If any mans work shall be burnt, [8] he shall suffer losse: but he himself shall be saved: yet so, as by fire.

16 * [9] Know ye not that ye are the temple of God; and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?

17 If any man ‡ [f] defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.

18 [10] Let no man deceive himself: if any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise.

19 For the wisdome of this world is foolishnesse with God: for it is written, * He [g] taketh the wise in their own craftinesse.

20 And again, * The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain.

21 [11] Therefore let no man [h] glory in men, for all things are [i] yours.

22 Whether Paul, or Apollo, or Cephas, or the [12] world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come, all are yours:

23 And ye are Christs, and Christ is Gods.

e Serving under him: Now they which serve under another, doe nothing of their own strength, but as it is given them by grace, which grace maketh them fit to that service. Look Chap. 15, 10. and 2 Cor. 3, 6. and all the increase that cometh by their labour, doth so proceed from God, that no part of the praise of it may be given to the under servant. ‡ Or, tillage. 4 Now he speaketh to the teachers themselves, which succeeded him in the church of Corinth, and in their person to all that were after, or shall be pastors of congregations, seeing that they succeed into the labour of the apostles, which were planters & chief builders. Therefore he warneth them first, that they perswade not themselves that they may build after their own fantasie that is, that they may propound and set forth any thing in the church, either in matter, or in kinde of teaching, different from the apostles which were the chief builders.

5 Moreover, he sheweth what this foundation is, to wit, Christ Jesus, from whence they may not turn away one jot in the building up of this building. 6 Thirdly, he sheweth, that they must take heed that the upper part of the building be answerable to the foundation, that is, that admonitions, exhortations, and whatsoever pertaineth to the edifying of the flock, be answerable to the doctrin of Christ, as well in matter, as in form: which doctrin is compared to gold, silver, and precious stones: of which matter, Esaias also and John in the Revelation build the heavenly citie. And to these are opposite, wood, hay, stobble, that is to say, curious and vain questions or decrees: and besides, to be short, all that kind of teaching which serveth to estimation, for false doctrines, whereof he speaketh not here, are not said properly to be built upon this foundation, unlesse peradventure in shew onely. 7 He testifieth, as indeed the truth is, that all are not good builders, no not some of them which stand upon this one and onely foundation: but how soever this work of evil builders, saith he, stand for a season: yet shall it not alwayes deceive, because that the light of the truth appearing at length as day, shall dissolve this darknesse, and shew what it is. And as that stuff is tryed by the fire, whether it be good or not, so will God in his time, by the touch of his Spirit and word, trie all buildings, and so shall it come to passe, that such as be found pure and sound, shall still continue so, to the praise of the workman: but they that are otherwise, shall be consumed and vanish away, and so shall the workman be frustrate of the hope of his labour, which pleased himself in a thing of naught. † Gr. irrevealed. 8 He taketh not away hope of salvation from the unskilfull and foolish builders, which hold fast the foundation, of which sort were those Rhetoricians rather than pastours of Corinth but he addeth an exception, that they must notwithstanding suffer this tryall of their work, and also abide the losse of their vain labours. * Chap. 6, 19. 9 Continuing still in the metaphore of a building, he teacheth us that this ambition is not onely vain, but also sacrilegious: for he saith, that the church is, as it were, the temple of God, which God hath, as it were, consecrated unto himself by his Spirit. Then turning himself to these ambitious men, he sheweth, that they profane the temple of God, because those vain arts wherein they please themselves so much, are as he teacheth, so many pollutions of the holy doctrin of God, and the puritie of the church. Which wickednesse shall not be suffered unpunished. ‡ Or, destroy. f Defileth it and maketh it unclean, being holy: and surely they doe defile it, by Paul his judgement, which by fleshly eloquence deface the puritie of the gospel. 10 He concludeth by the contrary, that they professe pure wisedome in the church of God, which refuse and cast away all those vanities of men: and if they be mocked of the world, it is sufficient for them that they be wise according to the wisedome of God, and as he will have them to be wise. * Job 5, 13. g Be they never so craftie, yet the Lord will take them when he shall discover their treacherie. * Psal. 94, 11. 11 He returneth to the proposition of the 2 verse, first warning the hearers, that henceforward they esteem not as lords, those whom God hath appointed to be ministers, and not lords of their salvation: which thing they doe, that depend upon men, and not upon God that speaketh by them. h Please himself. i He ps appointed for your benefit. 12 He passeth from the persons to the things themselves, that his argument may be more forcible: yea, he ascendeth from Christ to the Father, to shew that we rest our selves, no not in Christ himself, in that that he is man, but because he carrieth us up even to the Father, as Christ witnesseth of himself every where, that he was sent of his Father, that by this band we may be all knit with God himself.

CHAP. IIII.

1 In what account the ministers ought to be had. 7 We have nothing which we have not received. 9 The apostles spectacles to the world, angels and men. 13 the filth and off-scouring of the world: 15 yet our fathers in Christ. 16 whom we ought to follow.

1 He concludeth the duety of the hearers towards their ministers: that they esteem them not as lords: and yet notwithstanding that they give eare unto them, as to them that are sent from Christ, sent, I say, to this end and purpose, that they may receive as it were at their hands, the treasure of salvation which is drawen out of the secrets of God.

LEt [1] a [a] man so account of us, as of the ministers of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God.

2 [2] Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithfull.

a Every man.

2 Last of all, he warneth the ministers, that they also behave themselves not as lords, but as faithfull servants, because they must render an accompt of their stewardship unto God.

3 [3] But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or [4] of mans [b] judgement: yea, [5] I judge not mine own self.

3 Because in reprehending others, he sets himself for an example, he useth a preoccupation or preventing of an objection, and using the gravitie of an apostle, he sheweth that he careth not for the contrary judgements that they have of him, in that they esteemed him as a vile person, because he did not set forth himself as they did. And he bringeth good reasons why he was nothing moved with the judgements which they had of him.

4 First, because that that which men judge in these cases of their own brains, is no more to be accompted of, than when the unlearned doe judge of wisedome.

b Word for word, Day, after the manner of the speech of the Cilicians.

5 Secondly, saith he, How can ye judge how much or how little I am to be accompted of, seeing that I

4 For I know nothing by my self, yet am I not hereby justified: but he that judgeth me is the [c] Lord.

5 * [6] Therefore judge nothing before the time, untill the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darknesse, and will make manifest the counsels of the heart: and then shall every man have [d] praise of God.

6 [7] And these things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to my self, and to Apollo, for your sakes: that ye might learn [e] in us not to think of men, above that which is written, that no one of you be puffed up for one against another.

7 [8] For who † maketh thee to differ from another? And what hast thou that thou didst not receive? now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory as [f] if thou hadst not received it?

8 [9] Now ye are full, now ye are rich, ye have reigned as kings without us, and I would to God ye did reigne, that we also might reigne with you.

9 For I think that God hath set forth us the apostles last, as it were appointed to death. For we are made a † [g] spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men.

10 We are fools for Christs sake, but ye are wise in Christ: we are weak, but ye are strong: ye are honourable, but we are despised.

11 Even unto this present houre, we both hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling place:

12 * And labour, working with our own hands: being reviled, we blesse: being persecuted, we suffer it:

13 * Being defamed, we intreat: we are made as the filth of the world, and are the [h] off-scouring of all things unto this day.

14 [10] I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved sonnes I warn you.

15 For though you have ten thousand instructours in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel.

16 Wherefore I beseech you, be ye followers of me.

17 For this cause have I sent unto you Timotheus, who is my beloved sonne, and faithfull in the Lord, who shall bring you into remembrance of [i] my wayes which be in Christ, as I teach every where in every church.

18 [11] Now some are puffed up as though I would not come to you.

19 * But I will come to you shortly, * if the Lord will, and will know, not the [k] speech of them which are puffed up, but the power.

20 For the kingdome of God is not in word, but in power.

21 [12] What will ye? shall I come unto you with a rod, or in love, and in the [l] spirit of meeknesse?

my self which know my self, better than you doe, and which dare professe that I have walked in my vocation with a good conscience, dare not yet notwithstanding challenge any thing to my self: for I know that I am not unblameable, all this notwithstanding: much lesse therefore should I please my self as you doe. c I remit my self to the Lords judgement. * Matth. 7. 1. Rom. 2, 1. 6 A third reason proceeding of a conclusion, as it were, out of the former reasons. It is Gods office to esteem every man according to his value, because he knoweth the secrets of the heart, which men, for the most part, are ignorant of. Therefore this judgement pertaineth not to you. d One could not be praised above the rest, but the other should be blamed: and he mentioneth praise rather than dispraise, for that the beginning of this sore was this, that they gave more to some men, than meet was. 7 Having rejected their judgement, he setteth forth himself again as a singular example of modestie, as one which concealing in this epistle those factious teachers names, doubted not to put down his own name and Apollos in their place, and took upon him as it were their shame: so farre was he from preferring himself to any. e By our example, which chose rather to take other mens faults upon us, than to carp any by name. 8 He sheweth a good means to bridle pride: first, if thou consider how rightly thou exemptest thy self out of the number of others, seeing thou art a man thy self: again, if thou consider that although thou have some thing more than other men have, yet thou hast it not but by Gods bountifulnesse. And what wise man is he that will brag of anothers goodnesse, and that against God? † Gr. distinguisheth thee. f There is nothing then in us of nature, that is worthy of commendation: but all that we have, we have it of grace, which the Pelagians and half Pelagians will not confesse. 9 He descendeth to a most grave mock, to cause those ambitious men to blush, even against their wills. † Gr. theatre. g He that will take a right view how like Paul and the Pope are, who lyingly boasteth that he is his successour, let him compare the delicates of the Popish court, with Saint Pauls state, as we see it here. * Act. 20. 34. 1 Thess. 2, 9. 2 Thess. 3, 8. * Matth. 5, 44.

h Such as by sweeping is gathered together.

10 Moderating the sharpnesse of his mock, he putteth them in mind to remember of whom they were begotten in Christ, and that they should not doubt to follow him for an example, although he seem vile, according to the outward shew in respect of others, yet mighty by the efficacie of Gods Spirit, as they had triall thereof in themselves.

i What way and rule, I follow every where in teaching the churches.

* Acts 19, 21. * James 4, 15.

k By speech he meaneth their painted and coloured kinde of eloquence, against which he setteth the vertue of the spirit. 12 A passing over to another part of this epistle, wherein he reprehendeth most sharply a very hainous offence, shewing the use of ecclesiasticall correction. l Meekly affected toward you.

CHAP. V.

1 The incestuous person 6 is cause rather of shame unto them, than of rejoycing. 7 The old leaven is to be purged out. 10 Hainous offenders are to be shunned and avoided.

1 They are greatly to be reprehended which by suffering of wickednesse, set forth the church of God to be mocked and scorned of of infidels.

2 There are none more proud than they that least know themselves. * Col. 2, 5.

3 Excommunication ought not to be committed to one mans power, but must be done by the authoritie of the whole congregation, after that the matter is diligently examined.

a In mind, thought and will. ‡ Or, determined.

b Calling upon Christ his name.

4 There is no doubt but that judgement is ratified in heaven, wherein Christ himself sitteth as Judge. * 1 Tim. 1, 20.

5 The excommunicate is delivered to the power of Satan, in that, that he is cast out of the house of God.

IT is [1] reported commonly that there is fornication among you, and such fornication, as is not so much as named amongst the Gentiles, that one should have his fathers wife.

2 [2] And ye are puffed up, and have not rather mourned, that he that hath done this deed, might be taken away from among you.

3 * [3] For I verily as absent in bodie, but present in [a] spirit, have ‡ judged already, as though I were present, concerning him that hath so done this deed;

4 In the [b] name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when ye are gathered together, and my spirit, with the * power of our Lord Jesus Christ,

5 * [5] To [c] deliver such an one unto Satan for the [6] destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

6 [7] Your glorying is not [d] good. * know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?

7 [8] Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new [e] lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our [f] passeover ‡ is sacrificed for us.

8 Therefore let us keep ‡ the [g] feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of c What it is to be delivered to Satan, the Lord himself declareth, when he saith, Let him be unto thee as an Heathen and Publicane, Matth. 18, 17. that is to say, to be disfranchised and put out of the right and libertie of the citie of Christ, which is the church, without which Satan is lord and master. 6 The end of excommunication is not to cast away the excommunicate, that he should utterly perish, but that he may be saved, to wit, that by this means his flesh may be tamed, that he may learn to live to the Spirit. 7 Another end of excommunication is, that other be not infected, and therefore it must of necessitie be retained in the church, that the one be not infected by the other. d Is naught, and not grounded upon good reason, as though you were excellent, and yet there is such wickednesse found amongst you. * Gal. 5, 9. 8 By alluding to the ceremonie of the passeover, he exhorteth them to cast out that unclean person from among them. In times past, saith he, it was not lawfull for them which did celebrate the passeover to eat leavened bread: Insomuch that he was holden as unclean and unworthy to eat the passeover, whosoever had but tasted of leaven. Now all our whole life must be as it were the feast of unleavened bread, wherein all they that are partakers of that immaculate Lambe which is slain, must cast out both of themselves, and also out of their houses and congregation all impuritie. e By lump, he meaneth the whole body of the church, every member whereof must be unleavened bread, that is, be renewed in Spirit, by plucking away the old corruption. f The Lambe of our passeover. ‡ Or, is slain. ‡ Or, holy-day. g Let us leade our whole life, as it were a continuall feast, honestly, and uprighly.

malice and wickednesse: but with the unleavened bread of sincerities and truth.

9 [9] I wrote unto you in an epistle, not to company with fornicatours.

10 Yet not [h] altogether with the fornicatours of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then must ye needs go out of the world.

11 But now I have written unto you, not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicatour, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with such an one, no not to eat.

12 [10] For what have I to do to judge them also that are without? do not ye judge them that are within?

13 But them that are without, God judgeth. Therefore put away from among your selves that wicked person.

9 Now he speaketh more generally: and that which he spake before of the incestuous person, he sheweth that it pertaineth to others, which are known to be wicked, and such as through their naughtily life are a slander to the church, which ought also by lawfull order be cast out of the communitie of the church. And making mention of eating of meat, either he meaneth those feasts of love whereat the Supper of the Lord was received, or else their common usage and manner of life: which is rightly to be taken, lest any man should think that either matrimonie were broken by excommunication, or such duties hindred and cut off there by, as we owe one to another: children to their parents, subjects to their rulers, servants to their masters, and neighbour to neighbour, to win one another unto God. h If you should utterly abstain from such mens company, you should go out of the world: therefore I speak of them which are in the very bosome of the church, which must be called home by discipline, and not of them which are without, with whom you must labour by all means possible, to bring them to Christ. 10 Such as are false brethren ought to be cast out of the congregation, as for them which are without, they must be left to the judgement of God.

Chap. VI.

1 The Corinthians must not vex their brethren in going to law with them: 6 especially under infidels. 9 The unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdome of God. 15 Our bodies are the members of Christ, 19 and temples of the holy Ghost: 16, 17 they must not therefore be defiled.

1 The third question is of civill judgements. Whether it be lawfull for one faithfull to draw another before the judgement seat of an infidell? He answereth, that it is not lawfull, for offence sake, for it is not evil of it self.

DAre [1] any of [a] you, having a matter against another, go to law before the [b] unjust, and not before the [2] saints?

2 [3] Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? and if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Know ye not that we shall judge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life?

4 [4] If then ye have [c] judgement of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are [d] least esteemed in the church.

5 [5] I speak to your shame. Is it so, that there is not a wise man amongst you? no not one that shall be able to judge between his brethren?

6 But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbeleevers.

7 [6] Now therefore there is utterly a [e] fault among you, because ye go to law one with another: [7] why do ye not rather take wrong? why do ye not rather suffer your selves to be defrauded?

8 Nay, you do wrong and defraud, and that your brethren.

9 Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdome of God? [8] Be not deceived: neither fornicatours, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankinde,

10 Nor theeves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, not revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdome of God.

11 And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the [f] name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 [9] [8] All things are lawfull unto me, but all things are not [i] expedient: all things are lawfull for me, but I will not be brought under the [h] power of any.

13 [10] Meats for the bellie, and the bellie for meats; but God shall destroy both it and them. Now the bodie is not for fornication, but for the Lord: and the Lord for the bodie.

14 And God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power.

15 [11] Know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 [12] What, know ye not that he which is joyned to an harlot, is one bodie? for [i] two (saith he) shall be one flesh.

17 But he that is joyned unto the Lord, is one spirit.

18 [13] Flee fornication. Every sinne that a man doeth, is without the bodie: but he that committeth fornication, sinneth against his own bodie.

19 [14] What, know ye not that your bodie is the temple of the holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, [15] and ye are not your own?

20 For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorifie God in your bodie, and in your spirit, which are Gods.

a As if he said, Are you become so impudent, that you are not ashamed to make the gospel a laughing stock to profane men?

b To wit, judges.

3 He gathereth by a comparison, that the faithfull cannot seek to infidels to be judged, without great injury done to the Saints, seeing that God himself will make the Saints judges of the world, and of the devils, with his Sonne Christ: much more ought they to judge these light and small causes which may be by equitie, and good conscience determined. 4 The conclusion, wherein he prescribeth a remedie for this mischief: to wit, if they end their private affairs between themselves by chosen arbitrars out of the church: for which matter and purpose, the least of you, saith he, is sufficient. Therefore he condemneth not judgement-seats, but sheweth what is expedient for the circumstance of the time, and that without any diminishing of the right of the magistrate: for he speaketh not of judgements, which are practised betwixt the faithfull and the infidels, neither of publike judgements, but of controversies which may be ended by private arbitrars.

c Courts and places of judgements. d Even the most abject among you. 5 He applieth the generall proposition to a particular, alwayes calling them back to this, to take away from them that false opinion of their own excellencie, from whence all these mischiefs sprang. 6 Now he goeth further also, and although by granting them privat arbitrars, out of the congregation of the faithfull, he do not simply condemne, but rather establish private judgements, so that they be exercised without offence, yet he sheweth, that if they were such as they ought to be, and as it were to be wished, they should not need to use that remedie neither. e A weaknesse of minde which is said to be in them, that suffer them to be overcome of their lusts, and it is a fault that squareth greatly from temperance and moderation: so that he nippeth them which could not put up an injurie done unto them. 7 This pertaineth chiefly to the other part of the reprehension, to wit, that they went to law even under infidels, whereas they should rather have suffred any losse, than to have given that offence. But yet this is generally true, that we ought rather to depart from our right, than trie the uttermost of the law hastily, and upon an affection to revenge an injurie. But the Corinthians cared for neither, and therefore he saith, that they must repent, unlesse they will be shut out from the inheritance of God.

8 Now he prepareth himself to passe over to the fourth treatise of this epistle, which concerneth matters indifferent, debating this matter first, how men may well use women or not: which question hath three branches, fornication, matrimonie, & a single life. As for fornication, he utterly condemneth it. And marriage he commandeth to some, as a good and necessary remedie for them, to other he leaveth it free: And other some he dissuadeth from it, not as unlawfull, but as discommodious, and that not without exception. As for the singlenesse of life (under which also I comprehend virginitie) he enjoyneth it to no man: yet he perswadeth men unto it not for self, but for another respect, neither all men, nor without exception. And being about to speak against fornication, he beginneth with a generall reprehension of those vices, wherewith that rich and riotous citie most abounded: warning and teaching them earnestly, that repentance is unseparably joyned with forgivenesse of sins, and sanctification with justification.

f In Jesus.

9 Secondly, he sheweth that the Corinthians doe simply offend in matters indifferent: First, because they abused them: next, because they used indifferent things, without any discretion, seeing the use of them ought to be brought to the rule of charitie: and that he doth not use them aright, which immoderately abuseth them, and so becometh a slave unto them. g Whatsoever, but this generall word must be restrained to things that are indifferent. ‡ Or, profitable. h He is in subjection to things that are indifferent, whatsoever he be that thinketh he may not be without them: which is a flattering kinde of slavery under a colour of liberty, which seizeth upon such men. 10 Secondarily, because they counted many things for indifferent, which were of themselves unlawfull, as fornication, which they numbred amongst meat naturall and lawfull desires, as wel as meat and drink: Therefore the apostle sheweth, that they are utterly unlike: for meats, saith he, were made for the necessary use of mans life, which is not perpetuall: For both meats, and all this manner of nourishing, are quickly abolished. But we must not so think of the uncleannesse of fornication, for which the bodie is not made, but on the contrary side is ordained to pureness, as appeareth by this, that it is consecrated to Christ, even as Christ also is given us of his Father, to quicken our bodies with that vertue, wherewith he also rose againe. 11 A declaration of the former argument by contraries, and the applying of it. 12 A proof of the same argument: A harlot and Christ are clean contrarie, so are the flesh and the Spirit: therefore he that is one with an harlot, (which is done by carnall copulation of their bodies) cannot be one with Christ, which unitie is pure and spirituall, Moses doeth not speak these words of fornication, but of marriage: but seeing that fornication is the corruption of marriage, and both of them is a carnall and fleshly copulation, we cannot say that the apostle abuseth his testimonie. Againe, Moses hath not this word (Two) but it is very well expressed both here and in Matthew 19, 5, because he speaketh onely but of man and wife: whereupon the opinion of them that vouch it to be lawfull to have many wives, is beaten down: for he that companieth with many, is sundred as it were into many parts. 13 Another argument why fornication is to be eschewed, because it defileth the body with a peculiar kinde of filthinesse. 14 The third argument: Because a fornicatour is sacrilegious, for our bodies are consecrated to God. 15 The fourth argument: Because we are not our own men, to give our selves to any other, much lesse to Satan and the flesh, seeing that God himself hath bought us, and that with a great price, to the end that both in body and soul, we should serve to his glorie.

Chap.

CHAP. VII.

2 He treateth of marriage, 4 shewing it to be a remedie against fornication: 10 and that the bond thereof ought not lightly to be dissolved. 18, 20 Every man must be content with his vocation. 25 Virginitie wherefore to be embraced. 35 And for what respects we may either marry, or abstain from marrying.

NOw [1] concerning the things [a] whereof ye wrote unto me: It is [b] good for a man not to touch a woman.

2 Nevertheless, to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband.

3 [2] Let the husband render unto the wife [c] due benevolence: and likewise also the wife unto the husband.

4 [3] The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own bodie, but the wife.

5 Defraud you not one the other, [4] except it be with consent for a time, that ye may [d] give your selves to fasting and prayer, and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinencie.

6 [5] But I speak this by permission, and not of commandment.

7 For [e] I would that all men were even as I my self: but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that.

8 [6] I say therefore to the [f] unmarried and widows, It is good for them if they abide even as I.

9 But if they cannot contain, let them marrie: for it is better to marry than to [g] burn.

10 [7] And unto the married I command, yet not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her husband:

11 But and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband: and let not the husband put away his wife.

12 [8] But to the rest speak I, not the Lord, If any brother hath a wife that beleeveth not, and she be pleased to dwell with him, let him not put her away.

13 And the woman which hath an husband that beleeveth not, and if he be pleased to dwell with her, let her not leave him.

14 [9] For the unbeleeving husband is [h] sanctified by the [i] wife, and the unbeleeving wife is sanctified by the [k] husband; else were your children unclean, but now are they [l] holy.

15 [10] But if the unbeleeving depart, let him depart; A brother or a sister is not under bondage in [m] such cases: [11] but God hath called us † to peace.

16 For what knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife?

17 [12] But as God hath distributed to every man, as the Lord hath [n] called every one, so let him walk: and so ordain I in all churches.

18 [13] Is any man called being circumcised? let him not [o] become uncircumcised: is any called in uncircumcision? let him not become circumcised.

19 Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God.

20 Let every man abide in the same calling wherein he was called.

21 Art thou called being a servant? [p] care not for it; but if thou mayest be made free, use it rather.

22 For he that is called in the [q] Lord, being a servant, is the Lords † freeman: likewise also he that is called being free, is Christs servant.

23 [14] Ye are bought with a price, be not ye the servants of men.

24 [15] Brethren, let every man wherein he is called, therein abide with [r] God.

25 [16] Now concerning virgins, I have no commandment of the Lord: yet I give my [s] judgement as [t] one that hath obtained mercie of the Lord to be faithfull.

26 I suppose therefore that [u] this is good for the [x] present ‡ distresse, I say, that it is good for a man so to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed. Art thou loosed from a wife? seek not a wife.

28 But and if thou marrie, thou hast not sinned; and if a virgin marry, she hath not sinned: nevertheless, such shall have trouble in the [y] flesh: [z] but I spare you.

29 But this I say, brethren, the time is [a] short. It remaineth, that both they that have wives, be as though they had none:

30 And they that [b] weep, as though they wept not: & they that rejoyce, as though they

1 He teacheth concerning marriage, that although a single life hath his commodities, which he will declare afterwards, yet that marriage is necessary for the avoiding of fornication: but so that neither one man may have many wives, nor any wife many husbands.

a Touching those matters whereof you wrote unto me.

b Commodious, and (as we say) expedient. For marriage bringeth many griefs with it, and that by reason of the corruption of our first estate.

2 Secondly, he sheweth that the parties married must with singular affection, entirely love one the other.

c This word (due) containeth all kinde of benevolence, though he speak more of one sort than of the other, in that that followeth.

3 Thirdly, he warneth them, that they are each in others power, as touching the bodie, so that they may not defraud one another.

4 He addeth an exception, unles the one abstain from the other by mutuall consent, that they may the better give themselves to prayer, wherein notwithstanding, he warneth them to consider what is expedient, lest by this long breaking off, as it were from marriage, they be stirred up to incontinencie.

d Do nothing else.

5 Fiftly, he teacheth that marriage is not simply necessary for all men, but for them which have not the gift of continencie, and this gift is by a peculiar grace of God.

e I wish. 6 Sixtly, he giveth the self same admonition touching the second marriage, to wit, that a single life is to be allowed, but for such as have the gift of continencie; otherwise they ought to marry again, that their conscience may be at peace.

f This whole place is flat against them which condemn second marriages.

g So to burn with lust, that either the will yeeldeth to the temptation, or els we cannot call upon God with a quiet conscience. 7 Seventhly, he forbiddeth contentions and publishing of divorces, (for he speaketh not here of the fault of whoredome, which was then death even by the law of the Romanes also) whereby he affirmeth that the band of marriage it not dissolved, and that from Christ his mouth. 8 Eightly, he affirmeth, that those marriages which are alreadie contracted between a faithfull, and an unfaithfull, or infidell, are firm: so that the faithfull may not forsake the unfaithfull. 9 He answereth an objection: But the faithfull is defiled by the societie of the unfaithfull. The apostle denieth that, and proveth, that the faithfull man with good conscience may use the vessel of his unfaithfull wife, by this, that their children which are born of them, are accounted holy (that is, contained within the promise) for it is said to all the faithfull, I will be thy God, and the God of thy seed.

h The godlinesse of the wife is of more force, to cause their coupling together to be accounted holy, then the infidelitie of the husband is, to prophane the marriage.

i The infidell is not sanctified or made holy in his own person, but in respect of his wife he is sanctified of her.

k To the faithfull husband.

l This place destroyeth the opinion of them, that would not have children to be baptized, and their opinion also, that make baptisme the very cause of salvation. For the children of the faithfull are holy by vertue of the covenant, even before baptisme, and baptisme is added as the seal of that holinesse.

10 He answereth to a question: What if the unfaithfull forsake the faithfull? then is the faithfull free, saith he, because he is forsaken of the unfaithfull.

m When any such thing falleth out.

11 Lest any man upon pretence of this libertie should give an occasion to the unfaithfull to depart, he giveth to understand, that marriage contracted with an infidel, ought peaceably to be kept, that if it be possible, the infidel may be won to the faith.

† Gr. in peace.

12 Taking occasion by that which he said of the bondage and libertie of matrimonie, he digresseth to a generall doctrine concerning the outward state and condition of mans life, as circumcision and uncircumcision, servitude and libertie: warning every man generally to live with a contended mind in the Lord, what state or condition soever he be in, because, that those outward things, as to be circumcised or uncircumcised, to be bond or free, are not of the substance (as they term it) of the kingdome of heaven.

n Hath bound him to a certain kinde of life.

13 Notwithstanding he giveth us to understand, that in these examples all are not of like sort: because that circumcision not simply of it self is to be desired, but such as are bound may desire to be free. Therefore herein onely they are equall, that the kingdome of God consisteth not in them, and therefore these are no hinderances to obey God.

o He is said to become uncircumcision, who by the help of a chirurgian, recovereth an upperskin: which is done by drawing the skin with an instrument, to make it to cover the nut. Celsus in his 7 book, and 25 chapter.

p As though this calling were too unworthy a calling for Christ.

q He that is in state of a servant, and is called to be a Christian.

† Gr. made free.

14 He sheweth the reason of the unlikenesse, because that he that desireth to be circumcised, maketh himself subject to mans tradition, and not to God. And this may be much more understood of superstitions, which some do foolishly account for things indifferent.

15 A repetition of the generall doctrin.

r So purely and from the heart, that your doings may be approved before God.

16 He enjoyneth virginitie to no man, yet he perswadeth and praiseth it for another respect, to wit, both for the necessitie of the present time, because the faithfull could scarce abide in any place, and use the commodities of this present life, and therefore such as were not troubled with familes, might be the readier, and also for the cares of this life, which marriage draweth with it of necessitie, so that they cannot but have their minds distracted: and this hath place in women especially.

s The circumstances considered, this I counsel you.

t It is I that speak this which I am minded to speak: and the truth is, I am a man, but yet worthy credit, for I have obtained of the Lord to be such an one.

u To remain a virgine.

x For the necessitie which the saints are dayly subject unto, who are continually tossed up and down, so that their estate may seem most unfit for marriage, were it not that the weaknesse of the flesh inforced them to it.

y By the (Flesh) he understandeth what things soever belong to this present life, for marriage bringeth with it many discommodities: so that he bendeth more, to a sole life, not because it is a service more agreeable to God than marriage, but for those discommodities, which (if it were possible) he would wish all men to be void of, that they might give themselves to God onely.

z I would your weaknesse were provided for.

a For we are now in the latter end of the world.

b By weeping, the Hebrews understand all adversity, and by joy, all prosperity.

rejoyced

154 rejoyced not: andthat buy they, as though they poſſeſſed not:

31 And they that uſe this [c] world, as not abuſing it: for the [d] fashion of this world paſſeth away.

32 But I would have you without careful-neſſe. He that is unmarried, careth for the things that belong to the Lord, how he may pleaſe the Lord:

33 But he that is married, [e] careth for the things that are of the world, how he may pleaſe his wife.

34 There is difference alſo between a wife and a virgin: the unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy, both in body and in [f] ſpirit: but she that is married, careth for the things of the world, how she may pleaſe her husband.

35 And this I ſpeak for your [g] own profit, not that I may caſt a ſnare upon you, but for that which is comely, and that you may attend upon the Lord without diſtraction.

36 [17] But if any man think that he behaveth himſelf uncomely toward his virgin, if she paſſe the flower of her age, and need ſo require, let him do what he will, he [h] ſinneth not: let them marry.

37 Neverthelesſe, he that ſtandeth ſtedfaſt in his [i] heart, having [k] no neceſſity, but hath power over his own will, and hath ſo decreed in his heart, that he will keep his virgin, doeth well.

38 So then he that giveth her in marriage, doeth well: but he that giveth her not in marriage, doeth [l] better.

39 [18] The wife is bound by the [m] law as long as her husband liveth: but if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will, onely in the [n] Lord.

40 But she is happier if she ſo abide, after my judgement: and I think alſo that I have the ſpirit of God.

c Thoſe things which God giveth us here.
d The guiſe, and shape, and fashion: whereby he sheweth us, that there is nothing in this world that continueth.
e They that are married, have their wits drawn hither and thither, and therefore if any man have the gift of continencie, it is more commodious for him to live alone: but they that are married may care for the things of the Lord alſo, Clem. Strom. 3.
f Minde.
g He meaneth, that he will enforce no man, either to marrie or not to marry, but to shew them barely what kind of life is moſt commodious.
17 Now he turneth himſelf to the parents, in whoſe power and authoritie their children are, warning them, that according to the former doctrin, they conſider what is meet and convenient for their children, that they neither deprive them of the neceſſary remedie againſt incontinencie, nor conſtrain them to marriage, whereas neither their will doth lead them, nor any neceſſitie urgeth them. And again he praiſeth virginitie, but of it ſelf, and not in all.
h He doth well: for ſo he expoundeth it, verſ. 38.
i Reſolveth himſelf. h That the weakneſſe of his daughter inforceth him not, or any other matter, but that he may ſafely keep her a virgine ſtill. l Provideth more commodiouſly for his children, and that not ſimply, but by reaſon of ſuch conditions as are before mentioned. 18 That which he ſpake of a widower, he ſpeaketh now of a widow, to wit, that she may marry again, ſo that she do it in the feare of God: and yet he diſſembleth not, but ſaith, that if she remain ſtill a widow she shall be void of many cares. m By the law of marriage. n Religiouſly, and in the feare of God.

CHAP. VIII.

1 To abſtain from meats offered to idols. 8, 9 We muſt not abuſe our Chriſtian libertie, to the offence of our brethren: 11 but muſt bridle our knowledge with charity.

NOw [1] as touching things offered unto idols, we know that we [a] all have knowledge. Knowledge [b] puffeth up, but charity [c] edifieth.

2 And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know.

3 But if any man love God, the ſame is known of him.

4 [2] As concerning therefore the eating of those things that are offered in ſacrifice unto [d] idols, we know that an idol is [e] nothing in the world, and that there is none other God but one.

5 For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many)

6 But to us there is but one God, the Father, [f] of whom are all things, and we [‡ g] in him, and [h] one Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [i] by whom are all things, and we by him.

7 [3] Howbeit there is not in every man that knowledge: for [4] ſome with [k] conſcience of the idol unto this houre, eat it as a thing offered unto an idol; and their conſcience being weak, is defiled.

8 [5] But meat commendeth us not to God: for neither if we eat, ‡ are we the better: neither if we eat not, ‡ are we the worſe.

9 But take heed leſt by any means this ‡ libertie of yours become a ſtumbling block to them that are weak.

10 [6] For if any man ſee thee which haſt knowledge ſit at meat in the idols temple, ſhall not the conſcience of him which is weak be † emboldened to eat thoſe things which are offered to idols?

11 [7] And through thy knowledge ſhall the weak brother perish, for whom Chriſt died?

12 [8] But when ye ſinne ſo againſt the brethren, and wound their weak conſcience, ye ſinne againſt Chriſt.

13 [9] Wherefore if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no fleſh while the world ſtandeth, leſt I make my brother to offend.

d This word (Idol) in this place is taken for an image which is made to repreſent ſomegodhead, that worſhip might be given unto it: whereupon came the word (Idolatry) that is to ſay, Image ſervice.
e Is a vain dream.
f When the Father is diſtinguished from the Sonne, he is named the beginning of all things.
‡ Or, for him, Rom. 11, 36.
g We have our being in him.
h But as the Father is cal'ed Lord, ſo is the Sonne, God: therefore this word (One) doth not reſpect the perſons, but the nature.
i This word (By) doth not ſignifie the inſtrumentall cauſe, but the efficient: for the Father and the Sonne work together, which is not ſo to be taken, that we make two cauſes, ſeeing they have both but one nature, though they be diſtinct perſons.
‡ The reaſon why that followeth not, is this: becauſe there are many men which do not know that which you know. Now the judgement of outward things depend not on'y upon your conſcience, but upon the conſcience of them that behold you, and therefore your actions muſt be applyed not onely to your knowledge, but alſo to the ignorance of your brethren. 4 An applying of the reaſon: There are many which cannot eat of things offered to idols, but with a wavering conſcience, becauſe they think them to be unclean: therefore if by thy example they enterpriſe to do that which inwardly they think diſpleaſeth God, their conſcience is defiled with their eating, and thou haſt been the occaſion of this miſchief. k By conſcience of the idol, he meaneth the ſecret judgement that they had within themſelves, whereby they thought all things unclean, that were offered to idols, and therefore they could not uſe them with a good conſcience. For this force hath conſcience, that if it be good, it maketh things indifferent good, and if it be evil, it maketh them evil. 5 A preventing of an objection: Why then, ſhall we therefore be deprived of our liberty? Nay, ſaith the apoſtle, you ſhall loſe no part of Chriſtianitie although you abſtain for your brethrens ſake, as alſo if ye receive the meat, it maketh you no whit the more holy: for our commendation before God conſiſteth not in meats: but to uſe our liberty with offence of our brethren, is an abuſe of liberty, the true uſe thereof is clean contrary, to wit, ſo to uſe it, as in uſing of it we have conſideration of our weak brethren. ‡ Or, have we the more. ‡ Or, have we the leſſe. ‡ Or, power. 6 Another plain explication of the ſame reaſon, propounding the example of the ſitting down at the table in the idols temple, which thing the Corinthians did evil account of among things indifferent, becauſe it is ſimply forbidden for the circumſtance of the place, although offence do ceaſe, as it ſhall be declared in his place. † Gr. edified. 7 An amplification of the argument taken both of compariſon and contraries: Thou wretched man, ſaith he, pleaſing thy ſelf with thy knowledge, which indeed is none, (for if thou hadſt true knowledge, thou wouldeſt not ſit down to meat in an idols temple) wilt thou deſtroy thy brother, hardening his weak conſcience by thine example to do evil, for whoſe ſalvation Chriſt himſelf hath died? 8 Another amplification: Such offending of our weak brethren, redoundeth unto Chriſt, and therefore let not theſe men think that they have to do onely with their brethren. 9 The concluſion, which Paul conceiveth in his own perſon, that he might not ſeem to exact that of other, which he will not be firſt ſubject to himſelf, I had rather (ſaith he) abſtain for ever from all kinde of fleſh, than give occaſion of ſinne to any of my brethren, much leſſe would I refuſe in any certain place or time for my brothers ſake not to eat fleſh offered to idols.

CHAP. IX.

1 He ſheweth his liberty, 7 and that the miniſter ought to live by the goſpel: 15 yet that himſelf hath of his own accord abſtained 18 to be either chargeable unto them, 22 or offenſive unto any, 24 Our life is like unto a race.

AM [1] I not an apoſtle? am I not free? [2] have I not ſeen Jeſus Chriſt our Lord? are not you my [a] work in the Lord?

1 Before he proceedeth any further in his propoſed matter of things offered to idols, he would shew the cauſe of all this miſchief, and alſo take it away: to wit, that the Corinthians thought themſelves not bound to depart from a jot of their liberty for any mans pleaſure. Therefore he propoundeth himſelf for an example, and that in a matter moſt neceſſary. And yet he ſpeaketh ſeverally of both, but firſt of his own perſon. If (ſaith he) you alledge for your ſelves, that you are free, and therefore will uſe your liberty, am not I alſo free, ſeeing I am an apoſtle? 2 He proveth his apoſtleship by the effects, in that he was appointed of Chriſt himſelf, and the authority of his function was ſufficiently confirmed to him amongſt them by their converſion. And all theſe things he ſetteth before their eyes, to make them aſhamed, for that they would not in the leaſt wiſe that might be, debaſe themſelves for the weaks ſake, whereas the apoſtle himſelf did all that he could to win them to God, when they were utterly reprobate and without God. a By the Lord.

1 He entreth to intreat of another kinde of things indifferent, to wit, of things offered to idols, or the uſe of fleſh ſo offered and ſacrificed. And firſt of all he removeth all thoſe things which the Corinthians pretended in uſing things offered to idols without any reſpect. Firſt of all they affirmed that this difference of meats was for the unskilfull men, but as for them they knew well enough the benefit of Chriſt, which cauſeth all theſe things to be clean to them that are clean, Be it, ſo ſaith Paul: be it that we are all ſufficiently inſtructed in the knowledge of Chriſt, I ſay notwithſtanding that we muſt not ſimply reſt in this knowledge. The reaſon is, that unleſſe our knowledge be tempered with charity, it doeth not onely not avail, but alſo doth much hurt, becauſe it is the miſtreſſe of pride: nay, it doth not ſo much as deſerve the name of godly knowledge, if it be ſeparate from the love of God, and therefore from the love of our neighbour. a This generall word is to be abridged, as appeareth verſe 7, for there is a kinde of raunt in it, as we may perceive by the next verſe. b Miniſtreth occaſion of vanity and pride: becauſe it is void of charitie. c Inſtructeth our neighbour. 2 The application of that anſwer to things offered to idols: I grant, ſaith he, that an idol is indeed a vain imagination, and that there is but one God and Lord, and therefore that meat cannot be made either holy or profane by the idol: but it followeth not therefore that a man may without reſpect uſe thoſe meats as any other.

2 If I be not an apostle unto others, yet doubtlesse I am to you: for the [b] seal of mine apostleship are ye in the Lord.

3 [3] Mine answer to them that do [c] examine me, is this.

4 [4] Have we not power to [d] eat and to drink?

5 Have we not power to lead about [e] a sister a wife as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I onely and Barnabas, have not we [f] power to forbear working?

7 [5] Who goeth a [g] warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 [6] Say I these things [h] as a man? or saith not the law the same also?

9 For it is written in the law of Moses, * Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for [i] oxen?

10 Or saith he it altogether for our sakes? for our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope: and that he that thresheth in hope, should be partaker of his hope.

11 * [7] If we have sown unto you spirituall things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnall things?

12 [8] If others be partakers of this power over you, are not we rather? Nevertheless, we have not used this [k] power: but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ.

13 * [9] Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things, [l] live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar, are [m] partakers with the altar?

14 Even so hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the gospel, should live of [n] the gospel.

15 But I have used none of these things. [10] Neither have I written these things, that it should be so done unto me: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my glorying void.

16 For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me, yea, wo is unto me if I preach not the gospel.

17 For if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward: but if against my will, a dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? verily that when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel of Christ [o] without charge, that I abuse not my power in the gospel.

19 For though I be free from all men, yet have I made my self servant unto all, that I might gain the more.

20 And unto the Jews, I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the [p] law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law:

21 To them that are without law, as without law, (being not without law to God, but under the law to Christ) that I might gain them that are without law.

22 To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made [q] all things to all men, that I might by all means save some.

23 And this I do for the gospel sake, that I might be partaker thereof with [r] you.

24 [11] Know ye not that they which run in a race, run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that striveth for the masterie, is [s] temperate in all things: Now, they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible.

26 I therefore so run, not as uncertainly: so fight I, not as one that beateth the aire.

27 But I keep under my [t] body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means when I have preached to others, I my self should be [u] a cast-away.

b As a seal, whereby it appeareth sufficiently that God is the authour of mine apostleship.
3 He addeth this by the way, as if he would say, So far it is off, that you may doubt of my apostleship, that I use to refute them which call it into controversie, by opposing those things which the Lord hath done by me amongst you.
c Which like judges examine me, and my doings.
4 Now touching the matter it self, he saith, Seeing that I am free, and truly an apostle, why may not I (I say not, eat of all things offered to idols, but) be maintained by my labours, yea, and keep my wife also, as the residue of the apostles lawfully do, as by name, John and James, the Lords cousins, and Peter himself?
d Upon the expence of the church.
e One that is a Christian and a true believer?
‡ Or, woman.
f Not live by the works of our hands.
5 That he may not seem to burden the apostles, he sheweth that it is just that they do, by an argument of comparison, seeing that souldiers live by their wages, and husbandmen by the fruits of their labours, and shepheards by that that cometh of their flocks.
g Useth to go a warfare.
6 Secondly, he bringeth forth the authority of Gods institution by an argument of comparison.
h Have I no better ground than the common custome of man?
* Deut. 25, 4.

It followeth by this place, that Paul gat no living, neither would have any other man get by any commodities of masses, or any other such superstitious trumperies. 10 He taketh away occasion of superstition by the way, that it might not be thought that he wrote this as though he challenged his wages that was not paid him. Nay, saith he, I had rather die, than not to continue in this purpose to preach the gospel freely. For I am bound to preach the gospel seeing that the Lord hath enjoyned me this office: but unlesse I do it willingly, and for the love of God, nothing is to be allowed that I do. If I had rather that the gospel should be evil spoken of, than that I should not require my wages, then would it appeare that I took these pains not so much for the gospels sake, as for my gains and advantages. But I say, this were not to use, but abuse my right, and libertie: Therefore not only in this thing, but also in all other (as much as I could) I am made all things to all men, that I might win them to Christ, and might together with them be won to Christ.
o By taking nothing of them to whom I preach it.
p The word (law) in this place, must be restrained to the ceremoniall law.

r That both I and they to whom I preach the gospel, may receive fruit by the gospel.
s He bringeth in another cause of this mischief, to wit, that they were given to gluttony, for there were solemn banquets of sacrifices, and the flesh of the priests was alwayes too much celebrated and kept. Therefore it was hard for them which were accustomed to riotousnesse, especially when they pretended the liberty of the gospel, to be restrained from these banquets: but contrariwise the apostle calleth them by a pleasant similitude, and also by his own example, to sobriety and mortification of the flesh, shewing that they cannot be fit to run or wrestle (as then the games of Iselinies were) which pamper up their bodies: and therefore affirming that they can have no reward unlesse they take another course and trade of life. t Useth a most exquisit diet. t The old man which striveth against the spirit. u This word (Cast away) is not set as contrary to the word (Elect) but as contrary to the word (Approved) when we see one by experience not to be such an one as he ought to be.

CHAP. X.

1 The sacraments of the Jews 6 are types of ours, 7 and their punishments 11 examples for us. 14 We must flee from idolatrie. 21 We must not make the Lords table the table of devils: 24 and in things indifferent we must have regard of our brethren.

MOreover, [1] brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all [a] our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea:

2 [a] And were all [b] baptized unto [c] Moses in the cloud, and in the sea:

3 And did all eat the [d] same spirituall [e] meat,

4 And did all drink the same spirituall drink: (for they drank of that spirituall Rock that [f] followed them: & that Rock was [g] Christ)

5 But with many of them God was not well pleased: for they were overthrown in the wildernesse.

1 He setteth out that which he said, laying before them an example of the horrible judgement of God against them which had in effect the self-same pledges of the same adoption and salvation that we have: and yet notwithstanding when they gave themselves to idols feasts, perished in the wildernesse, being horribly and manifoldly punished. Now, moreover and besides, that these things are fitly spoken against them which frequented idols feasts, the same also seem to be alleaged to this end and purpose, because many men are this minded, that those things are not of such great weight that God will be angry with them if they use them, so that they frequent Christian assemblies and be baptized, and receive the communion, and confesse Christ.
a Paul speaketh this in respect of the covenant, and not in respect of the persons, saying in generall.
2 In effect, the Sacraments of the old fathers were all one with ours, for they respected Christ only, who offered himself unto them in divers shadows. b All of them were baptized with the outward signe, but not in deed, wherewith God cannot be charged but they themselves.
c Moses being their guide. d The same that we doe. e Manna, which was a spirituall meat to the believers, which in faith lay hold upon Christ, who is the true meat. ‡ Or, went with them. f Of the river and running Rock, which followed the people. g Did sacramentally signifie Christ, so that together with the signe, there was the thing signified, and the truth it self: for God doth not offer a bare signe, but the thing signified by the signe, together with it, which is to be received with faith.

6 ᵍ Now these things were † our ʰ examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as * they also lusted.

7 Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them, as it is written, * The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.

8 Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed, and * fell in one day three and twenty thousand.

9 Neither let us tempt ⁱ Christ, as some of them also tempted, * and were destroyed of serpents.

10 Neither murmure ye, as some of them also murmured, and were * destroyed of the destroyer.

11 Now all these things happened unto them for † ensamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ᵏ ends of the world are come.

12 ˡ Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.

13 There hath no temptation taken you, but † such as is common to ᵐ man: but God is faithfull, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also ᵐ make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.

14 Wherefore my dearly beloved, flee from idolatry.

15 ⁿ I speak as to wise men? judge ye what I say.

16 The cup of ᵒ blessing which we blesse, is it not the ᵖ communion of the bloud of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?

17 For we being many are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread.

18 Behold Israel after the ᵖ flesh: are not they which eat of the sacrifices, ᵠ partakers of the altar?

19 What say I then? that the idol is any thing, or that which is offered in sacrifice to idols is any thing?

20 But I say, that the things which the Gentiles * sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils and not to God: and I would not that ye should have ʳ fellowship with devils.

21 Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the ˢ cup of devils: ye cannot be partakers of the Lords table, and of the table of devils.

22 Do we provoke the Lord to jealousie? are we stronger than he?

23 ᵗ All things are lawfull for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawfull for me, But all things edifie not.

24 Let no man seek his own: but every man anothers wealth.

25 ᵘ Whatsoever is sold in the ᵘ shambles, that eat, asking no question for conscience sake.

26 For * the earth is the Lords, and the * fulnesse thereof.

27 If any of them that beleeve not, bid you to a feast, and ye be disposed to go; whatsoever is set before you, eat, asking no question for conscience sake.

28 But if any man say unto you, This is offered in sacrifice unto idols, eat not, for his sake that shewed it, and for conscience sake. * The earth is the Lords, and the fulnesse thereof.

29 Conscience I say, not thine own, but of the others: ˣ for why is my libertie judged of another mans conscience?

30 For, if I by ʸ grace be a partaker, why am I evil spoken of for that, for which I give thanks?

31 ᶻ Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

32 Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the † Gentiles, nor to the church of God:

33 Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved.

3 An amplifying of the example against them which are carried away with their lusts beyond the bounds which God hath measured out. For this is the beginning of all evill as of idolatry (which hath gluttony a companion unto it) fornication, rebelling against Christ, murmuring, and such like, which God punished most sharply in that old people, to the end that we which succeed them, and have a more full declaration of the will of God, might by that means take better heed.

k This our age is called the end, for it is the shutting up of all ages.
4 In conclusion, he descendeth to the Corinthians themselves, warning them that they please not themselves, but rather that they prevent the subtilties of Satan Yet he useth an insinuation, and comforteth them, that he may not seem to make them altogether like to those wicked idolaters and contemners of Christ, which perished in the wildernesse.
l Which cometh of weaknesse.
m He that would have you tempted for your profits sake, will give you an issue to escape out of the tentation. 5 Now returning to those idols feasts, that he may not seem to dally at all, first he promiseth that he will use no other reasons than such as they knew very well themselves. And he useth an induction borrowed from the agreement that is in the things themselves. The holy bankets of the Christians are pledges, first of all, of the communitie that they have with Christ: and next, one with another. The Israelites also doe ratifie in their sacrifices their mutuall conjunction in one self same religion: therefore so doe the idolaters also joyn themselves with their idols, or devils rather (for idols are nothing) in those solemn banquets, whereupon it followeth, that that table is a table of devils, and therefore you must eschew it: For you cannot be partakers of the Lord and of idols together, much lesse may such banquets be accounted for things indifferent. Will ye then strive with God ‡ and if ye doe, think you that you shall get the upper hand? n Of thanksgiving: whereupon that holy banquet was called Eucharist, that is, A thanksgiving. o A most effectuall pledge and note of our knitting together with Christ, and ingraffing to him. p That is, as yet observe their ceremonies. q Are consenting and guilty both of that worship and sacrifice. * Deut. 32. 17. Psal. 106, 37. r Have any thing to do with the devils, or enter into that societie which is begun in the devils name. s The heathen and prophane people were wont to shut up and make an end of their feasts which they kept to the honour of their gods, in offering meat-offerings and drink-offerings to them, with banquers and feastings. 6 Coming to another kind of things offered to idols, he repeateth that generall rule, that in the use of things, indifferent, we ought to have consideration, not of our selves onely, but of our neighbours and therefore there are many things which of themselves are lawfull, which may be evil done of us, because of offence to our neighbour.
t Look afore. Chap. 6, 13.

7 An applying of the rule to the present matter: whatsoever is sold in the shambles, you may indifferently buy it as it were at the Lords hand, and eat it either at home with the faithfull, or being called home to the unfaithfull, to wit, in a private banket: but yet with this exception, unlesse any man be present which is weak, whose conscience may be offended by setting meats offered to idols before them: for then you ought to have consideration of their weaknesse.
u The flesh that was sacrificed, was used to be sold in the shambels, and the price returned to the priests.
* Deut. 10, 14. Psal. 24, 1.
x All those things whereof it is full.
* Deut. 10, 14. Psal. 24, 1.
8 A reason: For we must take heed that our liberty be not evil spoken of, and that the benefit of God which we ought to use with thanksgiving be not changed into impietie, and that through our fault, if we chuse rather to offend the conscience of the weak, than to yeeld a little of our liberty in a matter of no importance, and so give occasion to the weak to judge in such sort of us, and of Christian liberty. And the apostle taketh these things upon his own person, that the Corinthians may have so much the lesse occasion to oppose any thing against him.
‡ Or, thanksgiving. y If I may through Gods benefit eat this meat or that meat, why should I through my fault cause that benefit of God to turn to my blame? 9 The conclusion: We must order our lives in such sort, that we seek not our selves, but Gods glory, and so the salvation of as many as we may: wherein the apostle sticketh not to propound himself to the Corinthians (even his own flock) as an example, but so that he calleth them back to Christ, unto whom he himself hath regard.

CHAP. XI.

1 He reproveth them because in holy assemblies 4 their men prayed with their heads covered, and 6 women with their heads uncovered, 17 and because generally their meetings were not for the better, but for the worse, as 21 namely, in profaning with their own feasts the Lords supper. 23 Lastly, he calleth them to the first institution thereof.

BE ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ.

2 ¹ Now I praise you, brethren, that you remember me in all things, and keep the † ordinances, as I delivered them to you.

3 ² But I would have you know, that the head of every man is Christ: and the head of the woman, is the man, and the head of ᵃ Christ is God.

4 ³ Every ᵇ man praying or prophesying, having his head covered, dishonoureth his head.

5 ⁴ But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered, dishonoureth

1 The fifth treatise of this epistle concerning the right ordering of publick assemblies, containing three points, to wit, of the comely apparell of men and women, of the order of the ᶜ Lords supper, and of the right use of spirituall gifts. But going about to reprehend certaine things, he beginneth not withstanding with a generall praise of them, calling those particular laws of comelinesse and honesty, which belong to the ecclesiasticall policy tradition: which afterward they called Canons. ‡ Or, traditions. 2 He setteth down God in Christ our mediatour, for the end and mark not only of the doctrin, but also of ecclesiasticall comelinesse. Then applying it to the question proposed, touching the comely apparell both of men and woman in publike assemblies, he declareth that the woman is one degree beneath the man by the ordinance of God, and that the man is so subject to Christ, that the glory of God ought to appeare in him for the preeminence of the sex. a In that that Christ is our mediatour. 3 Hereof he gathereth, that if men do either pray or preach in publick assemblies, having their heads covered (which was then a signe of subjection) they did as it were spoil themselves of their dignity against Gods ordinance. b It appeareth, that this was a politique law serving only for the circumstances of the time that Paul lived in, by this reason, because in these our dayes for a man to speak bare-headed in an assembly, is a signe of subjection. 4 And in like sort he concludeth, that women which shew themselves in publick and ecclesiasticall assemblies without the signe and token of their subjection, that is to say, uncovered, shame themselves, noureth her head: [5] for that is even all one as if she were shaven.

6 For if the woman be not covered, let her also be shorn: but if it be a shame for a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be covered.

7 [6] For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, for as much as he is the image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of the man.

8 [7] For the man is not of the woman: but the woman of the man.

9 [8] Neither was the man created for the woman: but the woman for the man.

10 [9] For this cause ought the woman to have ‡ [c] power on her head, because of the [10] angels.

11 [11] Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man [d] in the Lord.

12 For as the woman is of the man, even so is the man also by the woman: but all things of God.

13 [12] Judge in your selves: is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered?

14 Doth not even nature it self teach you, that if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him?

15 But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her: for her hair is given her for a ‡ [e] covering 16 [13] But if any man seem to be contentious, we have no such custome, neither the churches of God.

17 [14] Now in this that I declare unto you, I praise you not, that you come together not for the better, but for the worse.

18 [15] For first of all, when ye come together in the church, I heare that there be ‡ divisions among you, and I partly beleeve it.

19 [16] For there must be also ‡ heresies among you, that they which are [f] approved, may be made manifest among you.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, ‡ [g] this is not to eat the Lords supper.

21 For in eating every one taketh [h] before other, his own supper: and one is hungry, and another is drunken.

22 [17] What, have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or, despise ye the church of God, and shame ‡ them that have not? what shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this? I praise ye not.

23 [18] For I have received of the Lord, that which also I delivered unto you, that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread:

24 * And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat, this is my body, which is [i] broken for you: this do ‡ in remembrance of me.

25 After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my bloud: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

26 For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ‡ ye do shew the Lords death till he come.

27 [19] Wherefore, whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord [k] unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and bloud of the Lord.

28 [20] But let a man examine [l] himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.

29 For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh ‡ damnation to himself, not [m] discerning the Lords body.

30 [21] For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep.

31 For if we would [n] judge our selves, we should not be judged.

32 But when we are judged we are chastened of the Lord, that we should not be condemned with the world.

33 [22] Wherefore my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another.

34 [23] And if any man hunger, let him eat at home, that ye come not together unto ‡ condemnation. And the [24] rest will I set in order when I come.

5 The first argument taken from the common sense of man, for so much as nature teacheth women, that it is dishonest for them to come abroad bare headed, seeing that she hath given them thick and long haire, which they doe so diligently trim, and deck, that they can in no wise abide to have it shaven.

6 The taking away of an objection: Have not men also haire given them? I graunt, saith the apostle, but there is another matter in it: For man was made to this end and purpose, that the glory of God should appeare in his rule and authority: but the woman was made, that by profession of her obedience, she might more honour her husband.

7 He proveth the inequalitie of the woman, by that that the man is the matter whereof woman was first made.

8 Secondly, by that that the woman was made for man, and not the man for the womans sake.

9 The conclusion: women must be covered, to shew by this externall signe, their subjection.

‡ That is, a covering, in signe that she is under the power of her husband.

c A covering which is a token of subjection.

10 What this meaneth, I do not yet understand.

11 A digression which the apostle useth, lest that which he spake of the superiority of men, and lower degree of women, in consideration of the policie of the church, should be so taken as though there were no measure of this inequalitie. Therefore he teacheth that men have in such sort the preeminence, that God made them not alone, but women also: and woman was so made of man, that men also are born by the meanes of women, and this ought to put them in minde to observe the degree of every sex in such sort, that mutuall conjunction may be cherished.

d By the Lord.

12 He urgeth the argument taken from the common sense of nature.

‡ Or, vail.

e To be a covering for her, and such a covering, as should procure another.

13 Against such as are stubbornly contentious, we have to oppose this, that the churches of God are not contentious.

14 He passeth now to the next treatise, concerning the right administration of the Lords Supper. And the apostle useth this sharper preface, that the Corinthians might understand, that whereas they observed generally the apostles commandements, yet they fully neglected them in a matter of greatest importance.

15 To celebrate the Lords supper aright, it is requisite that there be not onely consent of doctrine, but also of affections, that it be not profaned.

‡ Or, schismes.

16 Although that schismes and heresies proceed from the devil and are evil, yet they come not by chance, nor without cause, and they turn unto the profit of the elect.

‡ Or, sects.

f Whom experience hath taught to be of sound religion and godlinesse.

‡ Or, ye cannot eat.

g This is an usuall kinde of speech whereby the apostle denieth that flatly, which many did not well.

h Eateth his meat and tarrieth not till other come.

17 The apostle thinketh it good to take away the love feasts, for their abuse, although they had been a long time, and with commendation used in churches, and were appointed and instituted by the apostles.

‡ Or, them that are poore.

18 We must take a true form of keeping the Lords supper, out of the institution of it, the parts whereof are these, touching the pastours, to shew forth the Lords death by preaching his word: to blesse the bread and the wine, by calling upon the name of God, and together with prayers to declare the institution thereof: and finally, to deliver the bread broken to be eaten, and the cup received to be drunken with thanksgiving. And touching the flock, that every man examine himself, that is to say, to prove both his knowledge, and also faith, and repentance: to shew forth the Lords death, that is, in true faith to yeeld unto his word and institution: and last of all, to take the bread at the ministers hand, and to eat it and to drink the wine, and give God thanks: This was Pauls and the apostles manner of ministring.

* Matth. 26, 26. Mark 14, 22. Luke 22, 19.

‡ This word (Broken) noteth out unto us Christ his manner of death, for although his legs were not broken, as the theeves legs were yet was his body verysore tormented, and torn, and bruised.

‡ Or, for a remembrance.

‡ Or, shew ye.

19 Whosoever contemn the holy Sacraments, that is, use them not aright, are guilty not of the bread and wine, but of the thing it self, that is, of Christ, and shall be grievously punished for it.

k Otherwise than meet is, such mysteries should be handled.

20 The examination of a mans self, is of necessitie required in the supper, and therefore they ought not to be admitted unto it, which cannot examine themselves: as children, furious and mad men, also such as either have no knowledge of Christ, or not sufficient, although they professe Christian religion and other such like.

l This place beateth down the faith of credite, or unwrapped faith, which the Papists maintain.

m He is said to discern the Lords body, that hath consideration of the worthinesse of it, and therefore cometh to eat of this meat with great reverence.

21 The profaning of the body and bloud of the Lord in his mysteries, is sharply punished of him, and therefore such a mischief ought diligently to be prevented by judging and correcting of a mans self.

n Trie and examine our selves, by faith and repentance, separating our selves from the wicked.

22 The supper of the Lord is a common action of the whole church, and therefore there is no place for private suppers.

23 The supper of the Lord was instituted not to feed the belly, but to feed the soul with the communion of Christ, and therefore it ought to be separated from common bankets.

‡ Or, judgement.

24 Such things as pertain to order, as place, time, form of prayers, and other such like, the apostle took order for it in congregations, according to the consideration of times, places, and persons.

Chap. XII.

1 Spirituall gifts. 4 are divers, 7 yet all to profit withall. 8 And to that end are diversly bestowed. 12 That by the like proportion, as the members of a naturally body tend all to the 16 mutuall decency, 22 service, and 26 succour of the same body: 27 so we should do one for another, to make up the mysticall body of Christ.

NOw [1] concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you [a] ignorant.

2 [2] Ye know that ye were [b] Gentiles, carried away unto these dumbe idols, even as ye were led.

3 [3] Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God, calleth Jesus ‡ [c] accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the holy Ghost.

1 Now he entreth into the third part of this treatise touching the right use of spirituall gifts, wherein he giveth the Corinthians plainly to understand that they abused them: for they that excelled, bragged ambitiously of them, and so robbed God of the praise of his gifts: and having no consideration of their brethren, abused them to a vaine ostentation, and so robbed the church of the use of those gifts. On the other side, the inferiour sort envied the better, and went about to make departure, so that all that body was as it were scattered and rent in pieces. So then going about to remedie these abuses, willeth them first to consider diligently, that they have not these gifts of themselves, but from the free grace and liberalitie of God, to whose glory they ought to bestow them all.

a Ignorant to what purpose these gifts are given you.

2 He reproveth the same, by comparing their former state with that wherein they were at this time indued, with those excellent gifts.

b As touching Gods service and the covenant, meere strangers.

3 The conclusion: Know you therefore that you cannot so much as move your lips to honour Christ withall, but by the grace of the holy Ghost.

c Doth curse him, or by any means whatsoever diminish his glorie.

158

4 [a] Now there are diversities of gifts, but the [d] same spirit.

5 And there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord.

6 And there are diversities of [e] operations, but it is the same God, which worketh all in all.

7 But the manifestation of the spirit, is [f] given to every man to [g] profit withall.

8 [h] For to one is given by the spirit, the word of [h] wisdome, to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit:

9 To another faith by the same Spirit, to another the gifts of healing by the same Spirit;

10 To another the [i] working of miracles, to another [k] prophesie, to another [l] discerning of spirits, to another divers kindes of tongues, to another the interpretation of tongues.

11 But all these worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally [6] as he will.

12 [7] For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body, [8] so also is [m] Christ.

13 For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one [n] body, whether we be Jews or † Gentiles, whether we be bond or free: and have been all made to [o] drink into one Spirit.

14 [9] For the body is not one member, but many.

15 [10] If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body: is it therefore not of the body?

16 And if the eare shall say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body: is it therefore not of the body?

17 [11] If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? if the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?

18 But now hath God set the members, every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him.

19 And if they were all one member, where were the body?

20 But now are they many members, yet but one body.

21 [12] And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again, the head to the feet, I have no need of you.

22 Nay much more those members of the body, which seem to be [p] more feeble, are necessarie.

23 And those members of the boby, which we think to be lesse honourable, upon these we ‡ [q] bestow more abundant honour, and our uncomely parts have more abundant comelinesse.

24 For our comely parts have no need: but God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to that part which lacked:

25 That there should be no ‡ schisme in the body: but that the members should have the same [r] care one for another.

26 [13] And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it: or one member be honoured, all the members rejoyce with it.

27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in [s] particular.

28 And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, [t] helps, [u] governments, ‡ diversities of tongues.

29 Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all ‡ workers of miracles?

30 Have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?

31 [14] But covet earnestly the best gifts: And yet shew I unto you a more excellent way.

a In the second place, he layeth another foundation, to wit, that these gifts are divers, as the functions also are divers, and their offices divers, but that one self same Spirit, Lord and God is the giver of all these gifts, and that to one end, to wit, for the profit of all.

d The Spirit is plainly distinguished from the gifts.

e So Paul calleth that inward force which cometh from the holy Ghost, and maketh men fit to wonderfull things.

f The holy Ghost openeth and sheweth himself freely in giving of these gifts.

g To the use and benefit of the church.

5 He declareth this manifold diversitie, and reckoneth up the chiefest gifts, beating, that into their heads, which he said before, to wit, that all these things proceeded from one self-same Spirit.

h Wisedome is a most excellent gift, very requisite, not onely for them which teach, but also for them that exhort and comfort, which thing is proper to the pastours office, as the word of knowledge agreeth to the doctours.

i By working he meaneth those great workings of Gods mighty power, which passe and excell amongsts his miracles, as the delivery of his people Israel by the hand of Moses: that which he did by Elias against the priests of Baal, in sending downfire from heaven to consume his sacrifice: & that which he did by Peter, in the matter of Ananias and Saphyra.

k Foretelling of things to come.

l Whereby false prophets are known from true, wherein Peter passed Philip in discovering Simon Magus, Acts 8, 20.

6 He addeth moreover something else, to wit, that although that these gifts are unequall, yet they are most wisely divided, because the will of the Spirit of God is the rule of this distribution.

7 He setteth forth his former saying by a similitude taken from the body: This saith he, is manifestly seen in the body, whose members are divers, but yet so knit together, that they make but one body.

8 The applying of the similitude, so must we also think, saith he, of the mysticall body of Christ: for all we that beleeve, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, are by one self same baptisme, joyned together with our head, that by that meanes, there may be framed one body, compact of many members: and we have drunk one self-same spirit, that is to say, a spirituall feeling, perceiverance, and motion common to us all out of one cup.

m Christ joyned together with his church.

n To become one body with Christs.

† Gr Greeks.

o By one quickening drink of the Lords bloud, we are made partakers of his onely Spirit.

9 He amplifieth that which followed of the similitude, as if he should say, The unity of the body is not onely, not let by this diversitie of members, but also it could not be a body, if it did not consist of many, and those divers members.

11 Again speaking to them, he sheweth them that if that should come to passe which they desire, to wit, that all should be equall to another, there wou'd follow a destruction of the whole body, yea and of themselves: for it could not be a body, unlesse it were made of many members knit together, and divers one from the other. And that no man might finde fault with this division as unequall, he addeth that God himself hath coupled all these together. Therefore all must remain coupled together, that the body may remain in safetie.

12 Now on the other side, he speaketh unto them which were indued with more excellent gifts, willing them not to despise the inferiours as unprofitable, and as though they served to no use: for God saith he hath in such sort tempered this inequality, that the more excellent and beautifull members can in no wise lack the more abject, and such as we are ashamed of, and that they should have more care to see unto them and to cover them: that by this means the necessitie which is on both parts, might keep the whole body in peace and concord, that although if each part be considered apart, they are of divers degrees and conditions, yet because they are joyned together, they have a communitie both in commodities and discommodities.

p Of the smallest and vilest offices, and therefore smally accounted of, of the rest.

q We more carefully cover them.

‡ Or, division.

r Should bestow their operation and offices to the profit and preservation of the whole body.

13 Now he applieth this same doctrin to the Corinthians without any allegory, warning them that seeing there are divers functions and divers gifts, it is their duetie, not to offend one against another, either by envy or ambition, but rather that they being joyned together in love and charity one with another, every one of them bestow to the profit of all, that which he hath received according as his ministerie doth require.

† For all churches wheresoever they are dispersed through the whole world, are divers members of one body.

t The offices of deacons.

u He setteth forth the order of elders, which were the maintainers of the churches discipline.

‡ Or, kindes.

‡ Or, powers.

14 He teacheth them that are ambitious and envious, a certain holy ambition and envy, to wit, if they give themselves to the best gifts, and such as are most profitable to the church, and so if they contend to excell one another in love, which farre passeth all other gifts.

CHAP. XIII.

1 All gifts, 2, 3 how excellent soever, are nothing worth without charitie. 4 The praises thereof, and 13 prelation before hope and faith.

THough [1] I speak with the tongues of men and of [a] angels, and have not charitie, I am become as sounding brasse, or a [b] tinkling cymbal.

2 And though I have the gift of prophesie, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge: and though I have all [c] faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have no charity, I am nothing.

3 And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poore, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charitie, it profiteth me nothing.

4 [2] Charitie [d] suffereth long, and is kinde; charitie envieth not: charitie ‡ vaunteth not it self, is not puffed up,

5 [e] Doth not behave it self unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil.

6 Rejoyceth not in iniquitie, but [f] rejoyceth ‡ in the truth:

1 He reasoneth first of charity, the excellencie whereof he first sheweth by this, that without it, all other gifts are as nothing before God: which thing he proveth partly by an induction, and partly also by anargument taken of the end, wherefore those gifts are given. For to what purpose are those gifts but to Gods glory, and the profit of the church, as is before proved? so that those gifts without charity, have no right use.

a A very earnest kinde of amplifying a matter, as if he said, if there were any tongues of angels, and I had them, and did not use them to the benefite of my neighbour, it were nothing else but a vain and pratling kinde of babbling.

b That giveth a rude and no certain sound.

c By faith, he meaneth the gift of doing miracles, and not that faith which justified, which cannot be void of charitie as the other may.

2 He describeth the force and nature of charitie partly by a comparison of contraries, and partly by the effects of it self: whereby the Corinthians may understand, both how profitable it is in the church, and how necessarie: and also how farre they are from it, and therefore how vainly and without cause they are proud.

d Word for word, deferreth wrath.

‡ Or, is not rash.

e It is not contumelious.

f Rejoyceth at righteousnesse in the righteous. For the Hebrews mean by truth, righteousnesse.

‡ Or, with the truth.

7 Beareth

7 Beareth all things, beleeveth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

8 [3] Charitie never faileth: but whether there be propheſies, they ſhall fail; whether there be tongues, they ſhall ceaſe; whether there be [g] knowledge, it ſhall vanish away.

9 [4] For we know in [h] part, and we propheſie in part.

10 But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part ſhall be done away.

11 [5] When I was a childe, I ſpake as a childe, I underſtood as a childe, I [‡] thought as a childe: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

12 [6] For [i] now we ſee through a glaſſe, † darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part, but then ſhall I know even as alſo I am known.

13 [7] And now abideth faith, hope, charitie, theſe three, but the greateſt of theſe is charitie.

3 Again he commendeth the excellencie of charitie in that, that it ſhall never be abolished in the ſaints, whereas the other gifts which are neceſſary to the building up of the church, ſo long as we live here, ſhall have no place in the world to come.

g The way to get knowledge by propheſying.

4 The reaſon, Becauſe we are now in that ſtate that we have need to learn daily, and therefore we have need of thoſe helps, to wit, of the gift of tongues and knowledge, and alſo of them that teach them. But to what purpoſe ſerve they then, when we have obtained and gotten the full knowledge of God which ſerveth now but for them, which are imperfit and go by degrees to perfection? h We learn imperfectly. 5 He ſetteth forth that, that he ſaid, by an excellent ſimilitude, comparing this life to our infancie, or childhood, wherein we ſtagger and ſtammer rather than ſpeak, and think and underſtand childish things, and therefore have need of ſuch things as may form and frame our tongue and minde: but when we become men, to what purpoſe ſhould we deſire that ſtammering, thoſe childish toyes, and ſuch like things, whereby our childhood is framed by little and little. Or, reaſoned. 6 The app'ying of the ſimilitude of our childhood to this preſent life, wherein we darkly behold heavenly things, according to the ſmall meaſure of light which is given us, through the underſtanding of tongues, and hearing the teachers and miniſters of the church: of our mans age and ſtrength, to that heavenly and eternall life, wherein when we behold God himſelf preſent, and are lightened with his full and perfect light, to what purpoſe ſhould we deſire the voice of man, and thoſe worldly things which are moſt imperfect? But yet then, ſhall all the ſaints be knit both with God, and between themſelves with moſt fervent love, and therefore charitie ſhall not be abolished but perfected, although it ſhall not be ſhewed forth, and entertained by ſuch manner of duties as peculiarly and onely belong to the infirmitie of this life. i All this muſt be underſtood by compariſon. † Gr. in a riddle. 7 The concluſion, As if the apoſtle ſhould ſay, Such therefore ſhall be our condition then: but now we have three things, and they remain ſure if we be Chriſts, as without which true religion cannot conſiſt, to wit, faith, hope, and charitie. And among theſe, charitie is the chiefeſt, becauſe it ceaſeth not in the life to come as the reſt do, but is perfected and accomplished. For ſeeing that faith and hope tend to things which are promiſed and are to come, when we have preſently gotten them, to what purpoſe ſhould we have faith and hope? but yet there at length ſhall we truly and perfectly love both God, and one another.

Chap. XIIII.

1 Propheſie is commended, 2, 3, 4 and preferred before ſpeaking with tongues, 6 by a compariſon drawn from muſicall inſtruments. 12 Both muſt be referred to edification, 22 as to their true and proper end. 26 The true uſe of each is taught, 29 and the abuſe taxed. 34 Women are forbidden to ſpeak in the church.

1 [1] Follow after charitie, and deſire ſpirituall gifs, but rather that ye may [a] propheſie.

2 [2] For he that ſpeaketh in an [b] unknown tongue, ſpeaketh not unto men, but unto God: for no man † underſtandeth him: howbeit in the [c] ſpirit he ſpeaketh myſteries.

3 But he that propheſieth, ſpeaketh unto men to [d] edification, and exhortation, and comfort.

4 He that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue, edifieth himſelf: but he that propheſieth, edifieth the [e] church.

5 I would that ye all ſpake with tongues, but rather that ye propheſied: for greater is he that propheſieth, than he that ſpeaketh with tongues, except he interpret, that the church may receive edifying.

6 Now brethren, if I come unto you ſpeaking with tongues, what ſhall I profit you, except I ſhall ſpeak to you either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by propheſying, or by doctrine?

7 [3] And even things without life giving ſound, whether pipe or harp, except they give a diſtinction in the ‡ ſounds, how ſhall it be known what is piped or harped?

8 For if the trumpet give an uncertain ſound, who ſhall prepare himſelf to the batel?

9 So likewiſe you, except ye utter by the tongue words † [f] eaſie to be underſtood, how ſhall it be known what is ſpoken? for ye ſhall ſpeak into the aire.

10 [4] There are, it may be, ſo many kindes of voices in the world, and none of them are without ſignification.

11 Therefore if I know not the meaning of the voice, I ſhall be unto him that ſpeaketh, a Barbarian, and he that [g] ſpeaketh ſhall be a Barbarian unto me.

12 [5] Even ſo ye, foraſmuch as ye are zealous † of ſpirituall gifts, ſeek that ye may excell to the edifying of the church.

13 Wherefore let him that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue, [h] pray that he may interpret.

14 [6] For if [i] I pray in an unknown tongue, my [k] ſpirit prayeth, but my underſtanding is [l] unfruitfull.

15 What is it then? I will pray with the ſpirit, and will pray with the [m] underſtanding alſo: I will ſing with the ſpirit, and I will ſing with the underſtanding alſo.

16 [7] Elſe when thou ſhalt bleſſe with the [n] ſpirit, how ſhall he that [o] occupieth the room of the unlearned, ſay [p] Amen at thy giving of thanks, ſeeing he underſtandeth not what thou ſayeſt?

17 For thou verily giveſt thanks well, but the other is not edified.

18 [8] I thank my God, I ſpeak with tongues more than you all:

19 Yet in the church I had rather ſpeak [q] five words with my underſtanding, that by my voice I might teach others alſo, than ten thouſands words in an unknown tongue.

20 [9] Brethren, be not children in underſtanding: howbeit, in malice be ye children, but in underſtanding be † men.

21 In the [r] law it is * written, With men of others tongues and other lips will I ſpeak unto this people: and yet for all that will they not heare me, ſaith the Lord.

1 He inferreth now of that he ſpake before, Therefore ſeeing charitie is the chiefeſt of all, before all things ſet it before you as chief and principall: and ſo eſteem thoſe things as moſt excellent, which profit the greater part of men: (as propheſie, that is to ſay, the gift of teaching and applying the doctrine: which was contemned in reſpect of other gifts, although it be the chiefeſt and moſt neceſſarie for the church) and not thoſe which for a ſhew ſeem to be marvellous, as the gifts of tongues, when a man was ſuddenly indued with the knowledge of many tongues, which made men greatly amazed, and yet of it ſelf was not greatly to any uſe, unleſſe there were an interpreter. a What propheſie is, he ſheweth in the third verſe. 2 He reprehendeth their perverſe judgement touching the gift of tongues. For why was it given? to wit, to the intent that the myſteries of God might be the better known to a greater ſort, Thereby it is evident that propheſie, whereunto the gift of tongues ought to ſerve, is better than this: and therefore the Cotinthians deed judge amiſſe, in that they made more accompt of the gift of tongues than of propheſying: becauſe forſooth the gift of tongues was a thing more to be bragged of. And hereupon followed another abuſe of the gift of tongues, in that the Corinthians uſed tongues in the congregation without an interpreter. Which thing although it might be done to ſome profit of him that ſpake them, yet he corrupted the right uſe of that gift, becauſe there came thereby no profit to the hearers and common aſſemblies were inſtituted and appointed not for any private mans commoditie, but for the profit of the whole company. b A ſtrange language which no man can underſtand without an interpreter. † Gr. heareth. c By that inſpiration which he hath received of the Spirit, which notwithſtanding he abuſeth, when he ſpeaketh myſteries which none of the companie can underſtand. d Which may further men in the ſtudy of godlineſſe. e The companie.

3 He ſetteth forth that which he ſaid by a ſimilitude, which he borroweth and taketh from inſtruments of muſick, which although they ſpeak not perfitly, yet they are diſtinguiſhed by their ſounds, that they may be the better uſed. ‡ Or, tunes. † Gr. ſignificant. f That do fitly utter the matter it ſelf.

5 The concluſion, if they will excell in thoſe ſpirituall gifts, as it is meet, they muſt ſeek the profit of the church, and therefore they muſt not uſe the gift of tongues, unleſſe there be an interpreter to expound the ſtrange and unknown tongue, whether it be himſelf that ſpeaketh, or another interpreter. † Gr. of ſpirits. h Pray for the gift of interpretation. 6 A reaſon, Becauſe it is not ſufficient for us to ſpeak ſo in the congregation, that we our ſelves do worship God in ſpirit, that is according to the gift which we have received, but we muſt alſo be underſtood of the companie, leaſt that be unprofitable to other, which we have ſpoken. i If I pray, when the church is aſſembled together, in a ſtrange tongue. k The gift and inſpiration which the ſpirit giveth me, doth his part, but onely to my ſelf. l No fruit cometh to the church by my prayers. m So that I may be underſtood of other, and may inſtruct other. 7 Another reaſon, ſeeing that the whole congregation muſt agree to him that ſpeaketh, and alſo witneſſe this agreement, How ſhall they give their aſſent or agreement which know not what is ſpoken? n Onely, without all conſideration of the hearers. o He that ſitteth as a private man. p So then one uttered the prayers, and all the company anſwered, Amen. 8 He propoundeth himſelf for an example, both that they may be aſhamed of their foolish ambition, and alſo that he may eſchew all ſuſpition of envy. q A very few words. 9 Now he reproveth them freely for their childish fol'y, which ſee not how this gift of tongues which was given to the profit of the church, is turned by their ambition into an inſtrument of curſing, ſeeing that the ſame alſo is contained among the punishments wherewith God puniſhed the ſtubbornneſſe of his people, that he diſperſed them amongſt ſtrangers whoſe language they underſtood not. † Gr. perfect or of a ripe age. r By the law he underſtandeth all the whole ſcripture. * Iſa. 28, 11.

22 [10] Wherefore tongues are for a ſigne, not to them that beleeve, but to them that beleeve not: but propheſying ſerveth not for them that beleeve not, but for them which beleeve:

23 [11] If therefore the whole church be come together into one place, and all ſpeak with tongues, and there come in thoſe that are [r] unlearned, or unbeleevers, will they not ſay that ye are mad?

24 But if all propheſie, and there come in one that beleeveth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all.

25 And thus are the ſecrets of his heart made manifeſt, and ſo falling down on his face, he will worship God, and report that God is in you of a truth.

26 [12] How is it then brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a pſalme, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation. Let all things be done to edifying.

27 [13] If any man ſpeak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the moſt by three, and that by courſe, and let one interpret.

28 But if there be no interpreter, let him keep ſilence in the church, and let him ſpeak to himſelf, and to God.

29 [14] Let the prophets ſpeak two or three, and let the other judge.

30 If any thing be revealed to another that ſitteth by, let the firſt hold his peace.

31 For ye may all propheſie one by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted.

32 And the [t] ſpirit of the prophets are ſubject to the prophets.

33 For God is not the authour of † confuſion, but of peace, as in all churches of the ſaints, 34 [15] Let your women keep ſilence in the churches, for it is not permitted unto them to ſpeak: but they are commanded to be under obedience, as alſo ſaith the * law.

35 And if they will learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a ſhame for women to ſpeak in the church.

36 [16] What? came the word of God out from you? or came it unto you onely?

37 If any man think himſelf to be a prophet, or [u] ſpirituall, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you, are the commandments of the Lord.

38 [17] But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant.

39 [18] Wherefore brethren, covet to propheſie, and forbid not to ſpeak with tongues.

40 Let all things be done decently, and in order.

10 The concluſion: Therefore the gift of tongues ſerveth to punish the unfaithfull and unbeleevers, unleſſe it be referred to propheſie (that is to ſay, to the interpretation of ſcripture) and that, that which is ſpoken be by that meanes underſtood of the hearers.

11 Another argument: the gift of tongues without prophecie is not onely unprofitable to the faithfull, but alſo doth very much hurt: as well to them, as to the unfaithfull which should be won in the publike aſſemblies. For by this meanes it cometh to paſſe, that the faithfull ſeem to other to be mad, much leſſe can the unfaithfull be inſtructed thereby.

r Look Acts 4, 13.

12 The concluſion: The edifying of the congregation is a rule and ſquare of the right uſe of all ſpirituall gifts.

13 The manner how to uſe the gift of tongues. It may be lawfull for one or two, or at the moſt for three, to uſe the gift of tongues, one after another, in an aſſembly, ſo that there be ſome to expound the ſame: but if there be none to expound, let him that hath that gift ſpeak to himſelf alone.

14 The manner of propheſying: Let two or three propound, and let the other judge of that that is propounded, whether it be agreeable to the word of God or no: If in this examination the Lord give any man ought to ſpeak, let them give him leave to ſpeak. Let every man be admitted to propheſie, ſeverally, and in his order, ſo far forth as it is requiſite for the edifying of the church: Let them be content to be ſubject each to others judgement.

t The doctrine which the Prophets bring, which are inſpired with Gods Spirit.

† Gr. tumult or unquietneſſe.

15 Women are commanded to be ſilent in publike aſſemblies, and they are commanded to aſk of their husbands at home. * Gen. 3, 16.

16 A generall concluſion of the treatiſe of the right uſe of ſpirituall gifts in aſſemblies: with a ſharp reprehenſion, leſt the Corinthians might alone ſeem to themſelves to be wiſe.

u Skilfull in knowing and judging ſpirituall things.

17 The church ought not to care for ſuch as be ſtubbornly ignorant, and will not abide to be taught, but to go forward notwithſtanding, in thoſe things which are right.

18 Propheſie ought ſimply to be retained and kept in congregations, the gift of tongues is not to be forbidden, but all things muſt be done orderly.

CHAP. XV.

3 By Chriſts reſurrection, 12 he proveth the neceſſitie of our reſurrection, againſt all ſuch as denie the reſurrection of the bodie. 21 The fruit, 35 and manner thereof, 51 and of the changing of them that ſhall be found alive at the laſt day.

MOreover [1] brethren, I declare unto you the goſpel which I preached unto you, which alſo you have received, and wherein ye [z] ſtand.

2 By which alſo ye are ſaved, if ye ‡ keep in memorie † what I preached unto you, [b] unleſſe ye have beleeved in vain.

3 For I delivered unto you firſt of all, that which I alſo received, how that Chriſt died for our ſinnes according to the ſcriptures:

4 And that he was buried, and that he roſe again the third day according to the ſcriptures:

5 And that he was ſeen of Cephas, then of the [c] twelve.

6 After that, he was ſeen of above five hundred brethren at [d] once: of whom the greater part remain unto this preſent, but ſome are fallen aſleep.

7 After that, he was ſeen of James, then of all the apoſtles.

8 [2] And laſt of all he was ſeen of me alſo, as of ‡ one born out of due time.

9 For I am the leaſt of the apoſtles, that am not meet to be called an apoſtle, becauſe I perſecuted the church of God.

10 But by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was beſtowed upon me, was not in vain: but I laboured more abundantly than they all; yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me:

11 Therefore whether it were I or they, ſo we preach, and ſo ye beleeved.

12 [3] Now if Chriſt be preached that he roſe from the dead, how ſay ſome among you, that there is no reſurrection of the dead?

13 [4] But if there be no reſurrection of the dead, then is Chriſt not riſen.

14 [5] And if Chriſt be not riſen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is alſo vain.

15 Yea, and we are found falſe witneſſes of God, becauſe we have teſtified of God, that he raiſed up Chriſt: whom he raiſed not up, if ſo be that the dead riſe not.

16 [6] For if the dead riſe not, then is not Chriſt raiſed:

17 And if Chriſt be not raiſed, your faith is vain, [7] ye are [e] yet in your ſinnes.

18 [8] Then they alſo which are fallen aſleep in Chriſt, are periſhed.

19 [9] If in this life onely we have hope in Chriſt, we are of all men moſt miſerable.

20 [10] But now is Chriſt riſen from the

1 The firſt treatiſe of this epiſtle, concerning the reſurrection: and he uſeth a tranſition, or paſſing over from one matter to another, ſhewing firſt, that he bringeth no new thing, to the end that the Corinthians might underſtand that they had begun to ſwarve from the right courſe: and next, that he goeth not about to intreat of a trifling matter, but of another chief point of the goſpel, which if it be taken away, their faith muſt needs come to nought. And ſo at the length he beginneth this treatiſe at Chriſts reſurrection, which is the ground and foundation of ours, and confirmeth it, firſt, by the teſtimony of the ſcriptures, and by the witneſſe of the apoſtles, and of more than five hundred brethren, and laſt of all by his own.

z In the profeſſion whereof you continue yet.

b Which is very abſurd, and can not be but that they that beleeve muſt reap the fruit of faith.

c Of thoſe twelve picked & choſen apoſtles, which were commonly called twelve, though Judas was put out of the number.

d Not at ſeverall times, but together and at one inſtant.

2 He maintaineth by the way, the authoritie of his apoſtleſhip, which was requiſite to be in good credite among the Corinthians, that this epiſtle might be of force and waight amongſt them. In the mean ſeaſon, he compareth himſelf in ſuch ſort after a certain divine art, with certain others, that he maketh himſelf inferiour to them all.

‡ Or, an abortive.

3 The firſt argument, to prove that there is a reſurrection from the dead: Chriſt is riſen again, therefore the dead ſhall riſe again. 4 The ſecond, by an abſurditie, if there be no reſurrection of the dead, then is not Chriſt riſen agin. 5 The proof of that abſurditie, by other abſurdities: If Chriſt be not riſen again, the preaching of the goſpel is in vain: and the credit that you gave unto it, is vain, and we are lyars. 6 He repeateth the ſame argument taken of an abſurditie, purpoſing to ſhew how faith is in vain, if the reſurrection of Chriſt be taken away. 7 Firſt, ſeeing death is the puniſhment of ſin, in vaine ſhould we beleeve that our ſins were forgiven us, if they remain: but they doe remain, if Chriſt roſe not from death. e They are yet in their ſins, which are not ſanctified, not have obtained remiſſion of their ſins. 8 Secondly, unleſſe that this be certain that Chriſt roſe again, all they which died in Chriſt are periſhed. So then what profit cometh of faith? 9 The third argument, which is alſo taken from an abſurditie: for unleſſe there be another life, wherein ſuch as truſt and beleeve in Chriſt ſhall be bleſſed, they were the moſt miſerable of all creatures, becauſe in this life they are the moſt miſerable. 10 A concluſion of the former argument, Therefore Chriſt is riſen againe.

dead, and [11] become the [f] first-fruits of them that slept.

21 [12] For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead.

22 For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be [g] made alive.

23 [13] But every man in his own order. Christ the first-fruits, afterward they that are Christs, at his coming.

24 [14] Then cometh the [h] end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdome to God even the Father, when he shal have put down [i] all rule, and all authoritie, and power.

25 For he must reigne, till he hath put all enemies [k] under his feet.

26 The [l] last enemie that shall be destroyed, is death.

27 For he hath put all things under his feet; but when he saith all things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted which did put all things under him.

28 And when all things shall be subdued unto him, [m] then shall the Sonne also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that [n] God may be all in all.

29 [15] Else what shall they do, which are baptized [o] for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?

30 [16] And why stand we in jeopardie every houre?

31 [p] I protest by [‡] your rejoycing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily.

32 [17] If [‡] [q] after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? [18] let us [r] eat and drink, for to morrow we die.

33 [19] Be not deceived: evil communications corrupt good manners.

34 Awake to righteousnesse, and sinne not: for some have not the knowledge of God, I speak this to your shame.

35 [20] But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what bodie do they come?

36 [21] Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened except it die.

37 And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that bodie that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain.

38 [22] But God giveth it a bodie as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own bodie.

39 All flesh is not the same flesh, but there is one kinde of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds.

40 There are also celestiall bodies, and bodies terrestriall: but the glorie of the celestiall is one, and the glorie of the terrestriall is another.

41 There is one glorie of the sunne, and another glorie of the moon, and another glorie of the starres: for one starre differeth from another starre in glorie.

42 [23] So also is the resurrection of the dead, it is [s] sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption.

43 It is sown in [t] dishonour, it is raised in glorie: it is sown in weaknesse, it is raised in [u] power.

44 [24] It is sown a naturall body, it is raised a spirituall body. [25] There is a naturall body and there is a spirituall body.

45 And so is it written, [x] The first man Adam was made a living soul, the last Adam was made a [y] quickning spirit.

46 [26] Howbeit that was not first which is spirituall: but that which is naturall, and afterward that which is spirituall.

47 The first man is of the earth [z] earthy: the second man is the Lord from [a] heaven.

48 [27] As is the earthy, such are they that are earthy, and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And as we have born the [b] image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

11 He putteth the last conclusion for the first proposition of the argument that followeth. Christ is risen again: Therefore shall we, the faithfull, (for of them he speaketh) rise again. Then followeth the first reason of this consequent: for Christ it set forth unto us to be considered of, not as a private man apart and by himself, but as the first fruits: And he taketh that which was known to all men, to wit, that the whole heap is sanctified in the first fruits.

f He alludeth to the first fruits of corn, the offering whereof sanctified the rest of the fruits.

12 Another confirmation of the same consequent: for Christ is to be considered as opposite to Adam, that as from one man Adam, sinne came over all, so from one man Christ, life cometh unto all: that is to say, that all the faithfull, as they die, because by nature they were born of Adam, so because in Christ they are made the children of God by graee, they are quickened and restored to life by him.

g Shall rise by the vertue of Christ.

13 He doeth two things together: for he sheweth that the resurrection is in such sort common to Christ with all his members, that notwithstanding he farre passeth them, both in time (for he was the first that rose again from the dead) and also in honour, because that from him and in him is all our life and glory. Then by this occasion he passeth to the next argument.

14 The fourth argument, wherewith also he confirmeth the other, hath a most sure ground, to wit, because that God must reigne, and this is the manner of his reigne, that the Father will be shewed to be king of his Sonne who was made man, to whom all things are made subject (the promises only except) to the end that the Father may afterward triumph in his Sonne the conquerour. And he maketh two parts of this reigne and dominion of the Son: wherein the Fathers glorie consisteth, to wit, the overcoming of his enemies (whereof some must be deprived of all power, as Satan and all the wicked, be they never so proud and mighty, and other must be utterly abolished, as death) and a plain and full deliverie of the godly from all enemies, that by this meanes God may fully set forth in the body of the church, cleaving fast unto their head Christ, his kingdome and glory, as a king in his subjects. Moreover he putteth the first degree of this kingdome in the resurrection of his Son, who is the head: and the perfection, in the conjunction of the members with the head, which shall be in the latter day. Now all these tend to this purpose, to shew that unlesse the dead doe rise again, neither the Father can be king above all, neither Christ be the Lord of all: for neither should the power of Satan and death be overcome, nor the glory of God be full in his Sonne, nor his Sons in his members.

h The shutting up and finishing of all things.

i All his enemies which shall be spoiled of all the power they have, Psal. 110, 1. Act. 2, 34. Heb. 1, 13. and 10, 13.

k Christ is considered here, as he appeared in the form of a servant, in which respect he ruleth the church as head, and that because this power was given him of his Father.

l The shutting up of the argument, which is taken from the whole to the part: for if all his enemies shall be put under his feet, then must it needs be that death also shall be subdued under him.

m Not because the Son was not subject to his Father before, but because this body, that is to say, the church which is here in distresse, and not yet wholly partaker of his glory, is not yet fully perfect, and also because the bodies of the Saints which be in the graves, shall not be glorified untill the resurrection: but Christ as he is God, hath us subject to him as his Father hath, but as he is Priest, he is subject to his Father together with us. August. book 1. chap. 8. of the Trinitie.

n By this high kinde of speech, is set forth an incomprehensible glory which floweth from God, and shall fill all of us, as we are joyned together with our head, but yet so, that our head shall alwayes reserve his preeminence.

15 The fift argument is taken of the end of baptisme to wit, because that they which are baptized are baptized for dead: that is to say, that they may have a remedy against death, because that baptisme is a token of regeneration.

o They that are baptized to this end and purpose, that death may be put out in them, or to rise again from the dead, whereof baptisme is a seal.

16 The sixt argument: Unlesse there be a resurrection of the dead, why should the apostles so daily cast themselves into danger of so many deaths?

p As though he said, I die daily, as all the miseries I suffer can well witnesse, which I may truly boast of that I have suffered amongst you.

‡ Some reade our.

17 The taking away of an objection: But thou Paul didst ambitiously, as commonly men are wont todo, when thou didst fight with beasts at Ephesus: that is very like, saith Paul: for what could that advantage me, were it not for the glory of eternall life which I hope for?

‡ Or, to speak after the manner of men.

q Not upon any godly motion, nor casting mine eyes upon God, but carried away with vaine glory, or a certain headinesse.

18 The seventh argument which dependeth upon the last: if there be no resurrection of the dead, why do we give our selves to any thing else, save to eating and drinking?

r These are speeches that epicures use.

19 The conclusion with a sharp exhortation, that they take heed of the naughtie companie of certain: from whence he sheweth, that this mischief sprang: warning them to be wise with sobrietie unto righteousnesse.

20 Now that he hath proved the resurrection, he discovereth their dotishnesse, in that they scoffingly demanded, how it could be that the dead could rise again, and if they did rise again, they asked mockingly, what manner of bodies they should have. Therefore he sendeth these fellows which seemed to themselves to be marvelous wise and wittie, to be instructed of poore rude husbandmen.

21 Thou mightest have learned either of these, saith Paul, by daily experience: for seede are sowen, and rot, and yet notwithstanding so farre it is off that they perish, that contrariwise they grow up farre more beautifull: and whereas they are sowen naked and drie, they spring up green from death by the vertue of God: and doth it seem incredible to thee that our bodies should rise from corruption, and that indued with a farre more excellent quality?

22 We see a diversitie both in one and the self-same thing which hath now one form and then another, and yet keepeth its own kindeias it is evident in a grain which is sowen bare, but springeth up farre after another sort: and also in divers kindes of one self-same sort, as amongst beasts: and also among things of divers sorts, as the heavenly bodies and the earthly bodies: which also differ very much one from another. Therefore there is no cause why we should reject either the resurrection of bodies, or the changing of them into a better state, as a thing impossible, or strange.

23 He maketh three manner of qualities of the bodies being raised: Incorruption, to wit, because they shall be sound and altogether of a nature that cannot be corrupt: Glory, because they shall be adorned with beauty and honour: Power, because they shall continue everlasting, without meat, drink, and all other helps, without which this frail life cannot keep it self from corruption.

s Is buried, and man is hid as the seed in the grouud.

t Void of honour, void of glory and beauty.

u Freed from the former weaknesse, whereas it is subject to such alteration and change, that it cannot maintain it self without meat and drink, and such other like helps.

24 He sheweth perfectly in one word this change of the qualitie of the body by the resurrection, when he saith, that of a naturall body, it shall become a spirituall body: which two qualities being clean different the one from the other, he straightway expoundeth, and setteth forth diligently.

25 That is called a naturall body which is quickned and maintained by a living soul onely, such as Adam was, of whom all we are born naturally: and that is said to be a spirituall, which together with the soul is quickned with a farre more excellent vertue, to wit, with the Spirit of God, which descendeth from Christ the second Adam unto us.

x Adam is called the first man: because he is the root, as it were, from whence we spring, and Christ is the latter man: because he is the beginning of all them that are spirituall, and in him we are all comprehended.

y Christ is called a spirit, by reason of that most excellent nature, that is to say, God who dwelleth in him bodily, as Adam is called a living soul, by reason of the soul which is the best part in him.

26 Secondly, he willeth the order of this double state or qualitie to be observed, that the naturall was first, Adam being created of the clay of the earth: and the spirituall followed and came upon it, to wit, when as the Lord being sent from heaven, indued our flesh, which was prepared and made fit for him, with the fulnesse of the Godhead.

z Wallowing in dirt, and wholly given to an earthly nature.

a The Lord is said to come down from heaven by that kinde of speech, whereby that which is proper to one is vouched of another.

27 He applieth both the earthly naturalnesse of Adam (If I may so say) to our bodies, so long as they are naturally conversant upon earth, to wit. in this life, and in the grave: and also the Spirituality of Christ to the same our bodies, after they are risen again, and he saith, that that goeth before, and this shall follow.

b Not a vain and false image, but such an one as had the truth with it indeed.

50 [28] Now this I say, brethren, that [c] flesh and bloud cannot inherit the kingdome of God: neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.

51 [29] Behold, I shew you a [d] mystery: we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed,

52 [e] In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: (for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed)

53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortall must put on immortalitie.

54 So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortall shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to passe the saying that is written, * Death is swallowed up in victorie.

55 O death, where is thy sting? O ‡ grave, where is thy victory?

56 The sting of death is sinne, and the strength of sinne is the law.

57 But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 [30] Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, alwayes abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the [f] Lord.

28 The conclusion: We cannot be partakers of the glory of God, unlesse we put off all that grosse and filthy nature of our bodies, subject to corruption: that the same body may be adorned with incorruptible glory.

c Flesh and bloud are taken here for a living body, which cannot attain to incorruption, unlesse it put off corruption.

29 He goeth further, declaring that it shall come to passe, that they which shall be found alive in the latter day, shall not descend into that corruption of the grave, but shall be renewed with a sudden change, which change is very requisite: and that the certain enjoying of the benefit and victory of Christ, is deferred unto that latter time.

d A thing that hath been hid, and never known hitherto, and therefore worthy that you give good eare unto it.

e He sheweth us that the time shall be very short. * Hos. 13,14. ‡ Or, hell. 30 An exhortation taken of the profit that ensueth, that seeing they understand that the glory of the other life is laid up for faithfull workmen, they continue and stand fast in the truth of the doctrin of the resurrection of the dead.

f Through the Lords help and goodnesse working in us.

CHAP. XVI.

1 He exhorteth them to relieve the want of the brethren at Jerusalem 10 commendeth Timothie: 13 and after friendly admonitions, 16 shutteth up his epistle with divers salutations.

NOw concerning the [1] collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye.

2 Upon the [a] first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath [b] prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come.

3 And when I come, whomsoever you shall approve by your [c] letters, them will I send to bring your [f] liberality unto Jerusalem.

4 [2] And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

5 Now I will come unto you, when I shall passe through Macedonia: (for I do passe through Macedonia)

6 And it may be that I will abide, yea, and winter with you, that ye may bring me on my journey, whithersoever I go.

7 For I will not see you now by the way, but I trust to tarry a while with you, if the Lord permit.

8 But I will tarry at Ephesus untill Pentecost.

9 For a great doore and [d] effectuall is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries.

10 Now if Timotheus come, see that he may be with you [e] without fear: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do.

11 Let no man therefore despise him: but conduct him forth [f] in peace, that he may come unto me: for I look for him with the brethren.

12 As touching our brother Apollos, I greatly desired him to come unto you, with the brethren, but his will was not at all to come at this time: but he will come when he shall have convenient time.

13 Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong.

14 Let all your things be done with charity.

15 I beseech you brethren, (ye know the house of [g] Stephanas, that it is the first-fruits of Achaia, and that they have [h] addicted themselves to the ministery of the saints)

16 That ye [i] submit your selves unto such, and to every one that helpeth with us and laboureth.

17 I am glad of the coming of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for that which was lacking on your part, they have supplied.

18 For they have refreshed my [k] spirit and yours: therefore [l] acknowledge ye them that are such.

19 The churches of Asia salute you: Aquila and Priscilla salute you much in the Lord, with the church that is in their house.

20 All the brethren greet you: greet ye one another with an holy kisse.

21 The salutation of me Paul with mine own hand.

22 If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be [m] anathema, Maran-atha.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

24 My love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

¶ The first epistle to the Corinthians was written from Philippi, by Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus and Timotheus.

1 Collections in old time were made by the Apostles appointment the first day of the week, on which day the manner was to assemble themselves.

a Which in times past was called Sunday, but now is called the Lords day.

b That every man bestow according to the abilitie that God hath blessed him with.

c Which you shall give them to carrie.

f Gr. gift.

2 The residue of the epistle is spent in writing of familiar matters, yet so that all things be referred to his purposed mark, that is to say, to the glory of God, and the edifying of the Corinthians.

d Very fit and convenient to do great things by.

e Without any just occasion of fear.

f Safe and sound, and that with all kinde of courtesie.

g Stephanas is the name of a man and not of a woman.

h Given themselves wholly to the ministerie.

i That you honour and reverence them, be obedient to them, and be content to be ruled by them, as meet is you should, seeing they have bestowed themselves and their goods to help you withall.

k Mine heart.

l Take them for such men as they are indeed.

m By these words, is betokened the severest kinde of curse and excommunication that was amongst the Jews: and the words are as much to say, as, Our Lord cometh: So that his meaning may be this, Let him be accursed even to the coming of the Lord, that is to say, To his deaths day, even for ever.

The ſecond epiſtle of PAUL the apoſtle, TO THE CORINTHIANS,

Chap. I.

3 The apoſtle encourageth them againſt troubles, by the comforts and deliverances which God had given him, as in all his afflictions, 8 ſo particularly in his late danger in Aſia: 12 and calling both his own conſcience, and theirs to witneſſe of his ſincere manner of preaching the immutable truth of the goſpel, 15 he excuſeth his not coming to them, as proceeding not of lightneſſe but of his lenity towards them,

PAul [1] an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the ſaints which are in all Achaia:

1 See the declaration of ſuch ſalutation in the former epiſtles.

2 Grace be to you and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 [2] Bleſſed be God, even the Father of our Lord [a] Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of [b] mercies, and the God of all comfort.

2 He beginneth after his manner with thankſgiving which notwithſtanding (otherwiſe than he was wont) he applieth to himſelf: beginning his epiſtle, with the ſetting forth of the dignitie of his apoſtleſhip, conſtrained (as it ſhould ſeem) by their importunity which took an occaſion to deſpiſe him, by reaſon of his miſeries. But he anſwereth, that he is not ſo afflicted, but that his comforts do exceed his afflictions, ſhewing the ground of them, even the mercy of God the Father in Jeſus Chriſt.
a To him be praiſe and glory given.
b Moſt mercifull.

4 Who comforteth us in all our tribulation, [3] that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we our ſelves are comforted of God.

3 The Lord doth comfort us to this end and purpoſe, that we may ſo much the more ſurely comfort others.

5 For as the [c] ſufferings of Chriſt abound in us, ſo our conſolation alſo aboundeth by Chriſt.

c The miſeries which we ſuffer for Chriſt, or which Chriſt ſuffereth in us.

6 [4] And whether we be afflicted, it is for your conſolation and ſalvation, which ‡ is [d] effectuall in the enduring of the ſame ſufferings, which we alſo ſuffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your conſolation and ſalvation,

4 He denieth that either his afflictions, or the conſolations which he received of God, may juſtly be deſpiſed, ſeeing that the Corinthians both ought and might

7 And our hope of you is ſtedfaſt, knowing that as you are partakers of the ſufferings, ſo ſhall ye be alſo of the conſolation.

8 [5] For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Aſia, that we were preſſed out of meaſure, above ſtrength, inſomuch that we [e] deſpaired even of life.

e The miſeries which we ſuffer for Chriſt, or which Chriſt ſuffereth in us.

9 But we had the ‡ ſentence of death in [f] our ſelves, that we ſhould not truſt in our ſelves, but in God which raiſeth the dead.

10 Who delivered us from ſo [g] great a death, and doth deliver: in whom we truſt that he will yet deliver us:

11 [6] You alſo helping together by prayer for us, [7] that for the gift beſtowed upon us by the means of many perſons, thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

take great occaſion to be confirmed by either of them. ‡ Or, is wrought. d Although ſalvation be given us freely, yet becauſe there is a way appointed us whereby we muſt come to it, which is, the race of an innocent and upright life. which me muſt run, therefore we are ſaid to work our ſalvation, Phil. 2, 12. And becauſe it is God onely that of his free good will worketh all things in us, therefore is he ſaid to work the ſalvation in us by thoſe ſelf-ſame things by which we muſt paſſe to everlaſting life, after that we have once overcome all incumbrances. 5 He witneſſeth, that he is not onely not aſhamed of his afflictions, but that he deſireth alſo to have all men know the greatneſſe of them, and alſo his delivery from them, although it be not yet perfect. e I knew not at all what to do, neither did I ſee by mans help which way to ſave my ſelf. ‡ Or, anſwer. f I was reſolved within my ſelf to die. g From theſe great dangers. 6 That he may not ſeem to boaſt himſelf, he attributeth all to God, and therewith alſo confeſſeth that he attributeth much to the prayers of the faithfull.

7 The end of the afflictions of the Saints, is the glory of God, and therefore they ought to be precious unto us.

12 [8] For our rejoycing is this, the teſtimony of our conſcience, that in ſimplicity and [h] godly ſincerity, not with fleſhly wiſdome, but by the [i] grace of God, we have had our converſation in the world, and more abundantly to youwards.

8 Secondly he putteth away another ſlander, to wit, that he was a light man, and ſuch a one as was not lightly to be credited, ſeeing that he promiſed to come unto them, and came not. And firſt he ſpeaketh of the ſimplicity of his minde, and ſincerity which they knew both by his voice when he was preſent, and they ought to acknowledge it alſo in his letters being abſent: and moreover he proteſteth that he will never be otherwiſe.
h With clearneſſe, and holy, and true plainnes of minde, as God himſelf can witneſſe.
i Truſting to that very wiſdome, which God of his free goodneſſe hath given me from heaven.

13 For we write [k] none other things unto you, than what you reade or acknowledge, and I truſt you ſhall acknowledge even to the [l] end.

k He ſaith, he writeth barely and ſimply: for he that writeth in coloured ſort, is rightly ſaid to write otherwiſe than we read: and this he ſaith. The Corinthians ſhall truly know and like of very wel. l Perfectly.

14 As alſo you have acknowledged us in part, that we are your [m] recoycing, even as ye alſo are ours in the [n] day of the Lord Jeſus.

m Pau's rejoycing in the Lord was, that he had won the Corinthians: and they themſelves rejoyced thatſuch an apoſtle was their inſtructer, & taught them ſo purely and ſincerely.
n When he ſhall ſit a judge.

15 And in this confidence I was minded to come unto you before, that you might have a [o] ſecond ‡ benefit:

o Another benefit.
‡ Or, grace.

16 And to paſſe by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia unto you, and of you to be brought on my way toward Judea.

17 [9] When I therefore was thus minded, did I uſe lightneſſe? or the things that I purpoſe, do I purpoſe according to the [p] fleſh, that with me there ſhould be [q] yea, yea, and nay, nay?

9 He putteth away their ſtander and falſe report by denying it, and firſt of all, in that that diverſ went about to perſwade the Corinthians, that in preaching of the goſpel, Paul agreed not to himſelf: for this was the matter and the caſe. p As men do which will raſhly promiſe any thing, and change their purpoſe at every turning of an hand. q That I ſhould ſay and unſay a thing?

18 [10] But as God is [r] true, our ‡ word toward you, was not yea, and nay.

10 He calleth God to witneſſe and for Judge, of his conſtancy in preaching and teaching one ſelf-ſame goſpel. r True, and of whoſe faithfull witneſſe it were horrible wickedneſſe to doubt. ‡ Or, preaching.

19 [11] For the Sonne of God Jeſus Chriſt, who was preached among you by us, even by me, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, [s] was not yea, and nay, but in [t] him was yea.

11 He joyneth alſo with himſelf, his fellows as witneſſes, with whom he fully conſented in teaching one ſelf-ſame thing, to wit, one ſelf-ſame Chriſt. s Was not divers and wavering. t That is, in God.

20 [12] For all the promiſes of God in him are yea, and in [u] him amen, unto the glory of God by [x] us.

12 Laſt of all, he declareth the ſum of his doctrine, to wit, that all the promiſes of ſalvation are ſure and ratified in Chriſt. u Chriſt is ſet forth to exhibit and fulfill them alſo moſt aſſuredly, and without all doubt. x Through our miniſtery.

21 [13] Now he which ſtabliſheth us with you in Chriſt, and hath anointed us, is God.

13 He attributeth the praiſe of this conſtancy, onely to the grace of God, through the holy Ghoſt, and therewithall concludeth, that they cannot doubt of his faith and his fellows, without doing injury to the Spirit of God, ſeeing that they themſelves do know all this to be true.

22 Who hath alſo ſealed us, and given the [y] earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts.

y An earneſt, is whatſoever is given to confirm a promiſe.

23 [14] Moreover, I call God for a record upon my [z] ſoul, that to ſpare you I came not as yet unto Corinth.

14 Now coming to the matter, he ſweareth that he did not onely not lightly alter his purpoſe of coming to them, but rather that he came unto them for this cauſe, that he might not be conſtrained to deal more ſharply with them being preſent, than he would. z Againſt my ſelf, and to the danger of mine own life.

24 [15] Not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your [a] joy: for by faith ye ſtand.

15 He removeth all ſuſpition of arrogancie, declaring that he ſpeaketh not as a Lord unto them, but as a ſervant, appointed of God to comfort them. a He ſetteth the joy and peace of conſcience, which God is authour of, againſt tyrannours fear, & therewithall ſheweth the end of the goſpel.

164 CHAP. II.

1 Having ſhewed the reaſon why he came not to them, 6 he required them to forgive and to comfort that excommunicated perſon, 10 even as himſelf alſo upon his true repentance had forgiven him: 12 declaring withall why he departed from Troas to Macedonia, 14 and the happy ſucceſſe which God gave to his preaching in all places.

BUt I determined this with my ſelf, that I would not come again to you in [a] heavineſſe.

2 For if I make you ſory, who is he then that maketh me glad, but the ſame which is made ſory by me?

3 And I wrote this ſame unto you, leſt when I came, I ſhould have ſorrow from them of whom I ought to rejoyce, having [b] confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all.

4 For out of much affliction and anguish of heart, I wrote unto you with many tears, not that you ſhould be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.

5 [1] But if any have cauſed grief, he hath not grieved [c] me, but in [d] part: that I may not [e] overcharge you all.

6 Sufficient to ſuch a man is this ‡ punishment, which was inflicted of many.

7 So that contrariwiſe, ye ought rather to [f] forgive him, and comfort him, leſt perhaps ſuch a one ſhould be ſwallowed up with overmuch ſorrow.

8 Wherefore I beſeech you, that ye would [g] confirm your love towards him.

9 For to this end alſo did I write, that I might know the proof of you, whether ye be obedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive alſo: for If I forgave any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your ſakes forgave I it, ‡ in the [h] perſon of Chriſt;

11 Leſt Satan ſhould get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his [i] devices.

12 [2] Furthermore, when I came to Troas to preach Chriſts goſpel, and a doore was opened unto me of the Lord, 13 I had no reſt in my ſpirit, becauſe I found not Titus my brother, but taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia.

14 Now thanks be unto God which alwayes cauſeth us to triumph in Chriſt, and maketh manifeſt the [k] ſavour of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 [3] For we are unto God a ſweet ſavour of Chriſt, in them that are ſaved, and in them that perish.

16 To the one we are the ſavour of death unto death; and to the other, the ſavour of life unto life: [4] and, who is ſufficient for theſe things?

17 For we are not as many, which ‡ [l] corrupt the word of God: but as of ſincerity, but as of God, in the ſight of God ſpeak we in Chriſt.

a Cauſing grief amongſt you, which he ſhould have done, if he had come to them before they had repented them.
b For I truſted that you would take that out of the way forthwith which you knew I was diſcontented with, conſidering how you are perſwaded that my joy is your joy.
1 He paſſeth to another part of this epiſtle: which notwithſtanding is put amongſt the firſt, whereunto he returneth afterward: and he handleth the releaſing and unlooſing of the inceſtuous perſon, becauſe he ſeemed to have given ſufficient teſtimony of his repentance: ſhewing the true uſe of excommunication, to wit, that it proceed not of hatred, but of love, and ſo end, leſt if we keep no meaſure, we ſerve Satan the devill.
c As if he ſaid, All that ſorrow is ſo clean wiped away, as though he had never felt it.
d As for me (ſaith Paul) I have no more to do with him.
e Leaſt I ſhould overcharge him, who is burdened enough of himſelf which I would be glad were taken from him.
‡ Or, cenſure.
f That whereas before you puniſhed him ſharply, you would now forgive him.
g That at my entreaty, you would declare by the conſent of the whole church, that you take him again for a brother.
‡ Or, in the ſight.
h Truly, and from the heart.
i Of his miſchievous counſels and devilish will.
2 He returneth to the confirmation of his apoſtleſhip, & bringeth forth the teſtimonies, both of his labour, and alſo of Gods bleſſing.
k He alludeth to the ointing of the prieſts, and the incenſe of the ſacrifices.
3 He denieth that ought ſhould be taken away from the dignitie of his apoſtleſhip, becauſe they ſaw evidently that it was not received with like ſucceſſe in every place, nay rather very many rejected and deteſted him, ſeeing that he preached Chriſt not onely as a Saviour of them that beleeve, but alſo as a judge of them that contemn him. 4 Again, he putteth away all ſuſpition of arrogancy, attributing all things that he did, to the vertue of God, whom he ſerveth ſincerely, and without all diſhoneſt affection: whereof he maketh them witneſſes, even to the 6 verſe of the next chapter. ‡ Or, deal deceitfully with. l We do not handle craftily and covetouſly, or leſſe ſincerely than we ought: and he uſeth a metaphor, which is taken from huckſters, which uſe to play the falſe harlots with whatſoever cometh into their hands.

CHAP. III.

1 Leſt their falſe teachers ſhould charge him with vain-glory, he ſheweth the faith and graces of the Corinthians to be a ſufficient commendation of his miniſtery. 6 Whereupon entring a compariſon between the miniſters of the law, and of the goſpel, 12 he proveth that his miniſtery is ſo farre the more excellent, as the goſpel of life and liberty is more glorious than the law of condemnation.

DO we begin again to commend our ſelves? or need we as ſome others, epiſtles of commendation to you, or letters of commendation from you?

2 Ye are our epiſtle written in our hearts, known and read of all men.

3 For as much as ye are [a] manifeſtly declared to be the epiſtle of Chriſt, [b] miniſtred by us, written not with ink, but with the ſpirit of the [c] living God: [1] not in tables of ſtone, but in fleſhly tables of the heart.

4 And ſuch [d] truſt have we through Chriſt to God-ward.

5 Not that we are ſufficient of our ſelves to think any thing as of our ſelves: but our [e] ſufficiency is of God.

6 [2] Who alſo hath made us able miniſters of the new teſtament, not of the [f] letter, but of the ſpirit: for the letter killeth, but the ſpirit ‡ giveth life.

7 But if the miniſtration of death written [g] and ingraven in ſtones, was [h] glorious, ſo that the children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly behold the face of Moſes, for the glory of his countenance, which glory was to be done away:

8 How ſhall not the [i] miniſtration of the ſpirit be rather glorious?

9 For if the miniſtration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the miniſtration of [k] righteouſneſſe exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was made glorious, had no glory in this reſpect, by reaſon of the glory that excelleth.

11 For if that which is [l] done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious.

12 [3] Seeing then that we have ſuch hope, we uſe great ‡ plainneſſe of ſpeech.

13 [4] And not as Moſes which put a vail over his face, that the children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly look to the [m] end of that which is abolished.

14 But their mindes were blinded: for untill this day remaineth the ſame vail untaken away, in the reading of the old teſtament: which vail is done away in Chriſt.

15 But even unto this day, when Moſes is read, the vail is upon their heart.

a The apoſtle frameth his ſpeech wiſely, that by little and little, he may come from the commendation of the perſon, to the matter it ſelf.
b Which I took pains to write as it were.
c By the way, he ſetteth the vertue of God againſt the ink wherewith epiſtles are commonly written, to ſhew that it was wrought by God.
1 He alludeth by the way, to the compariſon of the outward miniſtery of the prieſthood of Levi, with the miniſtery of the goſpel, and the apoſtolicall miniſtery, which he handleth afterward more fully.
d This boldneſſe we ſhew, and thus gloriouſly may we boaſt of the worthineſſe and fruit of our miniſtery.
e In that we are fit and meet to make other men partakers of ſo great a grace.
2 He amplifieth his miniſterie and his fellows: that is to ſay, the miniſterie of the goſpel, comparing it with the miniſterie of the law, which he conſidereth in the perſon of Moſes, by whom the law was given: againſt whom he ſetteth Chriſt the Author of the goſpel. Now this compariſon is taken from the very ſubſtance of the miniſtery. The law is as it were a writing of it ſelf, dead, and without efficacie: but the goſpel, or new covenant, is as it were the very vertue of God it ſelf in renewing, juſtifying, and ſaving of men. The law propoundeth death, accuſing all men of unrighteouſneſſe: The goſpel, offereth and giveth righteouſneſſe and life. The governance of the law ſerved for a time to the promiſe: the goſpel remaineth to the end of the world. Therefore what is the glorie of that in compariſon of the majeſtie of this?
f Not of the law, but of the goſpel. ‡ Or, quickneth. g Imprinted and ingraven: ſo that by this place we may plainly perceive, that the apoſtle ſpeaketh not of the ceremonies of the law, but even of the ten commandements. h This world, glory, betokeneth a brightneſſe, and a majeſtie which was bodily in Moſes, but ſpiritually in Chriſt. i Whereby God offereth, yea, and giveth the ſpirit, not as a dead thing, but a quickening ſpirit, working life. k To wit, of Chriſt, which being imputed to us as our own, we are not onely not condemned, but alſo we are crowned as righteous. l The law, yea, and the ten commandements themſelves, together with Moſes, is abolished, if we conſider the miniſtery of Moſes apart by it ſelf. 3 He ſheweth wherein ſtandeth this glory of the preaching of the goſpel, to wit, in that that it ſetteth forth plainly and evidently, that which the law ſhewed darkly: for it ſent them that heard it to be healed of Chriſt, which was to come after that it had wounded them. ‡ Or, boldneſſe. 4 He expoundeth by the way the allegory of Moſes his covering, which was a token of the darkneſſe and weakneſſe that is in men, which were rather dulled by the bright ſhining of the law than lightened: which covering was taken away by the coming of Chriſt, who lighteneth the hearts, and turneth them to the Lord, that we may be brought from the ſlavery of this blindnes, and ſet in the liberty of the light by the vertue of Chriſts Spirit. m Into the very bottom of Moſes his miniſtery.

16 Nevertheleſſe when it ſhall turn to the Lord, the vail ſhall be taken away.

17 Now the [n] Lord is that Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

18 [6] But we all with open face, beholding as in a glaſſe the glory of the Lord, are changed into the ſame image, from glory to glory, even as ‡ by the Spirit of the Lord.

n Chriſt is that ſpirit, which taketh away that covering, by working in our hearts, whereunto alſo the law it ſelf called us, though in vain, becauſe it ſpeaketh to dead men, untill the ſpirit quickeneth us. 6 Going forwards in the allegory of the covering, he compareth the goſpel to a glaſſe, which although it be moſt bright and ſparkling, yet doth it not onely not dazel their eyes, which look in it as the law doth, but alſo transformeth them with its beams, ſo that they alſo be partakers of the glory and ſhining of it, to lighten others: as Chriſt ſaid unto his. You are the light of the world, whereas he himſelf was the onely light. We are alſo commanded in another place, to ſhine as candles before the world, becauſe we are partakers of Gods Spirit. But Paul ſpeaketh here properly of the miniſters of the goſpel, as it appeareth by that that goeth before, and that that cometh after, and that, ſetting them his own example and his fellows. ‡ Or, of the Lord the ſpirit.

Chap. IIII.

1 He declareth how he hath uſed all ſincerity and faithfull diligence in preaching the goſpel, 7 and how the troubles and perſecutions which he daily endured for the ſame, did redound to the praiſe of Gods power, 12 to the benefit of the church, 16 and to the apoſtles own eternall glory.

1 Now he plainly witneſſeth that both he and his fellows (through the mercy of God) do their vocation and duty uprightly and ſincerely, neglecting all dangers.

THerefore [1] ſeeing we have this miniſtery, as we have received mercy we [a] faint not,

2 But have renounced the [b] hidden things of † diſhoneſty, not walking in craftineſſe, not handling the word of God [c] deceitfully, but by manifeſtation of the truth, commending our ſelves to every mans conſcience in the ſight of God.

a Though we are broken in pieces with miſeries and calamities, yet we yeeld not.

b Subtilitie and all kinde of deceit which men hunt after, as it were dens and lurking holes, to cover their ſhameleſſe dealings withall.

c This is it that in the former chapter he called making merchandiſe of the word of God.

3 [2] But if our goſpel be hid, it is hid to them that are loſt.

2 An objection: Many hear the goſpel, and yet are no more lightened thereby, than by the preaching of the law. He anſwereth, The fault is in the men themſelves, whoſe eyes Satan plucketh out, who ruleth in this world. And yet notwithſtanding doth he and his fellows ſet forth the moſt clear light of the goſpel to be ſeen and beholden, ſeeing that Chriſt whom onely they preach, Is he in whom onely God will be known, and as it were, ſeen.

4 In whom the god of this world hath blinded the mindes of them which beleeve not, leſt the [d] light of the glorious goſpel of Chriſt, who is the [e] image of God, ſhould ſhine unto them.

d The light of plain and lightſome preaching, which telleth forth the glory of Chriſt.

5 [3] For we preach not our ſelves, but Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, and our ſelves your ſervants for [f] Jeſus ſake.

e In whom the Father ſetteth forth himſelf to be ſeen and beholden. 3 He removeth according to his accuſtomed manner, all ſuſpition of ambition, avouching that he teacheth faithfully, but as a ſervant, and witneſſing that all this light which he and his fellows give to other, proceedeth from the Lord. f To preach this ſelf-ſame Jeſus to you. g Which made it only with his word.

6 For God [g] who commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſſe, hath ſhined in our hearts, to give the [h] light of the knowledge of the glory of God, in the face of Jeſus Chriſt.

7 [4] But we have this treaſure in earthen veſſels, [5] that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.

h That being lightned of God, we ſhould in like ſort give that light to others. 4 He taketh away a ſtumbling block, by which was darkened amongſt ſome the bright ſhining of the miniſtery of the goſpel, to wit, becauſe the apoſtles were the moſt miſerable of all men. Paul anſwereth, that he and his fellows are as it were, earthen veſſels, but yet there is in them a moſt precious treaſure. 5 He bringeth marvellous reaſons, why the Lord doth ſo afflict his chiefeſt ſervants, to the end, ſaith he, that all men may perceive that they ſtand not by any mans vertue, but by the ſingular vertue of God, in that they die a thouſand times, but never perish. ‡ Or, not altogether without help or means.

8 We are troubled on every ſide, yet not diſtreſſed; we are perplexed, but ‡ not in deſpair;

9 Perſecuted, but not forſaken; caſt down, but not deſtroyed?

10 [6] Alwayes bearing about in the body, the i dying of the Lord Jeſus, that the life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our body.

6 An amplification of the former ſentence, wherin he compareth his afflictions to a daily death, and the vertue of the ſpirit of God in Chriſt, to life which oppreſſeth that death. i So Paul calleth that miſerable eſtate and condition, that the faithfull, but eſpecially the miniſters are in.

11 For we which [k] live, are alway delivered unto death for Jeſus ſake, that the life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our [l] mortall flesh.

12 [7] So then death worketh in us, but life in you.

k Which live that life, to wit, by the ſpirit of Chriſt, among ſo many and ſo great miſeries. l Subject to that miſerable condition. 7 A very cunning concluſion: as if he would ſay, Therefore to be ſhort, we die that you may live by our death, for that they ventured into all thoſe dangers for the building of the churches ſake, and they ceaſed not to confirm all the faithfull with the examples of their patience.

13 [8] We having the ſame [m] ſpirit of faith, according as it is written, * I beleeved, and therefore have I ſpoken: we alſo beleeve, and therefore ſpeak, 14 Knowing, that he which raiſed up the Lord Jeſus, ſhall raiſe up us alſo by Jeſus, and ſhall preſent us with you.

15 [9] For all things are for your ſakes, [n] that the abundant grace, might through the thankſgiving of many, redound to the glory of God.

16 For which cauſe we faint not, [10] but though our outward man periſh, yet the inward man is [o] renewed day by day.

17 For our [p] light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a farre more exceeding and eternall weight of [q] glory;

18 While we look not at the things which are ſeen, but at the things which are not ſeen: for the things which are ſeen, are temporall; but the things which are not ſeen, are eternall.

8 He declareth the former ſentence, ſhewing that he and his fellows die in a ſort, to purchaſe life to others, but yet notwithſtanding they are partakers of the ſame life with them: becauſe they themſelves do firſt beleeve that, which they propounded to other to beleeve, to wit, that they alſo ſhall be ſaved together with them in Chriſt.

m The ſame faith, by the inſpiration of the ſame ſpirit. * Pſal. 116, 10.

9 He ſheweth how this conſtancie is preſerved in them, to wit, becauſe they reſpect Gods glory, and the ſalvation of the church committed unto them. n When it ſhall pleaſe God to deliver me, and reſtore me to you, that exceeding benefit which ſhall be powred upon me ſhall in like ſort redound to the glory of God, by the thanſgiving of many. 10 He addeth as it were a triumphant ſong, how that he is outwardly afflicted, bnt inwardly he profiteth daily: and paſſeth not at all for all the miſeries that may be ſuſtained in this life, in compariſon of that moſt conſtant and eternall glory. o Gathered new ſtrength that the outward man be not overcome with the miſeries which come freshly, one upon the neck of another, being maintained and upheld with the ſtrength of the inward man. p Afflictions are not called light, as though they were light of themſelves, but becauſe they paſſe away quickly, when as indeed our whole life is of no great long continuance.

q Which remaineth for ever firm and ſtable, and can never be ſhaken.

Chap. V.

1 That in his aſſured hope of immortall glory, 9 and in expectance of it, and of the generall judgement, he laboureth to keep a good conſcience, 12 not that he may herein boaſt of himſelf, 14 but as one that having received life from Chriſt, endeavoureth to live as a new creature to Chriſt onely, 18 and by his miniſtery of reconciliation to reconcile others alſo in Chriſt to God.

1 Taking occaſion by the former compariſon, he compareth this miſerable bodie, as it is in this life, to a frail and brittle tabernacle, againſt which he ſetteth the heavenly tabernacle, ſo terming that ſure and everlaſting condition of this ſame body glorified in heaven, inſomuch, ſaith he, that we are not only, not addicted to this tabernacle, but alſo doe with ſobs and ſighs deſire rather that tabernacle. And ſo this place alſo concerning the glory to come, is put within the treatiſe of the dignitie of the miniſterie as the other was, whereof we ſpake in the beginning of the ſecond chapter.

FOr [1] we know, that if our earthly houſe of this tabernacle were diſſolved, we have a building of God, an houſe not made with hands, eternall in the heavens.

2 For in this we grone earneſtly, deſiring to be [a] clothed upon with our houſe which is from [b] heaven.

a He calleth the glorie of immortalitie, which we ſhall be, as it were, clothed with a garment.

3 [2] If ſo be that being clothed, we ſhall not be found naked.

2 An expoſition of the former ſaying, We doe not without cauſe deſire to be clad with the heavenly houſe, that is, with that everlaſting and immortall glory, as with a garment: for when we depart hence we ſhall not remain naked, having once caſt off this body, but we ſhal take our bodies again, which ſhall put on, as it were, another garment beſides: and therefore we ſigh not for the wearineſſe or this life, but for the deſire of a better life: Neither is this deſire in vain, for we are made to that life, the pledge whereof we have, even the Spirit of adoption.

4 For we that are in this tabernacle do grone, being burdened: not for that we ſhould be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be ſwallowed up of life.

5 Now he that hath [c] wrought us for the ſelf-ſame thing, is God, who alſo hath given unto us the earneſt of the Spirit.

6 [3] Therefore we are alwayes [d] confident, knowing that whileſt we are at home in the body, we are abſent from the Lord.

7 (For we walk by [e] faith, not by ſight)

8 We are [f] confident, I ſay, and willing rather to be abſent from the body, and to be preſent with the Lord.

b Heavenly, not that the ſubſtance of it is heavenly, but for the glory of it.

c He meane h that firſt creation, to give us to underſtand, that our bodies were made to this end, that they ſhould be clothed with heavenly immortalitie. 3 He inferreth upon that ſentence that went next before, thus, Therefore ſeeing that we know by the ſpirit, that we are ſtrangers ſo long as we are here, we patiently ſuffer this tariance (for we are now ſo with God, that we behold him but by faith, and are therefore now abſent from him) but ſo that we aſpire and have a longing alwayes to him: therefore alſo we behave our ſelves ſo, that we may be acceptable to him, both while we live here and when we go from hence to him. d He calleth them (bold) which are alwayes reſolved with a quiet and ſetled minde to ſuffer what danger ſoever, nothing doubting but their end ſhall be happie. e Faith, of thoſe things which we hope for, and not having God preſently in our view. f And yet we are in ſuch ſort bold, and doe ſo paſſe on our pilgrimage with a valiant and a quiet minde, that yet notwithſtanding we had rather depart hence to the Lord.

9 Wherefore we ‡ g labour, that whether presēt or absent we may be accepted of him.
10 For we must all h appear before the judgement-seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.
11 Knowing therefore the i terrour of the Lord, we perſwade men; but we are made manifeſt unto God, and I truſt alſo, are made manifeſt in your conſciences.
12 For we commend not our ſelves again unto you, but give you occaſion to glory on our behalf, that you may have ſomewhat to anſwer them which glory † in k appearance, and not in heart.
13 For whether we be beſides our ſelves, it is to God: or whether we be ſober, it is for your cauſe.
14 For the love of Chriſt l conſtraineth us, becauſe we thus judge, that if m one died for all, then were all dead:
15 And that he died for all, that they which live, ſhould not henceforth n live unto themſelves, but unto him which died for them, and roſe again.
16 Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: o yea, though we have known Chriſt after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.
17 Therefore if any man be in Chriſt, he is a o new creature: * old things are paſt away, behold, all things are become new.
18 And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himſelf by Jeſus Chriſt, and hath given to us the miniſtery of reconciliation.
19 To wit, that God was in Chriſt, reconciling the world unto himſelf, not imputing their treſpaſſes unto them, and hath † p committed unto us the word of reconciliation.
20 Now then we are ambaſſadours for Chriſt, as though God did beſeech you by us; we pray you in Chriſts ſtead, be ye reconciled to God.
21 For he hath made him to be q ſinne for us, who r knew no ſinne; that we might be made the ſrighteouſneſſe of God in him.

‡ Or, endeavour.
g And ſeeing it is ſo, we ſtrive to live ſo, that both in this our pilgrimage here, we may pleaſe him, and that at length we may be received home to him.
4 That no man might think it to pertain to all, which he ſpake of that heavenly glorie, he addeth, that every one ſhall firſt render an account of his pilgrimage, after that he is departed from hence.
h We muſt all appear perſonally, and enquirie ſhall be made of us, that all may ſee how we have lived.
5 Now he paſſeth over, and taking occaſion of the former ſentence, returneth to the former chap. verſe 16. confirming his own ſinceritie and his fellows.
i That terrible judgement.
6 He removeth all ſuſpition of pride, by a new reaſon, becauſe it is behoveable, not for his part, but for theirs, that his apoſtleſhip be counted ſincere againſt the vaine oſtentation of a few others.
† Gr. in the face.

8 He goeth forward in putting away all ſuſpition of deſire of eſtimation & boaſting: for the love of Chriſt, ſaith he, compelleth us hereunto, that ſeeing he died for us all, which were dead when as we lived to our ſelves that is, while we were yet given to theſe earthly affections) we in like ſort ſhould conſecrate our whole life, which we have received of him, to him (to wit) being indued with the holy Ghoſt, to this end and purpoſe, that we ſhould meditate upon nothing but that which is heavenly. l Poſſeſſeth us wholly. m He ſpeaketh here of ſanctification, whereby it cometh to paſſe that Chriſt liveth in us. n Look Romanes chap. 6. and 7. 9 He ſheweth what it is, not to live to our ſelves but to Chriſt, to wit, to know no man according to the fleſh, that is to ſay, to be converſant amongſt men as not to care for thoſe worldly and carnall things, as they do which reſpect a mans ſtock, his countrey, form, glory, riches and ſuch like, wherein men commonly dote and weatie themſelves. 10 An amplification, This is, ſaith he, ſo true, that we do not now think carnally of Chriſt himſelf, who hath now left the world, and therefore muſt be conſidered of us ſpiritually. 11 An exhortation for every man which is renewed with the Spirit of Chriſt, to meditate heavenly things, and not earthly. ‡ Or, let him be. o As a thing made anew of God, for though a man be not newly created when God giveth him the ſpirit of regeneration, but onely his qualities are changed, yet notwithſtanding it pleaſed the holy Ghoſt to ſpeak ſo, to teach us that we muſt attribute all things to the glory of God: not that we are ſtocks and blocks, but becauſe God createth in us, both the will to will well, and the power to do well. * Iſa. 43. 19. Revel. 21, 5. 12 He commendeth the excellencie of the miniſterie of the goſpel, both by the authoritie of God himſelf, who is the authour of that miniſterie, and alſo by the excellencie of the doctrine of it: for it avoucheth atonement with God, by free forgiveneſſe of our ſins, and juſtification offered unto us in Chriſt, and that ſo lovingly and liberally, that God himſelf doth after a ſort pray men by the mouth of his miniſters to have conſideration of themſelves, and not to deſpiſe ſo great a benefit. CHAP. VI.

1 That he hath approved himſelf a faithfull miniſter of Chriſt, both by his exhortations, 3 and by integrity of life, 4 and by patient enduring all kinds of affliction and diſgraces for the goſpel. 10 Of which he ſpeaketh the more boldly amongſt them, becauſe his heart is open to them: 13 and he expecteth the like affection from them again: 14 exhorting to flee the ſociety and pollution of idolaters.

1 Men do not onely need the miniſtery of the goſpel, before they have received grace that they may be partakers of it, but alſo after they have received grace that they may continue in it.
2 In that that grace is offered, it is of the grace of God, who hath appointed times and ſeaſons to all things, that we may take occaſion when it is offered.

And this is the fourth part of this epiſtle, the concluſion whereof is, that ſuch as the Lord hath vouchſafed the name of his children, muſt keep themſelves pure, not onely in minde, but alſo in body, that they may wholly be holy unto the Lord. k What can there be between them? l He ſetteth the living God againſt idols. m God dwelleth with us, becauſe Chriſt is become God with us. * Levit. 26, 12. * Iſay 52, 11. * Jer. 31, 1.

CHAP.

CHAP. VII.

1 He proceedeth in exhorting them to puritie of life, 2 and to bear him like affection as he doth to them. 3 whereof lest he might seem to doubt, he declareth what comfort he took in his afflictions, by the report which Titus gave of their godly sorrow, which his former epistle had wrought in them, 13 and of their loving kindnesse and obedience towards Titus, answerable to his former boastings of them.

HAving therefore these promises (dearly beloved) let us cleanse our selves from all filthinesse of the [a] flesh and spirit, perfecting holinesse in the fear of God.

2 [1] [b] Receive us, we have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have defrauded no man.

3 I speak not this to [c] condemne you: for I have said before, that you are in our hearts to die and live with you.

4 Great is my boldnesse of speech toward you, great is my glorying of you, I am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyfull in all our tribulation.

5 For when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side; without were fightings, within were fears.

6 Nevertheless, God that comforteth those that are [d] cast down, comforted us by the [e] coming of Titus.

7 And not by his coming onely, but by the consolation wherewith he was comforted in you, when he told us your earnest desire, your mourning, your fervent mind toward me, so that I rejoyced the more.

8 [2] For though I made you sory with a letter, I do not repent, though I did repent: for I perceive that the same epistle made you sory, though it were but for a season.

9 Now I rejoyce, not that ye were made sory, but that ye sorrowed to [f] repentance: for ye were made sory ‡ after a godly manner, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing.

10 For [g] godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of: but the sorrow of the world worketh death.

11 For behold, this self-same thing that ye sorrowed after a godly sort, what carefulnesse it wrought in you, yea, what clearing of your selves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what vehement desire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge: in all things ye have approved your selves to be clear in this matter.

12 Wherefore though I wrote unto you, I did it not for his cause that had done the wrong, nor for his cause that suffered wrong, but that our care for you in the [h] sight of God might appeare unto you.

13 Therefore we were comforted in your comfort, yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by you all.

14 For if I have boasted any thing to him of you, I am not ashamed; but as we spake all things to you in truth, even so our boasting which I made before Titus is found a truth.

15 And his † inward affection is more abundant toward you, whilest he remembreth the obedience of you all, how with fear and trembling you received him.

16 I rejoyce therefore that I have confidence in you in all things.

CHAP. VIII.

1 He stirreth them up to a liberall contribution for the poore saints at Jerusalem, by the example of the Macedonians, 7 by commendation of their former forwardnesse, 9 by the example of Christ, 14 and by the spirituall profit that shall redound to themselves thereby: 16 commending to them the integrity and willingnesse of Titus, and those other brethren, who upon his request, exhortation, and commendation, were purposely come to them for this businesse.

MOreover brethren, we [1] do you to wit of the [a] grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia:

2 How that in a [b] great triall of affliction, the abundance of their joy, and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality.

3 For to their power (I bear record) yea and beyond their power they were [c] willing of themselves.

4 Praying us with much intreaty, that we would receive the [d] gift, and take upon us the fellowship of the ministring to the saints.

5 [2] And this they did, not as we hoped, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God.

6 Insomuch that we desired Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also finish in you the same grace also.

7 Therefore as ye abound in every thing, in faith, in utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us; see that ye abound in this grace also.

8 [3] I speak not by commandment, but by occasion of the [e] forwardnesse of others, and to prove the [f] sincerity of your love.

9 [4] For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poore, that ye through his poverty might be rich.

10 [5] And herein I give my advice, for this is expedient for you, who have begun before, not onely to do, but also to be † [g] forward a yeare ago.

11 Now therefore perform the doing of it, that as there was a readinesse to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which you have.

12 [6] For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

13 [7] For I mean not that other men be eased, and you burdened:

14 But by an [h] equality: that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be a supply for your want, that there may be equality.

15 As it is written, He * that had gathered much, had nothing over, and he that had gathered little, had no lack.

a Both of bodie and soul, that by this means the sanctification may be perfect, consisting in both the parts thereof.

1 He returneth again from that admonition to his own person, opposing the testimonies both of his faithfulnes, and also of his continuall good will towards them.

b Let me have some place amongst you that I may teach you.

c To condemne you of unkindnesse or treachery.

d Whose hearts are cast down and are very farre spent.

e With those things which Titus told me of you at his coming, to withow fruitfully you read over my letters, moreover, and besides that, I am exceedingly refreshed with his presence.

2 An objection, but thou hast handled us roughly: The Apostle answereth that he used not this roughnesse without grief. And he addeth moreover that he is also glad now that he drave them to that sorrow, although it was against his will, since it was so profitable unto them: for there is a sorrow not only praise worthy, but also necessary, to wit, whereby repentance groweth by certain degrees, for the which repentance he praised them highly. And this is the fifth part of this epistle.

f Insomuch that that sorrow did you much good towards the amending of your lewdnesse and sinnes.

‡ Or, according to God.

g Godly sorrow is when we are not terrified with the fear of punishment but because we feel we have offended God our most merciful Father, contrary to this there is another sorrow, that onely feareth punishment, or when a man is vexed for the losse of some wordly goods, the fruit of the first is repentance the fruit of the second is desperation, unlesse the Lord help speedily.

h It was not coloured nor counterfeit, but such as I dare stand to before God. 1 Gr. bowels.

1 The sixt part of this epistle containing divers exhortations to stirre up the Corinthians to liberalitie, wherewith the povertie of the church of Jerusalem might beholden in time convenient. And first of all, he setteth out before them the example of the churches of Macedonia, which otherwise were brought by great misery to extreame povertie to heend that they should follow them.

a The benefit that God bestowed upon the churches.

b For those manifold afflictions wherewith the Lord tried them, did not onely not quail their joyfull readinesse, but also made it much more excellent and famous.

c Of their own accord they were liberall.

d He calleth that Grace, that other men would have called a burden. And this verse is to be expounded by the sixt verse.

2 He applieth the forwardnesse of the Macedonians in this, that they also desired Paul to stirre up the Corinthians to accomplish the giving of almes, by sending again of Titus unto them.

3 Thirdly, he warneth them that they deceive not their expectation which they have conceived of them.

e At the request of the Macedonians.

f Then appeareth the naturallnesse of our love, when as indeed, and that frankly and freely, we help brethren even for Christ his sake.

4 The fourth argument, taken from the example of Christ.

5 He taketh good heed that he seem not to wrest it out of them by constraint: for unlesse it be voluntarie, God doeth not accept it.

g Not onely to do but also to do willingly: for he noteth out a ready willingnesse, without any inforcement by any other men, much lesse came it of ambition and vain glory. 6 Against such as use to excuse themselves because they are not rich, as though it were only proper to rich men to help the poore. 7 Christian liberalitie is mutuall, that proportion may be observed.

h That like as now in your abundance you help others, which are poore, with some part of your goods, so should others in like sort bestow some of theirs upon you. * Exod. 16, 18.

8 He commendeth Titus and his two companions for many cauſes, both that their credite might not be ſuſpected, as though he had ſent them ſlily to ſpoil the churches, and alſo that they might be ſo much the readier to contribute.

16 [s] But thanks be to God, which put the ſame earneſt care into the heart of Titus for you.

17 For indeed, he accepted the exhortation, but being more forward, of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have ſent with him the brother, whoſe praiſe is [i] in the goſpel, throughout all the churches:

19 And not that onely, but who was alſo choſen of the churches to travell with us with this ‡ [k] grace which is adminiſtred by us to the glory of the ſame Lord, and declaration of your ready minde.

i In the preaching of the Goſpel.
‡ Or, gift.
k Theſe almes which are beſtowed for the relief of the church of Jeruſalem.

20 Avoiding this, that no man ſhould blame us in this [l] abundance which is adminiſtred by us.

21 Providing for honeſt things, not onely in the ſight of the Lord, but in the ſight of men.

22 And we have ſent with them our brother, whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which ‡ I have in you.

l In this plentifull liberalitie of the churches, which is committed to our truſt.

23 Whether any do enquire of Titus, he is my partner, and fellow-helper concerning you: or our [m] brethren be enquired of, they are the meſſengers of the churches, and the [n] glory of Chriſt.

‡ Or he hath.
m Titus his two companions.
n By whom the glory of Chriſt is ſet forth.

24 Wherefore ſhew ye to them, and before the [o] churches, the proof of your love, and of our boaſting on your behalf.

o All churches ſhall be witneſſes of this your godly dealing, in whoſe preſence you are, for ſo much as you ſee the meſſengers whom they have choſen by all their conſents, and ſent them unto you.

CHAP. IX.

1 He yeeldeth the reaſon why, though he knew their forwardneſſe, yet he ſent Titus and his brethren before hand. 6 And he proceedeth in ſtirring them up to a bountifull almes, as being but a kinde of ſowing of ſeed, 10 which ſhall return a great increaſe to them, 13 and occaſion a great ſacrifice of thanksgiving unto God.

1 He wiſely meeteth with the ſuſpicion which the Corinthians might conceive: as though the Apoſtle in urging them ſo carefully, ſhould doubt of their good will. Therefore he witneſſeth that he doeth it not to teach them that they ought to help the Saints, ſeeing that he had become ſuretie for them to the Macedonians, but only to ſtirre them up which were running of themſelves, to the end that all things might both be in a better readineſſe and alſo be more plentifull.

FOr [1] as touching the miniſtring to the ſaints it is ſuperfluous for me to write to you.

2 For I know the forwardneſſe of your minde, for which I boaſt of you to them of Macedonia, that Achaia was ready a yeare ago, and your zeal hath provoked very many.

3 Yet have I ſent the brethren, leſt our boaſting of you ſhould be in vain in this behalf, that, as I ſaid, ye may be ready.

4 Leſt haply if they of Macedonia come with me, and finde you unprepared, we (that we ſay not, you) ſhould be aſhamed in this ſame [a] confident boaſting.

a The word which he uſeth ſignifieth ſuch a ſtayednеſſe and ſtedfaſtneſſe of minde as cannot be moved with any terrour or feare.

5 Therefore I thought it neceſſary to exhort the brethren, that they would go before unto you, and make up before hand your † bounty, ‡ whereof ye had notice before, that the ſame might be ready, as a matter of bounty, not of [b] covetouſneſſe.

b As from covetous men.

6 [2] But this, I ſay, He which ſoweth ſparingly, ſhall reap ſparingly: and he which ſoweth bountifully, ſhall reap bountifully.

2 Almes muſt be given neither niggardly, nor with a loathfull minde, or hardly: but a frank and free almes is compared to a ſowing which hath a moſt plentifull harveſt of moſt abundant bleſſing following it.

7 Every man according as he [c] purpoſeth in his heart, ſo let him give; not [d] grudgingly, or of [e] neceſſitie: for * God loveth a cheerfull giver.

3 Another excellent and double fruit of liberalitie towards the Saints is this, that it giveth occaſion to praiſe God, and that our faith alſo is, thereby made manifeſt.

church of Jeruſalem.
m Leſt by this great commendation and praiſe, the be puffed up, he ſhutteth up this exhortation, with this exclamation.

CHAP. X.

Againſt the falſe apoſtles, who diſgraced the weakneſſe of his perſon and bodily preſence, he ſetteth out the ſpirituall might and authoritie, with which he is armed againſt all adverſarie powers, 7 aſſuring them that at his coming he will be found as mighty in word, as he is now in writing being abſent: 12 and with all taxing them for reaching out themſelves beyond their compaſſe, and vaunting themſelves into other mens labours.

1 He returneth to the defence of his apoſtleſhip, but ſo that he uſeth his authoritie therein: for he warneth them earneſtly and gravely, uſing alſo terrible threatnings, to ſhew themſelves ſuch, as are apt to be inſtructed. And he refelleth certain proud men which made no better account of him, than of a bragging Thraſo, in that he uſed to be ſharp againſt them when he was abſent, becauſe they ſaw no great majeſtie in him after the manner of men, and beſides had proved his lenitie, notwithſtanding that in his abſence, he had written to them ſharply: Therefore firſt of all, he profeſſeth that he was gentle and

NOw [1] I Paul my ſelf beſeech you, by the meekneſſe and [a] gentleneſſe of Chriſt, who ‡ in preſence am baſe among you, but being abſent am bold toward you.

a That nature which is inclined to mercie, rather than to rigour of juſtice.
‡ Or, in outward appearance.

2 But I beſeech you, that I may not be bold when I am preſent, with that confidence wherewith I think to be bold againſt ſome which ‡ think of us, as if we walked [b] according to the flesh.

b As though I had no other aide and help than that which outwardly I ſeem to have: and therefore Paul ſetteth his flesh, that is, his weak condition and ſtate againſt his ſpirituall and apoſtolick dignitie.

3 [2] For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh:

2 Secondly he witneſſeth, that although he be like unto other men, yet he cometh furniſhed with that ſtrength, which no holds of man can match, whether they reſiſt by craft and deceit, or by force and might, becauſe he warfareth with divine weapons.

4 (For the weapons of our warfare are not [c] carnall, but mighty ‡ through [d] God to the pulling down of ſtrong holds) c Are not ſuch as men get them authoritie withall one of another, and do great acts.

‡ Or, to God.
d Stand upon that infinite power of God.

5 Caſting down ‡ imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth it ſelf againſt the knowledge of God, [3] and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Chriſt:

‡ Or, reaſonings.
3 An amplification of this ſpirituall vertue, which in ſuch ſort conquereth the enemies, be they never ſo craftie, and mightie, that it bringeth ſome of them by repentance unto Chriſt, and juſtly revengeth others that are ſtubbornly obſtinate, ſeparating them from the other which ſuffer themſelves to be ruled.

6 And having in a readineſſe to revenge all diſobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled.

7 [4] Do ye look on things after the outward moderate, but after the example of Chriſt: but if they continue ſtill to deſpiſe his gentleneſſe, he proteſteth unto them that he will ſhew indeed how far they are deceived, which make that account of the office of an apoſtle, that they do of worldly offices, that is, according to the outward appearance.

4 He beateth into their heads that ſame matter, with great weight of words and ſentences.

e Doe ye judge of things according to the outward shew?
f Not being told of it by me.
g He noteth out some one that was the seeds man of this speech.
5 Being constrained to refell the foolish brags of certain ambitious men: he witnesseth, that they are able to bring nothing, but that they fasly perswade themselves of themselves: and as for himself, although he brag of excellent things, yet he will not passe the bounds which God hath measured him out, according whereunto he came even unto them in preaching the gospel of Christ, and trusteth that he shall goe further, when they have so profited that he shall not need to tarry any longer amongst them to instruct them. And hereunto is added an amplification, in that he never succeeded other men in their labours.
h This is spoken after a taunting sort.
i Upon a vain perswasion that they have of themselves, they take upon them they care not what.
k They contemn all other, and measure all their doings onely by themselves.
l Of those things which God hath not measured to me.
‡ Or, line.
m As though God had divided the whole world among the apostles, to be husbanded. ‡ Or, magnified in you. n In countreys which other men have prepared and husbanded with the preaching of the gospel. ‡ Or, rule. * Jer. 9, 24. 1 Cor. 1, 31. 6 He somewhat mitigateth that which he spake of himself, and therewith also prepareth the Corinthians to beare other things, witnessing that he seeketh nothing else, but to approve himself to God, whose glory he onely seeketh.

e appearance? if any man trust to himself, that he is Christs, let him of f himself think this again, that as he is Christs, even so are we Christs.

8 For though I should boast somewhat more of our authoritie, (which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction) I should not be ashamed:

9 That I may not seem as if I would terrifie you by letters.

10 For his letters (say g they) are weightie and powerfull, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible.

11 Let such an one think this, that such as we are in word by letters, when we are absent, such will we be also indeed when we are present.

12 5 For we h dare not make our selves of the number, or compare our selves with some that commend themselves: but they measuring themselves by i themselves, and k comparing themselves amongst themselves, are not wise.

13 But we will not boast of things without our l measure, but according to the measure of the ‡ rule, which God hath distributed to us, a measure to reach even unto you.

14 For we stretch not our selves beyond our measure, as though we reached not unto you, for we are come as farre as to you also, in preaching the gospel of Christ:

15 Not boasting of things m without our measure, that is, of other mens labours, but having hope, when your faith is increased that we shall be ‡ enlarged by you according to our rule abundantly, 16 To preach the gospel in the regions beyond you, and not to boast in n another mans ‡ line of things made ready to our hand.

17 * 6 But he that glorieth, let him glorie in the Lord.

18 For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth.

CHAP. XI.

1 Out of his jealousie of the Corinthians, who seemed to make more account of the false apostles, than of him, he entreth into a forced commendation of himself, 5 of his equalitie with the chief apostles, 7 of his preaching the gospel to them freely, and without any their charge, 13 shewing that he was not inferiour to those deceitfull-workers, in any legall prerogative; 23 and in the service of Christ, and in all kinde of sufferings for his ministerie, farre superiour.

1 He granteth that after a sort he playeth the fool in this vaunting of things, but he addeth that he doeth it against his will for their profit, because he seeth them deceived by certain vain and craftie men, through the craft and subtilitie of Satan.
‡ Or, you do bear with me.
a He speaketh as a woer, but yet as one that seeketh them not for himself, but for God.

1 WOuld [1] to God you could bear with me a little in my folly, & indeed t bear with me.

2 For I am jealous over you with godly jealousie, for [a] I have espoused you to one husband, that I may [b] present you as a chaste virgin to Christ.

3 But I fear lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtiltie, so your mindes should be [c] corrupted from the simplicitie that is in [d] Christ.

4 [2] For if he that cometh, preacheth [e] another Jesus whom we have not preached, or if ye receive another spirit, which ye have not received, or another gospel, which ye have not accepted, ye might well bear with him.

5 For I suppose I was not a whit behinde the very chiefest apostles.

6 [3] But though I be [f] rude in speech, yet not in knowledge, but we have been throughly made manifest among you in all things.

7 [4] Have I committed an offence in abasing my self that you might be exalted, because I have preached to you the gospel of God freely?

8 I robbed other churches, taking wages of them to do you service.

9 And when I was present with you and wanted, I was chargeable to no man: for that which was lacking to me, the brethren which came from Macedonia, supplied, and in all things I have kept my self from being burdensome unto you, [5] and so will I keep my self.

10 As the [g] truth of Christ is in me, † no man shall [h] stop me of this boasting in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? because I love you not? God knoweth.

12 But what I do, that I will do, that I may cut off occasion from them which desire occasion, that wherein they [i] glorie, they may be found even as we.

13 [6] For such are false apostles, deceitfull workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Chist.

14 And no marvel, for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of [k] light.

15 Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousnesse, whose end shall be according to their works.

16 [7] I say again, Let no man think me a fool; if otherwise, yet as a fool ‡ receive me, that I may boast my self a little.

17 That which I speak, I speak it not after the Lord, but as it were foolishly in this confidence of boasting.

18 Seeing that many glorie after the flesh, I will glorie also.

19 For ye suffer fools gladly, seeing ye your selves are wise.

20 [8] For ye suffer if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devoure you, if a man take of you, if a man exalt himself, if a man smite you on the face.

21 I speak as concerning [l] repraoch, as though we had been [m] weak: howbeit, wherein soever

3 He refuteth the slanders of those Thrasoes. I grant, saith he, that I am not so eloquent an Oratour, but yet they cannot take away the knowledge of the gospel from me, whereof you have had good proof, and that every manner of way.
f Paul lacked not of that kinde of eloquence which is meet for a man, and fit for the gospel, but he willingly wanted that painted kinde of speech, which too many now a dayes hunt after and follow.
4 Another slander, to wit, that he was a rascall, and lived by the labour of his own hands. But herein saith the apostle, What can you lay against me, but that I was content to take any paines for your sakes, and when I lacked, to travail for my living with mine own hands in part, and partly also when poverty constrained me, I chose rather otherwise to seek my sustenance, than to be any burden to you, although I preached the gospel unto you?
5 An amplification: So farre is he from being ashamed of this act, that he hath also resolved with himself to do no otherwise hereafter amongst them, to the intent that it may alwayes be truly said, That he taught in Achaia for nothing: not that he disdaineth the Corinthians, but that these Thrasoes may never finde the occasion which they have already sought for, and he in the mean season, may set something before them to follow, that at length they may truly say, that they are like to Paul.

b To marry you together. c This place is to be marked against them which loath that plain and pure simplicity of the scriptures, in comparison of the colours and paintings of mans eloquence. d Which is meet for them that are in Christ. 2 He sheweth that they deceive themselves, if they look to receive of any other man, either a more excellent gospel, or more excellent gifts of the holy Ghost. e A more perfect doctrine of Jesus Christ.
g This is a form of an oath, as if he said, Let me not be thought to have any truth in me.
† Gr. this boasting shall not be stopped in me. h Shall be alwayes open to me. i Pauls adversaries sought all occasions they could to be equall to him. And therefore seeing they had rather eat up the Corinthians, then preach to them for nothing, they sought another occasion, to wit, to make Paul to take some thing: which thing if he had done, then hoped they by that meanes to be equall to him: for they made such a shew of zeal and knowledge, and set it forth with such a glossing kinde of eloquence, that some of them even despised Paul: but he sheweth that all this is nothing but colours and painting. 6 Now at length he painteth out these fellows in their colours, forewarning, that it will come to passe, that they will at length betray themselves; what countenance soever they make of the zeal that they have of Gods glory. k By light is meant the heavenly glory whereof the angels are partakers. 7 He goeth forward boldly, and using a vehement Ironie or kinde of taunting, desireth the Corinthians to pardon him, if for a time he contend as a fool before them being wise, with those jolly fellowes touching those externall things, to wit, touching his stock, his ancestours and valiant Acts. ‡ Or, suffer. 8 Before he cometh to the matter, he toucheth the Corinthians, who perswading themselves to be very wise men, did not mark, in the meane season, that those false apostles abused their simplicity for advantage. l As if he said, In respect of that reproch which they do unto you (I speak it) which surely is as evil, as if they did beat you. m Paul is called weak, in that he seemeth to the Corinthians a vile and abject man, a beggerly artificer, a most wretched and miserable idiot, whereas notwithstanding, therein Gods mighty power was made manifest.

170 any is bold, I ſpeak foolishly, I am bold alſo.

22 Are they Hebrews? ſo am I: are they Iſraelites? ſo am I: are they the ſeed of Abraham? ſo am I:

23 Are they miniſters of Chriſt? I ſpeak as a fool, I am [n] more: in labours more abundant: in ſtripes above meaſure: in priſons more frequent: in deaths [o] oft.

24 Of the Jews [p] five times received I fourtie ſtripes ſave one.

25 Thrice [q] was I beaten with rods, once was I ſtoned, thrice I ſuffered ſhipwrack: a night and a day I have been in the deep.

26 In journeying often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrey men, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the citie, in perils in the wilderneſſe, in perils in the ſea, in perils among falſe brethren, 27 In wearineſſe and [r] painfulneſſe, in watchings often, in hunger and thirſt, in faſtings often, in cold and nakedneſſe.

28 [9] Beſides thoſe things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches.

29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? who is offended, and I burn not?

30 [10] If I muſt needs glorie, I will glorie of the things which concern mine infirmities.

31 The God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is bleſſed for evermore, knoweth that I lie not.

32 In *Damaſcus the governour under Aretas the king, kept the citie of the Damaſcens with a gariſon, deſirous to apprehend me.

33 And through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall, and eſcaped his hands.

n Paul being honourable indeed, defendeth his miniſterie openly, not for his own ſake, but becauſe he ſaw his doctrin come into hazard.
o In danger of preſent death.
p He alludeth, to that that is written, Deut. 25, 3. and moreover this place sheweth us, that Paul ſuffered many things which Luke paſſed over.
q Of the Romane magiſtrates.
r Painfulneſſe is a troubleſome ſickneſſe, as when a man is weatie and would reſt, he is conſtrained to fall to new labour.
9 He addeth this in concluſion further, that the Corinthians might be aſhamed to deſpiſe him, upon whoſe care, almoſt all churches depended; as it was plainly ſeen by experience.
10 He turneth that againſt the adverſaries, which they objected againſt him: as if he ſhould ſay, They alledged my calamities, to take away my authority from me: but if I would boaſt my ſelf, I would take no better argument: and God himſelf is my witneſſe that I deviſe & forge nothing.
* Acts 9, 24.

CHAP. XII.

1 For commending of his apoſtleſhip, though he might glorie of his wonderfull revelations, 9 yet he rather chooſeth to glorie of his infirmities, 11 blaming them for forcing him to this vain boaſting. 14 He promiſeth to come to them again: but yet altogether in the affection of a father, 20 although he feareth he ſhall to his grief finde many offenders, and publick diſorders there.

IT [1] is not expedient for me doubtleſſe to glorie, I will come to viſions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I knew a man [a] in Chriſt above fourteen yeares ago (whether in the bodie, I cannot tell, or whether out of the bodie, I cannot tell, God knoweth) ſuch an one caught up to the [b] third heaven.

3 And I knew ſuch a man (whether in the bodie, or out of the bodie, I cannot tell, God knoweth)

4 How that he was caught up into [c] paradiſe, and heard unſpeakable [d] words, which it is not [‡e] lawfull for a man to utter.

5 [2] Of ſuch an one will I glorie, yet of my ſelf I will not glorie, but in mine infirmities.

1 He goeth forward in his purpoſe, and becauſe thoſe bragging mates boaſted of revelations, he reckoneth up thoſe things which lift him up above the common capacitie of men: but he uſeth a preface, and excuſeth himſelf adviſedly.
a I ſpeak this in Chriſt, that is, be it ſpoken without vain glory, for I ſeek nothing but Chriſt Jeſus onely.
b Into the higheſt heaven: for we need not to diſpute ſubtilly upon the word (Third) but yet this place is to be marked againſt them, which would have heaven to be every where. c So the Grecians name that, which we call a Park, that is to ſay, A place where trees are planted, and wilde beaſts kept, by which name they that tranſlated the old Teſtament out of Hebrew into Greek, called the garden Eden, whereinto Adam was put ſtraight after his creation, as a moſt delicate and pleaſant place. And hereupon grew it, that that bleſſed ſeat of the glory of God is called by that name. d Which no man is able to utter. ‡ Or, poſſible. e Which the ſaints themſelves are not by any meanes able to expreſſe, becauſe it is God himſelf. Thus doth Clemens Alexandrinus expound this place, Strom. 5. 2 To remove all ſuſpition of ambition, he witneſſeth that he bragged not of thoſe things, as of his own, but as out of himſelf, and yet notwithſtanding faineth nothing, leaſt by this occaſion other men ſhould attribute unto him more than indeed he is: and therefore he had rather glory in his miſeries.

6 For though I would deſire to glorie, I ſhall not be a fool: for I will ſay the truth. But now I forbear, leſt any man ſhould think of me above that which he ſeeth me to be, or that he heareth of me.

7 [3] And leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me [f] a * thorn in the fleſh, the meſſenger of [g] Satan to buffet me, leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure.

8 For this thing I beſought the Lord [h] thrice, that it might depart from me.

9 And he ſaid unto me, My grace is ſufficient for thee: for my ſtrength is made perfect in weakneſſe. [4] Moſt gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Chriſt may [i] reſt upon me.

10 Therefore I take [k] pleaſure in infirmities, in reproaches, in neceſſities, in perſecutions, in diſtreſſes for Chriſts ſake: for when I am weak, then am I ſtrong.

11 I am become a fool in glorying, ye have compelled me: [5] for I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing am I behinde the very chiefeſt apoſtles, though I be nothing.

12 Truly the [l] ſignes of an apoſtle were wrought among you in all patience, in ſignes, and wonders, and mightie deeds.

13 For what is it wherein ye were inferiour to other churches, except it be that I my ſelf was not [m] burdenſome to you? forgive me this wrong.

14 Behold, the third time I am readie to come to you; and I will not be burdenſome to you; for I ſeek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children.

15 And I will very gladly ſpend and be ſpent for † you, though the more abundantly I love you, the leſſe I be loved.

16 [6] But be it ſo, I did not burden you: nevertheleſſe being craftie, I caught you with guile.

17 Did I make a gain of you by any of them whom I ſent unto you?

18 I deſired Titus, and with him I ſent a brother: did Titus make a gain of you? walked we not in the ſame ſpirit? walked we not in the ſame ſteps?

19 [7] Again, think you that we excuſe our ſelves unto you? we ſpeak before God in [n] Chriſt: but we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

20 [8] For I fear leſt when I come I ſhall not finde you ſuch as I would, and that I ſhall be found unto you ſuch as ye would not; leſt there be debates, envyings, wraths, ſtrifes, back-bitings, whiſperings, ſwellings, tumults;

21 And leſt when I come again, my God will humble me among you, and that I ſhall bewail many which have ſinned alreadie, and

3 An excellent doctrine: why God will even have his beſt ſervants to be vexed of Satan, & by all kinde of temptations: to wit, leſt they ſhould be too much puffed up, and alſo that they may be made perfit by that continuall exerciſe.
f He meaneth concupiſcence, that ſticketh faſt in us, as it were a prick, inſomuch as it conſtrained Paul himſelf being regenerate, to cry out, I do not that good that I would, &c. And he calleth that a prick, by a borrowed kinde of ſpeech taken from thorns, or ſtumps, which are very dangerous and hurtfull for the feet, if a man walk through woods that are cut down.
* See Ezek. 28, 24.
g Which ſetteth thoſe luſts on fire.
h Oft.
4 He concludeth, that he will onely ſet his miſeries againſt the vain brags of the falſe apoſtles, & therewith alſo excuſeth himſelf, for that by their importunity, he was conſtrained to ſpeak ſo much of thoſe things as he did: to wit, becauſe that if his apoſtleship were ſubverted, his doctrine muſt needs fall.
i That I might feel the vertue of Chriſt more and more: For the weaker that our tabernacles are, the more doth Chriſts vertue appear in them.
k I do not onely take them patiently, and with a good heart, but alſo I take great pleaſure in them.
5 Again, he maketh the Corinthians witneſſes of thoſe things whereby God had ſealed his apoſtleship amongſt them, and again he declareth by certain arguments how farre he is from all covetouſneſſe, and alſo how he is affectioned towards them.
l The arguments whereby it may well appear, that I am indeed an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt.
m I was not ſlothfull in getting my living with mine own hands, that I might not be burdenſome to you.
† Gr. your ſoules.
6 He putteth away another moſt grievous ſlander, to wit, that he did ſubtilly, and by others, make his gain and profit of them. 7 He concludeth that he writeth not theſe things unto them, as though he needeth to defend himſelf, for he is guilty of nothing; but becauſe it is needfull for them to doubt nothing of his fidelity, who inſtructed them. n As it becometh him to ſpeak truly and ſincerely, that profeſſeth himſelf to be in Chriſt, that is to ſay, to be a Chriſtian.
8 Having confirmed his authority unto them, he rebuketh them ſharply, and threatneth them alſo like an apoſtle, ſhewing that he will not ſpare them hereafter, unleſſe they repent ſeeing that this is the third time that he hath warned them.

have have not repented of the uncleanneſſe, and fornication, and laſciviouſneſſe which they have committed.

CHAP. XIII.

1 He threatneth ſeveritie, and the power of his apoſtleship againſt obſtinate ſinners: 5 and adviſing them to a triall of their faith. 7 and to reformation of their ſinnes before his coming. 11 a generall exhortation and a prayer.

THis is the third time I am coming to you: in the mouth of two or three witneſſes ſhall every word be eſtabliſhed.

1 A moſt ſharp reprehenſion, for that while they deſpiſe the apoſtles admonition, they tempt Chriſts own patience: and alſo while they contemn him as wretched and miſerable, they lay nothing herein againſt him, which is not common to him with Chriſt.

2 I told you before, and foretell you as if I were preſent the ſecond time, and being abſent, now I write to them which heretofore have ſinned, and to all other, that if I come again I will not ſpare:

3 [1] Since ye ſeek a proof of Chriſt ſpeaking in me, which to you-ward is not weak, but is [a] mighty in you.

a And will be moſt mightie to be revenged of you when need ſhall be.

4 For though he was crucified through [b] weakneſſe, yet he liveth by the power of God for we alſo are weak ‡ in him, but we ſhall live with him by the power of God toward you.

b As touching that baſe form of a ſervant which he took upon him when he abaſed himſelf.

‡ Or, with him.

5 [2] Examine your ſelves, whether ye be in the faith: prove your own ſelves: know ye not your own ſelves, how that Jeſus Chriſt is in you, except ye be reprobates?

2 He confirmeth that which he ſpake of the vertue of God appearing in his miniſterie and he gathereth by the mutuall relation between the peoples faith, and the miniſters preaching, that they muſt either reverence his apoſtleship, upon whoſe doctrine their faith is grounded, or they muſt condemn themſelves of infidelity, and muſt confeſſe themſelves not to be of Chriſts body.

6 [3] But I truſt that ye ſhall know that we are not reprobates.

3 He mitigateth that ſharpneſſe, truſting that they will ſhew themſelves toward their faithfull apoſtles, apt and willing to be taught: adding this moreover, that he paſſeth not for his own fame and eſtimation, ſo that he may ſerve to their ſalvation, which is the onely mark that he ſhooteth at.

7 Now I pray to God that ye do no evil, not that we ſhould appeare approved, but that ye ſhould do that which is honeſt, though we be as [c] reprobates.

c In mens judgement.

8 For we can do nothing againſt the truth, but for the truth.

9 For we are glad when we are weak, and ye are ſtrong: and this alſo we wiſh, even your [d] perfection.

d That all things may be in good order amongſt you, and the members of the church reſtored into their place, which have been ſhaken, and out of place.

10 Therefore I write theſe things being abſent, leſt being preſent, I ſhould uſe ſharpneſſe, according to the power which the Lord hath given me to edification, and not to deſtruction, 11 [4] Finally, brethren, farewell: Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one minde, live in peace; and the God of love and peace ſhall be with you.

4 A brief exhortation, but yet ſuch an one as comprehendeth all the parts of a Chriſtian mans life.

12 [5] Greet one another with an holy kiſſe.

13 All the ſaints ſalute you.

14 The grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghoſt, be with you all. Amen.

5 He ſalureth them familiarly, and in concluſion wiſheth well unto them.

¶ The ſecond epiſtle to the Corinthians, was written from Philippi a citie of Macedonia, by Titus and Lucas.

The Epiſtle of PAUL the Apoſtle, TO THE GALATIANS.

CHAP. I.

6 He wondereth that they have ſo ſoon left him and the goſpel. 8 and accurſeth thoſe that preach any other goſpel than he did. 11 He learned the goſpel not of men, but of God: 13 and ſheweth what he was before his calling, 17 and what he did preſently after it.

PAul [1] an apoſtle, not [a] of men, neither [b] by man, but by [c] Jeſus Chriſt, and God the Father, who raiſed him from the dead,

1 A ſalutation comprehending in few words the ſum of the apoſtles doctrin, and alſo beſides, ſtraightway from the beginning, ſhewing the gravitie meet for the authoritie of an apoſtle, which he had to maintain againſt the falſe apoſtles.

2 And all the brethren which are with me, unto the churches of Galatia:

3 Grace be to you and peace, from God the Father, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

4 [2] Who gave himſelf for our ſinnes, that he might deliver us from this preſent evil [d] world, according to the will of God, and our Father:

5 To whom be glory for ever and ever, Amen.

6 [3] I marvel, that ye are ſo ſoon [e] removed from him that called you into the grace of Chriſt, unto another goſpel:

7 [4] Which is not another; but there be ſome that trouble you, and would [f] pervert the goſpel of Chriſt.

4 He warneth them in time to remember that there are not many goſpels and therefore whatſoever theſe falſe apoſtles pretend which had the law, Moſes, and the Fathers, in their mouthes, yet there are indeed ſo many corruptions of the true goſpel, inſomuch that he himſelf, yea, and the very angels themſelves (and therefore much more theſe falſe apoſt'es) ought to be holden accurſed if they go about to change the leaſt jot that may be in the goſpel that he delivered to them before.

8 But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other goſpel unto you, than that which we have preached unto you, let him be [g] accurſed.

9 As we ſaid before, ſo ſay I now again, If any man preach any other goſpel unto you, than that ye have received, let him be accurſed.

10 [5] For do I now perſwade [h] men, or God? or do I ſeek to pleaſe men? for if I yet pleaſed men, I ſhould not be the ſervant of Chriſt.

11 [6] But I certifie you, brethren, that the goſpel which was preached of me, is not after man.

12 For I neither received it of man, neither f For there is nothing more contrary to faith or free juſtification, than juſtification by the law, or by our deſervings. g Look Rom. 9. 3. 5 A confirmation taken both from the nature of the doctrine it ſelf, and alſo from the manner which he uſed in teaching: for neither, ſaith he, did I teach thoſe things which pleaſed men, as theſe men do, which put a part of ſalvation in externall things, and works of the law, neither went I about to procure any mans favour: And therefore the matter it ſelf ſheweth that that doctrin which I delivered unto you, is heavenly. h He toucheth the falſe apoſtles, who had nothing but men in their mouths, and he, though he would derogate nothing from the apoſtles, preacheth God, and not men. 6 A ſecond argument to prove that his doctrin is heavenly, becauſe he had it from heaven, from Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, without any mans help, wherein he excelleth them whom Chriſt taught here on earth, after the manner of men.

b He toucheth the inſtrumentall cauſe: for this is a peculiar prerogative to the apoſtles, to be called immediately from Chriſt. c Chriſt no doubt is man but he is God alſo, and head of the church, and in this reſpect to be exempted out of the number of men. 2 The ſum of the true goſpel is this, that Chriſt by onely offering ſaveth us being choſen out from the world, by the free decree of God the Father. d Out of that moſt corrupt ſtate which is without Chriſt. 3 The firſt part of the epiſtle wherein he witneſſeth that he is an apoſtle, nothing inferiour to thoſe chief diſciples of Chriſt, and wholy agreeing with them, whoſe names the falſe apoſtles did abuſe. And he beginneth with chiding, reproving them of lightneſſe, for that they gave eare ſo eaſily unto them which perverted them, and drew them away unto a new goſpel. e He uſeth the paſſive voice, to caſt the fault upon the falſe apoſtles, and he uſeth the time that now is, to give them to underſtand, that it was not already done, but in doing.

was I taught it, but by the [i] revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 [7] For ye have heard of my conversation in time past, in the Jews religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it:

14 And profited in the Jews religion, above many my † equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the [k] traditions of my fathers,

15 But when it pleased God, who [l] separated me from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace,

16 To reveal his Sonne [m] in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately [8] I conferred not with [n] flesh and bloud:

17 Neither went I up to Jerusalem, to them which were apostles before me, but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damascus.

18 Then after three yeares I ‡ went up to Jerusalem, to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen dayes.

19 But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lords brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you behold, [o] before God, I lie not.

21 Afterwards I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia, 22 And was unknown by face unto the churches of Judea, which were in Christ.

23 But they had heard onely, That he which persecuted us in times past, now preacheth the [p] faith which once he destroyed.

24 And they glorified God in me.

i This place is to be understood of an extraordinarie revelation, for otherwise the Sonne alone revealed his gospel by his spirit, although by the ministery of men, which Paul shutteth out here.

7 He proveth that he was extraordinarily taught of Christ himself, by the historie of his former life, which the Galatians themselves knew well enough: for saith he, it is well known in what school I was brought up, even from a childe, to wit, amongst the deadly enemies of the gospel. And that no man may cavill & say, That I was a scholer of the pharisees in name onely, and not in deed, no man is ignorant how that I excelled in pharisaisme, & was suddenly made of a Pharisean apostle of the Gentiles, so that I had no space to be instructed of men.

k He calleth them the traditions of his fathers, because he was not onely a pharisee himself, but also had a pharisee to his father.

l He speaketh of Gods everlasting predestination, whereby he appointed him to be an apostle, whereof he maketh three degrees; the everlasting counsel of God, his appointing from his mothers wombe, and his calling: here is no mention at all, we see, of works foreseen.

m To me, and this is a kinde of speech which the Hebrews use, whereby this is given us to understand, that this gift cometh from God.

8 Because it might be objected, that indeed he was called of Christ in the way, but afterward was instructed of the apostles and others, whose name (as I said before) the false apostles abused to destroy his apostleship, as though he delivered another gospel than the true apostles did, and as though he were not of their number, which are to be credited without exception: therefore Paul answereth, that he began straightway after his calling to preach the gospel at Damascus and in Arabia, and was not from that time in Jerusalem but only fifteen dayes, where he saw onely Peter and James, and afterwards he began to teach in Syria, and Cilicia, with the consent and approbation of the churches of the Jews, which knew him onely by name: so farre off was it, that he was there instructed of men.

n With any man in the world.

o This is a kinde of oath.

p The doctrin of faith.

Chap. II.

1 He sheweth when he went up again to Ierusalem, and for what purpose: 3 and that Titus was not circumcised: 11 and that he resisted Peter, and told him the reason, 14 why he and other, being Iews, do beleeve in Christ to be justified by faith, and not by works: 20 and that they live not in sinne, who are so justified.

THen [1] fourteen yeares after, I went up again to Jerusalem, with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also.

2 And I went up by revelation, and communicated unto them that gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but ‡ privately to them which were of reputation, lest by any means I should run, or had run [a] in vain.

3 But neither Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised:

4 And that because of [b] false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to spie out our libertie, which we have in Christ Jesus: that they might bring us into bondage:

5 To whom we gave place by [c] subjection, no not for an houre, that the [d] truth of the gospel might continue with [e] you.

6 But of these, who seemed to be somewhat (whatsoever they were, it maketh no matter to me, God accepteth no mans person) for they who seemed to be somewhat, in conference added nothing to me.

7 But contrariwise, when they saw that the gospel of the [f] uncircumcision was committed unto me, as the gospel of the circumcision was unto Peter;

8 (For he that wrought effectually in Peter to the apostleship of the circumcision, the same was mighty in me towards the Gentiles)

9 And when James, Cephas, and John, who [g] seemed to be pillars, perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right [h] hands of fellowship, that we should go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumcision.

10 Onely they would that we should remember the poore, the same which I also was forward to do.

11 But when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to the [i] face, because he was to be blamed.

12 [2] For before that certain came from James, he did eat with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew, and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision.

13 And the other Jews dissembled likewise with him, insomuch that Barnabas also was [k] carried away with their dissimulation.

14 But when I saw that they walked [l] not uprightly, according to the [m] truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why [n] compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews?

15 [3] We who are [o] Jews by nature, and [p] not sinners of the Gentiles, 16 Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith [q] of Jesus Christ, even we have beleeved in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ and not by the works of the law: for by the works of the law shall [r] no flesh be justified.

17 [4] But if while [f] we seek to be justified by Christ, we our selves also are found sinners, is therefore Christ the minister of sinne? God forbid.

1 Now he sheweth how he agreeth with the apostles, with whom he granteth that he conferred touching his gospel which he taught among the Gentiles fourteen yeares after his conversion, and they allowed it, in such sort, that they constrained not his fellow Titus to be circumcised, although some tormented themselves, therein, which traiterously laid wait against him, but in vain: neither did they adde the least jot that might be to the doctrin which he had preached, but contrariwise they gave to him and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, and acknowledged them as apostles appointed of the Lord to the Gentiles.

a Unfruitfull, for as touching his doctrin, Paul doubteth not of it, but because there were certain reports cast abroad of him, that he was of another opinion than the rest of the apostles were, which thing might have hindered the course of the gospel, therefore he laboureth to remedy this sore.

b Which by deceit and counterfeit holinesse crept in amongst the faithfull.

c By submitting our selves to them & betraying our own liberty.

d The true and sincere doctrin of the gospel, which remained safe from being corrupt with any of those mens false doctrins.

e Under the Galatians name, he understandeth all nations.

f Among Gentiles, as Peter had to preach it among the Jews.

g Whom alone and onely these men count for pillars of the church, and whose name they abuse to deceive you.

h They gave us their hand in token that we agreed wholy in the doctrin of the gospel.

i Before all men.

2 Another most vehement proof of his apostleship, and also of that doctrin which he had delivered concerning free justification by faith onely, because that for this thing onely he reprehended Peter at Antioch, who offended herein, in that for a few Jews sakes which came from Jerusalem, he playeth the Jew, and offended the Gentiles which had beleeved.

k By example rather than by judgement.

l Word for word, with a right foot, which he setteth against halting and dissembling, which is backward.

m He calleth the truth of the gospel, both the doctrin itself, and also the use of the doctrin, which we call the practice.

n He saith, they were constrained, which played the Jews by Peters example.

3 The second part of this epistle, the state whereof is this: we are justified by faith in Christ Jesus without the works of the law. Which thing he propoundeth in such sort, that first of all he meeteth with an objection, (for I also, saith he, am a Jew, that no man may say against me, that I am an enemy to the law) and afterward he confirmeth by the expresse witnesse of David.

o Although we be Jews, yet we preach justification by faith, because we know undoubtedly that no man can be justified by the law.

p So the Jews called the Gentiles, because they were strangers from Gods covenant.

q In Jesus Christ.

r No man, and in this word (flesh) there is a great vehemencie, whereby is meant that the nature of man is utterly corrupt.

4 Before he goeth any further, he meeteth with their objection, which abhorred this doctrin of free justification by faith, because they say, men are by this meanes withdrawn from the study of good works. And in this sort is the objection: If sinners should be justified through Christ by faith without the law, Christ should approve sinners, and should as it were exhort them thereunto by his ministery. Paul answereth, that this consequence is false, because that Christ destroyeth sin in the beleevers: For so, saith he, do men flee unto Christ through the terrour and fear of the law, that being quit from the curse of the law, and justified they may be saved by him, that together therewithall, he beginneth in them by little and little that strength and power of his, which destroyeth sin: to the end that this old man being abolished by the vertue of Christ crucified: Christ may live in them, and they may consecrate themselves to God. Therefore if any man give himself to sin after he hath received the gospel, let him not accuse Christ nor the gospel, but himself, for that he destroyeth the work of God in himself.

f He goeth from justification to sanctification, which is another benefit we receive by Christ, if we lay hold on him by faith.

18 For if I build again the things which I destroyed, I make my self a transgressour.

19 For I through the law am dead to the [t] law, that I might live unto God.

20 I am crucified with Christ. Nevertheless I live; yet not [u] I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the [x] flesh, I live by the faith of the Sonne of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me.

21 [5] I do not frustrate the grace of God: for if righteousnesse come by the law, then Christ is dead [y] in vain.

t The law that terrifieth the conscience, bringeth us to Christ, and he only causeth us to die to the law indeed, because that by making us righteous, he taketh away from us the terrour of conscience, and by sanctifying us, causeth through the mortifying of lust in us, that it cannot take such Rom. 7, 10, 11. argument taken of an for Christ to die.

u The same that I was before. x In this mortall body. 5 The second absurditie: If men may be justified by the law, then was it not necessary y For there was no cause why he should doe so.

Chap. III.

1 He asketh what moved them to leave the faith, and hang upon the law. 6 They that beleeve are justified. 9 and blessed with Abraham. 10 And this he sheweth by many reasons.

1 The third reason, or argument, taken of those gifts of the Holy Ghost, wherewith they were endued from heaven after a they had heard and beleeved the gospel by Pauls ministerie: which seeing they were so evident to all mens eyes, that they were, as it were, lively images, wherein they might behold the truth of the doctrine of the gospel, no lesse than if they had beheld with their eyes Christ himself crucified, in whose onely death they ought to have their trust, he marvelleth how it could be that they could be so bewitched by the false apostles.

a Christ was laid before you so notably and so plainly, that you had his lively image, as it were, represented before your eyes, as if he had been crucified before you.

O [1] Foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that you should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth, crucified among you?

2 This onely would I learn of you, Received ye [b] the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the [c] hearing of faith?

3 [2] Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the [d] flesh?

4 [3] Have ye suffered [‡] so many things in vain? if it be yet in vain.

5 [4] He therefore that ministreth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doth he it by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith?

6 [5] Even as [e] Abraham beleeved God, and it was [‡] accounted to him for righteousnesse.

7 [6] Know ye therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

8 [7] And the scripture foreseeing that God would justifie the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, * [8] In thee shall all nations be [f] blessed.

9 [9] So then they which be of faith, are blessed [g] with faithfull Abraham.

10 [10] For as many as are of the works of the law, are under the curse: [11] for it is written, * Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them.

11 [12] But that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, it is evident: for, * The just shall live by faith.

12 [13] And the law is not of faith: but, * The man that doth them shall live in them.

13 [14] Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us: for it is [15] written, [h] Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree:

14 [16] That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ: that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 [17] Brethren, I speak after the manner of [i] men: though it be but a mans [‡] covenant, yet if it be [k] confirmed, no man disanulleth, or addeth thereto.

16 Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, [18] which is [l] Christ.

17 [19] And this I say, That the covenant that was confirmed before of God [m] in Christ, the [20] law which was foure hundred and thirty yeares after, cannot disanull, that it should make the promise of none effect.

18 [21] For if the [n] inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise: but God gave it to Abraham by promise.

19 [22] Wherefore then serveth the law? It was added because of [o] transgressions, [p] till the seed should come, to whom the promise was made, [23] and it was [q] ordained by [r] angels in the hand of a mediatour.

20 Now a mediatour is not a mediatour of one, [24] but God is one.

2 The fourth argument mixed with the former: and it is double. If the law be to be joyned with faith, this were not to go forward, but backward, seeing that those spirituall gifts which were bestowed upon you, are more excellent than any that could proceed from your selves. And moreover it should follow, that the law is better than Christ, because it should perfect and bring to end that which Christ began only. d By the (flesh) he meaneth the ceremonies of the law, against which he setteth the Spirit, that is, the spirituall working of the gospel. 3 An exhortation by manner of upbraiding, that they do not in vain suffer so many conflicts. ‡ Or, so great. 4 He repeateth the third argument which was taken of the effects, because he had enterlaced certain other arguments by the way. 5 The fift argument which is of great force, and hath three grounds: The first, that Abraham was justified by faith, to wit, by free imputation of righteousnesse according to the promise apprehended by faith, as Moses doth most plainly witnesse. e Look Rom. 4. ‡ Or, imputed. 6 The second, that the sonnes of Abraham must be esteemed and accounted of by faith. 7 The third, that all people that beleeve, are without exception comprehended in the promise of the blessing. * Gen. 12, 3. 8 A proof of the first and second ground, out of the words of Moses. f Blessing in this place, signifieth the free promise by faith. 9 The conclusion of the fift argument: Therefore as Abraham is blessed by faith, so are all his children (that is to say, all the Gentiles that beleeve) blessed, that is to say, freely justified. g With faithfull Abraham, and not by faithfull Abraham, to give us to understand, that the blessing cometh not from Abraham, but from him, by whom Abraham and all his posteritie is blessed. 10 The sixt argument, the conclusion whereof is also in the former verse taken of contraries, thus, They are accursed which are of the works of the law, that is to say, which value their righteousnesse by the performance of the law: Therefore they are blessed which are of faith that is, they which have righteousnesse by faith. 11 A proof of the former sentence or proposition, and the proposition of this argument is this: Cursed is he that fulfilleth not the whole law. * Deut 27, 26. 12 The second proposition with the conclusion: But no man fulfilleth the law, Therefore no man is justified by the law, or els, All are accursed which seek righteousnesse by the works of the law. And there is annexed also, this manner of proof of the second proposition, to wit, Righteousnesse and life are attributed to faith, Therefore no man fulfilleth the law.

* Hab. 2, 4. Rom. 1, 17.

13 Here is a reason shewed of the former consequence: Because the law promiseth life to all that keep it, and therefore if it be kept, it justifieth and giveth life. But the Scripture attributing righteousnesse and life to faith, taketh it from the law, seeing that faith justifieth by imputation, and the law by the performing of the work.

* Levit. 18, 5.

14 A preventing of an objection: How then can they be blessed, whom the law pronounceth to be accursed? Because Christ sustained the curse which the law laid upon us, that we might be quit from it.

15 A proof of the answer by the testimony of Moses, Deut. 21, 23.

h Christ was accursed for us, because he bare the curse that was due to us to make us partakers of his righteousnesse.

16 A conclusion of all that was said before in the handling of the fift and sixt reasons, to wit, that both the Gentiles are made partakers of the free blessing of Abraham in Christ, and also that the Jews themselves, of whose number the apostle counteth himself to be, cannot obtain that promised grace of the gospel, which he calleth the Spirit, but onely by faith. And the apostle doeth severally apply the conclusion, both to the one and to the other, preparing himself a way to the next argument, whereby he declareth that that one onely seed of Abraham, which is made of all peoples, can no otherwise be joyned and grow up together, but by faith in Christ. 17 He putteth forth two generall rules before the next argument, which is the seventh in order: The one is, that it is not lawfull to break covenants and contracts which are justly made, and according to law, among men, neither may any thing be added unto them: the other is, that God did so make a covenant with Abraham, that he would gather together his children which consist both of Jews and Gentiles into one body (as appeareth by that which hath been said before) For he did not say, That he would be the God of Abraham and of his seeds, (which thing notwithstanding should have been said, if he had many and divers seeds, as the Gentiles apart, and the Jews apart) but that he would be the God of Abraham, and of his seed, as of one. i I will use an example which is common among you, that you may be ashamed that you give not so much to Gods covenants as you do to mans. ‡ Or, testament. k Authenticall, as we call it. 18 He putteth forth the sum of the seventh argument, to wit, that both the Jews and the Gentiles, grow together in one body of the seed of Abraham, in Christ onely, so that all are one in Christ, as it is afterward declared, vers. 28. l Paul speaketh not of Christs person, but of two peoples which grew together in one, in Christ. 19 The eight argument taken of comparison, thus, If a mans covenant (being authenticall) be firm and strong, much more Gods covenant. Therefore the law was not given to abrogate the promise made to Abraham, which had respect to Christ, that is to say, The end whereof did hang on Christ. m Which tended to Christ. 20 An inlarging of that argument, thus, Moreover and besides that the promise is of it self firm and strong, it was also confirmed with the prescription of long time, to wit, of 430 yeares, so that it could in no wise be broken. 21 An objection: We grant that the promise was not abrogated by the covenant of the law, and therefore we joyn the law with the promise, Nay, saith the apostle, these two cannot stand together, to wit, that the inheritance should both be given by the law and also by promise, for the promise is free: whereby it followeth that the law was not given to justifie, for by that meanes the promise should be broken. n By this word (inheritance) is meant the right of the seed, which is, that God should be our God, that is to say, that by vertue of the covenant that was made with faithfull Abraham, we that be faithfull, might by that meanes be blessed of God as well as he. 22 An objection which riseth from the former answer: If the inheritance be not by the law (at the least in part) then why was the law given after that the promise was made? therefore saith the apostle, to reprove men of sinne, and so to teach them to look unto Christ, in whom at length that promise of saving all people together should be fulfilled, and not that the law was given to justifie men. o That men might understand by discovering of their sinnes, that they are saved by the onely grace of God, which he revealed to Abraham and that in Christ. p Untill the partition wall was broken down, and that full seed sprang up, framed of two peoples, both of Jews and Gentiles: for by this word Seed, we may not understand, Christ alone by himself, but coupled and joyned together with his body. 23 A confirmation of the former answer taken from the manner and form of giving the law: for it was given by angels, striking a great terrour into all, and by Moses, a Mediatour, coming between. Now they that are one, need no Mediatour, but they that are twain, at the least, and they are at varitance one with another. Therefore the law it self, and the Mediatour were witnesses of the wrath of God, and not that God would by this meanes reconcile men to himself, and abolish the promise, or adde the law unto the promise. q Commanded and given, or proclaimed. r By the service and ministery. 24 A taking away of an objection, lest any man might say, that sometimes by consent of the parties which have made a covenant, something is added to the covenant, or the former covenants are broken. This, saith the apostle, cometh not to passe in God who is alwayes one, and the self. same, and like himself.

21 [25] Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousnesse should have been by the law.

22 But the [f] scripture hath concluded [t] all under sinne, that the [u] promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that beleeve.

23 [26] But before faith came, we were kept under the law, shut up unto the [x] faith, which should afterwards be revealed.

24 Wherefore the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith.

25 But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster.

26 [27] For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.

27 [28] For as many of you as have been [y] baptized into Christ, have [z] put on Christ.

28 There is neither Jew, nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all [a] one in Christ Jesus.

29 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heirs according to the promise.

25 The conclusion uttered by a manner of asking a question, and it is that same that was uttered before, vers. 17. but proceeding of another rule: so that the argument is new, and is this: God is alwayes like unto himself: Therefore the law was not given to abolish the promises. But it should abolish them if it gave life, for by that means it should justifie, and therefore it should abolish that justification, which was promised to Abraham, and to his seed by faith. Nay, it was rather given to bring to light the guiltines of all men, to the end that all beleevers fleeing to Christ, might be freely justified in him.

f By this word scripture, he meaneth the law.

t Whatsoever cometh from man.

u In every one of these words, there lieth an argument against the merits of works: for all these words, Promise, faith, Christ, might be given to beleevers, are against merits, and not one of them can stand with deserving works. 26 Now there followeth another handling of the second part of this epistle: the state whereof was this: Although the law (that is, the whole government of Gods house according to the law) do not justifie, is it therefore to be abolished, seeing that Abraham himself was circumcised, and his posteritie held still the use of Moses law? Paul affirmeth that it ought to be abolished, because it was instituted for that end and purpose, that it should be, as it were, a schoolmaster and keeper to the people of God, untill the promise appeared in deed, that is to say, Christ, and the gospel manifestly published with great efficacie of the spirit. x The cause why we were kept under the law, is set down here. 27 Because age changeth not the condition of servants, he addeth that we are free by condition, and therefore, seeing we are out of our childhood, we have no more need of a keeper and schoolmaster. 28 Using a generall particle, lest the Jews at the least should not think themselves bound with the band of the law, he pronounceth that baptisme is common to all beleevers, because it is a pledge of our deliverance in Christ, as well to the Jews as to the Grecians, that by this means all may be truly one in Christ, that is to say, that promised seed to Abraham, and inheritours of eternall life. y He setteth baptisme secretly against circumcision, which the false apostles so much bragged of. z The church must put on Christ, as it were a garment, and be covered with him, that it may be throughly holy, and without blame. a You are all as one: and so is this great knot and conjunction signified.

Chap. IIII.

1 We were under the law till Christ came, as the heir is under his gardian till he be of age. 5 But Christ freed us from the law: 7 therefore we are servants no longer to it. 14 He remembreth their good will to him, and his to them, 22 and sheweth that we are the sonnes of Abraham by the free-woman.

1 He declareth that by another double similitude, which he said before concerning the keeper and schoolmaster: for he saith, that the law (that is, the whole governement of Gods house according to the law) was as it were a tutor or over-seer appointed for a time, untill such time as that protection and overseeing which was but for a time, being ended, we should at length come to be at our own libertie, and should live as children, and not as servants. Moreover, he sheweth by the way, that that governance of the law, was as it were an A B C, and as certain principles, in comparison of the doctrin of the gospel. a This is added, because he that is alwayes under a tutour or governour, may hardly be counted a freeman. b The law is called rudiments, because that by the law God instructed his church as it were by rudiments, and afterward powred out his holy Spirit most plentifully in the time of the gospel. 2 He uttereth and declareth many things at once, to wit, that this tutourship was ended at his time: that curious men may leave to ask, why that schoolmastership lasted so long. And moreover, that we are not sons by nature, but by adoption, and that in that Son of God, who therefore took upon him our flesh, that we might be made his brethren. c The time is said to be full, when all parts of it are past and ended, and therefore Christ could not have come either sooner or later. d He calleth Marie a woman, in respect of the sex, and not as the word is used in a contrary sence to a virgin, for she remained a virgin still. e The adoption of the sonnes of God, is from everlasting, but is revealed and shewed in the time appointed for it. 3 He sheweth that we are in such sort free and set at libertie, that in the mean season we must be governed by the Spirit of Christ, which reigning in our hearts, may teach us the true service of the Father. But this is not to serve, but rather to enjoy true libertie, as it becometh sons and heirs.

NOw [1] I say, that the heir as long as he is a childe, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all.

2 But is under tutours and governours, [a] untill the time appointed of the father.

3 Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage under the [b] elements of the world:

4 [2] But when the [c] fulnesse of the time was come, God sent forth his Sonne made of a [d] woman, made under the law.

5 To redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the [e] adoption of sonnes.

6 [3] And because ye are sonnes, God hath [f] sent forth the [g] Spirit of his Sonne into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father.

7 Wherefore thou art no more a [h] servant, but a sonne; and if a sonne, then an [i] heir of God through Christ.

8 [4] Howbeit, then when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them which by nature are no gods.

9 But now after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye [t] again to the weak and [k] beggerly [t] elements, whereunto ye desire [l] again to be in bondage?

10 Ye observe dayes, and moneths, and times, and yeares, 11 I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labour in vain.

12 [5] Brethren, I beseech you, be as I am; for I am as ye are, ye have not injured me at all.

13 Ye know how through [m] infirmity of the flesh, I preached the gospel unto you at the first.

14 And my [n] temptation which was in my flesh ye despised not, nor rejected, but received me as an angel of God, even as [o] Christ Jesus.

15 [‡ p] Where is then the blessednesse you spake of? for I bear you record, that if it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me.

16 Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?

17 They zealously affect you, but [q] not well: yea, they would exclude [‡] you, [r] that you might affect them.

18 But it is good to be [s] zealously affected alwayes in a good thing, and not onely when I am present with you.

19 My little children of whom I travail in birth again untill Christ be formed in you, 20 I desire to be present with you now, and to [t] change my voice, for [‡] I stand in doubt of you.

21 [6] Tell me, ye that [u] desire to be under the law, do ye not heare the law?

22 For it is written, that Abraham had two sonnes, the one by a bond-maid, the other by a free-woman.

23 But he who was of the bond-woman, f By that that follows, he gathereth that that went before: for if we have his spirit, we are his sonnes, and if we are his sonnes, then are we free.

g The holy Ghost, who is both of the Father, and of the Sonne: but there is a peculiar reason why he is called the Spirit of the Sonne: to wit, because the holy Ghost sealeth up our adoption in Christ, and maketh us a full assurance of it.

h The word, servant, is not taken here for one that liveth in sin, which is proper to the infidels, but for one that is yet under the ceremonies of the law, which is proper to the Jews.

i Partaker of his blessings.

4 He applieth the former doctrin to the Galatians, with a peculiar reprehension: for in comparison of them, the Jews might have pretended some excuse, as men that were born and brought up in that service of the law. But seeing that the Galatians were taken and called out of idolatrie to Christian libertie, what pretence might they have to go back to those impotent and beggerly rudiments?

k They are called impotent and beggerly ceremonies, being considered apart by themselves without Christ: and againe, for that by that means they gave good testimonie that they were beggers in Christ, when as notwithstanding, for men to fall back from Christ to ceremonies, is nothing else, but to cast away riches, and to follow beggerie.

l By going backward. 5 He mitigateth and qualifieth those things, wherein he might have seemed to have spoken somewhat sharply, very artificially, and divinely declaring his good will toward them in such sort, that the Galatians could not but either be utterly desperate when they reade these things, or acknowledge their own lightnesse with teares, and desire pardon.

m Many afflictions. n Those daily troubles wherewith the Lord tried me amongst you.

o For my ministeries sake. ‡ Or, what was then? p What a talk was there abroad in the world amongst men, how happie you were? q For they are jealous over you for their own commoditie. ‡ Or, us. r That they may convey all your love from me, to themselves.

s He setteth his own true and good love, which was earnestly bent toward them, against the naughtie vicious love of the false apostles. t Use other words an ong you. ‡ Or, I am perplexed for you. 6 Because the false apostles urged this, that unlesse the Gentiles were circumcised, Christ could profit them nothing at all, and this dissention of them which beleeved of the circumcision, against them which beleeved of the uncircumcision, was full of offence: the apostle after divers arguments, whereby he hath refuted their errour, bringeth forth an allegory, wherein he saith, the holy Ghost did shadow out unto us, all these mysteries: to wit, that it should come to passe, that two sorts or sonnes should have Abraham a father common to them both: but not with like succesſe, for as Abraham begat Ishmael, by the common course of nature, of Agar his bondmaid, and a stranger, and begat Isaac of Sara a free woman, by the vertue of the promise, and by grace onely, and the first was not onely, not heir, but also persecuted the heir: So there are two covenants, and as it were, two sonnes born to Abraham of those two covenants, as it were of two mothers. The one was made in Sinai, without the land of promise, according to which covenants Abrahams children according to the flesh were begotten to wit, the Jews, which seek righteousnesse by that covenant, that is, by the law: but they are not heirs, nay they shall at length be cast out of the house, as they that persecute the true heirs. The other was made in that high Jerusalem, or in Sion (to wit, by the sacrifice of Christ) which begetteth children of promise, to wit, beleevers by the vertue of the holy Ghost, which children (as Abraham) do rest themselves in the free promise, and they onely by the right of children shall be partakers of the fathers inheritance, and those servants shall be shut out. u That desire so greatly.

was born after the [x] flesh: but he of the free-woman was by [y] promiſe.

24 Which things are an allegory; for [z] theſe are the two ‡ [a] covenants; the one from the mount [b] Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, which is Agar.

25 For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia, and ‡ [c] anſwereth to Jeruſalem which now is, and is in [d] bondage with her children.

26 But Jeruſalem which is [e] above, is free, which is the mother of us all.

27 [7] For it is written,* Rejoyce thou barren that beareſt not; break forth and cry, thou that travaileſt not, for the [f] deſolate hath many moe children than she which hath an husband.

28 Now we, brethren, [g] as Iſaac was, are the children of [h] promiſe.

29 But as then he that was born after the [i] flesh perſecuted him that was born after the [k] Spirit, even ſo it is now.

30 Nevertheleſſe, what ſaith the ſcripture? * Caſt out the bond-woman and her ſonne: for the ſonne of the bond-woman ſhall not be heir with the ſonne of the free-woman.

31 [8] So then, brethren, we are not children of the bond-woman, but of the free.

x As all men are, and by the common courſe of nature.
y By vertue of the promiſe, which Abraham laid hold on for himſelf and his true ſeed, for otherwiſe Abraham and Sara were paſt begetting and bearing of children.
z Theſe do repreſent and shadow forth.
‡ Or, teſtaments.
a They are called two covenants, the one of the old Teſtament, and another of the new: which were not two indeed, but in reſpect of the times, and the diverſitie of the governement.
b He maketh mention of Sinai becauſe that covenant was made in that mountain, of which mountain Agar was a shadow.
‡ Or, is in the ſame rank with.
c Look how the caſe ſtandeth betwixt Agar and her children, even ſo ſtandeth it betweene Jeruſalem and hers.
d That is, Sinai.
e Which is excellent, and of great account. 7 He sheweth that in this allegorie, he hath followed the ſteps of Eſay, who foretold that the church should be made, and conſiſt of the children of barren Sara, that is to ſay, of them which onely ſpiritually should be made Abrahams children by faith, rather than of fruitfull Agar, even then foreſhewing the caſting off of the Jews, and calling of the Gentiles. * Iſa. 54, 1. f She that is deſtroyed and waſted. g After the manner of Iſaac, who is the firſt begotten of the heavenly Jeruſalem, as Iſhmael is of the ſlavish Synagogue. h That ſeed unto which the promiſe belongeth. i By the common courſe of nature. k By the vertue of Gods promiſe, and after a ſpirituall manner. * Gen. 21, 10.
8 The concluſion of the former allegory, that we by no means procure and call back again the ſlavery of the law, ſeeing that the children of the bondmaid shall not be heirs.

CHAP. V.

1 He moveth them to ſtand in their liberty, and not to obſerve circumciſion: 13 but rather love, which is the ſumme of the law. 19 He reckoneth up the works of the flesh, 22 and the fruits of the ſpirit, 25 and exhorteth to walk in the ſpirit.

STand faſt therefore in the libertie wherewith Chriſt hath made us free, and be not intangled again with the yoke of bondage.

2 [1] Behold, I Paul ſay unto you, that if ye be [a] circumciſed, Chriſt ſhall profit you nothing.

3 For I teſtifie again to every man that is circumciſed, that he is debtour to do the whole law.

4 Chriſt is become of no effect unto [b] you, whoſoever of you are [c] juſtified by the law; ye are fallen from grace.

5 [2] For we through the [d] Spirit wait for the hope of righteouſneſſe by faith.

6 [3] For in Jeſus Chriſt, neither circumciſion availeth any thing, nor [4] uncircumciſion, [5] but [e] faith which worketh by love.

1 Another obteſtation, wherein he plainly witneſſeth that juſtification of works, and juſtification of faith cannot ſtand together, becauſe no man can be juſtified by the law, but he that doeth fully and perfectly fulfill it. And he taketh the example of circumciſion, becauſe it was the ground of all the ſervice of the law, and was chiefly urged of the falſe apoſtles.
a Circumciſion is in other places called the ſeal of righteouſneſſe, but here we muſt have conſideration of the circumſtance of the time, for now had baptiſme come in the place of circumciſion. And moreover Paul reaſoneth according to the opinion that his enemies had of it, which made circumciſion a piece of their ſalvation.
b That is, as he himſelf expoundeth it afterward, ye are fallen from grace. c That is, ſeek to be juſtified by the law, for indeed no man is juſtified by the law. 2 He privily compareth the new people with the old: for it is certain that they alſo did ground all their hope of juſtification and life in faith, and not in circumciſion, but ſo, that their faith was wrapped in the externall and ceremoniall worship: but our faith is bare, and content with ſpirituall worship. d Through the Spirit which ingendreth faith. 3 He addeth a reaſon, for that now circumciſion is abolished, ſeeing that Chriſt is exhibited unto us with full pleurie of ſpirituall circumciſion. 4 He maketh mention alſo of uncircumciſion, leſt the Gentiles should pleaſe themſelves in it, as the Jews do in circumciſion. 5 The taking away of an objection: If all that worship of the law be taken away, wherein then shall we exerciſe our ſelves? In charity, ſaith Paul: for faith, whereof we ſpeak, cannot be idle, nay it bringeth forth daily fruits of charitie. e So is true faith diſtinguished from counterfeit faith: for charitie is not joyned with faith, as a fellow cauſe, to help forward our juſtification with faith.

7 [6] Ye did run well, ‡ who did hinder you, that ye ſhould not obey the truth?

8 [7] This perſwaſion cometh not of [f] him that calleth you.

9 [8] A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump.

10 [9] I have confidence in you through the Lord, that you will be none otherwiſe minded; but he that troubleth you, ſhall bear his judgement, whoſoever he be.

11 [10] And I, brethren, if I yet preach circumciſion, why do I yet ſuffer perſecution? then is the offence of the croſſe ceaſed.

12 [11] I would they were even cut off which [g] trouble you.

13 For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; [12] onely uſe not liberty for an occaſion to the flesh, but by love ſerve one another.

14 [13] For [h] all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: * Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thy ſelf.

15 [14] But if ye bite and devoure one another, take heed that ye be not conſumed one of another.

16 [15] This I ſay then, Walk in the Spirit, and ‡ ye ſhall not fulfill the luſt of the flesh.

17 For the [i] flesh luſteth againſt the Spirit, and the ſpirit againſt the flesh, and theſe are contrary the one to the other: ſo that ye cannot do the things that ye would.

18 But if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the law.

19 [16] Now the works of the flesh are manifeſt, which are theſe, Adultery, fornication, uncleanneſſe, laſciviouſneſſe,

20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, ſtrife, ſeditions, hereſies, 21 Envyings, murders, drunkenneſſe, revellings, and ſuch like: of the which I tell you before, as I have alſo told you in time paſt, that they which do ſuch things, ſhall not inherit the kingdome of God.

22 But the [k] fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-ſuffering, gentleneſſe, goodneſſe, faith, 23 Meekneſſe, temperance: [17] againſt ſuch there is no law.

24 And they that are Chriſts, have crucified the flesh, with the ‡ affections and luſts.

25 If we [l] live in the Spirit, let us alſo walk in the Spirit.

26 [18] Let us not be deſirous of vain-glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

6 Again, he chideth the Galatians, but with an admiration, and therewithall a praiſe of their former race, to the end that he may make them more aſhamed.
‡ Or, who did drive you back.
7 He playeth the part of an apoſtle with them, and uſeth his authoritie, denying that that doctrin can come from God, which is contrary to his.
f Of God.
8 He addeth this, that they may not ſeem to contend upon a trifle, warning them diligently (by a ſimilitude, which he borroweth of leaven, as Chriſt himſelf alſo did) not to ſuffer the puritie of the apoſtolicall doctrin to be infected with the leaſt corruption that may be.
9 He mitigateth the former reprehenſion, caſting the fault upon the falſe apoſtles, againſt whom he denounceth the horrible judgements of God.
10 He willeth them to conſider how that he ſeeketh not his own profit in this matter, ſeeing that he could eſchew the hatred of men, if he would joyn Judaiſme with Chriſtianity.
11 An example of a true paſtour: inflamed with the zeal of Gods glory, and love of his flock.
g For they that preach the law, cauſe mens conſciences alwayes to tremble.
12 The third part of this epiſtle, ſhewing that the right uſe of Chriſtian libertie conſiſteth in this, that being delivered, and ſet at libertie from the ſlavery of ſin, and the flesh, and being obedient to the ſpirit, we should ſerve unto one anothers ſalvation through love.
13 He propoundeth the love of our neighbour, as a mark whereunto all Chriſtians ought to referre all their actions, and thereunto he citeth the teſtimonie of the law. h This particle (All) must be reſtrained to the ſecond table. * Lev. 19, 18. Matth. 22, 39. 14 An exhortation to the duetie of charitie, by the profit that enſueth thereof, becauſe that no men provide worſe for themſelves than they that hate one another. 15 He acknowledgeth the great weakneſſe of the godly, for that they are but in part regenerate: but he willeth them to remember that they are endued with the Spirit of God, which hath delivered them from the ſlaverie of ſinne, and ſo of the law, ſo farre forth as it is the vertue of ſinne, that they should not give themſelves to luſts. ‡ Or, ſhall not.
i For the flesh dwelleth even in the regenerate man, but the Spirit reigneth, although not without great ſtrife, as is largely ſet forth, Rom. 7. 16 He ſetteth out that particularly, which he ſpake generally, reckoning up ſome chief effects of the flesh, and oppoſing them to the fruits of the ſpirit, that no man may pretend ignorance. k Therefore they are not the fruits of freewill, but ſo farre forth as our will is made free by grace. 17 Leſt that any man should object that Paul playeth the Sophiſter, as one who urging the Spirit, urgeth nothing but that which the law commandeth, he sheweth that he requireth, not that literall and outward obedience, but ſpirituall, which proceedeth not from the law, but from the Spirit of Chriſt, which doeth beget us again, and muſt and ought to be the ruler and guider of our life. ‡ Or, paſſions. l If we be indeed endued with the quickening Spirit, which cauſeth us to die to ſinne, and live to God, let us ſhew it in our deeds, that is, by holineſſe of life. 18 He addeth peculiar exhortations, according as he knew the Galatians ſubject to divers vices: and firſt of all, he warneth them to take heed of ambition, which vice hath two fellows, back biting, and envie, out of which two it cannot be but many contenions muſt needs ariſe.

CHAP. VI.

1 He moveth them to deal mildely with a brother that hath slipped, 2 and to bear one anothers burden, 6 to be liberall to their teachers, 9 and not weary of well-doing. 12 He sheweth what they intend that preach circumcision. 14 He glorieth in nothing, save in the crosse of Christ.

BRethren, 1 [1] if a man be [a] overtaken in a fault, ye which are [b] spirituall, [c] restore such an one in the [d] spirit of meeknesse; [2] considering thy self, lest thou also be tempted.

2 [3] Bear ye one anothers burdens, and so fulfill the [e] law of Christ.

3 For if a man think himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself.

4 But let every man prove his own work, and then shall he have rejoycing in himself alone, and not in another.

5 [4] For every man shall bear his own burden.

6 [5] Let him that is taught in the word, communicate unto him that teacheth, in [f] all good things.

7 [6] Be not deceived, God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

8 For he that soweth to his [g] flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption: but he that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting.

9 [7] And let us not be weary in well-doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

10 [8] As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the houshold of faith.

11 [9] Ye see how large a letter I have written unto you with mine own hand.

12 As many as desire to make a [h] fair shew in the [i] flesh, they constrain you to be circumcised: onely lest they should suffer persecution for the [k] crosse of Christ.

13 For neither they themselves who are circumcised keep the law, but desire to have you circumcised, that they may glory in your [l] flesh.

14 [10] But God forbid that I should [m] glory save in the crosse of our Lord Jesus Christ, [t] by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

15 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature.

16 And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy, and upon the [n] Israel of God.

17 [11] From henceforth let no man trouble me, for I bear in my body the [o] marks of the [p] Lord Jesus.

18 [12] Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your [q] spirit. Amen.

¶ Unto the Galatians, written from Rome.

‡ Or, although.
1 He condemneth importunate rigour, because that brotherly reprehensions ought to be moderated and tempered by the spirit of meeknesse.
a Through the malice of the flesh, and the devil.
b Which are upholden by the vertue of Gods Spirit.
c Labour to fill up that that is wanting in him.
d This is a kinde of speech which the Hebrews use, giving to understand thereby, that all good gifts come from God.
2 He toucheth the sore: for they commonly are most severe judges, which forget their own infirmities.
3 He sheweth that this is the end of reprehensions, to raise up our brother which is fallen, and not proudly to oppresse him. Therefore every one must seek to have commendation of his own life by approving of himself, and not by reprehending others. e Christ, in plain and flat words, calleth the commandement of charitie his commandement. 4 A reason wherefore men ought to have the greatest eye upon themselves, because that every man shall be judged before God, according to his own life, and not by comparing himself with other men. 5 It is meet that masters should be found by their schollers, so farre forth as they are able. f Of whatsoever he hath, according to his abilitie. 6 He commendeth liberalitie towards the poore, and first of all chideth them which were not ashamed to pretend this and that, and all because they would not help their neighbours, as though they could deceive God: and afterward compareth almes to a spirituall sowing which shall have a most plentifull harvest, so that it shall be very profitable: and compareth covetous niggardlinesse to a carnall sowing, whereof nothing can be gathered but such things as fade away, and perish by and by. g To the commodities of this present life. 7 Against such as are liberall at the beginning, but continue not, because the harvest seemeth to be deferred very long, as though the seed time and the harvest were at one instant.
8 They that are of the houshold of faith, that is, such as are joyned with us in the profession of one self same religion, ought to be preferred before all other, yet so notwithstanding that our liberalitie extend to all.
9 The fourth and last part of the Epistle, wherein he returneth to his principall end and purpose, to wit, that the Galatians should not suffer themselves to be led out of the way by the false apostles: and he painteth out those false apostles in their colours, reproving them of ambition, as men that do not that which they do, for any affection or zeal they have to the law, but only for this purpose, that they may purchase themselves favour amongst their own sort by the circumcision of the Galatians.
h He setteth a fair shew against the truth.
i In keeping of ceremonies.
k For the preaching of him that was crucified.
l That they have entangled you in Judaisme, and yet he harpeth on the form of circumcision. 10 He sticketh not to compare himself with them, shewing, that on the contrary part, he rejoyceth in those afflictions which he suffereth for Christs sake, and as he is despised of the world, so doeth he in like sort esteem the world as naught: which is the true circumcision of a true Israelite. m When Paul useth this word in good sense, or part, it signifieth to rest a mans self wholly in a thing, and to content himself therewith. ‡ Or, whereby. n Upon the true Israel, whose praise is of God, and not of man, Rom. 2, 29. 11 Continuing still in the same Metaphore, he opposeth his miseries and the marks of those stripes which he bare for Christs sake, against the scarre of the outward circumcision, as a true mark of his apostleship. o Marks which are burnt into a mans flesh, as they used in old time, to mark their servants that had run away from them. p For it importeth much, whose marks we bear: for the cause maketh the Martyr, and not the punishment. 12 Taking his farewell of them, he wisheth them grace, and the spirit, against the deceits of the false apostles, which laboured to beat those outward things into their brains. q With your mindes and heart.

The Epistle of PAUL the apostle, TO THE EPHESIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 After the salutations, 3 and thanksgiving for the Ephesians, 4 he treateth of our election, 6 and adoption by grace, 11 which is the true and proper fountain of mans salvation. 13 And because the height of this mysterie cannot easily be attained unto, 16 he prayeth that they may come 18 to the full knowledge and 20 possession thereof in Christ.

1 [1] PAul an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to the saints which are at Ephesus, and to the [a] faithfull in Christ Jesus.

2 Grace be to you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 [2] Blessed be the God [3] and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, [4] who hath blessed us with [b] all spirituall blessings in [c] heavenly places in [5] Christ:

4 [6] According as he hath chosen us in [d] him, before the foundation of the world, [7] that we [e] should be [f] holy, and without blame [g] before him in love:

5 [8] Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to [h] himself,

1 The inscription and salutation, whereof we have spoken in the former epistles.
a This is the definition of the saints, shewing what they are.
2 The first part of the epistle, wherein he handleth all the parts of our salvation propounding the example of the Ephesians, and using divers exhortations, and beginning after his manner with thanksgiving. 3 The efficient cause of our salvation is God, not considered confusedly and generally, but as the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.
4 The next finall cause, and in respect of us, is our salvation, all things being bestowed upon us which are necessary to our salvation, which kinde of blessing is heavenly, & proper to the elect.
b With all kinde of gracious and bountifull goodnesse which is heavenly indeed, and from God onely. c Which God our Father gave us from his high throne from above: or because the saints have those gifts bestowed on them, which belong properly to the citizens of heaven. 5 The matter of our salvation is Christ in whom onely we are indued with spirituall blessing and unto salvation. 6 He declareth the efficient cause, or by what means God the Father saveth us in his Son: Because saith he, he chose us from everlasting in his Son. d To be adopted in him. 7 He expoundeth the next finall cause, which he maketh double, to wit, sanctification, and justification, whereof he will speak hereafter. And hereby also two things are to be noted, to wit, that holinesse of life cannot be separated from the grace of election: and again what pureness soever is in us, is the gift of God who hath freely of his mercie chosen us. e Then God did not chuse us, because we were, or otherwise should have been holy, but to the end we should be holy. f Being clothed with Christs righteousnesse. g Truly and sincerely. 8 Another plainer exposition of the efficient cause, and also of eternall election, whereby God is said to have chosen us in Christ, to wit, because it pleased him to appoint us out when we were not yet born, whom he would make to be his children by Jesus Christ: so that there is no reason here of our election to be sought, but in the free mercie of God, neither is faith which God foresaw, the cause of our predestination, but the effect. h God respecteth nothing, either that present is, or that is to come, but himself onely.

according to the good pleaſure of his will:

6 9 To the i praiſe of the glory of his grace, 10 wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved.

7 11 In whom we have redemption through his bloud, the forgiveneſſe of ſinnes, according to the riches of his grace,

8 12 k Wherein he hath abounded toward us in l all wiſdome and prudence:

9 Having made known unto us the m myſterie of his will, 13 according to his good pleaſure, which he hath purpoſed in himſelf.

10 14 That in the diſpenſation of the fulneſſe of times, he might gather n together in one all things in Chriſt, both which are in † heaven, and which are on earth, even in him:

11 15 In whom alſo we have obtained an inheritance, being predeſtinated according to the purpoſe of him who worketh o all things after the counſel of his own will:

12 That we ſhould be to the praiſe of his glory, who p firſt ‡ truſted in Chriſt, 13 16 In whom ye alſo truſted after that ye heard the q word of truth, the goſpel of your ſalvation: in whom alſo after that ye beleeved, ye were r ſealed with that holy f Spirit of promiſe.

14 Which is the earneſt of our inheritance, untill the s redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion, unto the praiſe of his glory.

15 17 Wherefore I alſo, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jeſus, and love unto all the ſaints,

16 Ceaſe not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers,

17 18 That the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of u glory, may give unto you the Spirit of wiſdome and revelation, ‡ x in the knowledge of him:

18 The eyes of your underſtanding being enlightened: that ye may know what is the y hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the ſaints:

19 19 And what is the exceeding greatnes of his power to us-ward who beleeve, according to the working † of his mighty power:

20 20 Which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own z right hand in the heavenly places.

21 Farre above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every a name that is named, not onely in this world, but alſo in that which is to come:

22 21 And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the b head over all things to the church,

23 Which is his bodie, the c fulneſſe of him that filleth all in all.

9 The uttermoſt and chiefeſt finall cauſe is the glory of God the Father, who ſaveth us freely in his Son.
i That as his bountifull goodneſſe deſerveth all praiſe, ſo alſo is should be ſet forth & published 10 Another finall cauſe more near, is our juſtification, while that he freely accounteth us for juſt in his Son.
11 An expounding of the materiall cauſe, how we are made acceptable to God in Chriſt, for it is he only whoſe ſacrifice by the mercie of God is imputed unto us, for forgiveneſſe of ſins.
12 Now he cometh at length to the formall cauſe, that is to ſay, To vocation, or preaching the goſpel, whereby God executeth that eternal counſel of our free reconciliation and ſalvation in Chriſt, & putting in place of the goſpel all wiſedome & underſtanding, he ſheweth how excellent it is.
k By which gracious goodneſſe & bountifulneſſe.
l In perfect and ſound wiſdome.
m For unleſſe the Lord had opened unto us that myſtery, we could never have ſo much as dreamed of it our ſelves.
13 Not onely the election, but alſo the vocation proceedeth of meer grace.
14 The Father exhibited and gave Chriſt, who is the head of all the elect unto the world, at that time which was convenient, according as he moſt wiſely diſpoſed all times from everlaſting. And Chriſt is he, whom al the elect from the beginning of the world, (otherwiſe wandering and ſeparated from God) are gathered together: of which ſome were then in heaven, when he came into the earth, (to wit, ſuch as by faith in him to come, were gathered together) and other being found upon the earth, were gathered together of him, and the reſt are daily gathered together. n The faithfull are ſaid to be gathered together in Chriſt, becauſe they are joyned together with him through faith, and became as it were one man. ‡ Gr. the heavens. 15 He applieth ſeverally the benefit of vocation to the beleeving Jews, going back to the very fountain, that even they alſo may not attribute their ſalvation, neither to themſelves, nor to their ſtock, nor any other thing, but to the onely grace and mercie of God, both becauſe they were called, and alſo becauſe they were firſt called. o All things are attributed to the grace of God, without exception, and yet for all that, we are not ſtocks, for he giveth us grace both to will, and to be able to do thoſe things that are good, Phil. 2, 13. p He ſpeaketh of the Jews. ‡ Or, hoped. 16 Now he maketh the Epheſians (or rather all the Gentiles) equall to the Jews, becauſe that notwithſtanding they came laſt, yet being called by the ſame goſpel, they embraced it by faith, & were ſealed up with the ſame ſpirit, which is the pledge of election, untill the inheritance it ſelf be ſeen, that in them alſo the glory of God might ſhine forth and be manifeſted. q That word which is truth indeed, becauſe it cometh from God. r This is a borrowed kinde of ſpeech taken of a ſeal, which being put to any thing, maketh difference between thoſe things that are authenticall, and others that are not. ‡ With that ſpirit, which bringeth not the law, but the promiſe of free adoption. † Full and perfect. 17 He returneth to the former gratulation, concluding two things together of thoſe things that went before: the firſt is, that all good things come to us from God the Father in Chriſt, and by Chriſt, that for them he may be praiſed of us. The ſecond is, that all thoſe things (which he bringeth to two heads, to wit, faith and charitie) are increaſed in us by certain degrees, ſo that we muſt deſire increaſe of his grace, from whom we have the beginning, and of whom we hope for the end. 18 The cauſes of faith, are God the Father lightning our minds with his holy Spirit, that we may embrace Chriſt opened unto us in the goſpel, to the obtaining of everlaſting life, and the ſetting forth of Gods glory. u Full of majeſtie. ‡ Or, for the acknowledgement. x For it is not enough for us to have known God once, but we muſt know him every day more and more. y What bleſſings they are which he calleth you to hope for, whom he calleth to Chriſt. 19 The excellencie of faith is declared by the effects, becauſe the mighty power of God is ſet forth and ſhewed therein. † Gr. of the might of his power. 20 The apoſtle willeth us to behold in our moſt glorious Chriſt, with the eyes of faith, that moſt excellent power and glorie, of God, whereof all the faithfull are partakers, although it be as yet very darkin us, by reaſon of the ignominie of the croſſe, and the weakneſſe of the fleſh. z To be ſet on Gods right hand is to be partaker of the ſoveraignitie which he hath over all creatures.

a Every thing whatſoever it be, or above all things, be they of never ſo much power or excellencie.
21 That we ſhould not think that that excellent glory of Chriſt is a thing wherewith we have nought to doe, he witneſſeth, that he was appointed of God the Father, head of all the church, & therefore the body muſt be joyned to this head, which otherwiſe would be a maimed thing without the members: which notwithſtanding is not of neceſſitie (ſeeing that the church is rather quickned and ſuſtained by the only vertue of Chriſt, ſo farre off is it, that he needeth the fulneſſe thereof) but of the infinite good will and pleaſure of God, who vouchſafeth to joyn us to his Sonne.
b Inſomuch that there is nothing but is ſubject unto him. c For the love of Chriſt is ſo great toward the church, that though he doe fully ſatisfie all with all things, yet eſteemeth himſelf but a maimed and unperfect head, unleſſe he have the church joyned to him as his body.

CHAP. II.

1 By comparing what we were by 3 nature, with what we are 5 by grace; 10 he declareth, that we are made for good works; and 13 being brought neare by Chriſt, ſhould not live as 11 Gentiles and 12 forreiners in time paſt, but as 19 citizens with the ſaints, and the family of God.

AND 1 you hath he quickened who were a dead in 2 treſpaſſes and ſinnes,

2 3 Wherein in time paſt ye walked 4 according to the courſe of this world, b according to the prince of the power of the aire, the ſpirit that now 5 worketh in the c children of diſobedience.

3 6 Among whom alſo we all had our converſation in times paſt, in the luſts of our d fleſh, fulfilling † the deſires of the fleſh, and of the minde, and 7 were by nature the e children of wrath, even as f others.

4 8 But God who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us,

5 Even when we were dead in ſinnes hath quickened us together with Chriſt, (by grace ye are ſaved)

6 And hath raiſed us up g together, and made us ſit together in heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus.

7 That in the ages to come he might ſhew the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindneſſe toward us, through Chriſt Jeſus.

8 For by h grace are ye ſaved, through faith, and that not of your ſelves: it is the gift of God.

9 9 Not of works, leſt any man ſhould boaſt:

10 For we are his i workmanſhip, created in Chriſt Jeſus unto good works, which God hath before ‡ ordained that we ſhould walk in them.

11 10 Wherefore remember that ye being in

1 He declareth again the greatneſſe of Gods good will by comparing that miſerable ſtate wherein we are born, with that dignitie whereunto we are advanced by God the Father in Chriſt. So that he deſcribeth that condition in ſuch ſort, that be ſaith, that touching ſpirituall motions we are not one y born half dead, but wholly and altogether dead.
a Look Rom. 6, 2. ſo then he calleth them dead, which are not regenerate: for as the immortalitie of them which are damned is no life: ſo this knitting together of body and ſoul, is properly no life but death in them which are not ruled by the Spirit of God.
2 He ſheweth the cauſe of death, to wit, ſinnes.
3 He proveth by the effects, that all were ſpiritually dead.
4 He proveth this evil to be univerſall, inſomuch as all are ſlaves of Satan.
b At the pleaſure of the prince.
5 Men are therefore ſlaves to Satan, becauſe they are willingly rebellious againſt God. c They are called the children of diſobedience, which are given to diſobedience. 6 After that he hath ſeverally condemned the Gentiles, he confeſſeth that the Jews amongſt whom he numbreth himſelf, are not a whit better. d By the name of fleſh, in the firſt place, he meaneth the whole man, which he divideth into two parts: into the fleſh, which is the part that the philoſophers term without reaſon, and into the thought, which they call reaſonable: ſo that he leaveth nothing in man half dead, but concludeth that the whole man is of nature the ſonne of wrath. ‡ Gr. the wills. 7 The concluſion: All men were born ſubject to the wrath and curſe of God. e Men are ſaid to be the children of wrath paſſively, that is to ſay, guiltie of everlaſting death, by the judgement of God, who is angry with them. f Profane people which knew not God. 8 Now hereof followeth another member of the compariſon, declaring our excellencie, to wit, that by the vertue of Chriſt we are delivered from that death, and made partakers of eternall life, to the end that at length we may reigne with him. And by divers and ſundry means he beateth this into their heads, that the efficient cauſe of this benefit is the free mercie of God: and Chriſt himſelf is the materiall cauſe: and faith is the inſtrument, which alſo is the free gift of God: and the end is Gods g'orie. g To wit, as he addeth afterward, in Chriſt, for as yet this is not fulfilled in us but onely in our head by whoſe ſpirit we have begun to die to ſinne, and live to God, untill that work be fully brought to an end: but yet the hope is certain, for we are as ſure of that we look for, as we are of that we have received already. h So then grace, that is to ſay, the gift of God, and faith, doe ſtand one with another, to which two theſe are contrarie, to be ſaved by our ſelves, or by our works. Therefore what mean they which would joyn together things of contrarie nature? 9 He taketh away expreſſly, and namely from our works, the praiſe of juſtification, ſeeing that the good works themſelves are the effects of grace in us. i He ſpeaketh here of grace, and not of nature: therefore be the works never ſo good, look what they are, it is of grace. Or, prepared. 10 Applying the former doctrin to the Gentiles, he ſheweth that they were not onely as the Jews by nature, but alſo after an eſpeciall ſort, ſtrangers and without God: therefore they ought ſo much the rather remember that ſame ſo great a benefit of God.

time passed Gentiles in the flesh, who are [k] called uncircumcision by that which is [l] called the circumcision in the flesh made by hands, 12 That at that time ye were [m] without Christ, being [n] aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world.

13 [11] But now in Christ Jesus, ye who sometimes were farre off, are made nigh by the bloud of Christ.

14 [12] For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us:

15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments, contained in ordinances, for to make in himself, of twain, one new man, so making peace.

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in [o] one body by the crosse, having [p] slain the enmity ‡ thereby:

17 [13] And came, and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.

18 For [q] through him we both have an accesse by one Spirit unto the Father.

19 [14] Now therefore ye are no more strangers and forreiners, but fellow-citizens with the saints, and of the houshold of God;

20 [15] And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the [r] chief corner-stone,

21 In whom all the [s] building fitly framed together, groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord:

22 In whom you also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.

k You were called no otherwise than Gentiles, that all the world might witnesse of your uncleannesse.
l Or the Jews which were known from you by the mark of circumcision, the mark of the covenant.
m He beginneth first with Christ, who was the end of all the promises.
n You had no right or title to the common wealth of Israel.
11 Christ is the onely bond of the Jews and Gentiles, whereby they be reconciled to God.
12 As by the ceremonies and worship appointed by the law, the Jews were divided from the Gentiles, so now Christ, having broken down the partition wall joyneth them both together, both in himself, and betwixt themselves, and to God. Whereby it followeth, that whosoever establisheth the ceremonies of the law, maketh the grace of Christ void, and of none effect.
o He alludeth to the sacrifices of the law, which represented that true and onely sacrifice.
p For he destroyed death by death, and fastened it, as it were, to the crosse. ‡ Or, in himself.
13 The preaching of the gospel, is an effectuall instrument of this grace, common as well to the Jews, as to the Gentiles.
q Christ is the gate, as it were, by whom we come to the Father, and the holy Ghost, is as it were, our lodsman who leadeth us.
14 The conclusion: The Gentiles are taken into the fellowship of salvation, and he describeth the excellencie of the church, calling it the citie and house of God.
15 The Lord committed the doctrin of salvation, first to the prophets, and then to the apostles, the end whereof, and matter, as it were, and substance, is Christ. Therefore that is indeed the true and Catholique church, which is builded upon Christ by the prophets and apostles, as a spirituall temple consecrated to God.
r That is, the head of the building, for the foundations are, as it were, the heads of the building.
s So that God is the workman not onely of the foundation, but also of the whole building.

CHAP. III.

5 The hidden mysterie, 6 that the Gentiles should be saved, 3 was made known to Paul by revelation: 8 and to him was that grace given, that 9 he should preach it. 13 He desireth them not to faint for his tribulation, 14 and prayeth 19 that they may perceive the great love of Christ toward them.

1 He maintaineth his apostelship against the offence of the crosse, whereon also he taketh an argument to confirm himself affirming that he was not only appointed an apostle by the mercie of God, but was also particularly appointed to the Gentiles to call them on every side to salvation because God had so determined it from the beginning, although he deferred a great while the manifestation of that his counsel.

1 FOr [1] this cause, I Paul, the [a] prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles,

2 If ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God, which is given me to you-ward:

3 How that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery, (as I wrote ‡ afore in few words,

4 Whereby when ye reade ye may understand my knowledge of the mysterie of Christ)

5 Which in [b] other ages was not made known unto the sonnes of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit;

6 That the Gentiles should be fellow-heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ, by the gospel:

7 Whereof I was made a minister, according to the gift of the grace of God, given unto me, by the effectuall working of his power.

8 Unto me, who am lesse than the least of all saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ,

9 And to make all men see, what is the fellowship of the mysterie, which from the beginning of the world, hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ:

10 [2] To the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places, might be known by the church the [c] manifold wisdome of God,

11 According to the [d] eternall purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord:

12 In whom we have boldnesse and accesse with confidence by the faith of him.

13 Wherefore I desire that ye faint not at my tribulations for you, which is your glory.

14 [3] For this cause I bowe my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, 15 Of whom the whole [e] family in heaven and earth is named,

16 That he would grant you according to the [f] riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might, by his Spirit in the [g] inner man:

17 That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye being rooted and grounded in [h] love,

18 May be able to comprehend with all saints, [i] what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height:

19 And to know the [k] love of Christ, which [l] passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the [m] fulnesse of God.

20 [4] Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, 21 Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus, throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

a All that whole people, which had but one houshould Father, and that is the church, which is adopted in Christ.
b According to the greatnesse of his mercie.
g Look Romans 7, 22.
h Wherewith God loveth us, which is the root of our election.
i How perfit that work of Christ is in every part.
k Which God hath sheweth us in Christ.
l Which passeth all the capacitie of mans wit, to comprehend it fully in his mind: for otherwise who so hath the spirit of God perceiveth so much (according to the measure that God hat hgiven him) as is sufficient to salvation.
m So that we have aboundantly in us whatsoever things are requisite to make us perfit with God.
4 He breaketh forth into a thanksgiving, whereby the Ephesians also may be confirmed to hope for any thing of God.

2 The unlooked for calling of the Gentiles, was as it were a glasse to the heavenly angels, wherein they might behold the marvellous wisedome of God.
c God never had but one way only to save men by: but it had divers fashions & forms.
d Which was before all beginnings.
3 He teacheth by his own example, that the efficacie of the doctrine dependeth upon the grace of God, and therefore we ought to joyn prayers with the preaching and hearing of the word: which are needfull not only to them which are young yet in religion, but even to the oldest also, that they growing up more and more by faith in Christ, being confirmed with all spirituall gifts, may be grounded and rooted in the knowledge of that immeasurable love, wherewith God the Father hath loved us in Christ, seeing that the whole family, whereof part is already received into heaven, and part is yet here on earth, dependeth upon that adoption of the heavenly Father, in his only Son.

CHAP. IIII.

1 He exhorteth to unity, 7 and declareth that God therefore giveth divers 11 gifts unto men that his church might be 13 edified and 16 grown up in Christ. 18 He calleth them from the impurity of the Gentiles, 24 to put on the new man, 25 to cast off lying and 29 corrupt communication.

1 Another part of the epistle, containing precepts of Christian life, the sum whereof is this, that every man behave himself as it is meet for so excellent grace of God.

I [1] Therefore the prisoner ‡ of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the [a] vocation wherewith ye are called,

2 [2] With all lowlinesse & meeknesse, with [b] long-suffering, forbearing one another in love

3 [3] Endeavouring to keep the unitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

4 [4] There is one body, and one Spirit, even a By this is meant the generall calling of the faithfull, which is this, to be holy as our God is holy.

2 Secondly, he commendeth meeknesse of the mind, which is shewed forth by bearing one with another.
b Look Matt. 18, 25
3 Thirdly, he requireth perfit agreement, but yet such as is knit with the band of the holy Ghost.
4 An argument of great waight, for an earnest entertaining of brotherly love and charitie one with another, because we are made one body, as it were of one God and Father, by one Spirit, worshipping one Lord with one faith, and consecrated to him with one baptisme, and hope of one self-same glory, whereunto we are called. Therefore whosoever breaketh charitie, breaketh all these things asunder.

‡ Or, a little before.
b He meaneth not that none knew the calling of the Gentiles before, but because very few knew of it, and they that did know it, as the prophets, had it revealed unto them very darkly and under figures.

as ye are called in one hope of your calling;
5 One Lord, one faith, one baptisme,
6 One God and Father of all, who is [c] above all, and [d] through all, and [e] in you all.
7 [5] But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the [f] gift of Christ.
8 Wherefore he saith, * When he ascended up on high, he led [g] captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men.
9 (Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended first into the [h] lower parts of the earth?
10 He that descended, is the same also that ascended up farre above all heavens, that he might ‡ [i] fill [k] all things)
11 * [6] And he gave some [l] apostles: and some, [m] prophets: and some, [n] evangelists: and some, [o] pastours and teachers:
12 [7] For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministery, for the edifying of the [p] body of Christ:
13 [8] Till we all come ‡ in the [q] unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Sonne of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the ‡ [r] stature of the fulnesse of Christ:
14 [9] That we henceforth be no more children, [10] tossed to and fro, and carried about with every winde of doctrine, by the [s] sleight of men, and [t] cunning craftinesse, whereby they lie in wait to deceive:
15 [11] But ‡ speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ:
16 * From whom the whole body fitly joyned together, and compacted by that which every joynt supplieth, according to the [u] effectuall working in the measure of every part, maketh [x] increase of the body, unto the edifying of it self in [y] love.
17 [12] This I say therefore and testifie in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk in the [z] vanity of their minde, 18 Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the [a] life of God, through the ignorance that is in them, because of the * ‡ blindnesse of their heart:
19 Who being [b] past feeling, have given themselves over unto lasciviousnesse, to work all uncleannesse with [c] greedinesse.
20 [13] But ye have not so learned Christ:
21 If so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him [d] as the truth is in Jesus:
22 That ye put off concerning the former conversation, [e] the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitfull lusts:
23 And be renewed in the [f] spirit of your minde:
24 And that ye put on the new man, which [g] after God is [h] created in righteousnesse, and [i] true holinesse.
25 [14] Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbour: for we are members one of another.
26 [15] Be ye [k] angry and sin not, let not the sunne go down [l] upon your wrath:
27 Neither give place to the devil.
28 [16] Let him that stole, steal no more: but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is [m] good, that he may have ‡ to give to him that needeth.
29 [17] Let no [n] corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good ‡ to the use of edifying, that it may minister [o] grace unto the hearers.
30 [18] And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.
31 Let all bitternesse, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil-speaking be put away from you, with all malice.
32 * And be ye kinde one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even [19] as God for Christs sake hath forgiven you.

c Who onely hath the chief authoritie over the church.
d Who onely powreth forth his providence, through all the members of the church.
e Who onely is joyned together with us in Christ.
5 He teacheth us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ onely, who reigneth in heaven, having mightily conquered all his enemies (from whence he heapeth all gifts upon his church:) but yet notwithstanding these gifts are diversly and sundry wayes divided according to his will and pleasure, and therefore every man ought to be content with that measure that God hath given him, and to bestow it to the common profit of the whole body.
f Which Christ hath given.
* Psal. 68, 18.
g A multitude of captives.
h Down to the earth, which is the loweſt part of the world.
i Fulfill with his gifts.
k The church.
* 1 Cor. 12, 28.
6 First of all he reckoneth up the ecclesiasticall functions, which are partly extraordinarie and for a season, as apostles, prophets, euangelists, and partly, ordinarie and perpetuall, as pastours and doctours.
l The apostles were those twelve, unto whom Paul was afterward added, whose office was to plant churches throughout all the world.
m The prophets office was one of the chiefest, which were men of marvellous wisdome, and some of them could foretell things to come.
n These the apostles used as fellows in the execution of their office, being not able to answer all places themselves.
o Pastours are they which govern the church, and teachers are they which govern the schools.
7 He sheweth the end of ecclesiasticall functions to wit, that by the ministerie of men all the saints may so grow up together, that they may make one mysticall body of Christ.
p The church.
8 The use of this ministerie is perpetuall, so long as we are in this world, that is, untill that time that having put off the flesh, and throughly and perfitly agreeing betwixt our selves, we shall be joyned with Christ our head. Which thing is done by that knowledge of the Son of God increasing in us, and he himself by little and little growing up in us, untill we come to be a perfit man, which shall be in the world to come, when God shall be all in all.
‡ Or, into the unitie.
q In that most near conjunction which is knit and fastened together by faith.
‡ Or, age.
r Christ is said to grow up to full stature, not in himself, but in us.
9 Betwixt our childhood (that is to say, a very weak state, while as yet we do altogether waver) and our perfit age, which we shall have at length in another world there is a mean, to wit, our youth, and steady going forward to perfection.
10 He compareth them, which rest not themselves upon the word of God, to little boats which are tossed hither and thither with the doctrins of men, as it were, with contrary windes, and therewithall forewarneth them, that it cometh to passe not onely by the lightnesse of mans brain, but also by the craftinesse of certain, which make as it were an art of it.
s With those uncertain chances which tosse men to and fro.
t By the deceit of those men which are very well practised in deceiving of other.
11 By earnest affection of the truth and love, we grow up into Christ: for he (being effectuall by the ministery of his word, which as the vitall spirit doth so quicken the whole body, that it nourisheth all the limbs thereof according to the measure and proportion of each one) quickeneth and cherisheth his church, which consisteth of divers functions, as of divers members, & preserveth the proportion of every one. And thereof it followeth, that neither this body can live without Christ, neither can any man grow up spiritually, which separateth himself from the other members.
‡ Or, being sincere.
* Col. 2, 19
u Of Christ, who, in manner of the soul, quickeneth all the members.
x Such increase as is meet the body should have.
y Charitie is the knitting of the limbs together.
12 He descendeth to the fruits of Christian doctrine, and reasoneth first upon the principles of manners and actions, setting down a most grave comparison between the children of God, and them which are not regenerate: For in these men, all the powers of the mind are corrupted, and their mind is given to vanity, and their senses are darkened with most grosse mistinesse, and their affections are so accustomed by little and little to wickednesse, that at length they run headlong into all uncleannesse, being utterly destitute of all judgement.
z If the noblest parts of the soul be corrupted, what is man but corruption onely?
a Whereby God liveth in them.
* Rom. 1, 21.
‡ Or, hardnesse.
b Void of all judgement.
c They strove to passe one another, as though there had been some gain to be gotten by it.
13 Here followeth the contrary part, touching men which are regenerate by the true and lively knowledge of Christ, which have other principles of their doings far different, to wit, holy and honest desires, and a mind clean changed by the vertue of the Holy Ghost, from whence proceed also like effects, as a just and holy life indeed.
d As they have learned, which acknowledge Christ indeed, and in good earnest.
e Your selves.
f Where there ought to have been the greatest force of reason, there is the greatest corruption of all, which wasteth all things.
g After the image of God.
h The effect and end of the new creation.
i Not fained nor counterfeit.
14 He commendeth severally certain peculiar Christian vertues and first of all, he requireth truth, (that is to say, sincere manners) condemning all deceit and dissembling, because we are born one for another.
15 He teacheth us how to bridle our anger, in such sort, that although it be hot, yet that it break not out, and that it be straightwayes quenched before we sleep: lest Satan taking occasion to give us evil counsel and by that means destroy us.
l Let not the night come upon you in your anger, that is, make an atonement quickly for all matters.
16 He descendeth from the heart to the hands, condemning theft: and because the men which give themselves to this wickednesse, use to pretend poverty, he sheweth that labour is a good remedie against poverty, which God blesseth in such sort, that they which labour have alwayes some overplus to help other, so far is it from this, that they are constrained to steal other mens goods.
m By labouring in things that are holy, and profitable to his neighbour.
‡ Or, to distribute.
17 He bridleth the tongue also, teaching us so to temper our talk, that our hearers mindes be not only not destroyed, but also instructed.
n Word for word, rotten.
‡ Or, to edifie profitably.
o By grace, he meaneth that, whereby men may profit to the going on forward in godlinesse and love.
18 A generall precept against all excesse of affections which dwell in that part of the mind, which they call, Angrie, and he setteth against them the contrary means. And useth a most vehement preface, how we ought to take heed that we grieve not the holy Spirit of God through our immoderateness and intemperancie, who dwelleth in us, to this end, to moderate all our affections.
* 2 Cor. 2, 10.
19 An argument taken from the example of Christ, most grave and vehement, both for pardoning of those injuries which have been done unto us by our greatest enemies, and much more for having consideration of the miserable, and using moderation and gentle behaviour towards all men.

CHAP. V.

2 After generall exhortations to love, 3 to flee fornication, 4 and all uncleannesse, 7 not to converse with the wicked, 15 to walk warily, and to be 18 filled with the Spirit, 22 he descendeth to the particular duties, how wives ought to obey their husbands, 25 and husbands ought to love their wives, 32 even as Christ doth his church.

BE ye therefore followers of God, as deare children,
2 And walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us, an offering, & a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savour.
3 [1] But fornication, and all uncleannesse, or covetousnesse, let it not be once named amongst you, as becometh saints:
4 Neither filthinesse, nor foolish talking, nor [a] jesting, which are not convenient: but rather giving of thanks.

1 Now he cometh to another kinde of affections, which is in that part of the mind, which men call covetous or desirous: and he reprehendeth fornication, covetousnesse and jesting, very sharply.
a Jests which men cast one at an other: that no lightnesse be seen, nor evil example given, nor any offence moved by evil words or backbiting.

180

5 [2] For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean perſon, nor covetous man who is an [b] idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdome of Chriſt, and of God.

6 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for becauſe of theſe things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of ‡ diſobedience.

7 [3] Be not ye therefore partakers with them.

8 For ye were ſometimes darkneſſe, but now are ye [c] light in the Lord: walk as children of light,

9 (For the fruit of the [d] Spirit is in all goodneſſe, and righteouſneſſe and truth)

10 Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord.

11 And have no fellowship with the unfruitfull works of darkneſſe, but rather [e] reprove them.

12 For it is a ſhame even to ſpeak of thoſe things which are done of them in ſecret.

13 But all things that are ‡ reproved, are made manifeſt by the light: for whatſoever doth make manifeſt, is light.

14 Wherefore [f] he ſaith, * Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ariſe from the [g] dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee light.

15 * [4] See then that ye walk circumſpectly, not as fools, but as wiſe.

16 [h] Redeeming the time, becauſe the [i] dayes are evil.

17 Wherefore be ye not unwiſe, but underſtanding what the will of the Lord is.

18 [5] And be not drunk with wine, wherein is [k] exceſſe: but be filled with the Spirit:

19 Speaking to your ſelves in pſalmes, and hymnes, and ſpirituall ſongs, ſinging and making melodie in your [l] heart to the Lord,

20 Giving thanks alwayes for all things unto God and the Father, in the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, 21 [6] Submitting your ſelves one to another in the fear of God.

22 [7] Wives, ſubmit your ſelves unto your own husbands, [8] as unto the Lord.

23 [9] For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Chriſt is the head of the church, and [10] he is the Saviour of the bodie.

24 [11] Therefore as the church is ſubject unto Chriſt, ſo let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing.

25 [12] Husbands, love your wives, even as Chriſt alſo loved the church, and gave himſelf for it:

26 [13] That he might [m] ſanctifie and cleanſe it with the waſhing of water, by the [n] word, 27 That he might preſent it to himſelf a glorious church, not [o] having ſpot or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing: but that it ſhould be holy and without blemiſh.

28 [14] So ought men to love their wives, as their own bodies: he that loveth his wife, loveth himſelf.

29 For no man ever yet hated his [p] own flesh: but nourisheth and cheriſheth it, even as the Lord the church:

30 For we are members of his bodie, [q] of his flesh, and of his bones.

31 For this cauſe ſhall a man leave his father and mother, and ſhall be [r] joyned unto his wife, and they two ſhall be one flesh.

32 [15] This is a great myſterie: but I ſpeak concerning Chriſt and the church.

33 [16] Nevertheleſſe, let every one of you in particular, ſo love his wife, even as himſelf, and the wife ſee that ſhe reverence her husband.

2 Becauſe theſe ſins are ſuch, that the moſt part of men count them not for ſins, he awaketh the godly to the end they ſhould ſo much the more take heed to themſelves from them, as moſt hurtfull plagues.

b A bond-ſlave to idolatry, for the covetous man thinketh that his life ſtandeth in his goods.

‡ Or, unbelief.

3 Becauſe we are not ſo ready to any thing, as to follow evil examples, therefore the apoſtle warneth the godly to remember alwayes, that the other are but as it were darkneſſe, and that they themſelves are as it were light. And therefore the other commit all villanies (as men are wont in the dark) but they ought not onely not to follow their examples, but alſo (as the property of the light is,) reprove their darkneſſe, and to walk ſo (having Chriſt that true light going before them) as it becometh wiſe men.

c The faithfull are called light, both becauſe they have the true light in them which lighteneth them, and alſo becauſe they give light to other, in ſo much, that their honeſt converſation reproveth the life of wicked men.

d By whoſe force we are made light in the Lord.

e Make them open to all the world, by your good life.

‡ Or, diſcovered.

f The ſcriptures, or God in the ſcripture.

* Iſa. 60, 1.

g He ſpeaketh of the death of ſinne.

* Col. 4, 5.

h This is a metaphore taken from the merchants: who prefer the leaſt profit that may be before all their pleaſures.

i The times are troubleſome and sharp.

5 He ſetteth the ſober and holy aſſemblies of the faithfull, againſt the diſſolute bankets of the unfaithfull, in which the praiſes of the onely Lord muſt ring, be it in proſperity or adverſitie.

k All kinde of riot, joyned with all manner of filthineſſe and ſhamefulneſſe.

l With an earneſt affection of the heart, and not with the tongue onely.

6 A ſhort repetition of the end whereunto all things ought to be referred, to ſerve one another for Gods ſake.

7 Now he deſcendeth to a family, dividing orderly all the parts of a family. And he ſaith, that the dutie of wives conſiſteth herein, to be obedient to their husbands.

8 The firſt argument, for they cannot be diſobedient to their husbands, but they muſt reſiſt God alſo, who is the authour of this ſubjection.

9 A declaration of the former ſaying: Becauſe God hath made the man head of the woman in matrimony, as Chriſt is the head of the church.

10 Another argument: Becauſe the good eſtate of the wife dependeth of the man, ſo that this ſubmiſſion is not only juſt, but alſo very profitable: as alſo the ſalvation of the church is of Chriſt, although farre otherwiſe.

11 The concluſion of the wives dutie towards their husbands.

12 The husbands dutie toward their wives, is to love them as themſelves, of which love the love of Chriſt towards his church is a lively pattern.

13 Becauſe many men pretend the infirmities of their wives to excuſe their own hardeneſſe and crueltie, the apoſtle willeth us to mark what manner of church Chriſt gat, when he joyned it to himſelf, and how he doeth not onely, not loath all her filth and uncleanneſſe, but ceaſeth not to wipe the ſame away with his cleanneſſe, untill he wholly purged it.

m Make it holy.

n Through the promiſe of free juſtification and ſanctification in Chriſt received by faith.

o The church as it is conſidered in it ſelf, ſhall not be without wrinkle, before it come to the mark it ſhooteth at: for while it is in this life, it runneth in a race: but if it be conſidered in Chriſt, it is clean and without wrinckle.

14 Another argument, Every man loveth himſelf, even of nature, therefore he ſtriveth againſt nature that loveth not his wife: he proveth the conſequent firſt by the myſticall knitting of Chriſt and the church together, and then by the ordinance of God, who ſaith that man and wife are as one, that is, not to be divided.

p His own body.

q He alludeth to the making of the woman, which ſignifieth our coupling together with Chriſt, which is wrought by faith, but is ſealed by the ſacrament of the ſupper.

r Look Matth. 19, 5.

15 That no man might dream of naturall conjunction, or knitting of Chriſt and his church together (ſuch as the husbands and the wives is) he ſheweth that it is ſecret, to wit, ſpirituall, and ſuch as farre differeth from the common capacity of man: as which conſiſteth by the vertue of the Spirit, and not of the flesh, by faith, and by no naturall band.

16 The concluſion both of the husbands dutie toward his wife, and of the wife toward her husband.

CHAP. VI.

1 The dutie of children toward their parents, 5 of ſervants toward their maſters. 10 Our life is a warfare, 12 not onely againſt flesh and bloud, but alſo ſpirituall enemies. 13 The compleat armour of a Chriſtian, 18 and how it ought to be uſed. 21 Tychicus is commended.

CHildren, [1] obey your parents [2] in the [a] Lord: [3] for this is right.

1 He cometh to another part of a family, and sheweth that the duty of the children toward their parents, conſiſteth in obedience unto them.

2 [4] Honour thy father and mother, ([5] which is the firſt commandment with [b] promiſe)

2 The firſt argument: becauſe God hath ſo appointed: whereupon it followeth alſo that children are ſo farre forth bound to obey their parents, as they may not ſwarve from the true worſhip of God.

3 That it may be well with thee, and thou mayeſt live long on the earth.

a For the Lord is authour of all fatherhood, and therefore we muſt yeeld ſuch obedience as he will have us.

4 [6] And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and [c] admonition of the Lord.

3 The ſecond argument: Becauſe this obedience is moſt juſt.

5 [7] Servants, be obedient to them that are your maſters [8] according to the flesh, with [d] fear and trembling, in ſingleneſſe of your heart, as unto Chriſt:

4 A proof of the firſt argument.

6 Not with eye-ſervice, as men-pleaſers, but as the ſervants of Chriſt, [9] doing the will of God from the heart;

5 The third argument taken of the profit that enſueth thereby: Becauſe the Lord vouchſafed this commandement amongſt all the reſt, of a ſpeciall bleſſing.

7 With good will doing ſervice, as to the [e] Lord, and not to men:

8 [10] Knowing that whatſoever good thing any man doth, the ſame ſhall he receive of the Lord whether he be bond or free.

b With a ſpeciall promiſe: for otherwiſe the ſecond commandement hath a promiſe of mercy to a thouſand generations, but that promiſe is generall.

6 It is the dutie of fathers to uſe their fatherly authoritie moderately and to Gods glory.

c Such informations and precepts as being taken out of Gods book, are holy and acceptable to him.

7 Now he deſcendeth to the third part of a family, to wit, to the dutie both of the maſters, and of the ſervants. And he sheweth that the dutie of ſervants conſiſteth in an heartie love and reverence to their maſters.

8 He mitigateth the ſharpneſſe of ſervice, in that they are ſpiritually free notwithſtanding the ſame, and yet the ſpirituall freedome taketh not away corporall ſervice: inſomuch that they cannot be Chriſts, unleſſe they ſerve their maſters willingly and faithfully, ſo farre forth as they may with ſafe conſcience.

d With carefull reverence, for ſlavish feare is not allowable, much leſſe in Chriſtian ſervants.

9 To cut off occaſion of all pretences, he teacheth us that it is Gods will that ſome are either born or made ſervants, and therefore they muſt reſpect Gods will, although their ſervice be never ſo hard.

e Being moved with a reverence to God-ward, as though ye ſerved God himſelf.

10 Although they ſerve unkinde and cruel maſters yet the obedience of ſervants is no leſſe acceptable to God, than the obedience of them that are free.

11 It is the duie of maſters, to uſe the authority that they have over their ſervants modeſtly and holily, ſeeing that they in an other reſpect have a common maſter which is in heaven, who will judge both the bond and the free.

10 [12] Finally, my brethren, be stong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.

12 [13] For we wrestle not against flesh and [g] bloud, but against [h] principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against ‡ spirituall wickedness in ‡ high places.

13 [14] Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the [i] evil day, & ‡ having done all to stand.

14 Stand therefore, having your loyns girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousnesse:

15 And your feet shod with the [k] preparation of the gospel of peace.

16 Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.

17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

18 Praying alwayes with all prayer and supplication in the [l] Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance, and supplication for all saints,

19 And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly, to make known the mysterie of the gospel:

20 For which I am an ambassadour ‡ in bonds: that ‡ therein I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.

21 [15] But that ye also may know my affairs, and how I do, Tychicus a beloved brother and faithfull minister in the Lord, shall make known to you all things, 22 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that ye might know our affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ ‡ in sinceritie. Amen.

¶ Written from Rome unto the Ephesians by Tychicus.

f Either of freedome or bondage. 12 He concludeth the other part of this epistle, with a grave exhortation, that all be ready and fight constantly, trusting to spirituall weapons, untill their enemies be cleane put to flight. And first of all, he warneth us to take the armour of God, wherewith onely our enemy may be dispatched. 13 Secondly, he declareth that our chiefest & mightiest enemies are invisible, that we may not think that our chiefest conflict is with men. g Against men which are of a fraile and brittle nature, against which are set spirituall subtilities, more mighty than the other by a thousand parts. h He giveth these names to the evil angels, by reason of the effects which they work: not that they are able to doe the same of themselves, but because God giveth them the bridle. ‡ Or, wicked spirits. ‡ Or, heavenly. 14 He sheweth that these enemies are put to flight with the onely armour of God, to wit, with uptightnesse of conscience, a godly and holy life, knowledge of the gospel, faith, and to be short, with the word of God, and using daily earnest prayer for the health of the church, and especially for the constancie of the true, godly, and valiant ministers of the word. i Look Chap. 5, 16. ‡ Or, having overcome all. k That the preparation of the gospel may be as it were shooes to you: and it is very fitly called the gospel of peace, for that seeing we have to go to God through most dangerous ranks of enemies, this may encourage us to go on manfully, in that we know by the doctrine of the gospel, that we may take our journey to God who is at peace with us.

The epistle of PAUL the apostle, TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

Chap. I.

3 He testifieth his thankfulnesse to God, and his love toward them, for the fruits of their faith, and fellowship in his sufferings, 9 daily praying to him for their increase in grace. 12 He sheweth what good the faith of Christ had received by his troubles at Rome, 21 and how readie he is to glorifie Christ, either by his life or death: 27 exhorting them to unity, 28 and to fortitude in persecution.

PAul and [1] Timotheus the servants of Jesus Christ, to all the saints in Christ Jesus, which are at Philippi, with the [a] bishops and deacons:

2 Grace be unto you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thank my God upon every ‡ remembrance of you,

4 Alwayes in every prayer of mine for you all making request with joy,

5 For your [b] fellowship in the gospel from the [c] first day untill now;

6 Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you, ‡ will perform it untill the [d] day of Jesus Christ,

7 Even as it is meet for me to think this of you all, because ‡ I have you in my heart, in as much as both in my [e] bonds, and in the defence and confirmation of the gospel, ye all are ‡ partakers of my [f] grace.

8 [2] For God is my record, how greatly I long after you, all, in the bowels of Jesus Christ.

9 [3] And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge, and in all ‡ judgement:

10 That ye may ‡ approve things that ‡ are excellent, that ye may be sincere, and without offence till the day of Christ:

11 Being filled with the [g] fruits of righteousnesse, which are by Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God.

1 The mark whereat he shooteth in this epistle, is to confirm the Philippians by all meanes possible, not onely not to faint, but also to goe forward. And first of all, he commendeth their former doings, to exhort them to go forward: which thing he saith, he hopeth fully they will doe, and that by the testimony of their lively charity, but in the mean season he refereth all things to the grace of God. a By the bishops are meant both the pastours, which have the dispensation of the word, and the elders that govern: and by deacons, are meant those that were stewards of the treasurie of the church, and had to look unto the poore. ‡ Or, mention. b Because that you also are made partakers of the gospel. c Ever since I knew you.

d The spirit of God will not forsake you unto the very latter end, untill your mortal bodies shall appear before the judgement of Christ to be glorified.

‡ Or, you have me in your heart.

e A true proof of a true knitting together with Christ.

‡ Or, partakers with me of grace.

f He calleth his bonds grace, as though he had received some singular benefit.

2 He declareth his good will towards them, therewithall shewing by what meanes chiefly they may be confirmed, to wit, by continuall prayer.

3 He sheweth what thing we ought chiefly desire, to wit, first of all that we may increase in the true knowledge of God, (so that we may be able to discern things that differ one from another) and also in charity, that even to the end we may give our selves to good works in deed, to the glory of God by Jesus Christ. ‡ Or, sense. ‡ Or, trie. ‡ Or, differ. g If righteousnesse be the tree, and good works the fruits, then must the papists needs be deceived, when they say that works are the cause of righteousnesse.

12 [4] But I would ye should understand, brethren, that the things which happened unto me, have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the gospel.

13 So that my bonds in [h] Christ are manifest in all the [i] palace, and [‡] in all other places.

14 And many of the brethren in the Lord waxing confident by my bonds, are much more bold to speak the [k] word without fear.

15 Some indeed preach Christ even of envie and strife, and some also of good will.

16 The one preach Christ of contention, not [l] sincerely, supposing to adde affliction to my bonds:

17 But the other of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel.

18 [5] What then? notwithstanding every way, whether [m] in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached, and I therein do rejoyce, yea, and will rejoyce.

19 For I know that this shall turn to my salvation through your prayer, and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, 20 [6] According to my earnest expectation, and my hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but that with all boldnesse, as alwayes, so now also Christ shall be magnified in my bodie, whether it be by life or by death.

21 For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.

22 [7] But if I live in the [n] flesh, this is the fruit of my labour: yet what I shall choose, I wot not.

23 For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ, which is farre better:

24 Nevertheless, to abide in the flesh, is more needfull for you.

25 And having this confidence, I know that I shall abide and continue with you all, for your furtherance and joy of faith.

26 That your rejoycing may be more abundant in Jesus Christ for me, by my coming to you again.

27 [8] Onely let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ: that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may heare of your affairs, that ye [o] stand fast in one spirit, with one minde, striving together for the faith of the gospel;

28 [9] And in nothing terrified by your adversaries, which is to them an evident token of perdition, but to you of salvation, and that of God.

29 [10] For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not onely to beleeve on him, but also to suffer for his sake.

30 [11] Having the same conflict which ye saw in me, and now heare to be in me.

4 He preventeth the offence that might come by his persecution, whereby divers took occasion to disgrace his apostleship. To whom he answereth that God hath blessed his imprisonment in such wise, that he is by that mean become more famous, and the dignitie of the gospel, by this occasion is greatly enlarged, although not with like affection in all men, yet in deed.
h For Christs sake.
i In the Emperours court.
‡ Or, to all others.
k The gospel is called the word, to set forth the excellencie of it.
l Not with a pure minde, for otherwise their doctrine was pure.
5 He sheweth by setting forth his own example, that the end of our afflictions is true joy, and that through the vertue of the Spirit of Christ, which he giveth to them that ask it.
m Under a godly colour and shew: for they made Christ a cloke for their ambition and envie.
6 We must continue even to the end, with great confidence, having nothing before our eyes but Christs glorie onely, whether we live or die.
7 An example of a true shepherd, who maketh more accompt how he may profit his sheep, than he doth of any commoditie of his own whatsoever.
n To live in this mortall body.
8 Having set down those things before in manner of a preface, he descendeth now to exhortations, warning them first of all, to consent both in doctrin and minde, and afterward, that being thus knit together with those common bands, they continue through the strength of faith to bear all adversitie in such sort, that they admit nothing unworthy the profession of the gospel.
o The word is a metaphor taken from wrestlers, that stand fast and shrink not a foot.
9 We ought not so be discouraged, but rather encouraged by the persecutions, which the enemies of the gospel imagine and practise against us: seeing that they are certain witnesses, from God himself, both of our salvation, and of the destruction of the wicked. 10 He proveth that his saying, that persecution is a token of our salvation, because it is a gift of God to suffer for Christ, which gift he bestoweth upon his own, as he doeth the gift of faith. 11 Now he sheweth for what purpose he made mention of his afflictions.

Chap. II.

He exhorteth them to unity, and to all humblenesse of minde, by the example of Christs humility and exaltation: 12 to a carefull proceeding in the way of salvation, that they be as lights to the wicked world, 16 and comforts to him their apostle, who is now ready to be offered up to God. 19 He hopeth to send Timothy to them, whom he greatly commendeth, 27 as Epaphroditus also, whom he presently sendeth to them.

IF [1] there be therefore any consolation in [a] Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any [b] bowels and mercies;

2 Fulfill ye my joy, that ye be like-minded, having [c] the same love, being of one accord, of one minde.

3 Let nothing be done through strife, or vain glory, but in lowlinesse of minde let each esteem other better than themselves.

4 Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.

5 [2] Let this minde be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus:

6 Who being in the [d] form of God, [e] thought it not robbery to be [f] equall with God:

7 But made himself of no [g] reputation, and took upon him the [h] form of a servant, and was made in the [‡] likenesse of men.

8 And being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the crosse.

9 [3] Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a [i] name which is above every name:

10 That at the name of Jesus [k] every knee should bowe, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth:

11 And that [l] every tongue should confesse, that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

12 [4] Wherefore my beloved, as ye have alwayes obeyed, not as in my presence onely, but now much more in my absence; [m] work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.

13 [5] For it is God which worketh in you, both [n] to will and to do of his good pleasure.

14 [6] Do all things without murmurings, and disputings:

15 [7] That ye may be blamelesse and [‡] harmlesse, the sonnes of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom [‡] ye shine as lights in the world:

16 Holding forth the [o] word of life, [8] that I may rejoyce in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, neither laboured in vain.

17 Yea, and if I be [†] offered upon the [p] sacri-a Any Christian comfort.

b If any feeling of inward love.
c Like love.
2 He setteth before them a most perfit, example of all modestie and sweet conversation, Christ Jesus, whom we ought to follow with all our might: who abased himself so farre for our sakes, although he be above all, that he took upon him the form of a servant, to wit, our flesh, willingly subject to all infirmities, even to the death of the crosse.
d Such as God himself is, and therefore God, for therefore is none in all parts like to God, but God himself.
e Christ that glorious and everlasting God knew that he might rightfully and lawfully not appear in the base flesh of man, but remain with Majestie meet for God: yet he chose rather to debase himself.
f If the Sonne be equall with the Father, then is there of necessitie an equalitie, which Arius that heretike denieth: and if the Son be compared to the Father, then is there a distinction of persons, which Sabellius that heretike denieth.
g He brought himself from all things, as it were to nothing.
h By taking our manhood upon him.
‡ Or, habite.
3 He sheweth the most glorious event of Christs submission, to teach us that modestie is the true way to true praise and glory. i Dignitie and renoun, and the matter with it.
k All creatures shall at length be subject to Christ. l Every nation. 4 The conclusion: We must go on to salvation with humilitie and submission by the way of our vocation.
m That is, do such things as concerne life and salvation, of which some particulers were above mentioned, vers 1, 2. 5 A most sure and grounded argument against pride, for that we have nothing in us praise worthy, but it cometh of the free gift of God, and is without us, for we have no abilitie or power, so much as to will well, (much lesse to do well) but only of the free mercy of God. n Why then we are not stocks, but yet we do not will well of nature, but onely because God hath made of our naughty will a good will.
6 He describeth modestie by the contrary effects of pride, teaching us, that it is far both from all malicious and close or inward hatred, and also from open contentions and brawlings. 7 To be short, he requireth a life without fault, and pure, that being lightned with the word of God, they may shine in the darknesse of this world. ‡ Or, sincere.
‡ Or, shine ye. o The gospel is called the word of life, because of the effects which it worketh. 8 Again he pricketh them forward, setting before them his true apostolike care that he had of them: comforting them moreover, to the end they should not be sorrie for the greatnesse of his afflictions, no not although he should die to make perfit their oblation with his bloud, as it were with a drink offering. † Gr. poured forth. p As if he said, I brought you Philippians to Christ, my desire is that you present your selves a lively sacrifice to him, and then shall it not grieve me to be offered up as a drink-offering, to accomplish this your spirituall offering.

fice and ſervice of your faith, I joy, and rejoyce with you all.

18 For the ſame cauſe alſo do ye joy, and rejoyce with me.

19 ‡ [9] But I truſt in the Lord Jeſus, to ſend Timotheus ſhortly unto you, that I alſo may be of [q] good comfort, when I know your ſtate.

20 For I have no man ‡ like-minded, who will naturally care for your ſtate.

21 For [r] all ſeek their own, not the things which are Jeſus Chriſts.

22 But ye know the proof of him, that as a ſonne with the father, he hath ſerved with me in the goſpel.

23 Him therefore I hope to ſend preſently, ſo ſoon as I ſhall ſee how it will go with me.

24 But I truſt in the Lord, that I alſo my ſelf ſhall come ſhortly.

25 Yet I ſuppoſed it neceſſary to ſend to you Epaphroditus, my brother and companion in labour, and fellow-ſouldier, but your meſſenger, and he that miniſtred to my wants.

26 For he longed after you all, and was full of heavineſſe, becauſe that ye had heard that he had been ſick.

27 For indeed he was ſick nigh unto death: but God had mercy on him: and not on him onely, but on me alſo, leſt I ſhould have ſorrow upon ſorrow.

28 I ſent him therefore the more carefully, that when ye ſee him again, ye may rejoyce, and that I may be the leſſe ſorrowfull.

29 Receive him therefore in the Lord with all gladneſſe, and ‡ hold ſuch in reputation:

Chap. III.

1 He warneth them to beware of the falſe teachers of the circumciſion, 4 ſhewing that himſelf hath greater cauſe than they, to truſt in the righteouſneſſe of the law: 7 which notwithſtanding he counteth as dung and loſſe, to gain Chriſt and his righteouſneſſe, 12 therein acknowledging his own imperfection. 15 He exhorteth them to be thus minded, 17 and to imitate him, 18 and to decline the wayes of carnall Chriſtians.

FInally, [1] my brethren, rejoyce in the Lord. To write the [2] ſame things to you, to me indeed is [a] not grievous, but for you it is ſafe.

2 Beware of dogs, beware of evil workers, beware of the [b] conciſion.

3 [3] For we are the circumciſion, which worship God in the ſpirit, & rejoyce in Chriſt Jeſus, and have no confidence [c] in the fleſh.

4 [4] Though I might alſo have confidence in the fleſh. If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might truſt in the fleſh, I more.

5 Circumciſed the eighth day, of the ſtock of Iſrael, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews: as touching the law, a Phariſee:

6 Concerning zeal, perſecuting the church: touching the righteouſneſſe which is in the law, blameleſſe.

7 But what things were [d] again to me, thoſe I counted loſſe for Chriſt.

8 Yea doubtleſſe, and I count [e] all things but loſſe, for the excellency of the knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus my Lord: for whom I have ſuffered the loſſe of all things, and do count them but dung that I may [f] win Chriſt,

9 And be found in [g] him, [h] not having mine own righteouſneſſe, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Chriſt, the righteouſneſſe which is of God by faith:

10 [5] That I may [i] know him, and the power of his reſurrection, and the [6] fellowſhip of his ſufferings, being made conformable unto his death,

11 If by any means I might attain unto the reſurrection of the dead.

12 Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect: but I follow after if that I may [k] apprehend that for which alſo I am [l] apprehended of Chriſt Jeſus.

13 Brethren, I count not my ſelf to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting thoſe things which are behinde, and reaching forth unto thoſe things which are before,

14 I preſſe toward the mark, for the prize of the high calling of God in Chriſt Jeſus.

15 [7] Let us therefore, as many as be [m] perfect, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwiſe minded, God ſhall reveal even this unto you.

16 Nevertheleſſe, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the ſame rule, let us minde the ſame thing.

17 Brethren, be followers together of me, and mark them which walk ſo, as ye have us for an enſample.

18 [8] (For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the croſſe of Chriſt:

19 [n] Whoſe end is deſtruction, whoſe God is their belly: and whoſe [o] glory is in their ſhame, who minde earthly things)

20 [9] For our converſation is in heaven, from whence alſo we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt:

21 Who ſhall change our vile body, that it may be faſhioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to ſubdue all things unto himſelf.

1 A concluſion of thoſe things which have been before ſaid, to wit, that they go forward chearfully in the Lord.
2 A preface to the next admonition that followeth, to take good heed and beware of falſe apoſtles, which joyne circumciſion with Chriſt, (that is to ſay, juſtification by works, with free juſtification by faith) and beat into mens heads the ceremonies which are abolished, for true exerciſes of godlineſſe and charitie. And he calleth them dogs, as prophane barkers, and evil workmen, becauſe they neglected true works, and did not teach the true uſe of them. To be ſhort, he calleth them conciſion, becauſe in urging circumciſion, they cut off themſelves and others from the church. a Which you have oftentimes heard of me. b He alludeth to circumciſion, of the name whereof whiles they boaſted, they cut aſunder the church. 3 He ſheweth that we ought to uſe true circumciſion, to wit, the circumciſion of the heart, that cutting off all wicked affections by the vertue of Chriſt, we may ſerve God in puritie of life. c In outward things which pertain nothing to the ſoul. 4 He doubteth not to preferre himſelf even according to the fleſh, before thoſe perverſe hot urgers of the law, that all men may know, that he doeth with good judgement of minde, lightly eſteem of all thoſe outward things: for ſomuch as he lacketh nothing, which hath Chriſt, nay, the confidence of our works cannot ſtand with the free juſtification in Chriſt by faith.

d Which I accounted for advantage.
e He ſhutteth out all works, as well thoſe that go before, as thoſe that come after faith.
f That in their place I might get Chriſt, and of a poor man become rich: ſo farre off am I from loſing any thing.
g In Chriſt: for they that are found without Chriſt, are ſubject to condemnation.
h That is, to be in Chriſt, to be found not in a mans own righteouſneſſe, cloathed with the righteouſnes of Chriſt imputed to him.
5 This is the end of righteouſneſſe by faith touching us, that by the vertue of his reſurrection we may eſcape from death.
i That I may feel him indeed and have a triall of him.
6 The way to that eternall ſalvation is to follow Chriſt his ſteps, by afflictions and perſecutions, untill we come to Chriſt himſelf, who is our mark whereat we ſhoot, and receive that reward wherevnto God calleth us in him. And the apoſtle ſetteth theſe true exerciſes of godlines, againſt thoſe vain ceremonies of the law, wherein the falſe apoſtles put the ſumme of godlineſſe.
k To life everlaſting, which followeth the reſurrection of the ſaints.
l For we run not, but ſo farre forth as we are layed hold on of Chriſt, that is, as God giveth us ſtrength, and ſheweth us the way.
7 The concluſion, of his exhortation ſtanding upon three members: The one is, that ſuch as have profited in the truth of this doctrine, ſhould continue in it. The ſecond is, that if there be any which are yet ignorant, and underſtand not theſe things, and doubt of the abolishing of the law, they ſhou'd cauſe no trouble, and ſhould be gently born withall, untill they alſo be inſtructed of the Lord. The third is, that they eſteem the falſe apoſtles, by their fruits: wherein he doubteth not to ſet forth himſelf for an example. m He ſaid before, that he was not perfect. So that in this place he calleth them perfect, which have ſomewhat profited in the knowledge of Chriſt and the goſpel, whom he ſetteth againſt the rude and ignorant, as he expoundeth himſelf in the next verſe following. 8 He painteth out the falſe apoſtles in their colours, not upon malice or ambition, but with ſorrow and tears, to wit, becauſe that being enemies of the goſpel (for that is joyned with affliction) they regard nothing elſe, but the commodities of this life: that is to ſay, that flowing in peace, and quietneſſe, and all worldly pleaſures, they may live in great eſtimation amongſt men, whoſe miſerable end he forewarned them of. n Reward. o Which they hunt after at mens hands. 9 He ſetteth againſt theſe fellows, true paſtours which neglect earthly things, and aſpire to heaven onely, where they know, that even in their bodies they ſhall be clothed with that eternall glory, by the vertue of God.

CHAP. IIII.

1 From particular admonitions, 4 he proceedeth to generall exhortations, 10 ſhewing how he rejoyced at their liberality towards him lying in priſon, not ſo much for the ſupply of his own wants, as for the grace of God in them: 19 and ſo he concludeth with prayer and ſalutations.

1 [1] THerefore, my brethren, dearly beloved and longed for, my joy and [a] crown, ſo ſtand faſt in the [b] Lord, my dearly beloved.

2 [2] I beſeech Euodias, and beſeech Syntyche, that they be of the ſame minde in the Lord.

3 And I intreat thee alſo, true yoke-fellow, help thoſe women which laboured with me in the goſpel, with Clement alſo, and with other my fellow-labourers, whoſe names are in the [c] book of life.

4 [3] Rejoyce in the [d] Lord alway: and again I ſay, Rejoyce.

5 [4] Let your [e] moderation be known unto all men. [5] The Lord is at hand.

6 [6] Be carefull for nothing: but in every thing by prayer and ſupplication with [f] thankſgiving, let your requeſts be made known unto God.

7 And the [g] peace of God which paſſeth all underſtanding, ſhall keep your [h] hearts and mindes through Chriſt Jeſus.

8 [7] Finally, brethren, whatſoever things are true, whatſoever things are [‡] [i] honeſt, whatſoever things are juſt, whatſoever things are pure, whatſoever things are lovely, whatſoever things are of good report: if there be any vertue, and if there be any praiſe, think on theſe things.

9 Thoſe things which ye have both learned and received, and heard and ſeen in me, do: and the God of peace ſhall be with you.

10 [8] But I rejoyced in the Lord greatly, that now at the laſt your care of me [†] hath flouriſhed again, wherein ye were alſo careſull, but ye lacked opportunity.

11 Not that I ſpeakin reſpect of [k] want; for I have learned in whatſoever ſtate I am, therewith to be content.

12 I know both how to be [l] abaſed, and I know how to abound: every where, and in all things I am [m] inſtructed, both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to ſuffer need.

13 I can do all things through Chriſt which ſtrengtheneth me.

14 Notwithſtanding, ye have well done, that ye did communicate with my affliction.

15 [9] Now ye Philippians know alſo that in the [n] beginning of the goſpel, when I departed from Macedonia, no church communicated with me, as concerning giving and receiving, but ye onely.

16 For even in Theſſalonica ye ſent once and again unto my neceſſity.

17 [10] Not becauſe I deſire a gift: but I deſire fruit that may abound to your account.

18 But [‡] I have all, and abound, I am full, having received of Epaphroditus the things which were ſent from you, an [o] odour of a ſweet ſmell, a ſacrifice acceptable, well pleaſing to God.

19 But my God ſhall ſupply all your need according to his riches in glory, by Chriſt Jeſus.

20 Now unto God and our Father be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

21 Salute every ſaint in Chriſt Jeſus: the brethren which are with me greet you.

22 All the ſaints ſalute you, chiefly they that are of [p] Ceſars houſhold.

23 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. Amen.

3 He addeth particular exhortations: the firſt is, that the joy of the Philippians be not hindred by any afflictions that the wicked imagine and work againſt them.

CHAP. I.

1 After ſalutation he thanketh God for their faith, 7 confirmeth the doctrine of Epaphras, 9 prayeth further for their increaſe in grace, 14 deſcribeth the true Chriſt, 21 encourageth them to receive Jeſus Chriſt.

1 PAul an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by [a] the will of God, and Timotheus our brother,

2 To the ſaints and faithfull brethren in Chriſt, which are at [b] Coloſſe, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 [1] We give thanks to God, and the [c] Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, praying alwayes for you:

4 Since we heard of your faith in Chriſt Jeſus, and of the love which ye have to all the ſaints;

5 For the [d] hope which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the goſpel:

6 Which is come unto you, as it is in all the world, and bringeth forth fruit, as it doth alſo in you, ſince the day ye heard of it, and a By the free bountifulneſſe of God.

b Coloſſe is ſituated in Phrygia, not far from Hierapolis and Laodicea, on that ſide that they bend toward Lycia and Pamphylia.
1 He commendeth the doctrine that was delivered them by Epaphras, and their readineſſe in receiving it.
c We cannot otherwiſe conſider of God to our ſalvation, but as he is Chriſts Father, in whom we are adopted.
d For the glory that is hoped for.

and knew the grace of God in truth.

7 As ye also learned of Epaphras our deare fellow servant, who is for you a faithfull minister of Christ:

8 [2] Who also declared unto us your love in the [c] Spirit.

9 For this cause we also, since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of [f] his will, in all wisdome and spirituall understanding.

10 That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitfull in every good work, & increasing in the knowledge of God.

11 [3] Strengthened with all might according to his glorious power, unto all patience and long-suffering with [g] joyfulnesse:

12 [4] Giving thanks unto the [5] Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in [h] light:

13 Who hath delivered us from the power of darknesse, and hath translated us into the kingdome of [†] his deare Sonne.

14 [6] In whom we have redemption through his bloud, even the forgivenesse of sinnes:

15 [7] Who is the image of the invisible God, the [i] first-born of every creature.

16 For by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be [k] thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him.

17 * And he is before all things, and by him all things consist.

18 [8] And he is the head of the bodie, the church: who is the beginning, the [l] first-born from the dead, that [‡] in all things he might have the preeminence.

19 For it pleased the Father, that in him should [m] all fulnesse dwell,

20 [9] And ([‡] having made peace through the bloud of his crosse) by him to reconcile [n] all things unto himself, by him, I say, whether they be things in earth or things in heaven.

21 [10] And you that were sometime alienated, and enemies [‡] in your minde by wicked works, yet now hath [o] he reconciled,

22 In the body of [p] his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblameable, and unreprovable in his sight:

23 [11] If ye continue in the faith grounded and setled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel, which ye have heard, and which was preached to every [q] creature which is under heaven, [11] whereof I Paul am made a minister.

24 Who now rejoyce in my sufferings [r] for you, and fill up that which is [r] behinde of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh, for his bodies sake, which is the church.

25 [13] Whereof I am made a minister according to the dispensation of God, which is given to me for you, [‡] to fulfill the word of God:

26 Even the ministery which hath been hid from ages, and from generations, but now is made manifest to his [r] saints.

27 To whom God [u] would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mysterie among the Gentiles, which is Christ [‡] in you, the hope of glory.

28 [14] Whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in [x] all wisdome, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus.

29 Whereunto I also labour striving according to his working, which worketh in me mightily.

2 He declareth his good will towards them, telling them that they must not still remain at one stay, but go on further both in the knowledge of the gospel, and also in the true use of it.

c Your spirituall love, or your love which cometh from the spirit.

f Gods will.

3 The gift of continuance is not of us, but it proceedeth from the vertue of God, which he doth freely give us.

g It must not be unwilling, and as it were drawn out of us by force, but proceed from a merry and joyfull minde.

4 Having ended the preface, he goeth to the matter it self, that is to say, to an excellent description (although it be but short) of whole Christianity, which is fitly divided into three treatises: for first of all he expounded the true doctrine according to the order of the causes, beginning from this verse to the 21. And from thence he beginneth to apply the same to the Colossians, with divers exhortations to the sixt verse of the second chapter. And last of all, in the third place, even to the third chapter, he refuteth the corruptions of true doctrin.

5 The efficient cause of our salvation is the onely mercy of God the Father, who maketh us meet to be partakers of eternall life, delivering us from the darknesse wherein we were born, and bringing us to the light of the knowledge of the glory of his Sonne.

h In that glorious and heavenly kingdome.

11 The second treatise of this part of the epistle, wherein he exhorteth the Colossians not to suffer themselves by any means to be moved from this doctrin, shewing and declaring that there is no where any other true gospel.

q To all men: whereby we learn that the gospel was not shut up within the corners of Judea alone.

2 He purchaseth authority to this doctrin by his apostleship, and taketh a most sure proof thereof, of his afflictions, which he suffereth for Christ his name to instruct the churches with these examples of patience.

r For your profit and commoditie.

‡ The affliction of the church are said to be Christs afflictions, by reason of that fellowship and knitting together that the body and the head have, the one with the other, not that there is any more need to have the church redeemed, but that Christ sheweth his power in the daily weakenesse of his, and that for the comfort of the wholy body. 13 He bringeth another proof of his apostleship, to wit, that God is the authour of it, by whom also he was appointed peculiarly apostle of the gentiles, to the end that by this means that same might be fulfilled by him, which the prophets foretold of the calling of the gentiles. ‡ Or, fully to preach the word of God. Rom. 15, 19. † Whom he chose to sanctifie unto himself in Christ: moreover he saith, that the mysterie of our redemption was hidden since the world began, except it were revealed unto a few, who also were taught it extraordinarily. u Thus Paul bridleth the curiosity of men. ‡ Or, among st you. 14 He protesteth that he doth faithfully execute his apostleship in every place, bringing men unto Christ onely through the Lords plentifull blessing of his labours. x Perfect and sound wisdome, which is perfect in it self, and shall in the end make them perfect that fellow it.

CHAP. II.

1 He still exhorteth them to be constant in Christ, 8 to beware of philosophie, and vain traditions, 18 worshipping of angels, 20 and legal ceremonies, which are ended in Christ.

FOr [1] I would that ye knew what great [†] conflict I have for you, and for them at Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen [a] my face in the flesh.

2 [2] That [b] their hearts might be comforted, being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the [c] full assurance of understanding, to the acknowledgement of the mysterie of God, and of the Father, and of Christ:

3 [†] In whom are hid all the treasures of [d] wisdome and knowledge.

4 [3] And this I say, lest any man should beguile you with [e] enticing words.

5 For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, joying and beholding your [f] order, and [g] stedfastnesse of your faith in Christ:

6 As ye have therefore [h] received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him:

7 Rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving.

8 [4] Beware lest any man [i] spoil you through

1 The taking away of an objection. In that that he visited not the Colossians, not the Laodiceans, he did it not of any negligence, but is so much the more carefull for them.

‡ Or, fear, or care.

a Me present in body.

2 He concludeth shortly the sum of the former doctrin, to wit, that the whole sum of true wisdome, and most secret knowledge of God, consisteth in Christ onely, and that this is the use of it touching men, that they being knit together in love, rest themselves happily in the knowledge of so great a goodnesse, untill they come fully to enjoy it.

b Whom he never saw.

c Of that understanding, which bringeth forth a certain and undoubted perswasion in our mindes. ‡ Or, wherein. d There is no true wisdome without Christ. 3 A passing over to the treatise following, against the corruptions of Christianity. e With a framed kinde of talk made to perswade. f The manner of your ecclesiasticall discipline. g Doctrine. h So then Christ hangeth not upon mens traditions. 4 He bringeth all corruptions to three kindes. The first is, that which ariseth of vain and curious speculations, and yet beareth a shew of a certain subtill wisdome. i This is a word of warre, and it is as much as to drive or carry away a spoil or booty.

† Gr. the Sonne of his love. 6 The matter it self of our salvation, is Christ the Son of God, who hath obtained remission of sinnes for us, by the offering up of himself. 7 A lively description of the person of Christ, whereby we understand, that in him onely God sheweth himself to be seen: who was begotten of the Father before any thing was made, that is, from everlasting, by whom also all things that are made, were made without any exception, by whom also they do consist, and whose glory they serve. i Begotten before any thing was made: and therefore the everlasting Sonne of the everlasting Father. k He setteth forth the angels with glorious names, that by the comparison of most excellent spirits, we may understand how farre passing the excellencie of Christ is, in whom onely we have to content our selves, and let go all angels. * 1 Cor. 8, 6. John 1, 3. l Having gloriously declared the excellent dignitie of the person of Christ, he describeth his office and function, to wit, that he is that same to the church, that the head is to the body, that is to say, the prince and governour of it, and the very beginning of true life, as who rising first from death is the authour of eternall life, so that he is above all, in whom onely there is most plentifull abundance of all good things, which is powred out upon the church. l Who so rose again that he should die no more, and who raiseth other from death to life by his power. ‡ Or, among all. m Most plentifull abundance of all things pertaining to God. 9 Now he teacheth how Christ executed that office which his Father enjoyned him, to wit, by suffering the death of the crosse (which was joyned with the curse of God) according to his decree, that by this sacrifice he might reconcile to his Father all men, aswell them which beleeved in him to come, and were alreadie under this hope gathered into heaven, as them which should upon the earth beleeve in him afterward. And thus is justification described of the apostle, which is one and the chiefest part of the benefit of Christ. ‡ Or, making peace. n The whole church. 10 Sanctification is another work of God in us by Christ, in that that he restored us (which hated God extremely, and were wholly and willingly given to sinne) to his gracious favour in such sort, that he therewithall purifieth us with his holy Spirit, and consecrateth us to righteousnesse. ‡ Or, by your minde in wicked works. o The Sonne. p In that fleshly body, to give us to understand, that his body was not a fantasticall body, but a true body.

philosophy and vain deceit, after the [5] tradition of men, [6] after the ‡ [k] rudiments of the world, and [7] not after Christ:

9 [8] For in [l] him [m] dwelleth [n] all the fulnesse of the Godhead [o] bodily.

10 And ye are compleat in him, which is the head of all principality and power.

11 [9] In whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the [p] sinnes of the flesh, by the circumcision of Christ.

12 [10] Buried with him in [q] baptisme, wherein also you are risen with [r] him through the faith of [11] the operation of [s] God, who hath raised him from the dead.

13 [12] And you being dead in your sinnes, [13] and the uncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all trespasses.

14 [14] Blotting out the [t] hand-writing of ordinances, that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his crosse:

15 And having spoiled [u] principalities and powers, he [x] made a shew of them openly, triumphing over them ‡ in [y] it.

16 [15] Let no man therefore judge you ‡ in meat or in drink, or ‡ in respect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath dayes:

17 Which are a shadow of things to come, but the [z] body is of Christ.

18 [16] Let no man ‡ beguil you of your reward, † in a voluntary [a] humility, and worshipping of angels, [17] intruding into those things which he hath not seen, [18] [b] vainly puft up by his fleshly minde:

19 [19] And not holding the [b] head, from which [c] all the body by joynts and bands having nourishment ministred, and knit together, increaseth with the increase of [d] God.

20 [20] Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the ‡ rudiments of the world, why, [e] as though living in the world, are ye subject to ordinances?

21 [21] (Touch not, taste not, handle not:

22 [22] Which all are to perish with the using) [23] after the commandments and doctrines of men.

23 [24] Which things have indeed a shew of [f] wisdome in [g] will-worship and humility, and ‡ [h] neglecting of the body, not in any honour to the [i] satisfying of the flesh.

5 The second, which is manifestly superstitious and vain, and upon custome and fained inspirations.
6 The third kind was of them which joyned the rudiments of the world (that is to say, the ceremonies of the law) with the gospel.
‡ Or, elements.
k Principles and rules, wherewith God ruled his church, as it were under a schoolmaster.
7 A generall confutation of all corruption is this, that that must needs be a false religion, which addeth any thing to Christ.
8 A reason: Because onely Christ, God and man, is most perfect, and passeth farre above all things, so that whosoever hath him, may require nothing more.
l By these words is shewed a distinction of the natures.
m This word (dwelleth) noteth out unto us the joyning together of those natures, so that of God and man is one Christ.
n These words set down most perfect Godhead to be in Christ.
o The knitting together of God and man is substantiall and essentiall.
9 Now he dealeth precisely against the third kinde, that is to say, against them which urged the Jewish religion: and firstof all, he denieth that we have need of the circumcision of the flesh, seeing that without it we are circumcised within by the vertrue of Christ.
p These many words are used to shew whatthe old man is, whom Paul in other places calleth the body of sinne.
10 The taking away of an objection: We heed not so much as the externall signe which our fathers had, seeing that our baptisme is a most effectuall pledge and witnesse, of the inward restoring and renewing.
q Look Rom. 6, 4.
r So then all the force of the matter cometh not from the very deed done, that is to say, It is not the dipping of us into the water by a minister, that maketh us to be buried with Christ, as the papists say, That even for the very acts sake, we become verily Christians, but it cometh from the vertue of Christ, for the apostle addeth the resurrection of Christ, and faith.
11 One end of baptisme is the death and buriall of the old man, and that by the mighty power of God onely, whose vertue we lay hold on by faith, in the death and resurrection of Christ.
s Through faith which cometh from God.
12 Another end of baptisme is, That we which were dead in sinne, might obtain free remission of sinnes and eternall life, through faith in Christ, who died for us.
13 A new argument which lieth in these few words, and it is thus. Uncircumcision was no hinderance to you, why you being justified in Christ should not obtain life, therefore you need not circumcision to the attainment of salvation.
14 He speaketh now more generally against the whole service of the law, and sheweth by two reasons, that it is abolished, first, to what purpose should he that hath obtained remission of all his sinnes in Christ, require those helps of the law? Secondly, because, that if a man do rightly consider those rites, he shall finde that they were so many testimonies of our guiltinesse, whereby we manifestly witnessed as it were by our own handwritings, that we deserved damnation. Therefore did Christ put out that handwriting by his coming, and fastening it to the crosse, triumphed over all our enemies, were they never so mighty. Therefore to what end and purpose should we now use those ceremonies, as though we were still guilty of sinne, and subject to the tyranny of our enemies?
t Abolishing the rites and ceremonies.
u Satan and his angels.
x As a conquerour made he a shew of those captives, and put them to shame.
‡ Or, in himself.
y The crosse was as a chariot of triumph. No conquerour could have triumphed so gloriously in his chariot, as Christ did upon the crosse.
15 The conclusion: wherein also he nameth certain kindes, as the difference of dayes, and meats, and proveth by a new argument, that we are not bound unto them: to wit, because those things were shadows of Christs to come, but we possesse him now exhibited unto us.
‡ Or, for eating and drinking.
‡ Or, in part.
z The body as a thing of substance and pith, he setteth against shadows.
16 He disputeth against the first kinde of corruptions, and setteth down the worshipping of angels for an example: which kinde of false religion he confuteth, first, this way: because that they which bring in such a worship, attribute that unto themselves, which is proper onely to God, to wit, authoritie to binde mens consciences with religion, although they seem to bring in these words by humblenesse of minde.
‡ Or, judge against you.
† Gr. being a voluntary in humility.
a By foolish humblenesse of minde: for otherwise humblenesse is a vertue. For these angel-worshippers, blamed such of pride as would go straight to God, and use no other under means beside Christ.
17 Secondly, because they rashly thrust upon them for oracles those things which they neither saw nor heard, but devised of themselves.
18 Thirdly, because these things have no other ground whereupon they are built, but onely the opinion of men, which pleases themselves without all measure in their own devices.
b Without reason.
19 The fourth argument, which is of great weight: because they spoil Christ of his dignity, who onely is sufficient both to nourish and also to increase his whole body.
c Christ.
d With the increasing which cometh from God.
20 Now last of all, he fighteth against the second kinde of corruptions, that is to say, against meer superstitions, invented of men, which partly deceive the simplicity of some with their craftinesse, and partly with very foolish superstitions, and to be laughed at: as when godlines, remission of sinnes, or any such like vertue, is put in some certain kinde of meat, and such like things, which the inventors of such rites themselves understand not, because indeed it is not. And he useth an argument taken of comparison. If by the death of Christ who established a new covenant with his bloud, you be delivered from those externall rites wherewith it pleased the Lord to prepare the world, as it were by certain rudiments, to that full knowledge of true religion, why would ye be burdened with traditions, I wot not what, as though ye were citizens of this world, that is to say, as though ye depended upon this life, and earthly things? Now this is the cause why before verse 8. he followed another order than he doth in the confutation: because he sheweth there, by what degrees false religions came into the world, to wit, beginning first by curious speculation of the wise, after which in processe of time succeeded grosse superstition, against which mischiefs, the Lord set at length that service of the law, which some abused in like sort: but in the confutation he began with the abolishing of the law-service, that he might shew by comparison, that those false services ought much more to be taken away.
‡ Or, elements.
e As though your felicity stood in these earthly things, and the kingdome of God were not rather spirituall.
21 An imitation in the person of these superstitious men, rightly expressing their nature and use of speech.
22 Another argument: The spirituall and inward kingdome of God cannot consist in these outward things, and such as perish with the using.
23 The third argument: Because God is not the authour of these traditions, and therefore they did not binde the consciences.
24 The taking away of an objection. These things have a goodly shew, because men by this meanes, seem to worship God with a good minde, and humble themselves, and neglect the body, which the most part of men curiously pamper up and cherish: but yet notwithstanding the things themselves are of no value, forsomuch as they pertain not to things that are spirituall and everlasting, but to the nourishment of the flesh.
f Which seem indeed to be some exquisite thing, and so wise devices, as though they came from heaven.
g Hence sprang the works of supererogation, as the papists term them, that is to say, needlesse works, as though men performed more than is commanded them: which was the beginning and the very ground, whereon monks merits were brought in.
‡ Or, punishing, or not sparing.
h A lively description of monkery.
i Seeing they stand in meat and drink, wherein the kingdome of God doth not stand.

CHAP. III.

1 He sheweth where we should seek Christ. 5 He exhorteth to mortification, 10 to put off the old man, and to put on Christ; 12 exhorting to charity, humility, and other severall duties.

IFf [1] ye then [2] be risen with [a] Christ, [3] seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God.

2 Set your ‡ affection on things above, not on things on the [b] earth.

3 [4] For ye are dead, [5] and your life is hid with Christ in God.

4 When Christ who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appeare with him in glory.

5 [6] Mortifie therefore your [c] members which are upon the earth: fornication, uncleanesse, inordinate affection, evil concupiscence, and covetousnesse, which is idolatry:

6 For which things sake, the wrath of God [d] cometh on the children of disobedience.

7 In the which ye also walked sometime, when ye lived in them.

8 But now you also put off all these, Anger,

1 Another part of this epistle, wherein he taketh occasion, by reason of those vain exercises, to shew the duty of a Christian life: which is an ordinary thing with him, after he hath once set down the doctrine it self.
2 Our renewing or new birth, which is wrought in us by being partakers of the resurrection of Christ, is the fountain of all holinesse, out of which sundry arms or rivers do afterwards flow.
a For if we be partakers of Christ, we are carried as it were into another life, where we shall need neither meat nor drink, for we shall be like unto the angels.
3 The end and mark which all the duties of Christian life shoot at, is to enter into the kingdome of heaven, and to give our selves to those things which lead us thither, that is, to true godlinesse, and not to those outward and corporall things.
‡ Or, minde.
b So he calleth that shew of religion which he spake of in the former chapter.
4 A reason taken of the efficient causes, and others: you are dead as touching the flesh, that is, touching the old nature which seeketh after all transitory things, and on the other side, you have begun to live according to the spirit, therefore give your selves to spirituall and heavenly, and not to carnall and earthly things.
5 The taking away of an objection: whiles we are yet in this world, we are subject to many miseries of this life, so that the life that is in us, is as it were hidden: yet notwithstanding we have the beginnings of life and glory, the accomplishment whereof which lieth now in Christs and in Gods hand, shall be assuredly and manifestly performed in that glorious coming of the Lord.
6 Let not your dead nature be any more effectuall in you, but let your living nature be effectuall. Now the force of nature is known by the motions. Therefore let the affections of the world die in you, and let the contrary motions which are spirituall, live. And he reckoneth up a great long scroul of vices, and their contrary vertues.
c The motions and lusts that are in us, are in this place very properly called members, because that the reason and will of man corrupted, doth use them as the body doth his members.
d Useth to come.

10 And have put on the new man, [8] which is renewed in [e] knowledge, after the image of him that created him.

11 [9] Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all.

12 [f] Put on therefore (as the elect of God holy and beloved) [g] bowels of mercies, kindeness, humbleness of minde, meekness, long-suffering:

13 Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a ‡ quarrell against any; even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye.

14 And above all these things, put on charity, which is the [h] bond of perfectness.

15 And let the peace of God [i] rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in [k] one body: and be ye thankfull.

16 Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdome, teaching and admonishing one another in [l] psalmes and hymnes, and spirituall songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.

17 And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the [m] name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him.

18 [10] Wives, submit your selves unto your own husbands, as it is [n] fit in the Lord.

19 [11] Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them.

20 [12] Children, obey your parents in [o] all things for this is well pleasing unto the Lord.

21 [13] Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.

22 [14] Servants, obey in all things your masters according to the flesh: not with eye-service, as men-pleasers, but in singleness of heart, fearing God:

23 And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men:

24 Knowing, that of the Lord ye shall receive the [p] reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ.

25 [15] But he that doth wrong, shall receive for the wrong which he hath done: and there is no respect of persons.

7 A definition of our new birth taken of the parts thereof which are the putting off of the old man, that is to say, of the wickednesse which is in us by nature, and the restoring, and repairing of the new man, that is to say, of pureness, which is given us by grace: but both of them are but begun in us in this present life, and by certain degrees finished, the one dying in us by little and little, and the other coming to the perfection of another life, by little and little.

8 Newnesse of life consisteth in knowledge which transformeth man to the image of God his maker, that is to say, to the sincerity and pureness of the whole soul.

e He speaketh of an effectuall knowledge.

9 He telleth them again that the gospel doth not respect those externall things, but true justification and sanctification in Christ onely, which have many fruits, as he reckoneth them up here: But commendeth two things especially, to wit, godly concord, and continuall studie of Gods word.

f So puton, that ye never put off.

g Those most tender affections of exceeding compassion.

‡ Or, complaint.

h Which bendeth and knitteth together all the duties that passe from man to man.

i Rule and govern all things.

k You are joyned together into one body through Gods goodnes, that you might help one another as fellow members.

l By Psalmes he meaneth all godly songs which were written upon divers occasions, and by Hymnes, all such as contain the praise of God, and by spirituall songs, other more peculiar and artificious songs, which were also in praises of God, but they were made fuller of musick.

m Call upon the name of Christ, when you do it, or do it to Christs praise and glory.

10 He goeth from precepts which concern the whole civill life of man, to precepts pertaining to every mans family, and requireth of wives subjection in the Lord.

n For those wives do not well, that do not set God in Christ before them in their love, but this philosophy knoweth not.

11 He requireth of husbands, that they love their wives, and use them gently.

12 He requireth of children, that according to Gods commandement they be obedient to their parents.

o In the Lord, and so it is expounded, Ephes. 5, 19.

13 Of parents, that they be gentle towards their children.

14 Of servants, that fearing God himself, to whom their obedience is acceptable, they reverently, faithfully, and from the heart obey their masters.

q For that, that you shall have duely obeyed your masters, the time shall come, that you shall be made sonnes, of servants, and then shall you know this of a suretie, which shall be when you are made partakers of the heavenly inheritance.

15 He requireth of masters, that being mindfull how that they themselves also shall render an account before that heavenly Lord and master, which will revenge wrongfull doings without any respect of master or servants, they shew themselves just and upright, with equitie, unto their servants.

1 He exhorteth them to be fervent in prayer, 4 to walk wisely toward them that are not yet come to the true knowledge of Christ. 10 He saluteth them, and wisheth them all prosperity.

MAsters, give unto your servants that which is just and equall, knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven.

2 [1] Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving.

3 [2] Withall, praying also for us, that God would open unto us a [a] doore of utterance, to speak the mysterie of Christ, for which I am also in bonds.

4 That I may make it manifest, as I ought to speak.

5 [4] Walk in [b] wisdome toward them that are without, redeeming the [c] time.

6 [5] Let your speech be alway with [d] grace, seasoned with [e] salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man.

7 All my state shall Tychicus declare unto you, who is a beloved brother, and a faithfull minister, and fellow-servant in the Lord:

8 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that he might know your estate, and comfort your hearts:

9 With Onesimus a faithfull and beloved brother, who is one of you. They shall make known unto you all things which are done here.

10 Aristarchus my fellow-prisoner saluteth you, and Marcus sisters sonne to Barnabas (touching whom ye received commandments; if he come unto you, receive him)

11 And Jesus, which is called Justus, who are of the circumcision. These [f] onely are my fellow-workers unto the [g] kingdome of God, which have been a comfort unto me.

12 Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ, saluteth you, alwayes ‡ labouring fervently for you in prayers, that ye may stand perfect, and ‡ compleat in all the will of God.

13 For I bear him record, that he hath a great zeal for you, and them that are in Laodicea, and them in Hierapolis.

14 Luke the beloved Physician, and Demas greet you.

15 Salute the brethren which are in Laodicea, and Nymphas, and the church which is in his house.

16 And when this epistle is read amongst you, cause that it be read also in the church of the Laodiceans: and that ye likewise read the epistle from Laodicea, 17 And say to Archippus, Take heed to the ministery which thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfill it.

18 The salutation by the hand of me Paul. Remember my bonds. Grace be with you. Amen.

¶ Written from Rome to the Colossians, by Tychicus and Onesimus.

1 He addeth certain generall exhortations, and at length endeth his epistle with divers familiar and godly salutations.

2 Prayers must be continuall and earnest.

3 Such as minister the word, must especially be commended to the prayers of the church, 2 Thess. 3, 1.

a An open and free mouth to preach the gospel.

4 In all parts of our life, we ought to have good consideration even of them which are without the church.

b Advisedly and circumspectly.

c Seek occasion to win them, although you lose of your own by it.

5 Our speech and talk must be applyed to the profite of the hearers.

d Framed to the profit of your neighbour.

e Against this is set filthy communication, as Ephes. 4, 29.

f Why then, Peter was not at that time at Rome.

The first epistle of PAUL the apostle, TO THE THESSALONIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 The Thessalonians are given to understand both how mindefull of them Saint Paul was at all times in thanksgiving, and prayer: 5 and also how well he was perswaded of the truth, and sincerity of their faith, and conversion to God.

PAul and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Thessalonians, which is in God the Father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ: grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father. and the Lord Jesus Christ.

1 An example of right Christian rejoycing, whereby also we learn, that such as have great gifts in them, are in two sorts bridled, to wit, if they consider that they have received all from God, and that continuance must be desired at his hands, whereunto also the whole epistle exhorteth the Thessalonians.

2 We [1] give thanks to God alwayes for you all, making mention of you in our prayers,

2 He commendeth them for three speciall gifts, effectuall faith, continuall love, and patient hope: to the end they might be ashamed, being indued with such excellent gifts, not to continue in Gods election.

3 [2] Remembring without ceasing your work of faith, and labour of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God, and our Father:

4 Knowing, brethren ‡ beloved, your [a] election of God.

‡ Or, beloved of God your election.

a The apostle here sheweth, that such are to be judged the elect of God, in whom appeareth the fruits of election.

5 [3] For our gospel came not unto you in word onely: but also in power, and in the holy Ghost, and in [b] much assurance, as ye know what manner of men we were among you for your sake.

3 Another reason, why they ought in no wise start back, but continue to the end, because they cannot doubt of this doctrin which hath been so many wayes confirmed unto them even from heaven, as they themselves did well know.

6 [4] And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, having received the word in much affliction, with [c] joy of the holy Ghost:

b Paul sheweth by two things, that there followed very great fruit of his preaching, to wit, by these gifts of the holy Ghost, and that certain assurance which was throughly setled in their mindes, as appeared by their willing bearing of the crosse. 4 Another reason, because even that day they imbraced the gospel with great cheerfulnesse, in so much that they were an example to all their neighbours: so that it should be more shame to them to faint in the mid race. c With joy which cometh from the holy Ghost.

7 So that ye were ensamples to all that beleeve in Macedonia and Achaia.

8 For from you sounded out the word of the Lord, not onely in Macedonia and Achaia, but also in every place your faith to God-ward is spread abroad, so that we need not to speak any thing.

9 For they [d] themselves shew of us, what manner of entring in we had unto you, and [5] how ye turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God, d All the beleevers. 5 It is no true conversion to forsake idols, unlesse a man therewithall worship the true and living God in Christ the onely Redeemer.

10 And to wait for his Sonne from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus which delivered [e] us from the wrath to come.

e This word (us) is not put here without cause and by (wrath) is meant that revenge and punishment, wherewith the Lord will judge the world at length in his terrible wrath.

CHAP. II.

1 In what manner the gospel was brought and preached to the Thessalonians, and in what sort also they received it. 18 A reason is rendred both why Saint Paul was so long absent from them, and also why he was so desirous to see them.

FOr [1] your selves, brethren, know our entrance in unto you, that it was not invain.

1 That which he touched before shortly concerning his apostleship, he handleth now more at large, and to that end and purpose which we spake of.

2 [2] But even after that we had suffered before, and were shamefully entreated, as ye know, at Philippi, we were bold in [a] our God to speak unto you the gospel of God with much contention.

2 The vertues of a true pastour are, freely without fear to preach the gospel, even in the midst of dangers.

a Through God his gracious help.

3 [3] For our exhortation was not of deceit, nor of [b] uncleannesse, nor in guile:

3 To teach pure doctrin faithfully and with a pure heart.

b By any wicked and naughty kind of dealing.

4 [4] But as we were [c] allowed of God to be put in trust with the gospel, even so we speak, not as pleasing men, but God, which [d] trieth our hearts.

4 To approve his conscience to God, being free from all flattery and covetousnesse.

c Seeing there is this difference between the judgements of God, and the judgements of men, that when men chuse, they respect the qualities of those things which stand before them, but God findeth the reason of his counsel only in himself, it followeth, that seeing we are not able to think a good thought, that whomsoever he first chuseth to those callings, he maketh them able, and doth not finde them able. And therefore in that we are allowed of God, it hangeth upon his mercie.

5 Neither at any time used we flattering words, as ye know, nor a cloke of covetousnesse, God is witnesse.

6 [5] Nor of men sought we glory, neither of you, nor yet of others, when we might have ‡ been [e] burdensome, as the apostles of Christ.

d Which liketh and alloweth of them.

5 To submit himself even to the baseſt, to win them, and to eschew all pride.

‡ Or, used authority.

e When I might lawfully have lived upon the expences of the church.

7 But we were [f] gentle among you, even as a nurse cherisheth her children:

f We were not rough, but easie and gentle as a nurse, that is, neither ambitious, nor covetous, but taketh all paines as patiently as if she were a mother.

8 [6] So being affectionately desirours of you, we were willing to have imparted unto you, not the gospel of God onely, but also our own souls, because ye were deare unto us.

6 To have the flock that is committed unto him in more estimation than his own life.

9 [7] For ye remember, brethren, our labour and travell: for labouring night and day, because we would not be chargeable unto any of you, we preached unto you the gospel of God.

7 To depart with his own right rather than to be chargeable to his sheep.

10 [8] Ye are witnesses, and God also, how holily, and justly, and unblameably we behaved our selves among you that beleeve.

8 To excell other in example of godly life.

11 [9] As you know, how we exhorted and comforted, and charged every one of you (as a father doth his children)

9 To exhort and comfort with a fatherly minde and affection.

12 [10] That ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdome and glory.

10 To exhort all men diligently and earnestly to lead a godly life.

13 [11] For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, because when ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but (as it is in truth) the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that beleeve.

11 Having approved his ministery, he commendeth again (to that end and purpose that I spake of) the cheerfulnesse of the Thessalonians, which was answerable to his diligence in preaching, and their manly patience.

14 [12] For

14 [12] For ye, brethren, became followers of the churches of God, which in Judea are [g] in Chriſt Jeſus: for ye alſo have ſuffered like things of your own [h] countreymen, even as they have of the Jews:

15 [13] Who both killed the Lord Jeſus, and their own prophets, and have ‡ perſecuted us: [14] and they pleaſe not God, and are contrary to [i] all men:

16 Forbidding us to ſpeak to the Gentiles, that they might be ſaved, to [k] fill up their ſinnes alway: [l] for the wrath is come upon them to the uttermoſt.

17 [15] But we, brethren, being [m] taken from you for a ſhort time, in preſence, not in heart, endeavoured the more abundantly to ſee your face with great deſire.

18 Wherefore we would have come unto you (even I Paul) once and again: but Satan hindered us.

19 For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of ‡ rejoycing? are not even ye in the preſence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt at his coming?

20 For ye are our glory and joy.

12 He confirmeth them in their afflictions which they ſuffered of their own people, becauſe they were afflicted of their own countreymen: which came as well (ſaith he) to the churches of the Jews, as to them: and therefore they ought to take it in good part.
g Which Chriſt hath gathered together.
h Even of them, which are of the ſame countrey, and the ſame town that you are of.
13 He preventeth an offence which might be taken, for that the Jews, eſpecially above all other, perſecuted the goſpel. That is no new thing, ſaith he, ſeeing, they ſlew Chriſt himſelf, and his prophets, and have baniſhed me alſo.
‡ Or, chaſed us out.
14 He foretelleth the utter deſtruction of the Jews, leſt any man ſhould be moved by their rebellion. i For the Jews would neither enter into the kingdome of God themſelves, nor ſuffer other to enter in. k Untill that wickednesſe of theirs which they have by inheritance as it were, of their fathers, be grown ſo great, that the meaſure of their iniquitie being filled, God may come forth to wrath. l The judgement of God being angrie, which indeed appeared ſhortly after in the deſtruction of the citie of Jeruſalem, whither many reſorted even out of divers provinces, when it was beſieged. 15 He meeteth with an objection, why he came not to them ſtraightwayes being in ſo great miſerie, I deſired oftentimes (ſaith he) and it lay not in me, but Satan hindred my endeavours, and therefore I ſent Timothie my faithfull companion unto you, becauſe you are moſt dear to me. m Were kept aſunder from you, and as it were orphanes. ‡ Or, glorying.

Chap. III.

1 Saint Paul teſtifieth his great love to the Theſſalonians: partly by ſending Timothie unto them to ſtrengthen and comfort them; partly by rejoycing in their well-doing: 10 and partly by praying for them, and deſiring a ſafe coming unto them.

WHerefore when we could no longer forbear, we thought it good to be left at Athens alone:

2 And ſent Timotheus our brother and miniſter of God, and our fellow-labourer in the goſpel of Chriſt, to eſtabliſh you, and to comfort you concerning your faith:

3 That no man ſhould be moved by theſe afflictions: [1] for your ſelves know that we are appointed thereunto.

4 For verily when we were with you, we told you before, that we ſhould ſuffer tribulation, even as it came to paſſe, and ye know.

5 For this cauſe when I could no longer forbear, I ſent to know your faith, leſt by ſome means the tempter have tempted you, and our labour be in vain.

6 [2] But now when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and charity, and that ye have good remembrance of us alwayes, deſiring greatly to ſee us, as we alſo to ſee you:

7 Therefore, brethren, we were comforted over you in all our affliction and diſtreſſe by your faith:

8 For now we * [a] live, if ye ſtand faſt in the Lord.

9 For what thanks can we render to God again for you, for all the joy wherewith we joy for your ſakes before our God,

10 Night and day praying exceedingly that we might ſee your face, and might [b] perfect that which is lacking in your faith?

11 Now God himſelf and our Father, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt ‡ direct our way unto you.

12 [3] And the Lord make you to increaſe and abound in love one towards another, and towards all men, even as we do towards you:

13 To the end he may eſtabliſh your hearts unblameable in holineſſe before God even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt with all his ſaints.

1 The will of God, who calleth him on this condition, to bring them to glory by affliction, is a moſt ſure remedy againſt all afflictions.

2 Becauſe they have hitherto gone ſo well forward, he exhorteth them again to make an end of the reſt of the journey, ſeeing that therein alſo they ſhall do him, their apoſtle, a great pleaſure.

* Rom. 7, 9.
a For now you cannot otherwiſe think me ſafe and in good caſe, unleſſe you go forward in religion and faith.

b Paul was conſtrained through the importunate dealing of the enemies, to leave the building which he had ſcarce begun: And for that cauſe he had left Silas and Timotheus in Macedonia, and when Timothie came to Athens to him, he ſent him back again ſtraightway. So that he deſireth to ſee the Theſſalonians, that he may throughly accomplish their faith and religion, that was as yet imperfect. ‡ Or, guide. 3 Another part of the epiſtle, wherein he ſpeaketh of the duties of a Chriſtian life. And he ſheweth that the perfection of a Chriſtian life, conſiſteth in two things, to wit, in charitie toward all men, and inward puritie of the heart, the accomplishment whereof notwithſtanding is deferred to the next coming of Chriſt, who will then perfit his work by the ſame grace wherewith he begun it in us.

Chap. IIII.

He exhorteth them to go on forward in all manner of godlineſſe, 6 to live holily and juſtly, 9 to love one another, 11 and quietly to follow their own buſineſſe: 13 and laſt of all to ſorrow moderately for the dead. 17 And unto this laſt exhortation is annexed a brief deſcription of the reſurrection, and ſecond coming of Chriſt to judgement.

FUrthermore [1] then we ‡ beſeech you, brethren, and ‡ exhort you by the Lord Jeſus, that as ye have received of us how you ought to walk, and to pleaſe God, ſo ye would [a] abound more and more.

2 For ye know what commandments we gave you, by the Lord Jeſus.

3 [2] For this is the will of God, even your [b] ſanctification, that ye ſhould abſtain from fornication:

4 [3] That every one of you ſhould know how to poſſeſſe his veſſel in ſanctification and honour:

5 [4] Not in the luſt of concupiſcence, even as the Gentiles which know not God.

6 [5] That no man go beyond and ‡ defraud his brother ‡ in any matter, becauſe that the Lord is the avenger of all ſuch, as we alſo have forewarned you, and teſtified.

7 For God hath not called us unto uncleanneſſe, but unto holineſſe.

8 He therefore that ‡ [c] deſpiſeth, deſpiſeth not man, but God, who hath alſo given unto us his holy Spirit.

9 [6] But as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you: for ye your ſelves are taught of God to love one another.

10 And indeed ye do it towards all the brethren, which are in all Macedonia: but we beſeech you, brethren, that ye increaſe more and more:

12 That ye may walk honeſtly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack ‡ of nothing.

13 [9] But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, [10] concerning them which [11] are

1 Divers exhortations, the ground whereof is this, to be mindfull of thoſe things which they have heard of the apoſtle.
‡ Or, requeſt.
‡ Or, beſeech.
a That ye labour to excell more and more, and daily paſſe your ſelves.
2 This is the ſumme of thoſe things which he delivered them, to dedicate themſelves wholly, to God. And he condemneth plainly all filthineſſe through luſt, becauſe it is altogether contrary to the will of God.
b Look John 17, 17.
3 Another reaſon, becauſe it defileth the body.
4 The third, becauſe the ſaints are diſcerned from them which know not God by honeſtie and puritie.
5 Secondly, he reprehendeth all violent oppreſſion, and immoderate deſire, and ſheweth moſt ſeverally, as the prophet of God, that God will revenge ſuch wickednesſe.
‡ Or, oppreſſe or overreach.
‡ Or, in the matter.
‡ Or, rejecteth.
c Theſe commandements which I gave you.
6 Thirdly, he requireth a readie minde to all maner of loving kindneſſe, and exhorteth them to profite more and more in that vertue.
7 He condemneth unquiet brains, and ſuch as are and ſlothfulneſſe, which vices whoſoever are given unto, fall in other wickednesſe, to the great offence of the church. ‡ Or, of no man. 9 The third part of the epiſtle, which is interlaced among the former exhortations (which he returneth unto afterward) wherein he ſpeaketh of mourning for the dead, and the manner of the reſurrection, and of the latter day. 10 We muſt take heed that we do not immoderately bewail the dead, that is, as they uſe to do which think that they are utterly periſhed. 11 A confirmation: for death is but a ſleep of the body (for he ſpeaketh of the faithfull) untill the Lord cometh.

aſleep,

190 asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope.

14 [12] For if we beleeve that Jesus died, and rose again, even so them also which sleep in [d] Jesus, will God [e] bring with him.

15 [13] For this we say unto you by the [f] word of the Lord, that [g] we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which are asleep.

16 For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a [h] shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first.

17 Then we which are alive, and remain, shall be [i] caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the aire: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

18 Wherefore, ‡ comfort one another with these words.

12 A reason of the confirmation, for seeing that the head is risen, the members also shall rise, and that by the vertue of God.
d They die in Christ, which continue in faith, whereby they are graffed into Christ, even to the last gasp.
e Will call their bodies out of their grave, and joyn their souls to them again.
13 The manner of the resurrection shall be thus: The bodies of the dead shall be as it were raised out of sleep at the sound of the trumpet of God, Christ himself shall descend from heaven. The saints (for he speaketh properly of them) which shall then be found alive, together with the dead which shall rise shall be taken up into the clouds to meet the Lord, and shall be in perpetuall glory with him f In the name of the Lord, as though he himself spake unto you.
g He speaketh of these things, as though he should be one of them, whom the Lord shall finde alive at his coming, because that time is uncertain: and therefore every one of us ought to be in such a readinesse, as if the Lord were coming at every moment.
h The word which the apostle useth here, signifieth properly that incouragement which mariners use one to another, when they altogether, with one shout put forth their oars and row together.
i Suddenly and in the twinkling of an eye.
‡ Or, exhort.

CHAP. V.

1 He proceedeth in the former description of Christs coming to judgement, 16 and giveth divers precepts, 23 and so concludeth the epistle.

BUt [1] of the times & the [a] seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you.

2 For your selves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night.

3 For when they shall say, Peace and safety: then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with childe; and they shall not escape.

4 [2] But ye, brethren, are not in darkenesse, that that day should overtake you as a thief.

5 Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkenesse.

6 Therefore let us not sleep as do others: but let us watch and be sober.

7 For they that sleep, sleep in the night, and they that be drunken, are drunken in the night.

8 [3] But let us who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breast-plate of faith and love, and for an helmet, the hope of salvation.

9 [4] For God hath not appointed us to wrath: but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ.

1 The day that God hath appointed for this judgement, we know not: But this is sure that it shall come upon men when they look for nothing lesse.
a Luke Acts 1, 7.

2 Returning to exhortations he warneth us which are lightened with the knowledge of God, that it is our durie not to live securely in deliciousnesse, lest we be suddenly taken in a dead sleep in pleasures: but contrariwise to have an eye to the Lord, and not suffer our selves to be oppressed with the cares of this world, for that is meet for the darkenesse of the night, and this for the light.
3 We must fight with faith and hope, much lesse ought we lie carelessly snorting.
4 He pricketh us forwards by setting most certain hope of victory before us.

10 [5] Who died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him.

11 [6] Wherefore ‡ comfort your selves together, and edifie one another, even as also ye do.

12 [7] And we beseech you, brethren, to [b] know them which labour among you, & are over you in the [c] Lord, and admonish you;

13 And to esteem them very highly in love [d] for their works sake. And [8] be at peace among your selves.

14 [9] Now we ‡ exhort you, brethren, warn them that are ‡ [e] unruly, comfort the feeble-minded, support the weak, be patient toward all men.

15 [10] See that none render evil for evil unto any man: but ever follow that which is good, both among your selves, and to all men.

16 [11] Rejoyce evermore.

17 Pray without ceasing.

18 In every thing give thanks: for this is the [f] will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you.

19 [12] Quench not the spirit.

20 Despise not [g] propheſyings.

21 Prove all things: hold fast that which is good.

22 [13] Abstain from all [h] appearance of evil.

23 And the very God of peace [i] sanctifie you wholly: and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blamelesse unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

24 [14] [k] Faithfull is he that calleth you, who also will [l] do it.

25 [15] Brethren, pray for us.

26 Greet, all the brethren with an holy kisse.

27 I ‡ charge you by the Lord, that this epistle be read unto all the holy brethren.

28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

¶ The first epistle unto the Thessalonians, was written from Athens.

5 The death of Christ is a pledge of our victory, for therefore he died, that we might be partakers of his life or vertue, yea even whiles we live here.
6 We must not onely watch our selves, but we are also bound to stir up and confirm one another.
‡ Or, exhort.
7 We must have great consideration of them which are appointed to the ministery of the word, and government of the church by God, and do their duty.
b That you acknowledge and take them for such as they are, that is to say, men worthy to be greatly accompted of among you.
c In those things which pertain to Gods service: so is the ecclesiasticall function distinguished from civill authoritie, and true shepherds from wolves.
d So then where this causeceaseth, there must the honour cease.
8 The maintenance of mutuall concord, is especially to be looked unto.
9 We must have consideration of every man, and as the disease is, so must the remedie be used.
‡ Or, beseech.
‡ Or, disorderly.
e That keep not their rank or standing.
10 Charitie ought not to be overcome with any injuries.
11 A quiet and appeased minde, is nourished with continual prayers, respecting the will of God.
f An acceptable thing to God, and such as he liketh well of.
12 The sparks of the Spirit of God that are kindled in us, are nourished with daily hearing the word of God: but true doctrine must be diligently distinguished from false.
g The expounding of the word of God.
13 A generall conclusion, that we waiting for the coming of Christ, do give our selves to pureneſſe, both in minde, will, and body, through the grace and strength of the Spirit of God.
h What soever hath but the very shew of evil, abstain from it.
i Separate you from the world, and make you holy to himself through his spirit, in Christ, in whom onely you shall attain unto that true peace.
14 The good will and power of God is a sure confirmation against all difficulties, whereof we have a sure witnesse in our vocation.
k Alwayes one and ever like himself, who performeth indeed whatsoever he promiseth: and an effectuall calling is nothing else but a right declaring and true setting forth of Gods will: and therefore the salvation of the elect, is safe and sure.
l Who will also make you perfect.
15 The last part of the epistle, wherein with most wightie charge he commendeth both himself and the epistle unto them.
‡ Or, adjure.

THE

The second epistle of PAUL the apostle, TO THE THESSALONIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 Saint Paul certifieth them of the good opinion which he had of their faith, love, and patience: and therewithall useth divers reasons for the comforting of them in persecution, whereof the chiefest is taken from the righteous judgement of God.

PAul and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Thessalonians, in God our Father, and the LORD Jesus Christ;

2 Grace unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

1 The first part of the epistle, wherein he rejoyceth that through the grace of God, they have manfully sustained all the assaults of their enemies, wherein he confirmeth them: moreover shewing with what gifts they must chiefly fight, to wit, with faith and charitie, which must daily increase.

3 [1] We are bound to thank God alwayes for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith [a] groweth exceedingly, and the charity of every one of you all towards each other aboundeth:

a That whereas it grew up before, it doeth also receive some increase every day more and more.

4 So that we our selves glory in you in the churches of God, for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye endure.

2 He openeth the fountain of all true comfort, to wit, that in afflictions which we suffer of the wicked for righteousnesse sake, we may behold as it were in a glas the testimonie of that judgement to come, and the end thereof most acceptable to us, and most sharp to his enemies.

5 [2] Which is a manifest token of the righteous judgement of God, that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdome of God, for which ye also suffer.

3 A proof: God is just, therefore he will worthily punish the unjust, and will do away the miseries of his people.

6 [3] Seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you.

7 And to you who are troubled, [4] rest with us, [5] when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven, with † his mighty angels.

8 In flaming fire, ‡ taking vengeance on them [6] that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power:

10 When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that beleeve ([7] because our testimonie among you was beleeved) in that day.

11 [8] Wherefore also we pray alwayes for you, that our God would ‡ count you [b] worthy of this calling, and fulfill all the [c] good pleasure of his goodnesse, and the [d] work of faith with power.

12 That the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you, and ye in him, according to the grace of our God, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

c Which he determined long since, onely upon his gracious and mercifull goodnesse toward you.

d So then, faith is an excellent work of God in us: and we see here plainly that the apostle leaveth nothing to free will, to make it check-mate with Gods working therein, as the papists dream.

CHAP. II.

1 He willeth them to continue stedfast in the truth received, 3 sheweth that there shall be a departure from the faith, 9 and a discovery of Antichrist, before the day of the Lord come. 15 And thereupon repeateth his former exhortation, and prayeth for them.

NOw [1] we beseech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by our [a] gathering together unto him,

1 The second part of the epistle, containing an excellent prophecie of the state of the church, which shall be from the apostles time unto the latter day of judgement.

a If we think earnestly upon that unmeasurable glory, which we shall be partakers of with Christ, it will be an excellent remedie for us against wavering and impatience, so that neither the glistering of the world shall allure us, nor the dreadfull sight of the crosse dismay us.

2 [2] That ye be not soon shaken in minde, or be troubled, neither by [b] spirit, nor by [c] word, nor by [d] letter, as from us, as that the day of Christ is at hand.

2 We must take heed of false prophets, especially in this matter, which go about to deceive, and that for the most part, after three sorts: for either they brag of fained propheticall revelations, or they bring conjectures and reasons of their own, or use counterfeit writings.

3 Let no man deceive you by any means: [3] for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and [e] that man of sinne be revealed, the sonne of perdition:

4 Who opposeth and [f] exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped: [4] so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God.

5 [5] Remember ye not, that when I was yet with you, I told you these things?

6 And now ye know [g] what ‡ withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time.

7 [6] For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: [7] onely he who now [h] letteth, will let, untill he be taken out of the way.

8 [8] And then shall [i] that wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall [k] consume with the [l] spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightnesse of his coming:

b By dreams and fables, which men pretend to be spirituall revelations. c Either by word of mouth, or by books written. d Either by forged letter, or falsly glosed upon. 3 The apostle foretelleth that before the coming of the Lord, there shall be a throne set up clean contrarie to Christs glory, wherein that wicked man shall sit, and transferre all things that appertain to God, to himself, and many shall fall away from God to him. e By speaking of one, he pointeth out the body of the tyrannous and persecuting church. f All men know who he is that saith he can shut up heaven and open it at his pleasure, and took upon him to be Lord and Master above all kings and princes, before whom kings and princes fall down and worship, honouring that Antichrist as a god. 4 He foretelleth that Antichrist (that is, whosoever he be that shall occupy that seat that falleth away from God) shall not reigne without the church, but in the very bosom of the church. 5 This prophecie was continually declared to the ancient church, but it was neglected of them that followed. g What hindereth and stayeth, ‡ Or, holdeth. 6 Even in the apostles time the first foundation of the apostaticall seat was laid, but yet so that they deceived men. 7 He foretelleth, that when the empire of Rome is taken away, the seat that falleth away from God, shal succeed and hold his place, as the old writers. Tertullian, Chrysostome and Hierome do expound it. h He which is now in authoritie, and ruleth all, to wit, the Romane empire. 8 That wicked nesse shall at length be detected by the word of the Lord, and shall utterly be abolished by Christs coming. i Word for word, that lawlesse fellow that is to say, he that shall tread Gods law clean under foot. k Bring to nought. l With his word, for the true ministers of the word are as a mouth, whereby the Lord breatheth out that mightie & everlasting word, which shal break his enemies in sunder, as it were an iron rod

5 A most glorious description of the second coming of Christ, to be set against all the miseries of the godly, and the triumphs of the wicked. † Gr. the angels of his power. ‡ Or, yielding. 6 There is no knowledge of God unto salvation, without the gospel of Christ. 7 The children of God shall be counted by the faith which they have in the gospel, which is preached unto them by the apostles. 8 Seeing that we have the mark set before us, it remaineth that we go unto it. And we go to it, by certain degrees of causes: first by the free love and good pleasure of God, by vertue whereof all other inferiour causes work: from thence proceedeth the free calling to Christ, and from calling, faith, wereupon followeth both the glorifying of Christ in us, and us in Christ. ‡ Or, vouchsafe. b By (calling) he meaneth not the very act of calling, but that selfsame thing whereunto we are called, which is the glory of that heavenly kingdome.

9 He foretelleth, that Satan will beſtow all his might and power, and uſe all falſe miracles that he can to eſtabliſh that ſeat, and that with great ſucceſſe, becauſe the wickedneſſe of the world doeth ſo deſerve it: yet ſo, that onely the unfaithfull ſhall perish through his deceit.

9 [9] Even him whoſe coming is after the working of Satan, with all power, and ſignes and [m] lying wonders,

10 And with all deceiveableneſſe of unrighteouſneſſe, in them that perish; becauſe they received not the love of the truth, that they might be ſaved.

11 And for this cauſe God ſhall ſend them [n] ſtrong deluſion, that they ſhould beleeve a lie:

12 That they all might be damned, who beleeved not the truth, but [o] had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſſe.

13 [10] But we are bound to give thanks alway to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, becauſe God hath from the beginning choſen you to ſalvation, through [p] ſanctification of the Spirit, and [q] belief of the truth, 14 Whereunto he called you by our [r] goſpel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

15 [11] Therefore brethren ſtand faſt, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word, or our epiſtle.

16 Now our Lord Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, and God even our Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlaſting conſolation, and good hope through grace, 17 Comfort your hearts, and ſtablish you in every good word and work.

m Which are partly falſe, and partly wrought to eſtabliſh a falſhood.
n A moſt mightie working to deceive them.
o They liked lyes ſo well, that they had pleaſure in them, which is the greateſt madneſſe that may be.
10 The elect ſhall ſtand ſteadfaſt and ſafe from all their miſchiefs. Now election is known by theſe teſtimonies: faith is gathered by ſanctification: faith by that that we accord unto the truth: truth by calling, through the preaching of the goſpel: from whence wecome at length to a certain hope of glorification.
p To ſanctifie you.
q Faith which layeth hold not upon lies, but upon the truth of God, which is the goſpel. r By our preaching 11 The concluſion: It remaineth then that we continue in the doctrine which was delivered unto us by the mouth and writings of the apoſtles, through that free good will of God, which comforteth us with an invincible hope, and alſo in all godlineſſe our whole life long.

Chap. III.

He craveth their prayers for himſelf. 3 teſtifieth what confidence he hath in them. 5 maketh requeſt to God in their behalf. 6 giveth them divers precepts, eſpecially to ſhun idleneſſe and ill company. 16 And laſt of all, concludeth with prayer and ſalutation.

1 He addeth now conſequently according to his manner, divers admonitions: The firſt of them is, that they make prayers for the increaſe and free paſſage of the goſpel, and for the ſafetie of the faithfull miniſters of the ſame.
† Gr. may run.
† Gr. abſurd.
a Which have no care of their duty.
2 It is no marvell that the goſpel is hated of ſo many, ſeeing that faith is a rare gift of God. Notwithſtanding the church ſhall never be deſtroyed by the multitude of the wicked, becauſe it is grounded and ſtayed upon the faithfull promiſe of God. b From Satans ſnares, or from evil. 3 The ſecond admonition is, that they follow alwayes the doctrine of the apoſtles as a rule for their life.

FInally, [1] brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord † may have free courſe, and be glorified even as it is with you:

2 And that we may be delivered from †[a] unreaſonable and wicked men: [2] for all men have not faith.

3 But the Lord is faithfull, who ſhall ſtablish you, and keep you from [b] evil.

4 [3] And we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do and will do the things which we command you.

5 [4] And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into ‡ the patient waiting for Chriſt.

6 [5] Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that ye withdraw your ſelves from every brother that walketh diſorderly, and not after the tradition which he received of us.

7 [6] For your ſelves know how ye ought to follow us, for we behaved not our ſelves diſorderly among you,

8 Neither did we eat any mans bread for nought: but wrought with labour and travell night and day, that we might not be chargeable to any of you.

9 Not becauſe we have not power, but to make our ſelves an enſample unto you to follow us.

10 For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, [c] neither ſhould he eat.

11 For we heare that there are ſome which walk among you [7] diſorderly, working not at all, but are [8] buſie-bodies.

12 [9] Now them that are ſuch we command, and exhort by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that with quietneſſe they work, and eat their own bread.

13 [10] But ye, brethren, † be not weary in well doing.

14 [11] And if any man obey not our word ‡ by this epiſtle, note that man, and have no [12] company with him, that he may be [13] aſhamed.

15 [14] Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother.

16 [15] Now the Lord of peace himſelf give you peace alwayes, by all means. The Lord be with you all.

17 [16] The ſalutation of Paul with mine own hand, which is the token in every epiſtle: ſo I write.

18 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. Amen.

¶ The ſecond epiſtle to the Theſſalonians was written from Athens.

4 Thirdly, he diligently and earneſtly admoniſheth them of two things which are given us by the onely grace of God, to wit, of charitie, and a watchfull minde to the coming of Chriſt.
‡ Or, the patience of Chriſt.
5 Fourthly, he ſaith, that idle and lazie perſons ought not to be relieved of the church, nay, that they are not to be ſuffered.
6 Leſt he might ſeem to deal hardly with them, he ſetteth forth himſelf for an example, who beſides his travell in preaching, laboured with his hands, which he ſaith he was not ſimply bound to do.
c What ſhall we do then with thoſe idle bellied monks and ſacrificing prieſts? A monk (ſaith Socrates, book 8. of the Tripartite hiſtorie) which worketh not with his hands, is like a thief.
7 How great a fault idleneſſe is, he declareth by that, that God created no man in vain, or to no purpoſe, neither is there any unto whom he hath not allotted, as it were a certain ſtanding and room. Whereupon it followeth, that the order which God hath appointed, is troubled by the idle, yea broken, which is great ſin and wickednеſſe.
8 He reprehendeth a vice, which is joyned with the former, whereupon follow an infinite ſort of miſchiefs: to wit, that there are none more buſie in others mens matters than they which neglect their own.
9 The Lord commandeth and the apoſtles pray in the name of Chriſt, firſt, that no man be idle, and next, that every man do quietly and carefully ſee to do his dutie in that office and calling wherein the Lord hath placed him. 10 We muſt take heed, that ſome mens unworthineſſe cauſe us not to be ſlacker in well doing. † Or, faint not. 11 Excommunication is a puniſhment for the obſtinate. ‡ Or, ſignifie that man by an epiſtle. 12 We muſt have no familiaritie nor fellowship with the excommunicate. 13 The end of excommunication is not the deſtruction, but the ſalvation of the ſinner, that at leaſt through ſhame he may be driven to repentance. 14 We muſt ſo eſchew familiaritie with the excommunicate, that we diligently ſeek all occaſions and means that may be, to bring them again into the right way. 15 Prayers are the ſeals of all exhortations. 16 The apoſtle ſubſcribeth his letter with his own hands that falſe letters might not be brought and put in place of true.

The first Epistle of PAUL the Apostle, TO TIMOTHIE.

CHAP. I.

1 Timothie is put in minde of the charge which was given unto him by Paul, at his going to Macedonia. 5 Of the right use and end of the law. 11 Of saint Pauls calling to be an apostle, 20 and of Hymeneus and Alexander.

1 PAul [1] an apostle of Jesus Christ by the commandment of God our Saviour, and Lord Jesus Christ, which is our hope;

2 Unto Timothie, my own sonne in the faith: grace, [a] mercy and peace from God our Father, and Jesus Christ our Lord.

3 [2] As I besought thee to abide still at Ephesus when I went into Macedonia, that thou mightest charge some that they teach no o-other doctrine,

4 [3] Neither give heed to fables, and endlesse [b] genealogies, which minister questions, rather than edifying, which is in faith: so do.

5 [4] Now the end of the [c] commandment is [d] charity, out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned:

6 [5] From which some [‡] having swerved, have turned aside unto vain jangling;

7 [6] Desiring to be teachers of the law, understanding neither what they say, nor whereof they affirm.

8 [7] But we know that the law is good, if a man use it lawfully.

9 [8] Knowing this, that the law is not made for a [e] righteous man, but for the lawlesse and disobedient, for the ungodly and for [f] sinners, for unholy and profane, for murderers of fathers, and murderers of mothers, for manslayers,

10 For whoremongers, for them that defile themselves with mankinde, for men-stealers, for liars, for perjured persons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to sound doctrine,

11 [9] According to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, [10] which was committed to my trust.

12 [11] And I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who hath [g] enabled me: for that he counted me faithfull, putting me into the ministery, 13 Who was before a [h] blasphemer, and a persecuter, and injurious. But I obtained mercie, because I did it ignorantly, in unbelief.

14 And the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant, with [12] faith, and love which is in Christ Jesus.

15 [13] This is a [i] faithfull saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief.

16 Howbeit, for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might shew forth all long-suffering, for a pattern to them which should hereafter beleeve on him to life everlasting.

17 [14] Now unto the king eternall, immortall, invisible, the [k] onely wise God, be honour and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

18 [15] This charge I commit unto thee, sonne Timothie, according to the propheſies which went before on thee, that thou by [l] them mightest warre a good warfare:

19 Holding faith, [m] and a good conscience, [16] which some having put away, concerning faith have made shipwrack.

20 Of whom is Hymeneus and Alexander, [17] whom I have [n] delivered unto Satan, that they may [o] learn not to blaspheme.

1 First of all he avoucheth his own free vocation and also Timothies, that the one might be confirmed by the other: and therewithall he declareth the sum of the apostolicall doctrine, to wit, the mercie of God in Christ Jesus, apprehended by faith, the end whereof is yet hoped for.

a There is as much difference betwixt mercie and grace, as is betwixt the effect and the cause: for grace is that free good will of God, whereby he chose us in Christ, and mercie is that free justification which followeth it.

2 This whole epistle consisteth in admonitions, wherein all the duties of a faithfull pastour are lively set out. And the first admonition is this, that no innovation be made either in the apostles doctrine it self, or in the manner of teaching it.

3 The doctrine is corrupted not only by false opinions, but also by vain and curious speculations: the declaration and utterance whereof can nothing help our faith.

b He noteth out one kinde of vain questions.

4 The second admonition, is that the right use and practise of the doctrine must be joyned with the doctrine. And that consisteth in pure charitie, and a good conscience, and true faith.

c Of the law. d There is neither love without a good conscience, nor a good conscience without faith, nor faith without the word of God. 5 That which he spake before generally of vain and curious controversies, he applyeth to them which presending a zeal of the law, dwelled upon outward things, and never made an end of babling of foolish trifles. ‡ Or, not aiming at. 6 There are none more unlearned, and more impudent in usurping the name of holinesse, than foolish sophisticall barblers. 7 The taking away of an objection: He condemneth not the law, but requireth the right use and practise of it. 8 He indeed escapeth the curse of the law, and therefore doeth not abhorre it, who fleeing and eschewing those things which the law condemneth, giveth himself withall his heart, to observe it: and not he that maketh a vain babling of outward and curious matters. e And such a one is he whom the Lord hath endued with true doctrine, and with the Holy Ghost. f To such as make an art, as it were, of sinning. 9 He setteth against fond and vain babling, not only the law, but the gospel also, which condemneth not, but greatly commendeth the wholesom doctrine contained in the commandements of God, and therefore he calleth it a glorious gospel, and the gospel of the blessed God, the vertue whereof these barblers knew not. 10 A reason why neither any other gospel is to be taught than he hath taught in the church, neither after any other sort, because there is no other gospel beside that, which God committed to him.

11 He maintaineth of necessitie his apostleship against some that did carp at his former life, debasing himself even to hell, to advance Christs only mercie, wherewith he abolished all those his former doings.

g Which gave me strength, not onely when I had no will to do well, but also when I was wholly given to evil.

h These are the preparative works which Paul braggeth of.

12 He proveth this change by the effects, for that, that he that was a profane man, is become a beleever: and he that did most outragiously persecute Christ, burneth now in love toward him.

13 He turneth the reproach of the adversaries upon their own heads, shewing that this singular example of the goodnesse of God, redoundeth to the commoditie of the whole church.

i Worthy to be beleeved.

14 He breaketh out into an exclamation, even for very zeal of mind for that he cannot satisfie himself in amplifying the grace of God. k Look John. 17, 3. 15 The conclusion of both the former fatherly admonitions, to wit, that Timothie striving manfully against all lets, being called to the ministerie according to many prophecies which went before of him, should both maintain the doctrine which he had received, and keep also a good conscience. l By the help of them. m Wholesom and sound doctrine. 16 Whosoever keep not a good conscience, do lose also by little and little the gift of understanding: which he proveth by two most lamentable examples. 17 Such as fall from God, and his religion, are not to be suffered in the church, but rather ought to be excommunicated. n Cast out of the church, and so delivered them to Satan. o That by their smart they might learn what it is to blaspheme.

CHAP. II.

1 That it is meet to pray and give thanks for all men, and the reason why. 9 How women should be attired. 12 They are not permitted to teach. 15 They shall be saved notwithstanding the testimonies of Gods wrath in childebirth, if they continue in faith.

1 I [1] Exhort therefore, that first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men:

2 For kings, and for all that are in [‡] authority, [2] that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godlinesse and [a] honesty.

‡ Or, degree.

1 Having dispatched those things which pertain to doctrin, he speaketh now in the second place of the other part of the ministerie of the word, to wit, of publike prayers.

And first of all, declaring this question for whom we ought to pray: he teacheth that we must pray for all men, and especially, for all manner of magistrates, which thing was at that time somewhat doubted of, seeing that kings, yea, and the most part of magistrates were at that time enemies of the church. 2 Or, eminent place. 2 An argument taken of the end: to wit, because that magistrates are appointed to this end, that men might peaceably and quietly live in all godlinesse and honestie, and therefore must we commend them especially to God, that they may faithfully execute so necessarie an office. a This word containeth all kinde of duty which is to be used amongst men in all their affairs.

3 Another argument, why churches or congregations ought to pray for all men, without any difference of nation, kind, age, or order, to wit, because the Lord by calling of all sorts, yea, sometime those that are greatest enemies to the gospel, will have his church gathered together after this sort, & therefore prayers to be made for all.
4 God should not else be manifested to be the onely God of all men, unlesse he should shew his goodnesse in saving of all sorts of men: neither should Christ be seen to be the only Mediatour between God and all sorts of men, by having taken upon him the nature of man which is common to all men, unlesse he had satisfied for all sorts of men, and made intercession for all.
b Christ Jesus which was made man.
‡ Or, a testimonie.
5 A confirmation, because that even to the gentiles is the secret of salvation now opened and made manifest, the apostle himself being appointed properly to this office, which he doth faithfully and sincerely execute. c Faithfully and sincerely: and by faith he meaneth wholesom and sound doctrine, and by truth, an upright and sincere handling of it. 6 He hath spoken of the persons for whom we must pray: and now he teacheth, that the difference of place is taken away: for in times past, one only nation, and in one certain place, came together to publike service: but now churches or congregations are gathered together every where, (orderly and decently) and men come together to serve God publikly with common prayer, neither must we strive for the nation, or for the purification of the body, or for the place, but for the minde to have it clean from all offence, and full of sure trust and confidence. d He putteth the signe for the thing it self, the lifting up of hands for the calling upon God. e Without these griefs and offences of the minde, which hinder us from calling upon God with a good conscience. f Doubting which is against faith, James 1, 6. 7 Thirdly, he appointeth women to learn in the publike assemblies with silence and modestie, being comely apparelled, without any riot or excesse in their apparell. ‡ Or, plaited. § The first argument. Why it is not lawfull for women to teach in the congregation, because by this means they should be placed above men, for they should be their masters: which is against God's ordinance. 9 He proveth this ordinance of God, whereby the woman is subject to man, first by that that God made the woman after man, for mans sake. 10 Then, because that after sin, God enjoyned the women this punishment, for that the man was deceived by her. g Adam was deceived, but through his wives meanes, and therefore she is worthily for this cause subject to her husband, and ought so to be. 11 He addeth a comfort by the way, that their subjection hindereth not, but that women may be saved as well as men, if they behave themselves in those burdens of marriage holily and modestly, with faith and charitie.

3 [3] For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour: 4 Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth.
5 [4] For there is one God, and one mediatour between God and men, the [b] man Christ Jesus.
6 Who gave himself a ransome for all, ‡ [5] to be testified in due time.
7 Whereunto I am ordained a preacher, and an apostle, (I speak the truth in Christ, and lie not) a teacher of the Gentiles in [c] faith and verity.
8 [6] I will therefore that men pray every where, [d] lifting up holy hands, without [e] wrath and [f] doubting.
9 [7] In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparell, with shamefastnesse and sobriety: not with ‡ broidred hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly aray; 10 But (which becometh women professing godlinesse) with good works.
11 Let the women learn in silence with all subjection.
12 But I suffer not a woman to teach, [8] nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence.
13 [9] For Adam was first formed, then Eve.
14 [10] And Adam was not [g] deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression.
15 [11] Notwithstanding she shall be saved in childe-bearing, if they continue in faith and charity, and holinesse with sobriety.

CHAP. III.

How bishops and deacons, and their wives should be qualified, 14 and to what end S. Paul wrote to Timothy of these things. 15 Of the church, and the blessed truth, herein taught and professed.

1 Having dispatched the treatise, as well of doctrine and of the manner of handling of it, as also of publike prayer, he now in the third place cometh to the persons themselves, speaking first, of pastors, and afterward of deacons, and he useth a preface, that the church may know that these be certain and sure rules. 2 A bishoprick, or the ministerie of the word is not an idle dignitie, but a work, and that an excellent work, and therefore a bishop must be furnished with many vertues both at home and abroad. Wherefore it is requisite before he be chosen to examine well his learning, his gifts, and ableness, and his life. a He speaketh not here of ambitious seeking, in the which there cannot be a worse fault in the church, but generally of the minde and disposition of man, framed and disposed to help and edifie the church of God, when and wheresoever it shall please the Lord. b Therefore he that shutteth out married men from the office of bishops, onely because they are married, is antichrist.
‡ Or, modest. ‡ Or, not ready to quarrell and offer wrong, as one in wine. c A common tipler, and one that will sit by it.

THis [1] is a true saying, [2] If a man [a] desire the office of a bishop, he desireth a good work.
2 A bishop then must be blamelesse, the husband of [b] one wife, vigilant, sober, ‡ of good behaviour, given to hospitality, apt to teach; 3 ‡ Not [c] given to wine, no striker, not greedy of filthy lucre, but patient, not a brauler, not covetous;
4 One that ruleth well his own house, having his children in subjection with all gravity.
5 (For if a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?)
6 Not ‡ a novice, lest being lifted up with pride, he fall into the [d] condemnation of the devil.
7 Moreover, he must have a good report of them which are without, lest he fall into reproach, and the snare of the devil.
8 [3] Likewise must the [e] deacons be grave, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre.
9 Holding the [f] mystery of the faith in a pure conscience.
10 And let these also first be proved; then let them use the office of a deacon, being found blameless.
11 [4] Even so must their wives be grave, not slanderers, sober, faithfull in all things.
12 [5] Let the deacons be the husbands of one wife, ruling their children, and their own houses well.
13 For they that have ‡ used the office of a deacon well, purchase to themselves a good [g] degree, and [h] great boldnesse in the faith, which is in Christ Jesus.
14 [6] These things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee shortly.
15 But if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thy self in the [7] house of God, which is the church of the living God, the [i] pillar and ‡ ground of the truth.
16 [8] And without controversie, great is the mystery of godlinesse: God was manifest in the flesh, [k] justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, beleeved on in the world, received up into glory.

‡ Or, one newly come to the faith.
d Lest by reason that he is advanced to that degree, he take occasion to be proud, which will undo him, and so he fall into the same condemnation that the devil himself is fallen into.
3 Likewise the deacons must first be proved, that there may be a good trial of their honestie, truth, sobriety, minde void of covetousnesse, that they are well instructed in the doctrine of faith, and to be short, of their good conscience and integritie.
e These are they that had to see to the poore.
f The doctrine of the gospel, which is a mysterie indeed: for flesh and bloud do not reveal it.
4 Regard must be had also, to the pastours and deacons wives.
5 They that have more wives than one at one time, must neither be called to be ministers, nor to be deacons.
‡ Or, ministred.
g Honour and estimation.
h Bold and assured confidence without fear.
6 Paul purposing to adde many peculiar things pertaining to the daily office of a pastour, speaketh first a word or two concerning his coming to Timothie, that he should be so much the more carefull, lest at his coming he might be reproved of negligence. 7 The pastour hath alwayes to think, how that he is occupied in the house of the living God, wherein the treasure of the truth is kept. i To wit, in respect of men: for the church resteth upon that corner stone, Christ, and is the preserver of the truth, but not the mother. ‡ Or, stay. 8 There is nothing more excellent than this truth; whereof the church is the keeper and preserver here among men, the ministerie of the word being appointed to that end and purpose: for it teacheth us the greatest matters that may be thought of, to wit, that God is become visible in the person of Christ by taking our nature upon him, whose majestie notwithstanding in so great weaknesse was manifested many wayes, insomuch that the sight of it pierced the very angels, and to conclude, he being preached unto the gentiles, was received of them, and is now placed above in glory unspeakable. k The power of the Godhead shewed it self so marvellously in that weak flesh of Christ, that though he were a weak man, yet all the world knoweth he was, and is God.

CHAP. IIII.

He foretelleth that in the latter times there shall be a departure from the faith. 6 And to the end that Timothy might not fail in doing his duety, he furnisheth him with divers precepts belonging thereto.

NOw the [1] Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the [a] faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils:
2 [a] Speaking lies in [b] hypocrisie, having their [c] conscience seared with a hot iron:
3 [3] Forbidding to marry, and commanding,

1 He setteth against that true doctrine, false opinions, which he foretelleth, that certaine which shall fall away from God and his religion, shall bring in by the suggestion of Satan, and so that a great number shall give ear to them. a From the true doctrine of God. 2 Although heretickes counterfeit holinesse never so much, yet have they no conscience. b For they will, as it were, practise the art of disguised persons and players, that we may not think they will lie lurking in some one corner, or keep any resemblance of shamefastnesse. c Whose conscience waxed so hard, that there grew an hard fleshinesse over it, and so ease to have a canker in it, and now at length required of very necessitie to be burned with an hot iron. h He setteth down two kindes of this false doctrine, to wit, the law of sole life, and difference of meats.

to abstain from meats, * which God hath created [5] to be received [6] with thanksgiving of them which beleeve and know the truth.

4 [7] For every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving:

5 [8] For it [d] is sanctified by the [e] word of God, and prayer.

6 [9] If thou put the brethren in remembrance of these things, thou shalt be a good minister of Jesus Christ, nourished up in the words of faith, and of good doctrine, whereunto thou hast [f] attained.

7 [10] But refuse prophane and old wives fables, [11] and exercise thy self rather unto [g] godlinesse.

8 [12] For bodily exercise profiteth ‡ little, but godlinesse is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come.

9 [13] This is a faithfull saying, and worthy of all acceptation.

10 For therefore we both labour, and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the Saviour of all men, specially of those that beleeve.

11 These things command and teach.

12 [14] Let no man despise thy youth, but be thou an example of the beleevers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity.

13 [15] Till I come, give attendance to reading to exhortation, to doctrine.

14 Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by propheſie, with the laying on of the hands of the presbytery.

15 Meditate upon these things, give thy self wholly to them, that thy profiting may appeare ‡ to all.

16 Take heed unto thy self, and unto thy doctrine: continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both [h] save thy self, and them that heare thee.

3 [22] Honor widows that are widows indeed. 195

4 [1] But if any widow have children or nephews, let them learn first to shew ‡ piety at * home, and to [5] requite their parents: [6] for that is good and acceptable before God.

5 [7] Now she that is a widow indeed, and desolate, trusteth in God, and continueth in supplications and prayers night and day.

6 [8] But she that liveth ‡ in pleasure, is dead while she liveth.

7 And these things give in charge, that they be blamelesse.

8 But if any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own ‡ house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel.

9 [9] Let not a widow be ‡ taken into the number, under threescore yeares old, having been the wife of [b] one man,

10 Well reported of for good works, if she have brought up children, if she have lodged strangers, if she have [c] washed the saints feet, if she have relieved the afflicted, if she have diligently followed every good work.

11 [10] But the younger widows [d] refuse: for when they have begun to wax wanton against Christ, they will marry:

12 Having damnation, because they have cast off their first faith.

13 [11] And withall they learn to be idle, wandering about from house to house; and not onely idle, but tatlers also, and busie-bodies, speaking things which they ought not.

14 [12] I will therefore that the younger women marry, bear children, guide the house, give none occasion to the adversary ‡ to speak reproachfully.

15 For some are already turned aside after Satan.

16 [13] If any man or woman that beleeveth have widows, let them relieve them, and let not the church be charged; that it may relieve them that are widows indeed.

17 [14] Let the elders that rule well, be counted worthy of [e] double honour, [f] especially they who labour in the word and doctrine.

18 For the scripture saith, * Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn: and, * The labourer is worthy of his reward.

19 [15] Against an elder receive not an accusation, but ‡ before two or three witnesses.

20 [16] Them that sinne rebuke before all, that others also may fear.

21 [17] I charge thee before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect angels, that thou observe these things ‡ without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality.

4 He proveth that he justly called such doctrines devilish, first, because the teachers of them make lawes of things which are not their owne: for have they created the meats?
5 Secondly, because they overthrow with their decrees, the end wherefore they were created of God, to wit, that we should use them.
6 Thirdly, for that by this meanes they rob God of his glory, who will be honoured in the use of them. And herewithall, the apostle declareth, that we must use the liberality of God, soberly, and with a good conscience.
7 He setteth an apostolicall rule for taking away the difference of meats, against that false doctrine.
8 He useth Gods benefits rightly, which acknowledgeth the giver of them by his word, and calleth upon him.
d It is so made pure and holy in respect of us, so that we may use it with a good conscience, as received at the Lords hands.
e We confesse and acknowledge that God is the maker and giver of those creatures which we use, Secondly, that we are of the number of those, who through Christs benefit have recovered that right over all creatures, which Adam lost by his fall. Thirdly, by our prayers we crave of the Lord, that we may use those meats with a good conscience, which we receive at his hands. Fourthly, we make an end of our eating and drinking, with thanksgiving and prayer: and so are our meats sanctified to us. 9 The conclusion with an exhortation to Timothie, to propound these things diligently to the churches, which he had sucked of the apostle, even in a manner from the teat. f A great measure thereof 10 He setteth again true doctrine not onely against that false and apostatical doctrine, but also against all vain & curious subtilties. 11 It is not onely requisite that the minister of the word be sound in doctrine, but also that his life be godly and religious. g In the true serving of God. 12 Godlinesse consisteth in spirituall exercise, and not in outward austerenesse of life, which though it be something to be accounted of, if it be righly used, yet it is in no wise comparable with godlines. For it profiteth not of it self, but through the benefit of another, but this hath the promise both of the life present, and of that that is to come. ‡ Or, for a little time. 13 He goeth a little from his matter, and sheweth that they which give themselves to godlines, although they are afflicted and reproached, are not withstanding not to be counted miserable, as other men are, because they are not afflicted for that cause that other men are, and the end of them both is farre different one from the other. For how can God forsake his, which is bountifull, even toward his enemies? And he willeth that this doctrine be well beaten into their heads. 14 Now he returneth to that exhortation, shewing which are the true vertues of a pastour, whereby he may come to be reverenced, although he be but young, to wit, such speech and life as are wittnesses of charitie, zeal, faith, and puritie: but here is no mention made of the crosierstaff, ring, cloak, and such other foolish and childish toyes. 15 The private exercise of pastours is continuall reading of the scriptures, where out they may draw water of wholesome doctrine and exhortation, both to themselves and to other. ‡ Or, in all things. h Faith is by hearing, and hearing by preaching: and therefore the ministers of the word are so said to save themselves and other, for that in them the Lord hath put the word of reconciliation.

2 The apostle giveth these rules touching the care of widowes.
a Have care of those widowes which have need for help.
3 Widows children and nephewes must take care for their parents according to their abilitie.
‡ Or, kindnesse.
4 The first reason, because that that which they bestowed upon theirs, they bestow it upon themselves.
5 Another, because nature it self teacheth us to recompense our parents.
6 The third, because this dutifulnesse pleaseth God.
7 The second rule: Let the church have care of such as are widows indeed, that is to say, such as are poore and destitute of help of their own friends, and live godly and religiously.
8 The third rule: Let widows that live in pleasure, and neglect the care of their own family be holden and accounted as fallers away from God, and his religion, and worse than very infidels.
‡ Or, delicately.
‡ Or, kindred.
9 The fourth rule: Let none under threescore yeares old be taken into the number of widows, to serve the congregations or churches, and such as are free from all reproach of unchastitie, and are well reported of, for their diligence, charitie, and integritie.
‡ Or, chaste.
b That had no more husbands, but one at one time.
c This is spoken in respect of the manner of these countreys.
10 The first reason, why younger widows are not to be admitted to this ministerie, to wit, because for the lightnes of their ages they will at length shake off the burden that Christ hath laid upon them, and think rather upon marrying againe: and so will forsake the ministery whereunto they had bound themselves. d Take them not into the colledge of widows. 11 Another reason: because they are for the most parte prateres and busy bodies, and gadders up and down, neglecting their charge and duties
12 The first rule: Let yonger widows marrie and governe their houses godly. † Gr. for their raising. 13 The first rule: Let the faithfull help their widows at their own charges as much as they can, and let not the congregation be burdened with these expenses. 14 Now he giveth rules, and sheweth how he ought to behave himself with the elders, that is to say, with the pastours, and such as have the governance in the discipline of the church, which is president of their company. The first rule: Let the church or congregation see unto this especially, as God himself hath commanded, that the elders that do their dutie well, be honestly maintained.
e We must be more carefull for the rest. f There were two kinders of elders, the one attended upon the government onely, and looked to the manners of the congregation, the other did beside that attend upon preaching and prayers, to and for the congregation. * Deut. 25, 4. * Matt. 10, 10. 15 The second rule: Let no accusation be admitted against an elder, but under two or three witnesses. ‡ Or, under. 16 The third rule: Let the elders so convicted be rebuked openly, that they may be an example to other. 17 The fourth rule: Let sincerity be used without any prejudice or respect of persons in ecclesiasticall proceedings (especially against the elders) because God himself is there present, and the Lord Jesus Christ with a multitude of angels. ‡ Or, without prejudice.

1 Rules to be observed in reproving. 3 Of widows. 17 Of elders. 23 A precept for Timothies health. 24 Some mens sinnes go before unto judgement, and some mens do follow after.

1 Of keeping measure in private reprehensions, according to the degrees of ages and kindes.

REbuke [1] not an elder, but intreat him as a father, and the younger men as brethren:

2 The elder women as mothers, the younger as sisters, with all purity.

before another, doing nothing by partiality.

22 [18] Lay hands [g] ſuddenly on no man, neither be partaker of other mens ſinnes, keep thy ſelf pure.

18 The fift rule. Let the miniſter lay hands ſuddenly on no man: Let him not be faultie herein, either by favouring any mans folly, or perverſe affection: If ought be done otherwiſe than well of his fellowes, let him keep his conſcience pure.

23 [19] Drink no longer water, but uſe a little wine for thy ſtomacks ſake, and thine often infirmities.

g As much as in thee lieth, doe not rashly admit any whatſoever to any eccleſiaſticall function.

24 [20] Some mens ſinnes are open before hand, going before to judgement: and ſome men they follow after.

25 [21] Likewiſe alſo the good works of ſome are manifeſt before hand, and they that are otherwiſe cannot be hid.

19 The ſixt rule Let the elders have indifferent conſideration of their health, in the manner of their diet. 20 Becauſe hypocrites ſometimes creep into the miniſtery, although there be never ſo great diligence uſed, the apoſtle willeth the paſtours not to be troubled therefore, or ſlack any whit of their diligence in trying and examining, becauſe the Lord hath appointed a time to diſcover the faults of ſuch men, and it is our parts to take heed that we offend not therein. 21 Another comfort belonging to them, which ſometimes are ſlandered and miſreported of.

Chap. VI.

1 Of the duty of ſervants. 3 Not to have fellowship with newfangled teachers. 6 Godlineſſe is great gain. 10 And love of money the root of all evil. 11 What Timothy is to flee, and what to follow, 17 and whereof to admonish the rich. 20 To keep the purity of true doctrine, and to avoid profane janglings.

1 He addeth alſo rules for the ſervants dutie towards their maſters: whereupon no doubt there were many queſtions then moved by them, which took occaſion by the goſpel to trouble the common ſtate. And this is the firſt rule, Let ſervants that are come to the faith, and have infidels to their maſters, ſerve them notwithſtanding with great fidelitie.

LEt [1] as many ſervants as are under the yoke, count their own maſters worthy of all honour, [2] that the name of God, and his doctrine be not blaſphemed.

2 The reaſon left God ſhould ſeem by the doctrine of the goſpel to ſtirre up men to rebellion and all wickednesse.

2 [3] And they that have beleeving maſters, let them not deſpiſe them, becauſe they are brethren: but rather do them ſervice, becauſe they are ‡ faithfull and beloved, [a] partakers of the benefit. [4] Theſe things teach and exhort.

3 The ſecond rule, Let not ſervants that are come to the faith, and have alſo maſters of the ſame profeſſion and religion, abuſe the name of brotherhood, but let them ſo much the rather obey them.

3 [5] If any man teach otherwiſe, and conſent not to wholeſome words, even the words of our Lords Jeſus Chriſt, and to the doctrine which is according to godlineſſe:

‡ Or, beleeving.

4 He is ‡ proud, knowing nothing, but ‡ doting about queſtions and [b] ſtrifes of words, whereof cometh envy, ſtrife, railings, evil ſurmiſings, a Let this be ſufficient, that as touching thoſe things which pertain to everlaſting life, they are partakers of the ſame good will and love of God, as their maſters themſelves are. 4 A generall concluſion that theſe things ought not onely to be ſimply taught, but muſt with exhortations be diligently beaten into their heads. 5 He condemneth ſeverely, and excommunicateth or caſteth out of the church as proud men, ſuch as content not themſelves with Chriſts doctrine, (that is to ſay the doctrine of godlineſſe) but wearie both themſelves and other in vaine queſtions, (for all other things are vaine) becauſe they content not themſelves in Chriſts doctrine: and as lying deceivers, becauſe they ſavour or ſound of nothing but vanitie: as mad men becauſe they trouble themſelves ſo much in matters of nothing: as miſchievous plagues, for that they cauſe great contentions and corrupt mens mindes and judgement: to be ſhort, as prophane and wicked, becauſe they abuſe the precious name of godlineſſe and religion, to filthie lucre. ‡ Or, a fool. ‡ Or, ſick. b Striving about words, and not about matter: and by words he meaneth all thoſe things which have not pith in them, and whereby we can reap no profit. ‡ Or, gallings one of another. c Such as we ſee in thoſe ſhameleſſe ſchools of poperie, which are nothing elſe but vaine babling and and pratling. 6 He turneth away fitly the name of gaine and lucre, confeſſing that godlineſſe is great gaine, but farre afrer another ſort, to wit, becauſe it bringeth true ſufficiencie. 7 He mocketh their folly, which do ſo greedly gape after frail things, that they can in no wiſe be ſatisfied, and yet notwithſtanding they cannot enjoy that exceſſe.

5 He frayeth Timothie from covetouſneſſe after another ſort, to wit, becauſe it draweth with it an infinite ſort of luſts, and thoſe very hurtfull, wherewith covetous men do torment themſelves ſo farre forth, that in the end they caſt away from them their faith and ſalvation. ‡ Or, been ſeduced.

5 [6] But godlineſſe with contentment is great gain.

6 [7] For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out.

7 [8] And having food and raiment let us be therewith content.

8 [9] But they that will be rich, fall into temptation, and a ſnare, and into many foolish and hurtfull luſts, which drown men in deſtruction and perdition,

9 For the love of money is the root of all evil, which while ſome coveted after, they have ‡ erred from the faith, and [d] pierced themſelves through with many ſorrows.

d Sorrow and grief do as it were pierce through the mind of man, and are the harveſt and true fruits of covetouſneſſe.

10 [9] But thou, [c] O man of God, flee theſe things: and follow after righteouſneſſe, godlineſſe, faith, love, patience, meekneſſe.

9 A peculiar exhortation to divers vertues, wherewith it behoveth the paſtours eſpecially to be furniſhed.

11 Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternall life, whereunto thou art alſo called, and haſt profeſſed a good profeſſion before many witneſſes.

e Whom the Spirit of God ruleth.

12 [10] I give thee charge in the ſight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Chriſt Jeſus, who before Pontius Pilate witneſſed a good ‡ confeſſion.

10 A moſt earneſt requeſt and charge to obſerve and keep all the premiſſes faithfully, with our eyes ſet upon the coming of Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe glory we have to ſet againſt the vain gliſtering of this world, and his power againſt all the terrours of the wicked. ‡ Or, profeſſion.

13 That thou keep this commandment without ſpot, unrebukeable, untill the appearing of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

14 [11] Which in his times he ſhall ſhew, who is the [f] bleſſed and onely Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords:

f He heapeth many words together, to one purpoſe: whereby he voucheth the power of God, which if we ſtick faſt unto, we ſhall not be moved out of our ſtanding.

15 Who onely hath immortalitie, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto, whom no man hath ſeen, nor can ſee: to whom be honour and power everlaſting. Amen.

16 [12] Charge them that are rich in [g] this world, that they be not high-minded, nor truſt in † uncertain riches, but in the [h] living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy.

11 He addeth for an overplus, as it were, a ſharp admonition to the rich, that they chiefly take heed of two miſchiefs, to wit, of pride, and deceitfull hope, againſt which he ſetteth three excellent vertues, hope in the living God, liberalitie towards their neighbour, and gentle conditions.

17 That they do good, that they be rich in good works, readie to diſtribute, ‡ willing to communicate:

18 [13] Laying up in ſtore for themſelves a good foundation againſt the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternall life.

g In things pertaining to this life, with whom thoſe men are compared which are rich in good works.

† Gr. uncertaintie of riches.

19 [14] O Timothie, keep that which is committed to thy truſt, avoiding profane and vain bablings, and oppoſitions of ſcience, falſly ſo called:

20 Which ſome [i] profeſſing, have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee Amen.

h Who onely is, ‡ Or, ſociable.

¶ The firſt to Timothie was written from Laodicea, which is the chiefeſt citie of Phrygia Pacatiana.

and that everlaſting: for he ſetteth the frail nature of riches againſt God. 12 The praiſe of liberalitie, by the effects thereof: becauſe it is a ſure teſtimonie of the Spirit of God which dwelleth in us, and therefore of the ſalvation that ſhall be given us. 13 He rehearſeth the chiefeſt of all the former exhortations, which ought to be deeply imprinted in the mindes of all miniſters of the word, to wit, that they eſchew all vaine bablings of ſophiſtry, and continue in the ſimplicitie of ſincere doctrine. i Not onely in word, but alſo in countenance and geſture: to be ſhort, while their behaviour was ſuch, that even when they held their peace they would make men beleeve, their heads were occupied about nothing but high and weighty matters, even then they erred concerning the faith.

THE

The ſecond Epiſtle of PAUL the Apoſtle, TO TIMOTHIE.

CHAP. I.

Pauls love to Timothie, and the unfeigned faith which was in Timothie himſelf, his mother, and grandmother. 6 He is exhorted to ſtirre up the gift of God which was in him, 8 to be ſtedfaſt and patient in perſecution, 13 and to perſiſt in the form and truth of that doctrine which he had learned of him, 15 Phygellus and Hermogenes, and ſuch like are noted, and Oneſiphorus is highly commended.

PAul an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by the will of God [a] according to the promiſe of life, which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

2 To Timothie my dearly beloved ſonne: grace, mercie, and peace from God the Father, and Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

3 [1] I thank God, whom I ſerve from my [b] fore-fathers with pure conſcience, that without ceaſing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day:

4 Greatly deſiring to ſee thee, being mindfull of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy:

5 When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt firſt in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am perſwaded that in thee alſo.

6 [2] Wherefore I put thee in remembrance, that thou [c] ſtirre up the gift of God which is in thee, by the putting on of my hands.

7 For God hath not given us the ſpirit of [d] fear, but of power, of love, and of a ſound minde.

8 [3] Be not thou therefore aſhamed of the teſtimonie of our Lord, nor of me [e] his priſoner, but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the [f] goſpel, according to the [g] power of God:

9 [4] Who hath ſaved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpoſe and grace which was [h] given us in Chriſt Jeſus, [i] before the world began,

10 But is now made manifeſt by the appearing of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortalitie to [k] light, through the goſpel:

11 [5] Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, and an apoſtle, and a teacher of the Gentiles.

12 [6] For the which cauſe I alſo ſuffer theſe things; [7] neverthelеſſe I am not aſhamed, for I know whom I have ‡ beleeved, and I am perſwaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him againſt that day.

13 [8] Hold faſt the form of ſound words, which thou haſt heard of me, in faith and love which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

14 [9] That good thing which was committed unto thee, keep [10] by the Holy Ghoſt which dwelleth in us.

15 [11] This thou knoweſt, that all they which are in Aſia be turned away from me, of whom are Phygellus, and Hermogenes.

16 The Lord give mercy unto the houſe of Oneſiphorus, for he oft refreshed me, and was not aſhamed of my chain.

17 But when he was in Rome, he ſought me out very diligently, and found me.

18 The Lord grant unto him that he may finde mercy of the Lord in that day: and in how many things he miniſtred unto me at Epheſus, thou knoweſt very well.

a Sent of God to preach that life, which he promiſed in Chriſt Jeſus.

1 The chiefeſt mark that he ſhooteth at in this epiſtle, is to confirm Timothie to continue conſtantly, and manfully, even to the end, ſetting firſt before him the great good will he beareth him, and then reckoning up the excellent gifts which God would as it were have to be by inheritance in Timothie, and his anceſtors, which might ſo much the more make him bound to God.

b From Abraham Iſaac and Jacob: for he ſpeaketh not of Phariſaiſme, but of Chriſtianiſme.

2 He warneth us to ſet the invincible power of the Spirit, which God hath given us againſt thoſe ſtorms which may and do come upon us.

c The gift of God is as it were a certain lively flame kindled in our hearts, which the fleſh and the devil go about to put out: and therefore we on the contrary ſide, muſt labour as much as we can to foſter and keep it burning.

d To pierce us through, and terrifie us, as men whom the Lord will deſtroy.

3 He proveth that the ignominie or ſhame of the croſſe, is not onely not to be aſhamed of, but alſo that it is glorious and moſt honourable: firſt, becauſe the goſpel wherefore the godly are afflicted, is the teſtimonie of Chriſt: and ſecondly, becauſe at length the great vertue and power of God appeareth in them.

e For his ſake.

f The goſpel after a ſort is ſaid to be afflicted in them that preach it.

g Through the power of God.

4 He ſheweth with how great benefits God hath bound us, to maintain boldly and conſtantly his glory which is joyned with our ſalvation, and reckoneth up the cauſes of our ſalvation, to wit, that free and eternall purpoſe of God, to ſave us in Chriſt, which was to come, whereby it ſhould come to paſſe, that we ſhould at length be freely called of God by the preaching of the goſpel, to Chriſt the deſtroyer of death and author of immortalitie.

h He ſaith, that that grace was given us from everlaſting, unto which we were predeſtinate from everlaſting. So that the doctrine of foreſeen faith and foreſeen works, is clean contrary to the doctrine which preacheth and teacheth the grace of God.

i Before that courſe of yeares which hath run on, ever ſince the beginning of the world.

k Hath cauſed life and immortalite to appear.

5 That is, the goſpel which the apoſtle preached.

6 He confirmeth his apoſtelſhip by a ſtrange argument, to wit, becauſe the world could not abide it, and therefore it perſecuted him that preached it.

7 By ſetting his own example before us, he ſheweth us how it may be, that we ſhall not be aſhamed of the croſſe of Chriſt, to wit, if we be ſure that God both can and will keep the ſalvation which he hath, as it were, laid up in ſtore by himſelf for us againſt that day.

‡ Or, truſted.

8 He ſheweth wherein he ought to be moſt conſtant, to wit, both in the doctrine itſelf, the abridgement whereof is faith and charitie, and next in the manner of teaching it, a lively pattern and ſhape whereof Timothie knew in the apoſtle.

9 An amplification taken of the dignitie of ſo great a benefit committed to the miniſters.

10 The taking away of an objection, It is an hard thing to do it, but the Spirit of God is mighty, who hath inwardly indued us with his vertue.

11 He preventeth an offence which aroſe by the meanes of certain that fell from God, and the religion, and uttreth alſo their names, that they might be known of all men. But he ſetteth againſt them the ſingular faith of one man, that one only good example might counterpoiſe and weigh down all evil examples.

CHAP. II.

1 He is exhorted again to conſtancie and perſeverance, and to do the dutie of a faithfull ſervant of the Lord, in dividing the word aright, and ſtaying profane and vain bablings. 17 Of Hymeneus and Philetus. 19 The foundation of the Lord is ſure. 22 He is taught whereof to beware, and what to follow after, and in what ſort the ſervant of the Lord ought to behave himſelf.

THou [1] therefore my ſonne, be ſtrong in the grace that is in Chriſt Jeſus.

2 And the things that thou haſt heard of me ‡ among [a] many witneſſes, the ſame commit thou to faithfull men, who ſhall be able to teach others alſo.

3 [2] Thou therefore endure hardneſſe, as a good ſouldier of Jeſus Chriſt.

4 No man that warreth entangleth himſelf

1 The concluſion of the former exhortation which hath alſo added unto it a declaration, how that they do not keep that worthy thing that is committed unto them, which keep it to themſelves, but they rather, which do moſt freely communicate it with other, to the end that many may be partakers of it, without any mans loſſe or hinderance.

‡ Or, by.

a Where many were by, which can beare witneſſe of theſe things.

2 Another admonition: That the miniſterie of the word is a ſpirituall war-fare, which man can ſo travell in, that he may pleaſe his captain, unleſſe he forgo and part with all hinderances which might draw him away from it.

with the affairs of [b] this life; that he may pleaſe him who hath choſen him to be a ſouldier,

5 [3] And if a man alſo ſtrive for maſteries, yet is he not crowned except he ſtrive lawfully.

6 ‡ [4] The husbandman that laboureth muſt be firſt partaker of the fruits.

7 [5] Conſider what I ſay, and the Lord give thee underſtanding in all things.

8 [6] Remember that Jeſus Chriſt of the ſeed of David, was raiſed from the dead, according to my goſpel.

9 [7] Wherein I ſuffer trouble as an evil doer, even unto bonds, but the word of God is not bound.

10 Therefore I endure all things for the elects ſakes, that they may alſo obtain the ſalvation which is in Chriſt Jeſus, with eternall glory.

11 [8] It is a faithfull ſaying, For if we be [c] dead with him, we ſhall alſo live with him:

12 If we ſuffer, we ſhall alſo reigne with him: if we denie him, he alſo will denie us:

13 If we beleeve not, yet he abideth faithfull, he cannot denie himſelf.

14 Of theſe things put them in remembrance, charging them [d] before the Lord, that they ſtrive not about words, to no profit, but to the ſubverting of the hearers.

15 [9] Studie to ſhew thy ſelf approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be aſhamed, [e] rightly dividing the word of truth.

16 [f] But ſhun profane and vain bablings, [10] for they will increaſe unto more ungodlines.

17 And their word will eat as doth a ‡ canker: of whom is Hymeneus and Philetus:

18 Who concerning the truth have erred, ſaying that the reſurrection is paſt alreadie: and overthrow the faith of ſome.

19 [11] Nevertheleſſe, the foundation of God ſtandeth ‡ ſure, having this ſeal, the Lord knoweth them that are his. And, Let everie one that [g] nameth the name of Chriſt depart from iniquitie.

20 [12] But in a great houſe there are not onely veſſels of gold, and of ſilver, but alſo of wood, and of earth: and ſome to honour, and ſome to dishonour.

21 If a man therefore [h] purge himſelf from theſe, he ſhall be a veſſel unto honour, ſanctified and meet for the maſter, uſed and prepared unto every good work.

22 [13] Flee alſo youthfull luſts: but follow righteouſneſſe, faith, charitie, [14] peace, with them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart.

23 But foolish and unlearned queſtions avoid, knowing that they do gender ſtrifes.

24 And the ſervant of the Lord muſt not ſtrive: but be [i] gentle unto all men, apt to teach, ‡ patient:

25 In meekneſſe inſtructing thoſe that [k] oppoſe themſelves, if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth.

26 And that they may † recover themſelves out of the ſnare of the devil, who are ‡ taken captive by him at his will.

b With affairs of houshold, or other things that belong to other ordinary buſineſſes.
3 The third admonition: The miniſtery is like to a game or juſting, wherein men ſtrive for the victory, and no man is crowned, unleſſe he ſtrive according to the lawes which are preſcribed, be they never ſo hard and painful.
‡ Or, the husbandman labouring firſt, muſt be partaker of the fruits.
4 Another ſimilitude, tending to the ſame end, no man may look for the harveſt, unleſſe he firſt take paines to plow & ſow his ground.
5 All theſe things cannot be underſtood, and much leſſe practiſed, unleſſe we ask of God, and he give us underſtanding.
6 He confirmeth plainly two principles of our faith, which are alwayes aſſaulted of heretikes, the one whereof (to wit, that Chriſt is the true Meſſias, made man of the ſeed of David) is the ground of our ſalvation: and the other is the higheſt part of it, to wit, that he is riſen again from the dead.
7 The taking away of an objection: Truth it is, that he is kept in priſon as an evil doer, yet there is no cauſe, why theeefore ſome ſhould go about to derogate credit from his Goſpel, ſeeing that notwithſtanding God did bleſſe his miniſterie, nay rather, that example of his captivitie and patience, did ſundrie wayes confirm the churchin thehope of a better life.
8 The fourth admonition: We ought not to contend upon words and queſtions, which are not onely unprofitable, but alſo for the moſt part hurtfull: but rather upon this, how we may frameour ſelves to all manner of patienee, and to die alſo with Chriſt (that is to ſay, for Chriſts name) becauſe that is the plain way to the moſt glorious life: as contrariwiſe, the falling away of men can diminish no part of the truth of God, although by ſuch meanes they procure moſt certain deſtruction to themſelves. c If we be afflicted with Chriſt, and for Chriſt his ſake. d Call God to witneſſe of, as a Judge: as Moſes, Joſua, Samuel, and Paul himſelf did, Acts 20. 9 The fift admonition: A miniſter muſt not be an idle diſputer, but a faithfull ſteward, in dividing aright the word of truth, in ſo much that he muſt ſtop the mouthes of others vain bables. e By adding nothing to it, neither overſlipping any thing, neither mangling it, not renting it in ſunder, nor wreſting of it: but marking diligently what his hearers are able to heare, and what is fit to edifying. f Mark and watch, and ſee they creep not on further. 10 He diſcovereth the ſubtilitie of Satan, who beginning with theſe principles, draweth us by little and little to ungodlineſſe through the meanes of that wicked and profane babling, ſtill creeping on: which he proveth by the horrible example of them that taught, that the reſurrection was already paſt.
‡ Or, gangrene. 11 A digreſſion, wherein he ſalveth that offence that roſe by their falling away: ſhewing firſt, that the elect are out of all danger of any ſuch falling away: ſecondly, that they are known to God, and not to us: and therefore it is no marvell if we count hypocrites oftentimes for the true brethren: but we muſt take heed that we be not like them, but rather that we be indeed ſuch as we are ſaid to be. ‡ Or, ſteadie. g That ſerveth and worshippeth him, and is as it were named of him, a faithfull man, or Chriſtian. 12 The taking away of an objection: It is no diſhonour to the good man of the houſe, that he hath not in a great houſe, all veſſels of one ſort and for one ſervice, but we muſt look to this, that we be found veſſels prepared to honour. h By theſe words is meant the execution of the matter, and not the cauſe: for in that we purge our ſelves, it is not to be attributed to any free will that is in us but to God, who freely and wholly worketh in us a good and an effectuall will.

13 Returning to the matter from whence he digreſſed, verſe 16. he warneth him to exerciſe himſelf in weighty matters, and ſuch as pertain to godlineſſe.
14 The ſixt admonition: We muſt above all things eſchew all bitternes of mind, both in teaching all men, and alſo in calling them back which have gone out of the way.
i To win them through our patient bearing with them, but not to pleaſe them, or excuſe them in their wickedneſſe. ‡ Or, forbearing. k He meaneth ſuch as do not yet ſee the truth.
† Gr. awake. ‡ Gr. taken alive.

Chap. III.

1 He advertiſeth him of the times to come, 6 deſcribeth the enemies of the truth, 10 propoundeth unto him his own example, 16 and commendeth the holy ſcriptures.

THis [1] know alſo, that in the laſt dayes perilous times ſhall come.

2 For men ſhall be lovers of their own ſelves, covetous, boaſters, proud, blaſphemers, diſobedient to parents, unthankfull, [a] unholy,

3 Without naturall affection, truce-breakers, ‡ falſe accuſers, incontinent, fierce, deſpiſers of thoſe that are good.

4 Traitours, headie, high-minded, lovers of pleaſures more than lovers of God;

5 Having a form of godlineſſe, but denying the power thereof: from ſuch [2] turn away.

6 For of this ſort are they which creep into houſes; and lead captive ſilly women laden with ſinnes, led away with divers luſts,

7 Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth,

8 Now as Jannes and Jambres withſtood Moſes, ſo do theſe alſo reſiſt the truth: men of corrupt mindes, ‡ reprobate concerning the faith.

9 [3] But they ſhall proceed no further: for their folly ſhall be manifeſt unto all men, as theirs alſo was.

10 [4] But ‡ thou haſt [b] fully known my doctrine, manner of life, purpoſe, faith, long ſuffering, charity, patience, 11 Perſecutions, afflictions which came unto me at [c] Antioch, at Iconium, at Lyſtra, what perſecutions I endured: but out of them all the Lord delivered me.

12 Yea, and all that will live godly in Chriſt Jeſus, ſhall ſuffer perſecution.

13 But evil men and ſeduces ſhall wax [d] worſe and worſe, deceiving, and being deceived

14 But continue thou in the things which thou haſt learned and haſt been aſſured of, knowing of whom thou haſt learned them:

15 And that from a childe thou haſt known the holy ſcriptures, which are able to

1 The ſeventh admonition: We may not hope for any church in this world without corruption: but there ſhall be rather great abundance of moſt wicked men, even in the very boſome of the church, which notwithſtanding ſhall make a ſhew and countenance of great holineſſe, and charitie.
a Which make no account, either of right or honeſtie.
‡ Or, makebates.
2 We muſt not dally with ſuch men as reſiſt the truth, not of ſimple ignorance, but of a perverſe minde) which thing appeareth by their fruits which be painteth our here lively) but we muſt rather turn away from them.
‡ Or, of no judgement.
3 He addeth a comfort: The Lord will at length pluck off all their vizards.
4 That we be not deceived by ſuch hypocrites, we muſt ſet before us the vertues of the holy ſervants of God, and we muſt not be afraid of perſecution which they ſuffered willingly, and which alwayes followeth true godlineſſe. But we muſt eſpecially hold faſt the doctrine of the apoſtles, the ſumme whereof is this, that we are ſaved through faith in Chriſt Jeſus.
‡ Or, thou haſt been a diligent follower of.
b Thou knoweſt throughly not onely what I taught and did, but alſo how I was minded and diſpoſed. c Which is in Piſidia. d Their wickedneſſe ſhall daily increaſe.

make make thee wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

16 [s] All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousnesse:

17 That the [e] man of God may be perfect, ‡ throughly furnished unto all good works.

[s] The eight admonition which is most precious: A pastour must be wise by the word of God onely: wherein we have perfectly delivered unto us whatsoever pertaineth either to discern, know, and establish true opinions, and to confute false: and furthermore to correct evil manners, and to frame good. [e] The prophets and expounders of Gods will, are property and peculiarly called men of God. ‡ Or, perfected.

Chap. IIII.

1 He exhorteth him to do his duty with all care and diligence: 6 certifieth him of the nearnesse of his death: 9 willeth him to come speedily unto him, and to bring Marcus with him, and certain other things which he wrote for: 14 warneth him to beware of Alexander the smith: 16 informeth him what had befallen him at first answering. 19 And soon after he concludeth.

I [1] Charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing, and his kingdome:

2 Preach the word, be instant in season, out of season, reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine.

3 [2] For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching eares.

4 And they shall turn away their eares from the truth, and shall be turned unto [a] fables.

5 [3] But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, ‡ [b] make full proof of thy ministery.

6 [4] For I am now ready to be [c] offered, and the time of my departure is at hand.

7 I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.

8 Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousnesse, which the Lord the righteous judge shall give me at that day: and not to me onely, but unto all them also that love his appearing.

[1] The principall and chief of all admonitions being therefore proposed with a most earnest charge, is this: that the word of God be propounded with a certain holy importunitie, as necessity requireth: but so, that a good and true ground of the doctrin be laid, and the vehemency be tempered with all holy meeknesse.

[2] Faithfull pastours in times past, took all occasions they could, because men were very prompt and ready to return to their fables.

[a] To false and unprofitable doctrins which the world is now so bewitched withall, that it had rather the open light of the truth were utterly put out, than it would come out of darknesse.

[3] The wickednesse and falling away of the world, ought to cause faithfull ministers to be so much the more carefull. ‡ Or, fulfill. [b] Prove and shew by good and substantiall proof, that thou art the true minister of God. [4] He foretelleth his death to be at hand, and setteth before them an excellent example, both of invincible constancy, and sure hope. [c] To be offered for a drink offering: and he alludeth to the powring out of bloud or wine which was used in sacrifices.

9 [5] Do thy diligence to come shortly unto me.

10 For Demas hath forsaken me, having [d] loved this present world, and is departed unto Thessalonica: Crescens to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia.

11 Onely Luke is with me. Take Mark and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the ministery.

12 And Tychicus have I sent to Ephesus.

13 The cloke that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comest, bring with thee, and the books, but especially the parchments.

14 Alexander the copperssmith did me much evil, the Lord reward him according to his works.

15 Of whom be thou ware also, for he hath greatly withstood ‡ our words.

16 At my first answer no man stood with me: but all men forsook me: I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge.

17 Notwithstanding, the Lord stood with me, and strengthened me, that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might heare: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the [e] lion.

18 And the Lord shall deliver me from every [f] evil work, and will preserve me unto his [g] heavenly kingdome; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

19 Salute Prisca and Aquila, and the houshold of Onesiphorus.

20 Erastus abode at Corinth: but Trophimus have I left at Miletum sick.

21 Do thy diligence to come before winter: Eubulus greeteth thee, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren.

22 The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy spirit. Grace be with you. Amen.

¶ The second epistle unto Timotheus, ordained the first bishop of the church of the Ephesians, was written from Rome, when Paul was brought before Nero the second time.

[5] The last part of the epistle, setting forth grievous complaints against certain, and examples of singular godlines in every place, and of a mind never wearied.

[d] Contented himself with the world.

‡ Or, our preaching.

[e] Of Nero.

[f] Preserve me pure from committing any thing unworthy my apostleship.

[g] To make me partaker of his kingdome.

The Epistle of PAUL TO TITUS.

CHAP. I.

1 For what end Titus was left in Crete. 6 How they that are to be chosen ministers, ought to be qualified. 11 The mouthes of evil teachers to be stopped: 12 and what manner of men they be.

PAul [1] a [a] servant of God, and an apostle of Jesus Christ, according to the faith of Gods [b] elect, [2] and acknowledging of the truth, which is after godlinesse:

2 ‡ In [c] hope of eternall life, which God that cannot lie, [d] promised before the [e] world began;

3 [3] But hath in due times manifested his word through preaching, which is committed unto me, according to the commandment of God our [f] Saviour:

4 [4] To Titus mine own son after the common faith, [5] grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ our Saviour.

5 [6] For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things that are ‡ wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee.

6 If any be blameless, the husband of one wife, having faithfull children not accused of riot or [g] unruly.

7 [7] For a bishop must be blameless, as the [h] steward of God: not [i] self-willed, not soon angry, not * given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre;

8 But a lover of hospitality, a lover of ‡ good men, [k] sober, just, holy, temperate,

9 [8] Holding fast the faithfull word, ‡ as he hath been taught, [9] that he may be able by sound doctrine, both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers.

10 [10] For there are many unruly and vain talkers and deceivers, especially they of the [l] circumcision:

11 Whose mouthes must be stopped, who subvert whole houses, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucres sake.

12 [m] One of themselves, even a prophet of their own, said, The Cretians are alway liars, evil beasts, slow bellies.

13 This witnesse is true: wherefore rebuke them [n] sharply, that they may be sound in the faith;

14 Not giving heed to Jewish fables, and commandments of men, that turn from the truth.

15 [11] Unto the pure all things are pure, but unto them that are defiled, and unbeleeving, is nothing pure: but even their [o] minde and conscience is defiled.

16 They professe that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable and disobedient, and unto every good work ‡ reprobate.

---

1 He voucheth his apostleship (not for Titus, but for the Cretenses sake) both by the testimony of his outward calling, and by his consent, wherein he agreeth with all the elect from the beginning of the world.

a A minister, as Christ himself, in that that he was a minister and head of the prophets, is called a servant, Esa. 42. 1.

b Of those whom God hath chosen.

2 The faith wherin all the elect consent, is the true and sincere knowledge of God, tending to this end, that worshipping God aright, they may at length obtain life everlasting according to the promise of God, who is true, which promise was exhibited in Christ in due time according to his eternall purpose.

‡ Or, for.

c Hope is the end of faith.

d Freely, and of his meer liberality.

e Look 2 Tim. 1. 9.

3 The truth is no other where to be sought, but in the preaching of the apostles.

f This word (Saviour) doth not only signifie a preserver of life, but also a giver of life.

4 The apostle moveth the Cretenses to heare Titus, by setting forth his consent and agreement with him in the faith, and therewithall sheweth by what speciall note we may distinguish true ministers from false. 5 There is but one way of salvation, common both to the pastour and the flock. 6 The first admonition to ordain elders in every city. † Or, left undone. g This word is proper to horses and oxen, which will not abide the yoke.

7 The second admonition: what fault pastours (whom he comprehended afore under the word elders) ought to be void of, and what vertues they ought to have. h Whom the Lord hath appointed steward of his gifts. i Not hard conditioned, and evil to please. * 1 Tim. 3. 3. ‡ Or, good things. k Circumspect, and of a sound judgement, and of a singular example of moderation. 8 The third admonition: The pastour must hold fast that doctrine, which the apostles delivered, and pertaineth to salvation, leaving all curious and vain matters. ‡ Or, in teaching. 9 The fourth admonition: To apply the knowledge of true doctrine unto use, which consisteth in two things, to wit, in governing them which shew themselves apt to learn, and confuting the obstinate. 10 An applying of the generall proposition to a particular. The Cretenses above all other need sharp reprehensions, both because their minds are naturally given to lies and slothfulnesse, and also because of certain covetous Jews, which under a colour of godlinesse, joyned partly certain vain traditions, and partly old ceremonies with the gospel. l Of the Jews, or rather of those Jews which went about to joyn Christ and the law together.

m Epimenides, who was counted a prophet amongst them, look upon Laertius, and Cicero in his first book of divination.

n Roughly and plainly, and go not about the bush with them.

11 He sheweth in few words, that purity consisteth not in any externall worship, and that, that is according to the old law (as in difference of meats, and washings, and other such things which are abolished) but in the minde and conscience: and whosoever teach other wise, know not what is true religion indeed, and also are nothing lesse than that they would seem to be. o If our mindes and consciences be unclean, what cleanesse is there in us before regeneration? ‡ Or, void of judgement.

CHAP. II.

2 Directions given unto Titus both for his doctrine and life. 9 Of the duty of servants, and in generall of all Christians.

BUt [1] speak thou the things which become sound doctrine:

2 [2] That the aged men be ‡ sober, grave, temperate, sound in faith, in charity, in patience.

3 The aged women likewise, that they be in behaviour as becometh ‡ holinesse, not ‡ false accusers, not given to much wine, teachers of good things;

4 That they may teach the young women to be ‡ sober, to love their husbands, to love their children,

5 To be discreet, chaste, [a] keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed.

6 Young men likewise exhort to be ‡ sober-minded.

7 [3] In all things shewing thy self a pattern of good works: in doctrine shewing uncorruptnesse, [b] gravity, sincerity,

8 Sound speech that cannot be condemned, that he that is of the contrary part, may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you.

9 [4] Exhort servants to be obedient unto their own masters, and to please them well in [c] all things, not ‡ answering again:

10 Not purloining, but shewing all good fidelity, that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

11 [5] For the grace of God ‡ that bringeth salvation, hath appeared to all men,

12 Teaching us, that denying ungodlinesse and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world;

13 Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ;

14 Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

15 These things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee.

---

1 The fifth admonition: The doctrine must not only be generally pure, but also be applied to all ages and orders of men, according to the diversitie of circumstances.

2 What are the chiefest vertues for old and young, both men and women, and how they ought to be stirred up unto them continually.

‡ Or, vigilant.

‡ Or, holy women

‡ Or, makebates.

‡ Or, wise.

a No gadders up and down.

‡ Or, discreet.

3 The sixth admonition: That both the pastours life and doctrine must be sound.

b Not such a gravitie as may drive men from coming to the minister, but such as may cause them to come in most reverent and honest sort.

4 The seventh admonition, of servants duty toward their masters.

c Which may be done without offence to God.

‡ Or, gain-saying.

5 The eight admonition, belonging to all the godly, that seeing God calleth all men to the gospel, and Christ hath so justified us, that he hath also sanctified us, we must all of us give our selves to true godlinesse, and righteousnesse, setting before us a sure hope of immeasurable glory: which thing must in such sort be beaten into their heads, that the gain-sayers also must be reproved by the authority of the mighty God. ‡ Or, that bringeth salvation to all men, hath appeared.

and

and [d] worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world:

13 [c] Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ, 14 Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purifie unto himself [f] a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

15 These things speak and exhort, and rebuke with all [g] authority. Let no man despise thee.

d Lusts of the flesh, which belong to the present state of this life and world.
e Christ is here most plainly called that mighty God, and his appearance and coming is called by the figure Metonymie, our hope.
f As it were a thing peculiarly laid up for himself.
g With all authority possible.

CHAP. III.

1 Titus is yet further directed by Paul, both concerning the things he should teach, and not teach. 10 He is willed also to reject obstinate hereticks: 12 which done, he appointeth him both time and place, wherein he should come unto him, and so concludeth.

PUt [1] them in minde to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to be ready to every good work,

2 To speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, shewing all meekenesse unto all men.

3 [2] For we our selves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envie, hatefull, and hating one another.

4 But after that the kindnesse and ‡ love of God our Saviour toward man appeared,

5 Not by works of [a] righteousnesse, which we have done, but according to his mercie he saved us by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the [b] Holy Ghost.

6 Which he shed on us † abundantly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour.

7 That being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternall life.

8 [3] This is a faithfull saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have beleeved in God, might be carefull to maintain [c] good works: these things are good and profitable unto men.

9 But avoid foolish questions and genealogies, and contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain.

10 [4] A man that is an heretick, after the first and second admonition, reject:

11 Knowing that he that is such, is subverted, and sinneth, being condemned of himself.

12 [5] When I shall send Artemas unto thee, or Tychicus, be diligent to come unto me to Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter.

13 Bring Zenas the lawyer, and Apollos on their journey diligently, that nothing be wanting unto them.

14 And let ours also learn to ‡ maintain good works for necessary uses, that they be not unfruitfull.

15 All that are with me salute thee, Greet them that love us in the faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

¶ It was written to Titus ordained the first bishop of the church of the Cretians, from Nicopolis of Macedonia.

1 He declareth particularly and severally that which he said before generally, noting out certain chief and principall duties, which men owe to men, and especially subjects to their magistrates.
2 He confirmeth again the former exhortation by propounding the free benefit of our regeneration, the pledge whereof is our baptisme.
‡ Or, pity.
a Word for word of works which are done in righteousnesse: and this place doth fully refute the doctrin of merits.
b Which the vertue of the Holy Ghost worketh.
† Gr. richly.
3 Again with great earnestnes he beateth into our head, how that we ought to give our selves to true godlinesse, and eschew all vain questions, which serve to nothing but to move strife and debate.
c Give themselves earnestly unto good works.
4 The ministers of the word, must at once cast off hereticks that is, such as stubbornly and seditiously disquiet the church, and will give no eare to ecclesiasticall admonitions.
5 Last of all, he writeth a word or two of private matters, and commendeth certain men.
‡ Or, professe honest trades.

The Epistle of PAUL, TO PHILEMON.

4 He rejoyeth to heare of the faith and love of Philemon: 9 whom he desireth to forgive his servant Onesimus, and lovingly to receive him again.

PAul a prisoner of Jesus Christ, and Timothy our brother unto Philemon our dearly beloved, and fellow-labourer,

2 And to our beloved Apphia, and Archippus our fellow-souldier, and to the church in thy house:

3 Grace to you, and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I thank my God, making mention of thee alwayes in my prayers,

5 Hearing of thy love and faith, which thou hast toward the Lord Jesus, and toward all saints;

6 That the [a] communication of thy faith may become effectuall by the acknowledging of every good thing, which is in you in [b] Christ Jesus.

7 For we have great joy and consolation in thy love, because the [c] bowels of the saints are refreshed by thee, brother.

8 Wherefore, though I might be much bold in Christ, to enjoyn thee that which is convenient,

9 [1] Yet for loves sake I rather beseech thee, being such a one as Paul the aged, and now also a prisoner of Jesus Christ.

10 I beseech thee for my sonne Onesimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds.

11 Which in time past was to thee unprofitable: but now profitable to thee and to me.

12 Whom I have sent again: thou therefore receive him that is mine own [d] bowels.

a By communication of faith, he meaneth those duties of charity which are bestowed upon the saints, and flow forth of an effectuall faith.
b Shewing that there is no good thing in us, but we have it by Christ.
c Because thou didst so dutifully and cheerfully refresh the saints, that they conceived inwardly a marvellous joy † for this word (bowels) is meant not onely the inward feeling of wants and miseries that men have one of anothers state, but also that joy, and comfort which entreth into the very bowels, as though the heart were refreshed and comforted.
1 An example of a Christian excuse and commendation for an other man.
d As mine own son, and as if I had begotten him of mine own body.

13 Whom

13 Whom I would have retained with me, that in thy ſtead he might have miniſtred unto me in the bonds of the goſpel.

14 But without thy minde would I do nothing: that thy benefit should not be as it were of [e] neceſſity, but willingly.

15 For perhaps he therefore [f] departed for a [g] ſeaſon, that thou shouldeſt receive him for ever;

16 Not now as a ſervant, but above a ſervant, a brother beloved, ſpecially to me, but how much more unto thee, both in the [h] flesh, and in the Lord?

17 If thou count me therefore a partner, receive him as my ſelf.

18 If he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee ought, put that on mine account.

19 I Paul have written it with mine own hand, I will repay it: albeit I do not ſay to thee how thou oweſt unto me even thine own ſelf beſides.

20 [i] Yea, brother, let me have joy of thee in the Lord: refreſh my bowels in the Lord.

21 Having confidence in thy obedience, I wrote unto thee, knowing that thou wilt alſo do more than I ſay.

22 But withall prepare me alſo a lodging: for I truſt that through your prayers I ſhall be given unto you.

23 There ſalute thee Epaphras, my fellow-priſoner in Chriſt Jeſus:

24 Marcus, Ariſtarchus, Demas, Lucas, my fellow-labourers.

25 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with your ſpirit. Amen.

¶ Written from Rome to Philemon, by Oneſimus a ſervant.

e That thou mightest not ſeem to have ſent me thy ſervant upon conſtraint, but willingly.
f Thus he aſſwageth the harder kinde of ſpeech, which is to ſay, he ran away.
g For a little time.
h Becauſe he is thy ſervant, as other ſervants are, and becauſe he is the Lords ſervant, ſo that thou muſt needs love him, both for the Lords ſake, and for thine own ſake.
i Good brother, let me obtain this benefit at thine hand.

The Epiſtle of PAUL the apoſtle, TO THE HEBREWS.

THe drift and end of this epiſtle, is to ſhew that Jeſus Chriſt the Son of God, both God and man, is that true eternall and onely prophet, king, and high prieſt, that was ſhadowed by the figures of the old law, and is now indeed exhibited: of whom the whole church ought to be taught, governed, and ſanctified.

CHAP. I.

1 Chriſt in theſe laſt times coming to us from the Father, 4 is preferred above the angels, both in perſon and office.

GOd who [1] at ſundry times, and in divers manners ſpake in time paſt unto the fathers by the prophets,

2 Hath in [a] theſe laſt dayes ſpoken unto us by his [b] Son whom he hath appointed [2] heir of all things, by [c] whom alſo he made the [d] worlds.

3 * Who being the [e] brightneſſe of his glory, and the expreſſe image of his [f] perſon, and [g] upholding all things by the word of his power, when he [3] had by himſelf purged our ſinnes, [h] ſat down on the right hand of the majeſtie on high:

4 [4] Being made ſo much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent [i] name than they.

5 [5] For unto which of the angels ſaid he at any time, Thou art my Sonne, [k] this day have I begotten thee? * And again, I will be to him a Father, and he ſhall be to me a Sonne?

6 [7] And [l] again, when he bringeth in the firſt-begotten into the world, he ſaith, And let all the angels of God worſhip him.

7 [8] And of the angels he ſaith, Who maketh his [m] angels ſpirits, and his miniſters a [n] flame of fire.

8 But unto the Sonne he ſaith, Thy [o] throne, O God, is for [p] ever and ever, a ſcepter of [†] righteouſneſſe is the [q] ſcepter of thy kingdome:

9 Thou haſt loved righteouſneſſe, and hated [r] iniquity, therefore God even thy God hath [ſ] anointed thee with the oyl of gladneſſe above thy [t] fellows.

10 [9] And, * Thou Lord in the beginning haſt [u] laid the foundation of the earth: and the heavens are the works of thine hands.

11 * They ſhall perish, but thou remaineſt: and they all ſhall wax old as doth a garment.

12 And as a veſture ſhalt thou fold them up, and they ſhall be changed: but thou art the ſame, and thy yeares ſhall not fail.

13 [10] But to which of the angels ſaid he at any time; * Sit on my right hand, untill I make thine enemies thy footſtool?

1 The firſt part of the generall propoſition of this epiſtle: the Son of God is indeed that prophet or teacher, which hath actually now performed that, that God after a ſort, and in ſhadows ſignified by his prophets, and hath fully opened his Fathers will to the world.
a So that the former declaration made by the prophets was not full, and nothing muſt be added to this latter.
b Which one Son is God and man.
2 The ſecond part of the ſame propoſition: The ſame Son is appointed of the Father to be our King and Lord, by whom alſo he made all things: and in whom onely he ſetteth forth his glory, yea, and himſelf alſo to be beholden of us, who beareth up and ſuſtaineth all things by his will and pleaſure.
c Poſſeſſour and equall compartner of all things with the Father.
d That is, whatſoever hath been at any time, is or ſhall be. * Wiſd. 7, 26.
e He in whom that glory and majeſtie of the Father ſhineth, who is otherwiſe infinit, and cannot be beholden.
f His Fathers perſon.
g Suſtaineth, defendeth, and cherisheth.
3 The third part of the ſame propoſition: The ſame Son executed the office of the high prieſt in offering up himſelf, and is our onely and moſt mighty Mediatour in heaven.
h This ſheweth that the ſavour of that his ſacrifice is not onely moſt acceptable to the Father, but alſo is everlaſting, and furthermore, how farre this high prieſt paſſeth all the other high prieſts.
4 Before he cometh to declare the office of Chriſt, he ſetteth forth the excellencie of his perſon, and firſt of all he ſheweth him ſo to be man, that therewithall he is God alſo.
i Dignity and honour.
5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. He proveth and confirmeth the dignity of Chriſt manifeſted in the flesh, by theſe ſix evident teſtimonies, whereby it appeareth that he far paſſeth all angels, inſomuch that he is called both Son, and God, in verſe 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 13.
k The Father begat the Son from everlaſting generation, but that everlaſting generation was made manifeſt and repreſented to the world in his time, and therefore he addeth this word (To day)
l The Lord was not content to have ſpoken it once, but he repeateth it in another place.

Chap. II.

1 We ought to be obedient to Christ Jesus, 5 and that because he vouchsafed to take our nature upon him, 14 as it was necessary.

THerefore [1] we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which [a] we have heard, lest at any time we should † let them [b] slip.

2 For if the [c] word spoken by angels was stedfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward:

3 How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation, [2] which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by [d] them that heard him,

4 God also bearing them witnesse, both with [e] signes and wonders, and with divers miracles, and ‡ gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will?

5 [3] For unto the angels hath he not put in subjection the [f] world to come, whereof we speak.

6 [4] But one in a certain place testified, saying, * [g] What is man that thou art mindfull of him: or the [h] sonne of man that thou visitest him?

7 Thou [i] madest him ‡ a little lower than the angels, thou crownedst him with [k] glory and honour, and didst set him over the works of thy hands:

8 Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet. For in that he put all in subjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. [5] But now we see not yet all things put under him.

9 [6] But we [l] see Jesus, who was made a little [m] lower than the angels, ‡ [7] for the [n] suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour, that he by the grace of God should [o] taste death for [8] every man.

10 [9] For it became [p] him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in [10] bringing many sonnes unto glory, [11] to make the [q] captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings.

11 [12] For both he that [r] sanctifieth, and they who are sanctified, are all of [s] one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren,

12 [13] Saying, I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of the church will I sing praise unto thee.

13 [14] And again, * I will put my [t] trust in him: and again, * [u] Behold, I, and the children which God hath given me.

14 Forasmuch then as the children are [x] partakers of flesh and bloud; he also himself likewise took part of the same, that through death he might destroy him that had the [y] power of death, that is, the [z] devil:

15 And deliver them who through fear of [a] death were all their life time subject to bondage.

16 [15] For verily † he took not on him the nature of [b] angels: but he took on him the [c] seed of Abraham.

17 [16] Wherefore in [d] all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be [e] a mercifull and [f] faithfull high priest, in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sinnes of the people:

18 For in that he himself hath suffered, being [g] tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.

1 Now as it were pausing with himself: and shewing to what end and purpose all these things were spoken, to wit, to understand by the excellencie of Christ, above all creatures, that his doctrine, majesty and priesthood, is most perfect, he useth an exhortation taken from a comparison.

a He maketh himself an hearer.

† Gr. run out as leaking vessels.

b They are said to let the word run out, which hold not fast when they have heard it.

c The law which appointed punishment for the offenders: and which Paul saith was given by angels, Galat. 3, 19. and Steven, Acts 7, 53.

2 If the breach and transgression of the word spoken by angels was not suffered unpunished, much lesse shall it be lawfull for us to neglect the gospel which the Lord of angels preached, and was confirmed by the voice of the apostles, and with so many signes and wonders from heaven, and especially with so great and mighty working of the Holy Ghost.

d By the apostles.

e That is, the true end of miracles. Now they are called signes, because they appear one thing, and represent another: and they are called wonders, because they represent some strange and unaccustomed thing: and vertues, because they give us a glimce of Gods mightie power.

‡ Or, distributions.

3 If it were an heinous matter to contemn the angels which are but servants, much more heinous is it to contemn that most mightie King of the restored world.

f The world to come, whereof Christ is Father, Esa. 9, 6. or the church, which as a new world, was to be gathered together by the gospel.

4 He sheweth that the use of his kingly dignitie consisteth herein, that men might not onely in Christ recover that dignitie which they have lost, but also might be through him advanced above all things, which dignitie of men David describeth most excellency.

* Psal. 8, 4.

g What is there in man that thou shou'dest have so great regard of him and do him that honour?

h He calleth all the citizens of that heavenly kingdome, as they are considered in themselves, before that God giveth them the libertie of that citie in Christ, Man, and the Son of man.

i This is the first honour of the citizens of the world to come, that they are next the angels.

‡ Or, a little while inferiour to.

k For they shall be in very great honour when they shall be partakers of the kingdome. And he speaketh of the thing that shall be, as though it were already, because it is so certain.

5 An objection: But where is this so great rule and dominion?

6 The answer: This is already fulfilled in Jesus Christ our head who was for a time for our sakes inferiour to the angels, being made man: but now is advanced into most high glorie.

l By his vertue and power which appeareth manifestly in the church.

m Who abased himself for a season, and took upon him the shape of a servant.

‡ Or, by.

7 He sheweth the cause of this subjection, to wit, to taste of death for our sakes, that so doing the part of a redeemer, he might not onely be our prophet and king, but also our high priest.

n That he might die.

o Feel death.

8 Herein consisteth the force of the argument: for we could not at length be glorified with him, unlesse he had been abased for us, even all the faithfull. And by this occasion the apostle cometh to the other part of the declaration of Christs person, wherein he proveth him to be in such sort God, that he is also man.

9 He proveth moreover by other arguments, why it behoved the Son of God who is true God (as he proved a little before) to become man notwithstanding, subject to all miseries, sin onely excepted.

p God.

10 First of all because the Father, to whose glory all things are to be referred, purposed to bring many sons unto glory. And how could he have men for his sons, unlesse his onely begotten Son had become brother to men.

11 Secondly, The Father determined to bring those sons to glory, to wit, out of that ignominie wherein they lay before. Therefore the son should not have been seen plainly to be made man unlesse he had been made like unto other men, that he might come to glory by the self-same way, by the which he should bring other: yea rather, it became him which was prince of the salvation of other, to be consecrated above other through those afflictions, prophet, king, and priest, which are the parts of that principalitie for the salvation of other.

q The chiefetain, who as he is chiefest in dignity, so is he the first, begotten from among the dead, amongst many brethren.

12 The ground of both the former arguments, for neither should we be sons through him, neither could he be consecrated through afflictions unlesse he had been made man like unto us.

But because this sonnehood dependeth not upon nature onely, for no man is accounted the son of God, unlesse that besides that, he is a son of man, he be also Christs brother, (which is by sanctification, that is, by becoming one with Christ, who sanctifieth us through faith) therefore the apostle maketh mention of the sanctifier, to wit, of Christ, and of them that are sanctified, to wit, of all the faithfull, whom therefore Christ vouchsafeth to call brethren.

r He useth the time that now is, to shew us that we are yet still going on, and increasing in this sanctification: and by sanctification he meaneth our separation from the rest of the world, our cleansing from sin, and our dedication wholly unto God, all which Christ alone worketh in us.

s One, of one self-same nature of man.

13 That which he taught before of the incarnation of the sanctifier, he applieth to the propheticall office.

14 He applieth the same to the kingly power of Christ, in delivering his from the power of the devil and death.

* Psal. 18, 2.

t I will commit my self to him, and to his defence.

* Isa. 8, 18.

u This Esai speaketh of himself and his disciples, but betokening thereby all ministers, as also his disciples signifie the whole church. And therefore seeing Christ is the head of the prophets and ministers, these words are more rightly verified of him, than of Esai.

x Are made of flesh and bloud, which is a frail and brittle nature.

y The devil is said to have the power of death, because he is the authour of sin: and from sin cometh death, and for this cause he eggeth us daily to sin.

z He speaketh of one as of the prince, joyning to him secretly all his angels.

a By (death) thou must understand here that death which is joyned with the wrath of God, as it must needs be, if it be without Christ, except which there can be nothing devised more miserable.

15 He expoundeth those words of flesh and bloud, shewing that Christ is true man, and that not by turning his divine nature, but by taking of mans nature. And he nameth Abraham, respecting the promises made o Abraham in this behalf.

† Gr. he taketh not hold of angels, but of the seed of Abraham he taketh hold.

b The nature of angels.

c The very nature of man.

16 He applieth the same to the priesthood, for which he should not have been fit, unlesse he had become man, and that like unto us in all things, sin onely except.

d Not onely as touching nature, but qualities also.

e That he might be truely touched with the seeing of our miseries.

f Doing his office sincerely.

g Was tried and egged to wickednesse by the devil.

Chap. III.

1 Christ is more worthy than Moses: 7 therefore if we beleeve not in him, we shall be more worthy of punishment than hardhearted Israel.

WHerefore [1] holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the [a] apostle and high priest of our [b] profession Christ Jesus,

2 [2] Who was faithfull to him that † [c] appointed him, [3] as also Moses was faithfull in all his house.

1 Having laid the foundation, that is to say, declared and proved both the natures of one self-same Christ, he giveth him three offices, to with, the office of a propher, king, and priest, and as touching the office of teaching, and governing comparing him with Moses and Joshua, unto the 14 ver. of the next chapter, and with Aaron touching the priesthood. And he propoundeth that which he purposed to speak of, with a most grave exhortation, that all our faith may tend to Christ, as to the onely everlasting teacher, governour, and high priest.

a The ambassadour or messenger, as Rom. 15. he is called the minister of circumcision.

b Of the doctrine of the gospel which we professe.

2 He confirmeth his exhortation with two reasons, fifst of all, because Christ Jesus was appointed such an one of God, secondly, because he throughly executed the offices that his Father enjoyned him.

† Gr. made, 1 Sam. 12. 6.

c Apostle and high priest.

3 Now he cometh to the comparison with Moses, and he maketh them like one to the other in this, that they were both appointed ruler over Gods house, and executed faithfully their offices: but by and by after he sheweth that there is great unlikenesse in that same similitude.

3 [4] For this man was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, in as much as he who hath builded the house, hath more honour than the house.

4 For every house is builded by some man, but he that built all things is God.

5 [5] And Moses verily was faithfull in all his house as a servant, for a testimonie of those things which were to be spoken after:

6 But Christ as a Sonne over his own house, whose [d] house are we, if we hold fast the [e] confidence, and the rejoycing of the hope firm unto the end.

7 Wherefore as the holy Ghost saith, * To day if ye will [f] heare his voice,

8 Harden not your hearts, as in the [g] provocation, in the day of temptation in the wildernesse:

9 When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works fourty yeares.

10 Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and said, They do alway [h] erre in their hearts, and they have not known my wayes, 11 So I sware in my wrath, † They shall not enter into my rest.

12 [7] Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.*

13 But exhort one another daily [i] while it is called, To day, lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulnesse of sinne.

14 [8] For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the [k] beginning of our confidence stedfast unto the end.

15 [1] While it is said, To day if ye will heare his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation.

16 For some when they had heard, did provoke: howbeit not all that came out of Egypt by Moses.

17 But with whom was he grieved fourty yeares? was it not with them that had sinned, whose carcases fell in the wildernesse?

18 And to whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but to them that beleeved not?

19 So we see that they could not enter in, because of unbelief.

4 The first comparison: The builder of the house is better than the house it self, therefore is Christ better than Moses. The reason of the consequent is this: because the builder of this house is God, which cannot be attributed to Moses: and therefore Moses was not properly the builder: but a part of the house: but Christ as Lord and God made all this house.

5 Another comparison: Moses was a faithfull servant in this house: that is, in the church, serving the Lord that was to come, but Christ ruleth and governeth his house as Lord.

6 He applieth the former doctrine to his end, exhorting all men by the words of David to heare the Son himself speak, and to give full credit to his words, seeing that otherwise they cannot enter into that eternall rest.

d To wit Christs.

e He calleth that excellent effect of faith (whereby we cry Abba, that is, Father) confidence, and to confidence he joyneth hope.

* Psal. 95. 7.

f So that God was to speak once againe after Moses.

g In the day that they vexed the Lord, or strove with him.

h They are brutish and mad.

† Gr. If they shall enter.

7 Now weighing the words of David, he sheweth first by this word, To day, that we must not neglect the occasion while we have it: for that word is not to be restrained to Davids time, but it comprehendeth all that time wherein God calleth us.

i While the day lasteth, that is to say, So long as this voice soundeth out.

8 Now he considereth these words, If you heare his voice, &c. shewing that they are spoken and meant of the hearing of faith, against which he setteth hardening through unbelief.

k That beginning of trust and confidence and after the manner of the Hebrews, he calleth that, Beginning, which is chiefest.

l So long as this voice soundeth out.

CHAP. IIII.

1 The rest of Christians is attained by faith. 12 The power of Gods words. 14 By our high priest Jesus the sonne of God, subject to infirmities, but not sinne. 16 we must and may go boldly to the throne of grace.

LEt us therefore fear, lest a promise being left us of entring into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it.

2 [1] For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them: but † the word preached did not profit them, ‡ not being [a] mixed with faith in them that heard it.

3 [2] For we which have beleeved do enter into rest, as he said, As I have sworn in my wrath, if they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.

4 For he spake in a certain place of the seventh day on this wise, And God did rest the seventh day from all his works.

5 And in this place again, If they shall enter into my rest.

6 Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter therein, and they to whom ‡ it was first preached, entred not in because of unbelief:

7 Again, he limiteth a certain day, saying in David, To day, after so long a time; as it is said, To day if ye will heare his voice, harden not your hearts.

8 For if ‡ [b] Jesus had given them rest, then would he not afterward have spoken of another day.

9 There remaineth therefore a ‡ rest to the people of God.

10 [c] For he that is entred into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works, as God did from his.

11 [3] Let us labour therefore to enter into that rest, [d] lest any man fall after the same example of ‡ unbelief.

12 [4] For the [e] word of God is [f] quick, and powerfull, and sharper than any two edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of [g] soul and [h] spirit, and of the joynts and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.

13 Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his [i] sight: but all things are naked, and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do.

14 [5] Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Sonne of God, let us [k] hold fast our profession.

15 [6] For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities: but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sinne.

16 Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and finde grace to help in time of need.

1 By these words His voice, he sheweth that David meant the preaching of Christ, who was then also preached, for Moses, and the prophets respected none other.

† Gr. the word of hearing.

‡ Or, because they were not united by faith to.

a He compareth the preaching of the gospel to drink, which being drunk, that is to say, Heard, profiteth nothing unlesse it be tempered with faith.

1 Lest any man should object that those words were meant of the land of Canaan, and of Moses doctrine, & therefore cannot be well drawn to Christ, and to eternall life, the apostle sheweth that there are two manner of rests spoken of in the scriptures: the one of the seventh day, wherein God is said to have rested from all his works: another is said to be that same, whereunto Joshuah led the people: but this rest is not the last rest whereunto we are called: and that he proveth by two reasons: For seeing that David so long time after, speaking to the people which were then placed in the land of Canaan, useth these words, To day, & threateneth them still that they shall not enter into the rest of God, which refused then the voice of God that sounded in their eares, we must needs say, that he meant another time than the time of Moses, and another rest than the rest of the land of Canaan: And that is, that everlasting rest, wherein we begin to live to God, after that the race of this life ceaseth: as God rested the seventh day from those his works, that is to say, from making the world. Moreover the apostle therewithall signifieth that the way to this rest, which Moses and the land of Canaan, and all that ordes of the law did shadow, is opened in the gospel only.

‡ Or, the gospel was first preached.

‡ That is, Joshuah.

b He speaketh of Joshuah the son of Nun: and as the land of Canaan was a figure of our truerest, so was a Joshuah a figure of Christ.

‡ Or, keeping of a sabbath.

c As God rested the seventh day, so must we rest from our works, that is, from such as proceed from our corrupe nature.

3 He returneth to an exhortation.

d Lest any man become a like example of infidelitie.

‡ Or, disobedience.

4 An amplification taken from the nature of the word of God, the power whereof is such, that it entreth even to the deepest and most inward and secret parts of the heart, wounding them deadly that are stubborn, and plainly quickening the beleevers.

e The doctrine of God which is preached both in the law and in the gospel.

f He calleth the word of God quick by reason of the effects it worketh in them to whom it is preached.

g He calleth that the soul which hath the affections resident in it.

h By the spirit, he meaneth that noblest part which is called the minde.

i In Gods sight.

5 Now he entreth into the comparison of Christs priesthood with Aarons, and declareth even in the very beginning the marvellous excellencie of this priesthood, calling him the Son of God, and placing him in the seat of God in heaven, plainly and evidently setting him against Aarons priests, and the transitory tabernacle, which comparisons he setteth forth afterward more at large.

k And let it not go out of our hands.

6 Lest he might seem by this great glory of our high priest, to stay and stop us from going unto him, he addeth straight wayes after, that he is notwithstanding our brethren indeed, (as he proved it also before) and that he accompteth all miseries his own, so call us boldly to him.

CHAP. V.

1 The authoritie and honour of our Saviours priesthood. 11 Negligence in the knowledge therefore is reproved.

FOr [1] every high priest taken from among men, is ordained for men in things pertaining

1 The first part of the first comparison of Christs high priesthood with Aarons: Other high priests are taken from among men, & are called after the order of men.

ing to God, [a] that he may offer both [a] gifts and [b] sacrifices for sinnes.

2 Who ‡ [c] can have compassion on the ignorant, and [d] on them that are out of the way, for that himself also is [e] compassed with infirmity.

3 And by reason hereof he ought, as for the people, so also for himself, to offer for sinnes.

4 [3] And no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

5 So also, Christ glorified not himself, to be made an high priest: but he that said unto him, Thou art my Sonne, to day have I begotten thee.

6 As he saith also in another place, Thou art a priest for ever after the [f] order of Melchisedec.

7 [4] Who in the [g] dayes of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto him that was able to [h] save him from death, and was heard, ‡ in that he feared:

8 Though he were a Sonne, yet [i] learned he obedience, by the things which he suffered:

9 [5] And being made [k] perfect, he became the authour of eternall salvation unto all them that obey him,

10 Called of God an high priest after the order of Melchisedec.

11 [6] Of whom we have many things to say, and hard to be uttered, seeing ye are dull of hearing.

12 [7] For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat.

13 For every one that useth milk, † is unskilfull [l] in the word of righteousnesse: for he is a babe.

14 But strong meat belongeth to them that are ‡ of full age, even those who by reason ‡ of use have their [m] senses exercised to discern both good and evil.

2 The first part of the second comparison: Others as weak, are made high-priests, to the end that feeling the same infirmitie in themselves which is in all the rest of the people, they should in their own and the peoples name offer gifts and sacrifices, which are witnesses of common faith and repentance.
a Offering of things without life.
b Beasts which were killed, but especially in the sacrifices for sins and offences.
‡ Or, can reasonably bear with.
c Fit and meet.
d On them that are sinfull: for in the Hebrew tongue, under ignorance and errour is every sin meant, even that sin that is voluntarie.
e For that he himselfe beareth about with him a nature subject to the same discommodities and vices.
3 The third comparison which is whole. The others are called of God, and so was Christ, but in another order than Aaron: for Christ is called the Son, begotten of God, and a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.
f After the likenesse or manner: as it is afterward declared.
4 The other part of the second comparison: Christ being exceedingly afflicted and exceedingly mercifull, asked, not for his sins, for he had none, but for his feare, and obtained his request, and offered himself for all his.
g While he lived here with us, in our weak and frail nature.
h To deliver him from death. ‡ Or, for his piety. i He learned indeed what it is to have a father, whom a man must obey. 5 The other part of the first comparison. But Christ was consecrate of God the Father as the authour of our salvation, and an high priest for ever, and therefore he is so a man, that notwithstanding he is farre above all men. k Look Chap. 2, 10. 6 A digression untill he come to the beginning of the seventh Chapter: wherein he partly holdeth the Hebrews in the diligent consideration of those things which he hath said, and partly prepareth them to the understanding of those things whereof he will speak. 7 An example of an apostolike chiding. † Gr. hath no experience. l In the word which teacheth righteousnesse. ‡ Or, perfect. ‡ Or, of an habit, or perfection. m All their power whereby they understand and judge.

CHAP. VI.

1 He exhorteth, not to fall back from the faith, 11 but to be stedfast, 12 diligent and patient to wait upon God, 13 because God is most sure in his promise.

‡ Or, the word of the beginning of Christ.

THerefore leaving ‡ the [a] principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection, [1] not laying again the foundation of a The first principles of Christian religion, which we do call the Catechisme. 1 Certain principles of a Catechisme, which comprehend the summe of the doctrine of the gospel, were given in few words, and briefly to the rud and ignorant, to wit, the profession of repentance and faith in God: the articles of which doctrine were demanded of them which were not as yet received members of the church, at the dayes appointed for baptisme: and of the children of the faithfull which were baptized in their infancie, when hands were laid upon them. And of those articles, two are by name recited: the resurrection of the flesh, and the eternall judgement.

repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God,

2 Of the doctrine of baptismes, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternall judgement.

3 And this will we do, if God permit.

4 [2] For it is [b] impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have [c] tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost.

5 And have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come;

6 If they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance: seeing they [d] crucifie to themselves the Sonne of God afresh, and put him to an open shame.

7 [3] For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them ‡ by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing from God.

8 But that which beareth thorns and briers is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing, whose end is to be burned.

9 [4] But beloved, we are perswaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak.

10 [5] For God is not unrighteous, to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have shewed toward his name, in that ye have ministred to the saints, and do minister.

11 And we desire that every one of you do shew the same diligence, to the full assurance of hope unto the end.

12 [6] That ye be not slothfull, but followers of them, who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

13 [7] For when God made promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he sware by himself,

14 Saying, Surely, blessing, I will [e] blesse thee, and multiplying, I will multiply thee.

15 And so after he had patiently endured, he obtained the promise.

16 For men verily swear by the greater, and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife.

17 Wherein God willing more [f] abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutabilitie of his counsel, † confirmed it by an oath.

18 That by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us.

19 [8] Which hope we have as an anker of the soul, both sure and stedfast, and which entreth into that within the vail,

20 [9] Whither the forerunner is for us entred, even Jesus, made an high priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

2 He addeth a vehemencie to his exhortation, and a most sharp threatning of the certain destruction that shall come to them which fall from God and his religion.
b He speaketh of a generall backsliding, and such as do altogether fall away from the faith, and not of sins which are comitted through the frailtie of a man, against the first and the second table.
c We must mark the force of this word, for it is one thing to beleeve as Lidia did, whose heart God opened, Act. 16, 13. and another thing to have some taste.
d As men that hate Christ, and as though they crucified him again, make him a mocking stock to all the world, and that to their own destruction, as Julian the apostata or backslider did.
3 He setteth forth the former threatning with a similitude.
‡ Or, for.
4 He mitigateth and asswageth all that sharpnesse, hoping better of them to whom he writeth.
5 He praiseth them for their charitie, thereby encouraging them to go forward, and to hold out to the end.
6 He sheweth what vertues chiefly they have need of to go forward constantly, and also to profit: to wit, of charitie, and patience: and left any man should object and say, that these things are impossible to be done, he willeth them to see before themselves the examples of their ancestors, and to follow them.
7 Another prick to prick them forward: Because the hope of the inheritance, is certain, if we continue to the end, for God hath not onely promised it, but also promised it with an oath.
e I will heap up benefits most plentifully upon thee.
f More than was needfull, were it not for the wickednesse of men which beleeve not God, no, though he sweare.
† Gr. interposed himself by his oath. 8 He likeneth hope to an anker: because that even as an anker being cast into the bottome of the sea, stayeth the whole ship, so doth hope also enter even into the very secret places of heaven. And he maketh mention of the sanctuary, alluding to the old tabernacle, and by this means returneth to the comparisons of the priesthood of Christ with the Leviticall. 9 He repeateth Davids words, wherein all those comparisons, whereof he hath before made mention, are signified, as he declareth in all the next Chapter.

Chap. VII.

1 Christ Jesus is a priest after the order of Melchisedec, 11 and so farre more excellent than the priests of Aarons order.

FOr this [1] Melchisedec king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and [a] blessed him:

2 To whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all: first being by interpetation king of righteousnesse, and after that also, king of Salem, which is, king of peace:

3 [2] Without father, without mother, † without descent, having neither beginning of dayes, nor end of life: but made like unto the Sonne of God, abideth a priest continually.

4 [3] Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils.

5 And verily they that are of the sonnes of Levi, who receive the office of the priesthood, have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law, that is, of their brethren, though they come out of the [b] loyns of Abraham.

6 But he whose ‡ descent is not counted from them, received tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises.

7 And [c] without all contradiction, the lesse is blessed of the better.

8 And here men that die receive tithes: but there he receiveth them, of whom it is witnessed that he liveth.

9 [4] And as I may so say, Levi also who receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham.

10 For he was yet in the loyns of his father when Melchisedec met him.

11 [5] If therefore [d] perfection were by the Leviticall priesthood, (for under it the people received the law) what further need was there that another priest should rise after the order of Melchisedec, and not be called after the order of Aaron?

12 [6] For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessitie a change also of the [e] law.

13 For he of whom these things are spoken pertaineth to another tribe, of which [f] no man gave attendance at the altar.

14 For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Juda, of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood.

15 [7] And it is yet farre more evident: for that after the similitude of Melchisedec there ariseth another priest, 16 [8] Who is made, not after the [g] law of a carnall commandment, but after the power of an endlesse life.

17 For he testifieth, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

18 [9] For there is verily a disanulling of the [h] commandment going before, for the weaknesse and unprofitablenesse thereof.

19 For the law made nothing perfect, ‡ but the bringing in of a better hope did: by the which we draw nigh unto God.

20 [10] And in as much as not without an oath he was made priest,

21 (For those priests were made ‡ without an oath: but this with an oath, by him that said unto him, * The Lord sware and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedec)

22 By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament.

23 [11] And they truly were many priests, because they were not suffered to continue by reason of death.

24 But this man, because he continueth ever, hath an ‡ [i] unchangeable priesthood.

25 Wherefore he is [k] able also to save them ‡ to the uttermost, that come unto God by him seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.

26 [12] For such an high priest became us, who is holy, harmlesse, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens.

27 Who needeth not daily as those high priests, to offer up sacrifice, first for his own sinnes, and then for the peoples: [13] for [l] this he did [m] once, when he offered up himself.

28 For the law maketh men high priests which have infirmitie, but the [n] word of the oath [14] which [o] was since the law, maketh the Sonne, who is † consecrated for evermore.

1 Declaring those words, According to the order of Melchisedec, whereupon that compatison standeth of the priesthood of Christ with the Leviticall: first, Melchisedec himself is considered as the figure of Christ, and these are the heads of that comparison: Melchisedec was a King and a Priest, and such an one in deed is Christ alone. He was a king of peace and righteousnes, such an one in deed is Christ alone.

a With a solemn and priestly blessing.

2 Another figure: Melchisedec is set before us to be considered as one without beginning and without ending, for neither his father, nor his mother, nor his ancestors nor his death are written of: and such an one indeed is the Son of God, to wit, an everlasting priest: as he is God, without mother wonderfully begotten: as he is man, without father wonderfull conceived.

† Gr. without pedegree.

3 Another figure: Melchisedec in consideration of his priesthood was above Abraham: for he took tenths of him and blessed him as a priest: such a one indeed is Christ, upon whom dependeth even Abrahams sanctification, and all the beleevers, and whom all men ought to worship and reverence as the author of all.

b Were begotten of Abraham.

‡ Or, pedegree.

c He speaketh of the publike blessing which the priests used.

4 A double amplification: The first, that Melchisedec took the tenths as one immortall (to wit, in respect that he is the figure of Christ, for his death is in no place made mention of, and David setteth him forth as an everlasting priest) but the Leviticall priests, as mortall men, for they succeed one another: the second, that Levi himself was tithed in Abraham by Melchisedec. Therefore the priesthood of Melchisedec (that is, Christs, who is prononunced to be an everlasting priest according to this order) is more excellent than the Leviticall. 5 The third treatise of this epistle, wherein after he hath proved Christ to be a king, a prophet and priest, he now handleth distinctly the condition and excellencie of all these offices, shewing that all these were but shadows in all other, but in Christ they are true and perfit. And he beginneth with the priesthood, wherewith also the former treatise ended, that by this meanes all the parts and members of the disputation, may better hang together. And first of all he proveth that the Leviticall priest-hood was imperfect, because another priest is promised a long time after, according to another order, that is to say, of another manner of rule and fashion.

d If the priesthood of Levi could have made any man perfit. 6 He sheweth how that by the institution of the new priesthood, not only the imperfection of the priest-hood of Levi was declared, but also that it was changed for this: for these two cannot stand together, because that first appointment of the tribe of Levi, did shut forth the tribe of Juda, and made it also inferiour to Levi: and this latter doth place the priesthood in the tribe of Juda.

e Of the institution of Aaron.

f Had any thing to do about the altar. 7 Lest any man might object, that the priest-hood indeed was translated from Levi to Juda, but yet notwithstanding the same remaineth still, he both weigheth and expoundeth those words of David, for ever according to the order of Melchisedec, whereby also a divers institution of priest-hood is well perceived.

8 He proveth the diversity and excellency of the institution of Melchisedecs priesthood, by this, that the priesthood of the law did stand upon an outward and bodily anointing: but the sacrifice of Melchisedec is set out to be everlasting & more spiritual.

g Not after the ordination which commandeth frail and transitory things, as was done in Aarons consecration, and all that whole priesthood.

9 Again, that no man might object that the last priesthood was added to make a perfect one, by the coupling of them both together, he proveth that the first was abrogated by the latter, as unprofitable, and that by the nature of them both. For how could those corporal and transitory things sanctifie us, either of themselves, or being joyned with another?

h The ceremoniall law.

‡ Or, but it was the bringing in.

10 Another argument, whereby he proveth that the priesthood of Christ is better than the priesthood of Levi, because his was established with an oath, but theirs was not so.

‡ Or, without swearing of an oath.

* Psal. 110, 4.

11 Another argument tending to the same purpose The Leviticall priests (as mortall men) could not be everlasting, but Christ, as he is everlasting, so hath he also an everlasting priesthood, making most effectuall intercession for them which by him come unto God.

‡ Or, which passeth not from one to another.

i Which cannot passe away. k He is fit and meet. ‡ Or, ever more. 12 Another argument: There are requited in an high priest innocencie and perfect pureneſse, which may separate him from sinners, for whom he offereth. But the Leviticall high priests shall not be found to be such, for they offer first for their own sinnes: but Christ onely is such a one, and therefore the true and onely high priest 13 Another argument, which notwithstanding he handleth afterward: The Leviticall priests offered sacrifice after sacrifice, first for themselves, and then for the people, But Christ offered not for himself but for other, not sacrifices, but himself, not oftentimes, but once. And this ought not to seem strange, saith he, forasmuch as they are weak, but this Man is consecrate an everlasting priest, and that by an oath.

l That sacrifice which he offered.

m It was so done, that it needeth not to be repeated or offered again any more.

n The commandment of God which was bound with an oath. 14 Another argument taken of the time: Former things are taken away by the latter.

o Exhibited.

† Gr. perfected.

Chap. VIII.

1 By the eternall priesthood of Christ, the Leviticall priesthood of Aaron is abolished: 7 and the temporall covenant with the fathers, by the eternall covenant of the gospel.

NOw [1] of the things which we have spoken, this is the summe: We have such an high priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the majestie in the heavens:

2 [2] A minister ‡ of the [a] sanctuarie, [3] and of the [b] true tabernacle which the Lord pitched, and not man.

3 [4] For every high priest is ordained to offer gifts

1 He briefly repeateth that whereunto all these things are to be referred, to wit, that we have a far other high priest than those Leviticall high priests are, even such an one as sitteth at the right hand of the most high God in heaven.

2 They of Levi were high priests in an earthly sanctuary, but Christ is in the heavenly.

‡ Or, of holy things.

a Of heaven. 3 They of Levi exercised their priesthood in a frail tabernacle, but Christ beareth about with him a farre other tabernacle, to wit, his body which God himself made to be everlasting, as it shall afterward be declared, Chap. 9, 11.

b Of his body. 4 He bringeth a reason, why it must needs be that Christ should have a body, (which he calleth a tabernacle, which the Lord pight and not man) to wit, that he might have what to offer: for otherwise he could not be an high priest. And the self-same bodie is both the tabernacle and the sacrifice.

gifts and sacrifices: wherefore it is of necessitie that this man have somewhat also to offer.

4 [5] For if he were on earth, he should not be a priest, seeing that ‡ there are priests that offer gifts according to the law.

5 Who serve unto the example and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the tabernacle. For see (saith he) that thou make all things according to the pattern shewed to thee in the mount.

6 [6] But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministerie, by how much also he is the mediatour of a better ‡ covenant, which was established upon better promises.

7 [7] For if that first covenant had been faultlesse, then should no place have been sought for the second.

8 For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the dayes come (saith the Lord) when I will make a new covenant with the [c] house of Israel and the house of Judah:

9 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt, because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not saith the Lord.

10 For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those dayes, saith the Lord, * I will † put my laws into their minde, and write them ‡ in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people.

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the lest to the greatest.

12 For I will be mercifull to their unrighteousnesse, and their sinnes and their iniquities will I remember no more.

13 [8] In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old, is ready to vanish away.

5 He giveth a reason, why he said that our high priest is in the heavenly sanctuarie, and not in the earthly: because saith he, if he were now on the earth, he could not minister in the earthly sanctuary, seeing there are yet Leviticall priests which are appointed for him, that is to say, to be patterns of that perfit example. And to what purpose should the patterns serve when the true and originall example is present?
‡ Or, they are priests.
6 He entreth into the comparison of the old and transitorie testament or covenant, being but for a time, whereof the Leviticall priests were mediatours, with the new, the everlasting mediatour whereof is Christ to shew, that this is not onely better than that in all respects, but also that that was abrogated by this.
‡ Or, testament.
7 He proveth by the testimony of Jeremy, that there is a second testament or covenant, and therefore that the first was not perfit.
c He calleth it an house, as it were one family of the whole kingdome: for whereas the kingdome of David was divided into two factions, the prophet giveth us to understand, that through the new testament they shall be joyned together again in one.
* Jer. 31, 33.
† Gr. give.
‡ Or, upon.
8 The conclusion therefore by the latter and the new, the first and old is taken away, for it could not be called new, if it differed not from the old, and again, that same is at length taken away, which is subject to corruption, and therefore imperfect.

Chap. IX.

1 The description of the rites and bloudy sacrifices of the law,
11 far inferior to the dignitie and perfection of the bloud and sacrifice of Christ.

1 THen verily the ‡ first covenant had also ‡ ordinances of divine service, and [a] a worldly sanctuarie.

2 For there was a tabernacle made, the first wherein was the candlestick and the table and the shewbread; which is called ‡ the sanctuarie.

3 And after the [b] second vail, the tabernacle which is called the [c] holiest of all:

4 Which had the golden censer, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aarons rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant;

5 And over it the cherubims of glory shadowing the [d] mercy-seat: of which we cannot now speak particularly.

6 [2] Now when these things were thus ordained, the priests went alwayes into the first tabernacle, accomplishing the service of God.

7 But into the second went the high priest alone once every yeare, not without bloud, which he offered for himself, and for the [e] errours of the people.

8 [3] The Holy Ghost this signifying, that the way into the holiest of all, was not yet made manifest, while as the first tabernacle was yet standing:

9 [4] Which was a figure [f] for the time then present, in which were offered both gifts & sacrifices, that could not make him that did the service perfect, as pertaining to the conscience.

10 [5] Which stood onely in meats and drinks, & divers washings, and carnall ‡ ordinances [g] imposed on them untill the time of reformation.

11 [6] But Christ being come an high priest of good things to come, [7] by a [h] greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building:

12 [8] Neither by the bloud of [i] goats and calves, but by his own bloud he entred in once into the holy place, having obtained eternall redemption for us.

13 [9] For if the bloud of bulls, and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the [k] purifying of the flesh:

14 How much more shall the bloud of Christ, who through the eternall Spirit, offered himself without ‡ spot to God, purge your conscience from [l] dead works to serve the living God?

15 [10] And for this cause he is the Mediatour of the new testament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternall inheritance.

16 [11] For where a testament is, there must also of necessitie ‡ be the death of the testatour.

17 For a testament is of force after men are dead: otherwise it is of no strength at all whilest the testatour liveth.

1 A division of the first tabernacle, which he calleth worldly, that is to say, transitory and earthly, into two parts, to wit, into the holy places, and the holiest of all.
‡ Or, ceremonies.
a An earthly and a sitting.
‡ Or, holy.
b He calleth it the second vail, not because there was two vails, but because it was behinde the sanctuary, or the first tabernacle.
c The holiest sanctuary.
d The Hebrew call the cover of the ark of the covenant, the mercy-seat, whom both the Grecians and we follow.
2 Now he cometh to the sacrifices, which he divideth into those daily sacrifices, and that yearly and solemn sacrifice, with the which the high priest only but once every year entring into the holiest of all with bloud offered for himself and the people.
e For the sinnes, Look Chap. 5, 2.
3 Of that yearely rite and the ceremony, he gathereth that the way was not by such sacrifices opened into heaven, which was shadowed by the holiest of all: for why did the high priest alone enter in thither, shutting out all other, and that to offer sacrifices there both for himself and for others, and after, did shut the holiest of all again?
4 An objection, If the way were not opened into heaven by those sacrifices (that is to say, if the worshippers were not purged by them) why then were those ceremonies used? To wit, that men might be called back to that spirituall example, that is to say, to Christ, who should correct all those things at his coming.
f For that time that that figure had to last.
5 Another reason, why they could not make clean the conscience of the worshippers, to wit, because they were outward and carnall, or corporall things.
‡ Or, rites, or ceremonies.
g For they were as you would say, a burden, from which Christ delivered us. 6 Now he entreth into the declaration of the figures, and first of all comparing the Leviticall high priest with Christ, (that is to say, the figure with the thing it self) he attributeth to Christ the administration of good things to come, that is, everlasting, which those carnall things had respect unto. 7 Another comparison of the first corruptible tabernacle, with the latter, (that is to say, with the humane nature of Christ) which is the true incorruptible temple of God, whereinto the Sonne of God entred, as the Leviticall high priests into the other which was frail and transitory. h By a more excellent and better. 8 Another comparison of the bloud of the sacrifices with Christ. The Leviticall high priests entring by those their holy places into their sanctuary, offered corruptible bloud for one yeare onely: but Christ entring into that holy body of his, entred by it into heaven it self, offering his own most pure bloud for an everlasting redemption: For one self-same Christ answereth both to the high priest, and the tabernacle, & the sacrifices, & the offerings themselves, as the truth to the figures, so that Christ is both high priest, and tabernacle, and sacrifice, yea, all those both truly and for ever. i For this yearely sacrifice of reconciliation, there were two kindes of sacrifices, the one a goat, the other a heifer, or calf. 9 If the outward sprinkling of bloud and ashes of beasts was a true and effectuall signe of purifying and cleansing, how much more shall the thing it self, and the truth being present, which in times past was shadowed by those external sacraments, that is to say, his bloud, which is in such sort mans bloud, that it is also the bloud of the Son of God, & therefore hath an everlasting vertue of purifying and cleansing. k He considereth the signes apart, being separate from the thing it self. ‡ Or, faults. l From sins which proceed from death, and bring forth nothing but death. 10 The conclusion of the former argument: therefore seeing the bloud of beasts did not purge sinnes, the new testament which was before time promised, whereunto those outward things had respect, is now indeed established, by the vertue whereof all transgressions might be taken away, and heaven indeed opened unto us: whereof it followeth that Christ shed his bloud also for the fathers, for he was shadowed by these old ceremonies, otherwise unlesse they had served to present him, they had been nothing at all profitable. Therefore this testament is called the latter, not as concerning the vertue of it, (that is to say, remission of sins) but in respect of that time, wherein the thing it self was finished, that is to say, wherein Christ was indeed exhibited to the world, & fulfilled all things which were necessary to our salvation. 11 A reason why the testament must be established by the death of the Mediatour, because this testament hath the condition of a testament or gift, which is made effectuall by death, and therefore that it might be effectuall, it must needs be that he that made the testament, should dy. ‡ Or, be brought in.

18 [12] Whereupon, neither the firſt teſtament was ‡ dedicated without bloud.

19 For when Moſes had ſpoken every precept to all the people, [m] according to the law, he took the bloud of calves and of goats, with water and ‡ ſcarlet wooll, and hyſſop, and [n] ſprinkled both the book and all the people, 20 Saying, This is the bloud of the teſtament which God hath enjoyned unto you.

21 Moreover, he ſprinkled with bloud both the tabernacle, and all the veſſels of the miniſterie.

22 And almoſt all things are by the law purged with bloud: and without ſhedding of bloud is no remiſſion.

23 It was therefore neceſſarie that the [o] patterns of things in the heavens ſhould be purified with theſe, but the heavenly things themſelves with better ſacrifices than theſe.

24 [13] For Chriſt is not entred into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true, but into heaven it ſelf, now to appeare in the preſence of God for us.

25 [14] Nor yet that he ſhould offer himſelf often, as the high prieſt entreth into the holy place, every yeare with bloud of others:

26 [15] For then muſt he often have ſuffered ſince the foundation of the world: but now once in the [p] end of the world, hath he appeared to put away [q] ſinne by the ſacrifice of himſelf.

27 And as it is appointed unto men [r] once to die, but after this the judgement:

28 So Chriſt was once offered to bear the ſinnes of [ſ] many, [16] and unto them that look for him ſhall he appeare the ſecond time, without ſinne, unto ſalvation.

12 There muſt be a proportion betweene thoſe things which purifie, and thoſe things which are purified: Under the law all thoſe figures were earthly, the tabernacle, the book, the veſſels, the ſacrifices, although they were the ſignes of heavenly things. Therefore it was requiſite that all thoſe ſhould be purified with ſome matter and ceremony of the ſame nature, to wit, with the bloud of beaſts, with water, wooll, hyſſope. But under Chriſt all things are heavenly, an heavenly tabernacle, an heavenly ſacrifice, an heavenly people, an heavenly doctrine, and heaven it ſelf is ſet open before us for an everlaſting habitation. Therefore all theſe things are ſanctified in like ſort, to wit, with that everlaſting offering of the quickning bloud of Chriſt.

m As the Lord had commanded.

‡ Or, purple.

n He uſeth to ſprinckle.

o The patterns of heavenly things were earthly, and therefore they were to be ſet forth with earthly things, as with the bloud of beaſts, and wooll, and hyſſop. But under Chriſt all things are heavenly, and therefore they could not but be ſanctified with the offering of his lively bloud. 13 Another double compariſon: The Leviticall high prieſt entred into the ſanctuary, which was made indeed by the commandement of God, but yet with mens hands, that it might be a pattern of another more excellent, to wit, of the heavenly palace. But Chriſt entred into heaven it ſelf. Again, he appeared before the ark, but Chriſt before God the Father himſelf 14 Another double compariſon: The Leviticall high prieſt offered other bloud, but Chriſt offered his own: he every yeare once iterated his offering: Chriſt offering himſelf but once abolished ſinne altogether, both of the former ages, and of the ages to come. 15 An argument to prove that Chriſts offering ought not to be repeared: Seeing that ſinnes were to be purged from the beginning of the world, and it is proved that ſins cannot be purged, but by the onely bloud of Chriſt: he muſt needs have died oftentimes, ſince the beginning of the world. But a man can die but once: therefore Chriſts oblation which was once done in the latter dayes, neither could nor can be repeated, Seeing then it is ſo, ſurely the vertue of it extendeth both to ſinnes that were before, and to ſins that are after his coming.

p In the latter dayes.

q That whole root of ſinne.

r He ſpeaketh of the naturall ſtate and condition of man: For as for Lazarus and certain other that died twiſe, that was no uſuall thing, but extraordinary: and as for them that ſhall be changed, their changing is a kinde of death. 1 Cor. 15, 51.

ſ Thus the generall promiſe is reſtrained to the elect onely, and we have to ſeek the teſtimony of our election, not in the ſecret counſel of God, but in the effects that in our faith worketh, and ſo we muſt climbe up from the loweſt ſtep to the higheſt, there to finde ſuch comfort as is moſt certain, and ſhall never be moved. 16 Shortly by the way he ſetteth our Chriſt as Judge, partly to terrifie them which do not reſt themſelves in the onely oblation of Chriſt once made, and partly to keep the faithfull in their day, that they go not back.

CHAP. X.

1 The weakneſſe of the law-ſacrifices. 10 The ſacrifice of Chriſts body once offered, 14 for ever hath taken away ſinnes. 19 An exhortation to hold faſt the faith, with patience and thanksgiving.

1 He perventeth a privie objection, Why then were thoſe ſacrifices offered? The Apoſtle anſwereth, firſt touching that yearly ſacrifice which was the ſolemneſt of all, wherein (ſaith he) there was made every yeare a remembrance again of all former ſinnes. Therefore that ſacrifice had no power to ſanctifie: for to what purpoſe ſhould thoſe ſinnes which are purged be repeated again, and wherefore ſhould now ſinnes come to be repeated every yeare, if thoſe ſacrifices did abolish ſinne?

FOr [1] the law having a ſhadow of good things to [a] come, & not the very image of the things, can never with thoſe ſacrifices which they offered yeare by yeare continually, make the comers thereunto perfect.

2 For then would they not have ceaſed to be offered: becauſe that the worſhippers once purged, ſhould have had no more conſcience of ſinnes.

3 But in thoſe ſacrifices there is a remembrance again made of ſinnes every yeare.

4 For it is not poſſible that the bloud of bulls and of goats, ſhould take away ſinnes.

5 [2] Wherefore when he [b] cometh into the world, he ſaith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldeſt not, but [c] a body ‡ haſt thou prepared me:

6 In burnt-offerings, and ſacrifices for ſinne thou haſt had no pleaſure:

7 Then ſaid I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me) to do thy will O God,

8 Above, when he ſaid, Sacrifice, and offering, and burnt-offerings, and offering for ſinne thou wouldeſt not, neither hadſt pleaſure therein, which are offered by the law:

9 Then ſaid he, Lo, I come to do thy will, (O God) He taketh away the [d] firſt, that he may eſtabliſh the ſecond.

10 By the which will we are ſanctified, through the offering of the body of Jeſus Chriſt once for all.

11 [3] And every prieſt ſtandeth [e] daily miniſtring and offering oftentimes the ſame ſacrifices which can never take away ſinnes.

12 But this man after he had offered one ſacrifice for ſinnes for ever, ſat down on the right hand of God:

13 [4] From henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footſtool.

14 For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are ſanctified.

15 [5] Whereof the holy Ghoſt alſo is a witneſſe to us: for after that he had ſaid before,

16 This is the covenant that I will make with them after thoſe dayes, ſaith the Lord: I will * put my laws into their hearts, and in their mindes will I write them:

17 And their ſinnes and iniquities will I remember [f] no more.

18 Now, where remiſſion of theſe is, there is no more offering for [g] ſinne.

19 [6] Having therefore, brethren, ‡ boldneſſe to enter into the holieſt by the bloud of Jeſus,

20 By a new and living way which he hath ‡ conſecrated for us, through the vail, that is to ſay, his [h] fleſh:

21 And having an high prieſt over the houſe of God:

22 [7] Let us draw near with a [i] true heart, in full aſſurance of faith, having our [k] hearts ſprinkled

2 A concluſion following of thoſe things that went before, and comprehending alſo the other ſacrifices. Seeing that the ſacrifices of the law could not do it therefore, Chriſt ſpeaking of himſelf as of our high prieſt, manifeſted in the fleſh, witneſſeth evidently that God reſted not in the ſacrifices, but in the obedience of his Sonne our high prieſt, in whoſe obedience he offered up himſelf once to his Father for us.

b The Son of God is ſaid to come into the world, when he was made man.

c It is word for word in the Hebrew text, Thou haſt pierced mine eares through, that is, thou haſt made me obedient, and willing to heare.

‡ Or, thou haſt fitted me.

d That is, the ſacrifices, to eſtabliſh the ſecond, that is, the will of God.

3 A concluſion, with the other part of the compariſon: The Leviticall high prieſt repeareth the ſame ſacrifices daily in his ſanctuary: whereupon it followeth that neither thoſe ſacrifices, neither thoſe offerings, neither thoſe high prieſts could take away ſinnes. But Chriſt having offered one ſacrifice once for the ſins of all men, and having ſanctified his own for ever, ſitteth at the right hand of the Father, having all power in his hands.

e At the altar.

4 He preventeth a privie objection, to wit, that yet notwithſtanding we are ſubject to ſinne and death, whereunto the apoſtle anſwereth, that the full efficacie of Chriſts vertue hath not yet ſhewed it ſelf, but ſhall at length appear when he will at once put to flight all his enemies, with whom as yet we ſtrive.

5 Although there do yet remain in us reliques of ſin, yet the work of our ſanctification which is to be perfected, hangeth upon the ſelf-ſame ſacrifice which never ſhall be repeated: and that the apoſtle proveth by alledging again the teſtimony of Jeremy, thus ſin is taken away by the new teſtament, ſeeing the Lord ſaith that it ſhall come to paſſe, that according to the form of it, he will no more remembre our ſins: Therefore we need now no purging ſacrifice to take away that which is already taken away, but we muſt rather take pains, that we may now through faith be partakers of that ſacrifice. * Jer. 31, 33. f Why then, where is the fire of purgatory, and that papiſts diſtinction of the fault, and the punishment? g He ſaid well, for ſin: for there remaineth another offering, to wit, of thanksgiving. 6 The ſum of the former treatiſe: We are not ſhut out now of the holy place, as the Fathers were, but we have an entrance into the true holy place (that is, into heaven) ſeeing that we are purged with the bloud, not of beaſts, but of Jeſus. Neither as in times paſt, both the high prieſt ſhut us out by ſetting the vail againſt us, but through the vail which is his fleſh, he hath brought us into heaven it ſelf, being preſent with us, ſo that we have now truly an high prieſt, which is over the houſe of God. ‡ Or, liberty. ‡ Or, new made. h So Chriſts fleſh ſheweth us the Godhead as it were under a vaile. For otherwiſe we were not able to abide the brightneſſe of it. 7 A moſt grave exhortation, wherein he ſheweth how that ſacrifice of Chriſt may be applyed to us: to wit, by faith, which alſo he deſcribeth by the conſequents, to wit, by ſanctification of the Spirit, which cauſeth us ſurely to hope in God, and to procure by all means poſſible one anothers ſalvation, through the love that is in us one towards another.

a Of things which are everlaſting, which were promiſed to the fathers, and exhibited in Chriſt.

i With no doub'e and counterfeit heart, but with ſuch an heart as is truly and indeed given to God.

k This is it which the Lord ſaith, Be ye holy, for I am holy.

from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with [1] pure water.

23 Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithfull that promised)

24 And let us consider one another to provoke unto love, and to good works.

25 Not forsaking the assembling of our selves together, as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another: [2] and so much the more, as ye see the day approching.

27 But a certain fearfull looking for of judgement, and fierie indignation, which shall devoure the [n] adversaries.

28 [9] He that despised Moses law, died without mercy, under two or three witnesses.

29 Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye shall he be thought worthy, who hath troden under foot the Sonne of God, and hath counted the bloud of the covenant wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?

30 [10] For we know him that hath said, * Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord: and again, The Lord shall [o] judge his people.

31 It is a fearfull thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 [11] But call to remembrance the former dayes, in which after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions, 33 Partly whilest ye were made [p] a gazing stock, both by reproches and afflictions, and partly whilest ye became [q] companions of them that were so used.

34 For ye had compassion of me in my bonds, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods, knowing in your selves that ye have in heaven a better and an enduring [r] substance.

35 Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward.

36 For ye have need of patience, that after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise.

37 For yet a [s] little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarrie.

38 [12] Now the just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him.

39 But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them that beleeve, to the saving of the soul.

1 With the grace of the holy Ghost.

2 Having mentioned the last coming of Christ, he stirreth up the godly to the meditation of an holy life, and citeth the faithlesse fallers from God to the fearfull judgement seat of the judge, because they wickedly rejected him in whom onely salvation consisteth.

m Without any cause or occasion, or shew of occasion.

n For it is another matter to sin through the frailty of mans nature, and another thing to proclaim war as it were to God as to an enemie.

9 If the breach of the law of Moses was punished by death, how much more worthy death is it to fall away from Christ?

10 The reason of all these things is, because God is a revenger of such as despise him: otherwise he should not rightly govern his church. Now there is nothing more horrible than the wrath of the living God.

* Deut. 32, 35. Rom. 12, 19.

o Rule or govern.

11 As he terrified the fallers away from God, so doth he now comfort them that are constant and stand strongly, setting before them the successe of their former fights, of stirring them up to a sure hope of a full and ready victory.

p You were brought forth to be ashamed.

q In taking their miseries to be your miseries.

r Goods and riches.

s He will come within this very little while.

12 He commendeth the excellency of a sure faith by the effect, because it is the onely way to life: which sentence he setteth forth and amplifieth by setting the contrary against it.

CHAP. XI.

1 What faith is. 6 Without faith we cannot please God. 7 The worthy fruits thereof in the fathers of old time.

NOw [1] faith is the [t] substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.

2 [2] For by it the [a] elders obtained a good report.

3 [3] Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are [b] seen were not made of things which do appeare.

4 [4] By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Kain, by which he obtained witnesse, that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead, [‡] yet speaketh.

5 [5] By faith Enoch was translated that he should not [c] see death, and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God.

6 But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must beleeve that he is, and that he is a [d] rewarder of them that diligently seek him.

7 [6] By faith Noah being warned of God of things not seen as yet, [‡] moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house, by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousnesse which is by faith.

8 [7] By faith Abraham when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed, and he went out not knowing whether he went.

9 By faith he sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange countrey, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise.

10 For he looked for a city which hath [e] foundations, whose builder and maker is God.

11 Through faith also Sara her self received strength to conceive seed, and was delivered of a childe when she was past age, because she judged him faithfull who had promised.

12 Therefore sprang there even of one, and him as good as [f] dead, so many as the starres of the skie in multitude, and as the sand which is by the sea shore innumerable.

13 These all died [†] [5] in faith, not having received the [h] promises, but having seen them afarre off, and were perswaded of them, and [i] embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.

14 For they that say such things, declare plainly that they seek a countrey.

15 And truly if they had been mindfull of that countrey, from whence they came out, they might have had opportunitie to have returned:

16 But now they desire a better countrey, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city.

17 By faith Abraham when he was [k] tried, offered up Isaac: and he that had received the [l] promises, offered up his onely begotten son, 18 [‡] Of whom it was said, that in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

19 Accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead: from [m] whence also he received him in a [n] figure.

20 [8] By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau concerning things to come.

1 An excellent description of faith by the effects, because it representeth things which are but yet in hope, and setteth, as it were, before our eyes things that are invisible. ‡ Or, ground, or confidence. t That is those Fathers of whom we came: and whose authority and example ought to move us very much. 3 He sheweth the propertie of faith, by setting out unto us most picked examples of such as from the beginning of the world excelled in the church.

b So that the world which we see, was not made of any matter that appeared, or was before, but of nothing.

4 Abels.

‡ Or, is yet spoken of.

5 Enoch.

c That he should not die.

d This reward is not referred to our merits, but to the free promise, as Paul teacheth in Abraham the father of all the faithfull. Rom. 4, 4.

h This is the figure Metonymia, for the things promised.

i For the patriarks were wont when they received the promises, to professe their religion by building of altars, and calling on the name of the Lord.

k Tried of the Lord.

l Although the promises of life were made in that onely begotten son Isaac, yet he appointed him to die, and so against hope beleeved in hope.

n For there was not the true and very death of Isaac, but as it were the death, by means whereof he seemed also as it were to have risen again.

8 Isaac.

9 Jacob.

21 [9] By faith Jacob when he was a dying, blesſed both the ſonnes of Joſeph, and worſhipped leaning upon the top of his ſtaff.

10 Joſeph. ‡ Or, remembred.

22 [10] By faith Joſeph when he died, ‡ made mention of the departing of the children of Iſrael: and gave commandment concerning his bones.

11 Moſes.

23 [11] By faith Moſes when he was born, was hid three moneths of his parents, becauſe they ſaw he was a proper childe, and they not o afraid of the kings commandment.

o They were not afraid to bring him up.

24 By faith Moſes when he was come to yeares, refuſed to be called the ſonne of Pharaohs daughter:

25 Chooſing rather to ſuffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the p pleaſures of ſinne for a ſeaſon:

p Such pleaſures as he could not enjoy, but he muſt needs provoke Gods wrath againſt him.

26 Eſteeming the reproch ‡ of Chriſt greater riches than the treaſures in Egypt: for he had reſpect unto the recompenſe of the reward.

‡ Or, for Chriſt.

27 By faith he forſook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king, for he endured as ſeeing him who is inviſible.

28 Through faith he kept the paſſeover, and the ſprinkling of bloud, leſt he that deſtroyed the firſt-born, ſhould touch them.

12 The red ſea.

29 [12] By faith they paſſed through the Red ſea, as by dry land: which the Egyptians aſſaying to do, were drowned, 13 Jericho.

30 [13] By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were compaſſed about ſeven dayes.

14 Rahab. q A notable example of Gods goodneſſe. ‡ Or, that were diſobedient.

31 [14] By faith the q harlot Rahab perished not with them ‡ that beleeved not, when she had received the ſpies with r peace.

r Courteouſly and friendly, ſo that ſhe did not onely not hurt them, but alſo kept them ſafe.

32 [15] And what ſhall I more ſay? for the time would fail me to tell of Gedeon, and of Barak, and of Sampſon, and of Jephthae, of David alſo and Samuel, and of the prophets.

u He meaneth that perſecution which Antiochus wrought.

36 And others had triall of cruell mockings, and ſcourgings, yea moreover, of bonds and impriſonment.

37 They were ſtoned, they were ſawn aſunder, were tempted, were ſlain with the ſword: they wandred about in x ſheep-skins, & goat-skins, being deſtitute, afflicted, tormented.

x In vile and rough clothing, ſo were the Saints brought to extream povertie, and conſtrained to live like beaſts in wildernesſes.

38 Of whom the world was not worthy: they wandred in deſerts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth.

16 An amplification taken of the circumſtance of the time: then faith is ſo much the more to be marvel'ed at, by how much the promiſes of things to come were more dark yet at length were indeed exhibited to us, ſo that their faith and ours is as one, as is alſo their conſecration and ours. y But ſaw Chriſt afar off. ‡ Or, foreſeen. z For their ſalvation did hang upon Chriſt, who was exhibited in our dayes.

39 [16] And theſe all having obtained a good report through faith received y not the promiſe:

40 God having ‡ provided ſome better thing for us, that they z without us ſhould not be made perfect.

CHAP. XII.

1 An exhortation to conſtant faith, patience, and godlineſſe, 22 A commendation of the new teſtament above the ola.

1 An applying of the former examples, whereby we ought to be ſtirred up to run the whole race, caſting away all ſtops and impediments.

WHerefore, [1] ſeeing we alſo are compaſſed about with ſo great a cloud of witneſſes, let us lay aſide every weight, and the ſinne which doth ſo eaſily a beſet us, and let us run with patience the race that is ſet before us, a For ſin beſiegeth us on all ſides, ſo that we cannot eſcape out.

2 [2] b Looking unto Jeſus the ‡ authour and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was ſet before him, endured the croſſe, deſpiſing the ſhame, and is ſet down at the right hand of the throne of God.

2 He ſetteth before us, as the marke of this race, Jeſus himſelf our captain, who willingly overcame all the roughneſſe of the ſame way. ‡ Or, beginner. b As it were upon the mark of our faith.

3 [3] For conſider him that endured ſuch contradiction of ſinners againſt himſelf, leſt ye be wearried and faint in your mindes.

c Whereas he had all kind of bleſſednesſe in his hand and power, yet ſuffered willingly the ignominie of the croſſe.

4 [4] Ye have not yet reſiſted unto bloud, ſtriving againſt ſinne.

3 An amplification, taken of the circumſtance of the perſons and the things themſelves, which he compareth betweene themſelves: for how great is Jeſus in compariſon of us, and how farre more grievous things did he ſuffer than we?

5 [5] And ye have forgotten the exhortation which ſpeaketh unto you as unto children, My ſonne, deſpiſe not thou the chaſtening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him.

4 He taketh an argument of the profit which cometh to us by Gods chaſtiſements, unleſſe we be in fault. Firſt of all, becauſe ſin, or that rebellious wickedneſſe of our fleſh, is by this meanes tamed.

6 For whom the Lord loveth he chaſteneth, & ſcourgeth every ſonne whom he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chaſtening, God dealeth with you as with ſonnes: for what ſon is he whom the father chaſteneth not?

8 But if ye be without chaſtiſement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye baſtards and not ſonnes.

5 Secondly, becauſe they are teſtimonies of his fatherly goodwill toward us, in ſo much that they ſhew themſelves to be baſtards, which cannot abide to be chaſtened of God.

9 [6] Furthermore, we have had fathers of our fleſh, which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: ſhall we not much rather be in ſubjection unto the Father of ſpirits, & live?

6 Thirdly, if all men yeeld this right to fathers, to whom next after God we owe this life, that they may rightfully correct their children, ſhall we not be much more ſubject to that our Father, who is the author of the ſpirituall and everlaſting life?

10 [7] For they verily for a few dayes chaſtened us after their own pleaſure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holines.

7 An amplification of the ſame argument: Thoſe fathers have corrected us after their fancie, for ſome frail and tranſitorie profit: but God chaſteneth & inſtructeth us for our ſingular profit, to make us partakers of his holineſſe: which thing although theſe our ſences do not preſently perceive, yet the end of the matter proveth it. 8 The concluſion, we muſt go forward courageouſly and keep alwayes a right courſe, and (as far forth as we may) without any ſtaggering or ſtumbling. d The deſcription of a man that is out of heart, and clean diſcouraged. ‡ Or, even. e Keep a right courſe, and ſo that you ſhew examples of good life for others to follow. 9 We muſt live in peace and holineſſe with all men. 10 We muſt ſtudie to edifie one another, both in doctrine and example of life. ‡ Or, fall from. f That no hereſie or backſliding be an offence. 11 We muſt eſchew fornication, and a prophane minde, that is ſuch a minde as giveth not to God his due honour, which wickednesſe, how ſeverely God will at length puniſh, the horrible example of Eſau teacheth us. ‡ Or, way to change his minde. g There was no place left for his repentance: and it appeareth by the effects, what his repentance was, for when he was gone out of his fathers ſight, he threatned his brother to kill him.

26 [14] Whose voice then shook the earth, but now he hath promised, saying, [l] Yet once more I shake not the earth onely, but also heaven.

14 He compareth the stedfast majestie of the gospel, wherewith the whole world was shaken, and even the very frame of heaven was as it were astonished, with the small and vanishing sound of the governance by the law.

1 Divers admonitions, as to charitie, 4 to honest life, 5 to avoid covetousnesse, 7 to regard Gods preachers, 9 to take heed of strange doctrines, 10 to confesse Christ, 16 to give almes, 17 to obey governours, 18 to pray for the apostle. 20 The conclusion.

1 He commeth to the second table, the summe whereof is charitie, especially toward strangers, and such as are afflicted.

LEt [1] brotherly love continue.

2 Be not forgetfull to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares.

3 Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them; and them which suffer adversitie, [a] as being your selves also in the body.

a Be so much touched, as if their miserie were yours.

4 [2] Marriage is honourable in all, and the bed undefiled: but whoremongers and adulterers God will judge.

2 He commendeth chaste matrimonie in all sorts of men, and threatneth utter destruction from God against whoremongers and adulterers.

5 [3] Let your conversation be without covetousnesse: and be content with such things as ye have. For [b] he hath said, * I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.

3 Covetousnesse is condemned, against which is set a contended minde with that which the Lord hath given b Even the Lord himself. * Josh. 1, 5.

6 So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what [c] man shall do unto me.

7 [4] Remember them which ‡ have the rule over you, who have spoken unto you the word of God: whose faith follow, considering the end of their conversation.

8 [5] Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever.

9 Be not carried about with divers and strange doctrines: [6] for it is a good thing that the heart be established with grace, not with [d] meats, which have not profited them that have been [e] occupied therein.

10 [7] We have an [7] altar whereof they have no right to eat, which [8] serve the tabernacle.

11 For the bodies of those beasts, whose bloud is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest for sinne, are burnt without the camp.

12 Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctifie the people with his own bloud, suffered without the gate.

13 [9] Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach.

14 * For here have we no continuing citie, but we seek one to come.

15 [9] By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips, † giving thanks to his name.

16 But to do good, and to communicate, forget not, for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.

17 [10] Obey them that ‡ have the rule over you, and submit your selves: for they watch for your souls, as they that must give account: that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for that is unprofitable for you.

18 [11] Pray for us: for we trust we have a good conscience, in al things willing to live honestly.

19 But I beseech you the rather to do this, that I may be restored to you the sooner.

20 Now the God of peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great shepherd of the sheep, through the bloud of the everlasting ‡ covenant, 21 Make you [h] perfect in every good work to do his wil, ‡ [i] working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

22 And I beseech you, brethren, suffer the word of exhortation, for I have written a letter unto you in few words.

23 Know ye, that our brother Timothy is set at libertie, with whom if he come shortly, I will see you.

24 Salute all them that have the rule over you, and all the saints. They of Italie salute you.

25 Grace be with you all. Amen.

¶ Written to the Hebrews from Italie, by Timothy.

c He setteth man against God.

4 We have to set before us the example of valiant captains, whom we ought diligently to follow.

‡ Or, are the guides.

5 He repeateth the summe of the doctrine, to wit, the only ground of all precepts of manners, and that is this: That we ought to quiet and content our selves in Christ onely: for there was yet never any man saved without the knowledge of him, neither is at this day saved, neither shall be saved after.

6 He toucheth them which mixed in externall worship and especially the difference of meats, with the gospel, which doctrine he plainly condemneth as clean repugnant to the benefits of Christ.

d By this one kind which concerneth the difference of clean and unclean meats, we have to understand all the ceremoniall worship.

e Which observed the difference of them superstitiously.

7 He refuteth their errour by an apt and fit comparison. They which in times past lived the tabernacle, did not eat of the sacrifices whose bloud was brought for sin into the holy place by the high priest. Moreover these sacrifices did represent Christ our offring. Therefore they cannot be partakers of him which serve the tabernacle, that is, such as stand in the service of the law: but let us not be ashamed to follow him out of Jerusalem, from whence he was cast out and suffered: for in this also Christ, who is the truth, answereth that figure, in that he suffered without the gate.

f By the altar, he meaneth the offerings.

g Whereof they cannot be partakers which stubbornly retain the rites of the law.

8 He goeth on further in this comparison, and sheweth that this also is signified unto us, that the godly followers of Christ must as it were go out of the world bearing his crosse. * Mich. 2, 10. 9 Now that those corporall sacrifices are taken away, he teacheth us that the true sacrifices of confession remain, which consist partly in giving of thanks, and partly in liberalitie, with which sacrifices indeed God is now delighted. † Gr. confessing to. 10 We must obey the warnings and admonitions of our ministers and elders, which watch for the salvation of their souls which are committed unto them. ‡ Or, guide. 11 The last part of this epistle, wherein he commendeth his ministery to the Hebrews, and wisheth them continuance and increase of graces from the Lord: and excuseth himself in that he hath used but few words to comfort them, having spent the epistle in disputing: and saluteth certain brethren familiarly and friendly. ‡ Or, testament. h Make you fit or meet. ‡ Or, doing. i Hence cometh that saying of the father, that God crowneth his works in us.

24 By faith Moses when he was come to yeares, refused to be called the sonne of Pharaohs daughter:

25 Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the p pleasures of sinne for a season:

p Such pleasures as he could not enjoy, but he must needs provoke Gods wrath against him.

26 Esteeming the reproch ‡ of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward.

‡ Or, for Christ.

27 By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king, for he endured as seeing him who is invisible.

28 Through faith he kept the passeover, and the sprinkling of bloud, lest he that destroyed the first-born, should touch them.

33 Who through faith subdued kingdomes, wrought righteousnesse, obtained ſ promises, stopped the mouthes of lions, ſ The fruit of the promises.

34 Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weaknesse were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to slight the armies of the aliens.

t He seemeth to mean the story of that woman of Sarepta, whose sonne Elias raised again from death, and the Shunamite, whose sonne Eliseus restored to his mother.

35 [t] Women received their dead raised to life again: and others were * u tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection.

* 2 Mac. 7, 7.

u He meaneth that persecution which Antiochus wrought.

36 And others had triall of cruell mockings, and scourgings, yea moreover, of bonds and imprisonment.

37 They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they wandred about in x sheep-skins, & goat-skins, being destitute, afflicted, tormented.

x In vile and rough clothing, so were the Saints brought to extream povertie, and constrained to live like beasts in wildernesses.

38 Of whom the world was not worthy: they wandred in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth.

16 An amplification taken of the circumstance of the time: then faith is so much the more to be marvel'ed at, by how much the promises of things to come were more dark yet at length were indeed exhibited to us, so that their faith and ours is as one, as is also their consecration and ours.

39 [16] And these all having obtained a good report through faith received y not the promise:

y But saw Christ afar off. ‡ Or, foreseen.

40 God having ‡ provided some better thing for us, that they z without us should not be made perfect.

z For their salvation did hang upon Christ, who was exhibited in our dayes.

Chap. XII.

1 An exhortation to constant faith, patience, and godlinesse, 22 A commendation of the new testament above the old.

1 [1] Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sinne which doth so easily ‡ beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us,

1 An applying of the former examples, whereby we ought to be stirred up to run the whole race, casting away all stops and impediments.

a For sin besiegeth us on all sides, so that we cannot escape our.

2 [2] [a] Looking unto Jesus the ‡ authour and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him, endured the crosse, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

2 He setteth before us, as the marke of this race, Jesus himself our captain, who willingly overcame all the roughnesse of the same way. ‡ Or, beginner. b As it were upon the mark of our faith. c Whereas he had all kind of blessednesse in his hand and power, yet suffered willingly the ignominie of the crosse.

3 [3] For consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearried and faint in your mindes.

3 An amplification, taken of the circumstance of the persons and the things themselves, which he compareth betweene themselves: for how great is Jesus in comparison of us, and how farre more grievous things did he suffer than we?

4 [4] Ye have not yet resisted unto bloud, striving against sinne.

4 He taketh an argument of the profit which cometh to us by Gods chastisements, unlesse we be in fault. First of all, because sin, or that rebellious wickednesse of our flesh, is by this meanes tamed.

5 [5] And ye have forgotten the exhortation which speaketh unto you as unto children, My sonne, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him.

5 Secondly, because they are testimonies of his fatherly goodwill toward us, in so much that they shew themselves to be bastards, which cannot abide to be chastened of God.

6 For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, & scourgeth every sonne whom he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sonnes: for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?

8 But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards and not sonnes.

9 [6] Furthermore, we have had fathers of our flesh, which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, & live?

6 Thirdly, if all men yeeld this right to fathers, to whom next after God we owe this life, that they may rightfully correct their children, shall we not be much more subject to that our Father, who is the author of the spirituall and everlasting life?

10 [7] For they verily for a few dayes chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holines.

7 An amplification of the same argument: Those fathers have corrected us after their fancie, for some frail and transitorie profit: but God chastened & instructeth us for our singular profit, to make us partakers of his holinesse: which thing although these one sences do not presently perceive, yet the end of the matter proveth it.

11 Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless, afterward it yeeldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousnesse, unto them which are exercised thereby.

8 The conclusion, we must go forward courageously and keep always a right course, and (as far forth as we may) without any staggering or stumbling.

12 [d] Wherefore lift up the hands which d hang down, and the feeble knees.

d The description of a man that is out of heart, and clean discouraged. ‡ Or, even.

13 And make ‡ e straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way, but let it rather be healed.

e Keep a right course, and so that you shew examples of good life for others to follow.

14 [9] Follow peace with all men, & holinesse, without which no man shall see the Lord:

9 We must live in peace and holinesse with all men.

15 [10] Looking diligently, lest any man ‡ fail of the grace of God, lest any f root of bitternesse springing up, trouble you, and thereby many be defiled:

10 We must studie to edifie one another, both in doctrine and example of life. ‡ Or, fall from. f That no heresie or backsliding be an offence.

16 [11] Lest there be any fornicatour, or profane person, as Esau, who for one morsel of meat sold his birth-right.

11 We must eschew fornication, and a prophane minde, that is such a minde as giveth not to God his due honour, which wickednesse, how severely God will at length punish, the horrible example of Esau teacheth us.

17 For ye know how that afterward when he would have inherited the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no ‡ g place of repen-

8 He goeth on further in this comparison, and sheweth that this also is signified unto us, that the godly followers of Christ must as it were go out of the world bearing his crosse.
* Mich. 2, 10. 9 Now that those corporall sacrifices are taken away, he teacheth us that the true sacrifices of confession remain, which consist partly in giving of thanks, and partly in liberalitie, with which sacrifices indeed God is now delighted. † Gr. confessing to. 10 We must obey the warnings and admonitions of our ministers and elders, which watch for the salvation of their souls which are committed unto them. ‡ Or, guide. 11 The last part of this epistle, wherein he commendeth his ministery to the Hebrews, and wisheth them continuance and increase of graces from the Lord: and excuseth himself in that he hath used but few words to comfort them, having spent the epistle in disputing: and saluteth certain brethren familiarly and friendly. ‡ Or, testament. h Make you fit or meet. ‡ Or, doing. i Hence cometh that saying of the father, that God crowneth his works in us.

22 And I beseech you, brethren, suffer the word of exhortation, for I have written a letter unto you in few words.

23 Know ye, that our brother Timothy is set at libertie, with whom if he come shortly, I will see you.

24 Salute all them that have the rule over you, and all the saints. They of Italie salute you.

25 Grace be with you all. Amen.

¶ Written to the Hebrews from Italie, by Timothy.

The [a] generall Epistle of JAMES.

CHAP. I.

We are to rejoyce under the crosse, 5 to ask patience of God, 13 and in our trials not to impute our weaknesse, or sinnes unto him, 10 but rather to hearken to the word, to meditate in it, and to do thereafter: 26 other-wise men may seem, but never be truly religious.

a That is, written to no one man, citie, or country, but to all the Jews generally, being now dispersed.

IAmes a servant of God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes which are [b] scattered abroad, greeting.

b To all the beleeving Jews, of what tribe soever they be, and are dispersed through the whole world.

2 [1] My brethren, [c] count it all joy [2] when ye fall into divers temptations, c The first place or part touching comfort in afflictions, wherein we ought not to be cast down and be faint-hearted, but rather rejoyce and be glad.

3 [3] Knowing this, that the [d] trying of your faith worketh patience.

c Seeing their condition was miserable in that scattering abroad, he doeth well to begin as he doeth.

2 The first argument, because our faith is tryed through afflictions: which ought to be most pure, for so it is behoveable for us.

4 [4] But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.

3 The second, because patience, a farre passing and most excellent vertue, is by this meanes ingendred in us.

5 [5] If any of you lack [e] wisdome, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him.

d That wherewith your faith is tryed, to wit, those manifold tentations.

6 But let him ask in faith, nothing [f] wavering: [6] for he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea, driven with the winde, and tossed.

4 The third argument propounded in manner of an exhortation, that true and continuall patience may be discerned from fained, and for a time. The crosse is as it were the instrument wherewith God doth polish and fine us. Therefore the work and effect of afflictions, is the perfecting of us in Christ.

7 For let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord.

8 A double-minded man is unstable in [g] all his wayes.

9 [7] Let the brother of [h] low degree [‡] rejoyce in that he is exalted:

10 [8] But the [i] rich, in that he is made low: [9] because as the flower of the grasse he shall passe away.

11 For the sunne is no sooner risen with a burning heat, but it withereth the grasse; and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the fashion of it perisheth: so also shall the rich man fade away in his [k] wayes.

12 [10] Blessed is the man that endureth [l] temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.

5 An answer to a privy objection. It is easily said, but is it not so easily done. He answereth that we need in this case a far other manner of wisedome, than the wisedome of a man, to judge those things best for us, which are most contrary to the flesh: but yet we shall easily obtain this gift of wisedome, if we ask it rightly, that is, with a sure confidence of God, who is most bountifull and liberall. e By wisedome, he meaneth the knowledge of that doctrine whereof mention is made before, to wit, wherefore we are afflicted of God, and what fruit we have to reap of affliction. f Why then, what need other mediatours? 6 A digression, or going aside from his matter, against prayers which are conceived with a doubting mind, whereas we have a certain promise of God, and this is the second part of the epistle. g In all his thoughts and his deeds. 7 He returneth to his purpose, repearing the proposition, which is, that we must rejoyce in the crosse, for it doth not presse us down, but exalt us. h Who is afflicted with poverty, or contempt, or with any kinde of calamitie. ‡ Or, glory. 8 Before he concludeth, he giveth a doctrine contrary to the former: to wit, how we ought to use prosperitie, which is plentie of all things: to wit, so that no man therefore please himself, but be so much the more void of pride. i Who hath all things at his will. 9 An argument taken of the very nature of things themselves, for that they are most vain and uncertain. k Whatsoever he either purposeth in his minde, or doth. 10 The conclusion: therefore we must patiently bear the crosse: and he addeth a fourth argument, which comprehendeth the sum of all the former, to wit, because we come by this way to the crown of life, but yet of grace according to the promise. l Affliction whereby the Lord tryeth him.

13 [11] Let no man say when he is [m] tempted, I am tempted of God: [12] for God cannot be tempted with [‡] evil, neither tempteth he any man.

14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed.

15 Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth [n] sinne: and sinne when it is finished, bringeth forth death.

16 [13] Do not erre, my beloved brethren.

17 Every good gift, and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the [o] Father of lights, with whom is no variablenesse, neither [p] shadow of turning.

18 [14] Of his own [q] will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kinde of [r] first-fruits of his creatures.

19 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to heare, slow to speak, slow to wrath.

20 For the wrath of man worketh not the [s] righteousnesse of God.

21 Wherefore lay apart all filthinesse, and superfluity of naughtinesse, and receive with [t] meeknesse the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls.

22 [15] But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers onely, [16] deceiving your own selves.

23 [17] For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his [u] naturall face in a glasse.

24 For he beholdeth himself and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.

25 But whoso looketh into the perfect law of libertie, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetfull hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his [‡] [x] deed.

26 [18] If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his [y] own heart, this mans religion is vain.

27 [19] Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father, is this, To [z] visit the fatherlesse and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.

11 The third part of this epistle, wherein he descendeth from outward tentations, that is, from afflictions whereby God trieth us: to inward, that is, to those lusts whereby we are stirred up to doe evil. The summe is this: Every man is the author of these temptations to himself, and not God: for we bear about in our bosoms that wicked corruption, which taketh occasion by what meanes soever, to stir up evil motions in us, whence out at length proceed wicked doings, and in conclusion followeth death, the just reward of them.

m When he is provoked to doe evil.

12 Here is a reason shewed, why God cannot be the author of evil doing in us, because he desireth not evil.

‡ Or, evils.

n By sinne is meant in this place, actuall sinne.

13 Another reason taken of contraries: God is the author of all goodnesse, and so, that he is alwayes like himself: how then can he be thought to be the author of evil?

o From him who is the fountain and author of all goodnesse.

p He goeth on in the metaphore: for the sunne by his manifold and sundry kindes of turning, maketh houres, dayes, moneths, yeares, light and darknesse.

14 The fourth part, concerning the excellencie and fruit of the word of God, the summe is this: we must heare the word of God most carefully and diligently, seeing it is the seed, wherewith God of his free favour and love hath begotten us unto himself, picking us out of the number of his creatures. And the apostle condemneth two faults, which do greatly trouble us in this matter, to wit, for that we so please our selves, that we had rather speak our selves, then heare God speaking: yea we snuff and are angry when we are reprehended: against which faults, he setteth a peaceable and quiet minde, and such an one as is desirous of puritie. q This is it which Paul calleth gracious favour, and good will, which is the fountain of our salvation. r As it were an holy kinde of offering, taken out of the residue of men. ‡ That which God appointeth. t By meeknesse, he meaneth modestie, and whatsoever is contrarie to an haughty and proud stomack, Matth. 7, 21 Rom. 2, 13.

15 Another admonition: therefore is Gods word heard, that we may frame our lives according to the prescript thereof. 16 He addeth reasons, and those most weightie: First, because they, that do otherwise, do very much hurt themselves. 17 Secondly, because they lose the chiefest use of Gods word, which correct not by it the faults that they know. u He alludeth to the naturall spot, to which is contrary that puritie whereunto we are born again, the lively image whereof we behold in the law. ‡ doing. x Behaving himself so: for works do shew faith. 18 The third admonition, the word of God prescribeth a rule not only to do well, but also to speak well. y The fountain of all brabling, and cursed speaking, and sawcinesse, is this, that men know not themselves. 19 The fourth: the true service of God standeth in charitie toward our neighbours (especially such as need others help, as the fatherlesse and widowes) and puritie of life. z To have a care of them, and to help them as much as we can.

CHAP.

Chap. II.

It is not agreeable to Christian profession to regard the rich, and to despise the poore brethren: 13 rather we are to be loving and mercifull: 14 and not to boast of faith where no deeds are; 17 which is but a dead faith, 29 the faith of devils, 21 not of Abraham, 25 and Rahab.

MY [1] brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ the Lord of [a] glory, with respect of persons.

2 For if there come unto your † assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poore man, in vile raiment:

3 And ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou here ‡ in [b] a good place; and say to the poore, Stand thou there, or sit here under my foot-stool:

4 Are ye not then partiall in [c] your selves, and are become judges of evil thoughts?

5 [2] Hearken my beloved brethren, Hath not God chosen the [d] poore of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of ‡ the kingdome, which he hath promised to them that love him?

6 But ye have despised the poore. [3] Do not rich men oppresse you, and draw you before the judgement-seats?

7 Do not they blaspheme that worthy name, by the which ye are [e] called?

8 [4] If ye fulfill the [f] royall law, according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy self, ye do well.

9 But if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sinne, and are convinced of the law as transgressours.

10 [5] For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of [g] all.

11 [6] For ‡ he that said, Do not commit adultery; said also, Do not kill. Now if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill, thou art become a transgressour of the law.

12 [7] So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty.

13 For he shall have judgement without mercy, that hath shewed no mercy; and [h] mercy ‡ rejoyceth against judgement.

14 [8] What doth it profit, my brethren, though, a man say he hath faith, and have not works; can faith save him?

15 [9] If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food,

16 And one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be you warmed, and filled: notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needfull to the body: what doth it profit?

17 Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead being † alone.

18 [i] Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works: shew me thy faith ‡ without thy works, and I will shew thee my faith by my works.

19 [10] Thou beleevest that there is one God, thou doest well: the devils also beleeve, and tremble.

20 [11] But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?

21 Was not Abraham our father [k] justified by works, when he had offered Isaac his sonne upon the altar?

22 ‡ Seest thou how faith [l] wrought with his works, and by works was faith made [m] perfect?

23 And the scripture was [n] fulfilled which saith, * Abraham beleeved God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousnesse: and he was called the friend of God.

24 [12] Ye see then how that by works a man is [o] justified, and not by [p] faith onely.

25 [13] Likewise also, was not Rahab the harlot justified by works, when she had received the messengers, and had sent them out another way?

26 [14] For as the body without the ‡ spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also.

1 The fift: charitie which proceedeth from a true faith, cannot stand with the accepting of persons: which he proveth plainly, by setting forth their example, who with the reproach or disdain of the poor, honour the rich.

a For if we knew what Christs glory is, and esteemed it as we ought to do, there would not be such respect of persons as there is.

† Gr. Synagogue.

‡ Or, well or seemly.

b In a worshipfull and honourable place.

c Have ye not (which ye ought not to doe) by this meanes within your selves judged one man to be preferred before another?

2 He sheweth, that they are perverse and naughtie judges, which preferre the rich before the poore, by that that God on the contrary side preferreth the poor, whom he hath enriched with true riches, before the rich.

d The needie and wretched, and (if we measure it after the opinion of the world) the veriest abjects of all men.

‡ Or, that.

3 Secondly, he proveth them to be mad men: for that the rich men are rather to be holden execrable and cursed, considering that they persecute the church, and blaspheme Christ: for he speaketh of wicked and profane rich men, such as the most part of them have been alwayes, against whom he setteth the poore and abject.

e Word for word, which is called upon of you.

4 The conclusion: Charitie which God prescribeth cannot agree with the accepting of persons, seeing that we must walk in the kings high way.

f The law is said to be royall and like the kings high way, for that is plain and without turnings, and that the law calleth every one our neighbour without respect, whom we may help by any kinde of duetie.

5 A new argument to prove the same conclusion: They do not love their neighbours, which neglect some, and ambitiously honor others: for he doth not obey God, which cutteth off from the commandements of God, that that is not so commodious for him, nay he is rather guiltie generally of the breach of the whole law, although he observe the residue.

g Not that all sins are equall, but because he that breaketh one little of the law, offendeth the majestie of the law-giver.

6 A proof: because the law-maker is alwayes one and the self-same, & the body of the law cannot be divided.

‡ Or, that law which said.

7 The conclusion of the whole treatise: we are upon this condition delivered from the curse of the law by the mercie of God, that in like sort we should maintain and cherish charity and good wil one towards another, and whoso doth not so, shall not taste of the grace of God.

h He that is hard and currish against his neighbour, or else helpeth him not, he shall finde God an hard and rough judge to himself ward.

‡ Or, glorieth.

8 The fift place, which hangeth very well with the former treatise, touching a true and lively faith. And the proposition of the place is this: Faith which bringeth not forth works, is not that faith whereby we are justified, but an image of faith: or else this, they are not justified by faith, which shew not the effects of faith.

9 The first reason taken of a similitude: If a man say to one that is hungry, Fill thy belly, and yet giveth him nothing, this shall not be true charitie: so if a man say, he beleeveth, and bringeth forth no works of his faith, this shal not be a true faith, but a certain dead thing set out with the name of faith, whereof no man hath to brag, unlesse he will openly incur reprehension, seeing that the cause is understood by the effect.

† Gr. by itself.

i Nay, thus may every man beat down thy pride.

‡ Some copies reade, by thy works.

10 Another reason taken of an absurditie: If such a faith were the true faith whereby we are justified, the devils should be justified, for they have that, but yet notwithstanding they tremble, and are not justified therefore, neither is that faith a true faith.

11 The third reason taken from the example of Abraham, who no doubt had a true faith: but he in offering his son, shewed himself to have that faith which was not void of works, and therefore he received a true testimonie when it was said, that faith was imputed to him for righteousnesse.

k Was he not by his works known and found to be justified? for he speaketh not here of the causes of justification, but by what effects we may know that a man is justified.

‡ Or, thou seest.

l Was effectuall and fruitfull with good works.

m That the faith was declared to be a true faith, and that by works.

n Then was the scripture fulfilled, when it appeared plainly, how truely it was written of Abraham.

* Gen. 15, 6. Rom. 4, 3. Gal. 3, 6.

12 The conclusion: He is onely justified that hath faith which hath works following it.

o Is proved to be just.

p Of that dead and fruitlesse faith which you boast of.

13 A fourth reason taken from a like example of Rahab the harlot, who also proved by her works that she was justified by a true faith.

14 The conclusion repeated again: faith which bringeth not forth fruits and works, is not faith but a dead carcase.

‡ Or, breath.

Chap. III.

1 We are not rashly or arrogantly to reprove others: 5 but rather to bridle the tongue, a little member, but a powerfull instrument of much good, and great harm. 13 They who be truly wise, be milde, and peaceable, without envying and strife.

MY [1] brethren, be not many masters, [2] knowing that we shall [a] receive the greater ‡ condemnation.

2 For in many things we offend all. [3] If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body.

3 [4] Behold, we put bits in the horses mouthes, that they may obey us, and we turn about their whole body.

4 Behold also the ships, which though they be so great, and are driven of fierce windes, yet are they turned about with a very small helm, whithersoever the governour listeth.

5 Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things: [5] behold how great ‡ a matter a little fire kindleth.

6 And the tongue is a fire, [b] a world of iniquitie: so is the tongue amongst our members, that it defileth the whole body, and [c] setteth on fire the course of nature, and it is set on fire of hell.

1 The sixt part or place: Let no man usurp (as most men ambitiously do) authoritie to judge and censure others rigorously.

2 A reason, because they provoke Gods severitie against themselves, which do so curiously and rigorously condemne others, being themselves guiltie and faultie.

a Unlesse we surcease from this masterlike and proud finding fault with others.

‡ Or, judgement.

3 The seventh place, touching the bridling of the tongue joyned with the former, so that it is manifest that there is no man which may not justly be found fault with all, seeing it is a rare vertue to bridle the tongue.

4 He sheweth by two similitudes, the one taken from the bridles of horses, that other from the rudders of ships, how great matters may be brought to passe by the good moderation of the tongue.

5 On the contrary part he sheweth how great discommodities arise by the intemperancie of the tongue throughout the whole world, to the end that men may so much the more diligently give themselves to moderate it.

‡ Or, wood.

b An heap of all mischiefs.

c It is able to set the whole world on fire.

214

7 For every † kinde of beaſts and of birds, and of ſerpents, and things in the ſea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of † mankinde,

8 But the tongue can no man tame, it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poiſon.

9 [6] Therewith bleſſe we God, even the Father: and therewith curſe we men, which are made after the [7] ſimilitude of God.

10 [8] Out of the ſame mouth proceedeth bleſſing and curſing: my brethren, theſe things ought not ſo to be.

11 Doth a fountain ſend forth at the ſame ‡ place ſweet water and bitter?

12 Can the fig-tree, my brethren, bear olive-berries? either a vine, figs? ſo can no fountain both yeeld ſalt water and fresh.

13 [9] Who is a wiſe man and endued with knowledge amongſt you? let him ſhew out of a good converſation his works with meekneſſe of wiſdome.

14 But if ye have bitter envying and ſtrife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not againſt the truth.

15 This wiſdome deſcendeth not from above but is earthly, ‡ ſenſuall, devilish.

16 For where envying and ſtrife is, there is † confuſion, and every evil work.

17 But the wiſdome that is from above is firſt pure, then peaceable, gentle, and eaſie to be intreated, [d] full of mercy and good fruits, ‡ without partiality, and without hypocriſie.

18 [10] And the fruit of righteouſneſſe is ſown in peace of them that make peace.

† Gr. nature.

† Gr. nature of man.

6 Amongſt other faults of the tongue, the apoſtle chiefly reproveth back-biting and ſpeaking evil of our neighbours, even in them eſpecially which otherwiſe will ſeem godly and religious.
7 He denyeth by two reaſons, that God can be praiſed by that man, that uſeth curſed ſpeaking, or to backbite: firſt, becauſe man is the image of God, which whoſoever doeth not honour reverenceth not God himſelf.
8 Secondly, becauſe the order of nature which God hath ſet in things will not ſuffer things that are ſo contrary the one to the other, to ſtand the one with the other.
‡ Or, hole.
9 The eighth part, which hangeth with the former, touching meekneſſe of minde, againſt which he ſetteth envy and a contentious mind. And in the beginning he ſtoppeth the mouth of the chief fountain of all theſe miſchiefs, to wit, a falſe perſwaſion of wiſedom, whereas notwithſtanding there is no true wiſedom but that is heavenly, and frameth our mindes to all kind of true moderation and ſimplicitie. ‡ Or, naturall. † Gr. tumult, or unquietneſſe. d He ſetteth mercie againſt the fierce and cruell nature of man, and ſheweth that heavenly wiſedom bringeth forth good fruits, for he that is heavenly wiſe, referreth all things to Gods glory, and the profit of his neighbours. ‡ Or, without wrangling. 10 Becauſe the world perſwadeth it ſelf that they are miſerable which live peaceably and ſimply: on the contrary ſide the apoſtle pronounceth that they ſhall at the length reap the harveſt of peaceable righteouſneſſe.

Chap. IIII.

1 We are to ſtrive againſt covetouſneſſe, 4 intemperance, 5 pride, 11 detraction and rash judgement of others: 13 and not to be confident in the good ſucceſſe of worldly buſineſſe, but mindfull ever of the uncertaintie of this life, to commit our ſelves and all our affairs to Gods providence.

1 He goeth on forward in the ſame argument, condemning certain other cauſes of warres, and contentions, to wit, unbridled pleaſures and immoderate luſts, by their effects, for ſo much as the Lord doth worthily make them void, ſo that they bring nothing elſe to them in whom they are, but incurable torments.
‡ Or, brawlings.
‡ Or, pleaſures.
2 He reprehendeth them by name, which are not aſhamed to go about to make God the miniſter and helper of their luſts and pleaſures, in asking things which either are of themſelves unlawfull, or being lawfull ask them to wicked purpoſe and uſes.
‡ Or, pleaſures. 3 Another reaſon, why ſuch unbridled luſts and pleaſures are utterly to be condemned, to wit, becauſe that he that giveth himſelf to the world, divorceth himſelf from God, and breaketh the band of that holy and ſpirituall marriage. 4 The taking away of an objection: In deed our mindes run headlong into theſe vices, but we ought ſo much the more diligently to take heed of them, which care and ſtudie ſhall not be in vain, ſeeing that God reſiſteth the ſtubborn, and giveth that grace to the modeſt and humble that ſurmounteth all thoſe vices. ‡ Or, enviouſly.

FRom [1] whence come warres and ‡ fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your ‡ luſts, that warre in your members?

2 Ye luſt, and have not: ye kill, and deſire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and warre, yet ye have not, [2] becauſe ye aſk not.

3 Ye aſk, and receive not, becauſe ye aſk amiſſe, that ye may conſume it upon your ‡ luſts.

4 [3] Ye adulterers, and adultereſſes, know ye not that the friendſhip of the world is enmity with God? whoſoever therefore will be a friend of the world, is the enemy of God.

5 [4] Do ye think that the ſcripture ſaith in vaine, The ſpirit that dwelleth in us luſteth ‡ to envie?

6 But he giveth more grace, wherefore he ſaith, * God reſiſteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble.

7 [5] Submit your ſelves therefore to God: reſiſt the devil, and he will flee from you.

8 Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you: cleanſe your hands, ye ſinners, and purifie your hearts, ye double-minded.

9 [6] Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to [a] heavineſſe.

10 Humble your ſelves in the ſight of the Lord, and he ſhall lift you up.

11 [7] Speak not evil one of another, brethren: he that ſpeaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, ſpeaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge.

12 There is one law-giver, who is able to ſave, and to deſtroy: who art thou that judgeſt another?

13 [*] [8] Go to now, ye that ſay, To day or to morrow we will go into ſuch a city, and continue there a yeare, and buy and ſell, and get gain:

14 Whereas ye know not what ſhall be on the morrow: for what is your life? ‡ It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and then vaniſheth away.

15 For that ye ought to ſay, If the Lord will we ſhall live, and do this, or that.

16 But now ye rejoyce in your boaſtings: all ſuch rejoycing is evil.

17 [9] Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is ſinne.

* Prov. 3. 34. 1 Pet. 5. 5.

5 The concluſion: We muſt ſet the contrary vertues againſt thoſe vices, and therefore whereas we obeyed the ſuggeſtions of the devil, we muſt ſubmit our mindes to God, & reſiſt the devil, with a certain and aſſured hope of victory. To be ſhort, we muſt employ our ſelves to come neare unto God by puritie and ſincerity of life.
6 He goeth on in the ſame compariſon of contraries, and ſetteth againſt theſe profane joys an earneſt ſorrow of minde, and againſt pride and arrogancie, holy modeſtie.
a By this word, the Grecians mean an heavineſſe joyned with ſhamefaſtneſſe, which is to be ſeene in a caſt down countenance, and ſetled as it were upon the ground.
7 He reprehendeth moſt ſharply another double miſchief of pride: the one is, in that the proud and arrogant will have other men to live according to their will and pleaſure, and therefore they do moſt arrogantly condemne whatſoever pleaſeth them not: which thing cannot be done without great injurie to our onely lawmaker, for by this means his laws are found fault withall, as not circumſpectly enough written, and men challenge that unto themſelves which properly belongeth to God alone, in that they lay a law upon mens conſciences. * Prov. 27, 1. 8 The other fault is this, That men do ſo confidently determine upon theſe and thoſe matters and buſineſſes, as though that every moment of their life did not depend of God. ‡ Or, for it is. 9 The concluſion of all the former treatiſe: The knowledge of the will of God, doeth not onely nothing at all profit, unleſſe the life be anſwerable unto it, but alſo maketh the ſins farre more grievous.

Chap. V.

1 Wicked rich men are to fear Gods vengeance. 7 We ought to be patient in afflictions, after the example of the prophets, and Job: 12 to forbear ſwearing, 13 to pray in adverſity, to ſing in proſperity: 16 to acknowledge mutually our ſeverall faults, to pray one for another, 19 and to reduce a ſtraying brother to the truth.

1 He denounceth utter deſtruction to the wicked and profane rich men, and ſuch as are drowned in their riotouſneſſe, mocking at their fooliſh confidence, when as there is nothing indeed more vaine than ſuch things.
a The Lord who is more mightie than ye are, hath heard them.
b Ye have pampered up yourſelves.
c The Hebrewes call a day that is appointed to ſolemn banketting, a day of ſlaughter, or feaſting.
‡ Or, be long patient, or ſuffer with long patience.
2 He applieth that to the poore, which he ſpake againſt the rich, warning them to wait for the Lords coming patiently, who will revenge the injuries which the rich men do them.

GO [1] to now ye rich men, weep & howl for your miſeries that ſhall come upon you.

2 Your riches are corrupted, and your garments moth-eaten.

3 Your gold and ſilver is cankered, and the ruſt of them ſhall be a witneſſe againſt you, & ſhall eat your fleſh as it were fire: ye have heaped treaſure together for the laſt dayes.

4 Behold the hire of the labourers, which have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and the cries of them which have reaped, are entred into the [a] eares of the Lord of ſabaoth.

5 Ye haved lived in pleaſure on the earth, and been wanton: ye have [b] nourished your hearts, as in a [c] day of ſlaughter.

6 Ye have condemned and killed the juſt, and he doth not reſiſt you.

7 ‡ [2] Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming

coming of the Lord: [3] behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, untill he receive the early and latter rain.

8 Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

9 [4] [d] Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: [5] behold, the judge standeth before the doore.

10 [6] Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have spoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of suffering affliction, and of patience.

11 Behold, we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the [e] end of the Lord: that the Lord is very pitifull and of tender mercy.

12 [7] But above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea, [f] be yea, and your nay, nay, lest ye fall into condemnation.

13 [8] Is any among you afflicted? let him pray. Is any merry? let him sing psalmes.

14 [9] Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with [g] oyl in the [h] name of the Lord:

15 And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed [i] sinnes, they shall be forgiven him.

16 [10] Confesse your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed: [11] the effectuall fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

17 Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are, and he prayed [k] earnestly that it might not rain: and it rained not on the earth by the space of three yeares and six moneths.

18 And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.

19 [12] Brethren, if any of you do erre from the truth, and one [k] convert him;

20 Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the errour of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sinnes.

3 The taking away of an objection, Although his coming seem to linger, yet at the least we must follow the husbandmen, who do patiently wait for the times that are proper for the fruits of the earth. And again, God will not deferre the least jot of the time that he hath appointed.

4 Or, grone, or grieve not.

4 He commendeth Christian patience, for that whereas other through impatience use to accuse one another, the faithfull on the contrarie side, complain not, although they receive injurie.

d By grudging, he meaneth a certain inward complaining which betokeneth impatience.

5 The conclusion: the Lord is at the doore: who will defend his own, and revenge his enemies, and therefore we need not to trouble our selves. 6 Because most men are wont to object, that it is good to repell injuries by what means soever, he setteth against that the examples of the fathers, whose patience had a most happie end, because God as a most bountifull Father, never forsaketh his. e What end the Lord gave. 7 Because even the best men sometimes through impatience break out into oathes sometimes lesser, sometimes greater. the apostle warneth us to detest such wickednesse, and to accustom our tongues to simple and true talk. f That that you have to say or affirm, speak or affirm it simply, and without an oath: and that that you will deny, deny it simply and flatly. 8 He sheweth the best remedy against all afflictions, to wit, prayers which have their place both in sorrow and joy.

9 He sheweth peculiarly, to what physicians especially we must go, when we are diseased, to wit, to the prayers of the elders, which then also could cure the body (for so much as the gift of healing was then in force) and take away the chiefest cause of sicknesses and diseases, by obtaining for the sick through their prayers and exhortation, remission of sinnes.

g This was a signe of the gift of healing: and now seeing we have the gift no more, the signe is no longer necessarie.

h By calling on the name of the Lord.

i He hath reason in making mention of sinnes, for diseases are for the most part sent because of sinnes.

10 Because God pardoneth their sinnes which confesse and acknowledge them, and not theirs which justifie themselves, therefore the apostle addeth, that we ought freely to confer one with another touching those inward diseases, that we may help one another with our prayers. 11 He commendeth prayers by the effects that come of them, that all men may understand that there is nothing more effectuall than they are, so that they proceed from a pure minde. ‡ Or, in his prayer.

12 The taking away of an objection: All reprehensions are not condemned, seeing that on the contrary part there is nothing more acceptable to God than to call into the way, a brother that was wandering out of the way. k Hath called him back from his way.

The first epistle generall of PETER.

Chap. I.

1 He blesseth God for his manifold spirituall graces, 10 shewing that the salvation in Christ is no news, but a thing prophesied of old: 13 and exhorteth them accordingly to a godly conversation, forasmuch as they are now born a new by the word of God.

PEter an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia,

2 [1] Elect according to the [a] foreknowledge of God the Father, through [b] sanctification of the Spirit unto obedience, and sprinkling of the bloud of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you and peace be multiplied.

3 Blessed be the God, and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his † abundant mercy, hath begotten us again unto a [c] lively hope, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,

4 To an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven ‡ for you,

5 [2] Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the [d] last time.

6 Wherein ye greatly rejoyce, though now for a season (if need be) ye are in heavinesse through manifold temptations.

7 That the triall of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise, and honour and glory at the [e] appearing of Jesus Christ.

8 Whom having nor seen, ye love: in whom though now ye see him not, yet beleeving, ye rejoyce with joy unspeakable, and full of glory:

9 Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls.

1 Peter purposing to speak of the duties of a Christian life, reasoneth first of the principles and beginnings of all Christians actions, rising farre higher than nature, and carrying us also farre above the same. For he sheweth that we which are otherwise of nature sinners, through the free mercy of God the Father, first chosen from everlasting, then according to that everlasting decree, were by a certain second creation made his sonnes in Christ his onely begotten, by whose Spirit we are inwardly changed, and by whose bloud we are also reconciled, to the end, that as Christ himself rose again from the dead, we also might be received into that same heavenly and everlasting glory. a Or, according to the purpose of God, who never altereth nor changeth the same. b That being set apart from the rest of this wicked world, through the working of the holy Ghost, they should be consecrated to God, Ephes. 1, 5. † Gr. much.

c Everlasting hope.

‡ Or, for us.

1 Now he sheweth by what way we come unto that glory, to wit, through all kinde of afflictions, wherein notwithstanding faith maketh us so secure, that we are not onely not overcome with sorrow, but also through the beholding of God himself (who otherwise is invisible) with the eyes of faith, are unspeakably joyfull: because all such things as they are but for a time, so are they not applyed unto us to destroy us, but as it were by fire to purge us, and to make us perfit, that at the length we may obtain salvation. d This is that time which Daniel calleth the time of the end, when as that great restoring of all things shall be, which all creatures look for, Rom. 8, 19. e He speaketh of the second coming of Christ.

10 [3] Of which salvation the prophets have enquired, and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you.

11 Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signifie, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow.

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you, with the holy Ghost [f] sent down from heaven, which things the angels desire to look into.

13 [4] Wherefore [g] gird up the loyns of your minde, be sober, and [5] hope † [h] to the end, for the grace that is to be [6] brought unto you at the [7] revelation of Jesus Christ.

14 [i] As obedient children, not fashioning your selves according to the former lusts, in your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation;

16 [k] Because it is written, * Be ye holy, for I am holy.

17 [10] And if ye [l] call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every mans work, passe the time of your sojourning here in fear:

18 [11] Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers;

19 But with the precious bloud of Christ, as of a Lambe without blemish and without spot.

20 [12] Who verily was foreordained before the [k] foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you;

21 Who by him do beleeve in God that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory, that your faith and hope might be in God.

22 [13] Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit, unto unfeigned love of the brethren; see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently,

23 Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God which liveth and abideth for ever.

24 [l] [14] For all [l] flesh is as grasse, and all the glory of man, as the flower of grasse: the grasse withereth, & the flower thereof falleth away:

25 [15] But the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you.

CHAP. II.

He deborteth them from the breach of charity: 4 shewing that Christ is the foundation whereupon they are built. 11 He beseecheth them also to abstain from fleshly lusts, 13 to be obedient to magistrates: 18 and teacheth servants how to obey their masters, 20 patiently suffering for well-doing, after the example of Christ.

WHerefore [1] laying aside all malice and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil-speakings,

2 [2] As [a] new born babes desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby:

3 [3] If so be ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious.

4 [4] To whom coming, as unto a living stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious,

5 Ye also as lively stones, are built up a spirituall house, [5] an holy priesthood to offer up spirituall sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.

6 [6] Wherefore it is contained in the scripture, * Behold, I lay in Sion a chief corner-stone, elect, precious; and he that beleeveth on him shall not be confounded.

7 [7] Unto you therefore which beleeve he is † precious: but unto them which be disobedient, the stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner,

8 * And a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offence, even to them, which stumble at the word, being disobedient, whereunto also they were appointed.

9 [8] But ye are a chosen generation, a royall priesthood, an holy nation, † a peculiar people, that ye should shew forth the † prayses of him, who hath called you out of darkenesse into his marvellous light:

---

3 He putteth a difference between true faith, that is to say, that faith which onely hath an eye to the doctrine of the prophets and apostles, and false faith: Afterward he maketh two degrees of one and the self-same faith, according to the manner of divers revelations, when as in deed it is but one onely faith. Thirdly, he saith, that the preaching of the apostles, is the fulfilling of the preaching of the prophets, although the latter end of it be as yet looked for of the very angels.

f He alludeth to the prophesie of Joel, which was exhibited upon the day of Pentecost, in the apostles, as it were in the first fruits of the holy Ghost. which this same our Peter declareth, Acts 2,16.

4 He goeth from faith to hope: which is indeed a companion that cannot be sundered from faith: and he useth an argument taken of comparison: We ought not to be wearied in looking for so excellent a thing, which the very angels wait for with great desire.

g This is a borrowed speech, taken of a common usage amongst them: for by reason that they wore long garments, they could not travell, unlesse they girded up themselves: and hence it is that Christ said, Let your loyns be girded up.

5 He setteth forth very briefly, what manner of hope ours ought to be, to wit, continuall untill we enjoy the thing we hope for: then what we have to hope for, to wit, grace (that is, free salvation) revealed to us in the gospel, and not that that men doe rashly and fondly promise to themselves.

† Gr. perfectly. h Soundly and sincerely. 6 An argument to stirre up our mindes seeing, that God doeth not wait till we seek him, but causeth so great a benefit to be brought even unto us. 7 He setteth out the end of faith, lest any should promise himself, either soon or later, that full salvation, to wit, the latter coming of Christ, and therewithall warneth us, not to measure the dignitie of the gospel according to the present estate, seeing that that which we are now, is not yet revealed. 8 He passeth from faith and hope to the fruits of them both, which are understood in the name of obedience. And it consisteth in two things, in renouncing our lusts, and living godly: which lusts have their beginning of that blindnesse wherein all men are born: but holinesse proceedeth from the grace and favour of God which adopteth us, and therefore regenerateth us, that the father and the children may be of one disposition. 9 He sheweth that sanctification doeth necessarily follow adoption.

= Lev. 11, 44. and 19, 2. and 20, 7. 10 As before he distinguished true faith and hope from false, so doeth he now obedience, setting the quick and sharp sight of God, against an outward mark, and earnest reverence against vain severity. i If you will be called the sons of that father. 11 An exhortation, wherein he setteth forth the excellency and greatnesse of the benefit of God the Father in sanctifying us by the death of his own Son. And he partly setteth the purifyings of the law against the thing it self, that is, against the bloud of Christ, and partly also mens traditions, which he condemneth as utterly vain and superstitious, be they never so old and ancient. 12 The taking away of an objection: what was done to the world, before that Christ was sent into the world; was there no holinesse before, and was there no church? The apostle answereth, that Christ was ordained and appointed to redeem and deliver mankinde, before that mankinde was: much lesse was there any church without him before his coming in the flesh: yet we are happiest above the rest, to whom Christ was exhibited in deed in this that he having suffered and overcome death for us, doeth now most effectually work in us by the vertue of his Spirit to create in us faith, hope, and charitie. k From everlasting, 13 He commendeth the practise of obedience, that is, charitie: earnestly beating into their heads again, that he speaketh not of any common charitie, and such as proceedeth from that our corrupt nature, but of that whose beginning is the Spirit of God, which purifieth our soules through the word, laid hold on by faith, and ingendreth also in us a spirituall and everlasting life, as God himself is most pure and truely living.

23 Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God which liveth and abideth for ever.

‡ Or, for that.

24 A reason why we have need of this heavenly generation, to wit, because, that men, be their glory never so great, are of nature void of all true and sound goodnesse.

l The word (flesh) sheweth the weaknesse of our nature, which is chiefly to be considered in the flesh it self.

25 Again, lest any man should seek that spirituall force and vertue in fained imaginations, the apostle calleth us back to the word of God: teaching us furthermore, that there is no other word of the Lord to be looked for, than this which is preached, in which onely we must rest.

1 Having laid for that foundation the Spirit of God, effectually working by the word, and having built thereupon three vertues which are the grounds of all Christian actions, to wit, faith, hope, and charitie: now he proceedeth to a generall exhortation, the first member whereof is, that we flee and eschew both secret and also open malice.

2 The second is that being newly begotten & born of the new seed of the uncorrupt word, drawing and sucking greedily the same word as milk, we should more and more as it were grow up in that spirituall life. And he calleth it, sincere, not onely because it is a most pure thing, but also that we should take heed of them which corrupt it.

a As it becometh new men.

3 He commendeth that spirituall nourishment for the sweetnesse and profite of it.

4 He goeth on forward in the same exhortation, but useth another kinde of borrowed speech, alluding to the temple. Therefore he saith, that the company of the faithfull is, as it were, a certain holy and spirituall building, built of the lively stones, the foundation whereof is Christ, as a lively stone sustaining all that are joyned unto him, with his living vertue, and knitting them together with himself, although this so great a treasure be neglected of men. 5 Going forward in the same similitude, he compareth us now to priests, placed to this end in that spirituall temple, that we should serve him with a spirituall worship, that is, with holinesse and righteousnesse: but as the temple, so is the priesthood built upon Christ, in whom onely all our spirituall offerings are accepted. 6 He proveth it by the testimonie of the prophet. Esai. 28, 16. * Psal. 118, 22. Matth. 21, 42. Act. 4, 11. 7 By setting the most blessed condition of the beleevers, and the most miserable of the rebellious, one against the other, he pricketh forward the beleevers, and triumpheth over the other, and also preventeth an offence which ariseth hereof, that none doe more resist this doctrine of the gospel, than they which are chiefest amongst the people of God, as were at that time that Peter wrot these things, the priests, and elders, and scribes. Therefore he answereth first of all, that there is no cause why any man should be astonished at this their stubbornesse, as though it were a strange matter, seeing we have been forewarned so long before, that it should so come to passe: and moreover, that it pleased God to create and make certain to this self-same purpose, that the Son of God might be glorified in their just condemnation. Thirdly, for that glory of Christ is hereby set forth greatly, whereas notwithstanding Christ remaineth the sure head of his church and they that stumble at him, cast down and overthrow themselves, and not Christ. Fourthly, although they be created to this end and purpose, yet their fall and decay is not to be attributed to God, but to their own obstinate stubbornes, which cometh between Gods decree and the execution thereof, of their condemnation, and is the true and proper cause of their destruction.

† Or, to honour. * Isa. 8, 14. The contrary member, to wit, he describeth the singular excellencie of the elect, and also lest any man should doubt whether he be chosen or not, the apostle calleth us back to the effectuall calling, that is, to the voice of the gospel sounding both in our eares and mindes, by the outward preaching and sacraments, whereby we may certainly understand that everlasting decree of our salvation, (which otherwise is most secret and hidden) and that through the onely mercie of God, who freely useth and calleth us. Therefore this onely remaineth, saith he, that by all means possible we set forth so great goodnesse of the most mightie God.

‡ Or, a purchased people. ‡ Or, vertues.

10 Which in time past were not a people, but are now the people of God: * which had not obtained mercie, but now have obtained mercie.

* Hos. 2, 23.

11 [9] Dearly beloved, [10] I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, [11] abstain from fleshly lusts, which [12] warre against the soul:

12 [13] Having your conversation honest among the Gentiles, that ‡ whereas they speak against you as evil doers, they [14] may by your good works which they shall behold, glorifie God in the day of [b] visitation.

13 [15] Submit your selves to [c] every ordinance of man [16] for the Lords sake, [17] whether it be to the king, as supreme,

14 Or unto governours, as unto them that are sent by him [18] for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well.

15 [19] For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men.

16 As free, and not † using yor liberty for a cloke of maliciousnesse, but as the servants of God.

17 [20] [d] Honour all men. Love the [e] brotherhood. Fear God. Honour the king.

18 [21] Servants be subject to your masters with all fear, not onely to the good and gentle, but also to the froward.

19 [22] For this is thank-worthy, if a man for [f] conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongfully.

20 For what glory is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently: this is ‡ acceptable with God.

21 [23] For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered ‡ for us, leaving us an [g] example, that ye should follow his steps.

22 Who did no sinne, neither was guile found in his mouth.

23 Who when he was reviled, reviled not again, when he suffered, he threatned not, but ‡ [24] committed himself to him that [25] judgeth righteously.

24 [26] Who his own self bare our sinnes in his own body ‡ on the tree, that we being dead to sinne, should live unto righteousnesse; by whose stripes ye were healed. *

25 For ye were as sheep going astray, but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls.

9 He returneth to that generall exhortation. 10 A reason why we ought to live holily, to wit, because we are citizens of heaven, and therefore we ought to live according to the laws not of this world, which is most corrupt, but of the heavenly citie, although we be strangers in the world. 11 Another argument: The children of God live not according to the flesh, that is, according to that corrupt nature, but according to the Spirit. Therefore fleshly motions ought not to beare rule in us. 12 The third argument: For although those lusts flatter us, yet they cease not to fight against our salvation. 13 The fourth argument, taken of the profit of so doing: for by this meanes also we provide for our good name and estimation, whilest we compell them at length to change their mindes, which speak evil of us. ‡ Or, wherein. 14 The fifth argument, which also is of great force: Because the glory of God is greatly set forth by that meanes, whilest by example of our honest life, even the most profane men are brought unto God, and submit themselves unto him. b When God shall have mercy on them. 15 That which he spake generally, he now expoundeth by parts, describing severally every mans dutie. And first of all he speaketh of obedience, which is due both to the laws, and also to the magistrates both higher and lower. c By ordinance, is meant the framing and ordering of civil governement, which he calleth ordaining of man, not because man invented it, but because it is proper to men. 16 The first argument: because the Lord is the authour and revenger of this policie of men, that is, which is set amongst men: and therefore the true servants of the Lord must above all others be diligent observers of this order. 17 He preventeth a cavil which is made by some, that say they will obey kings and the higher magistrates, and yet comtemn their ministers: as though their ministers were not armed with their authoritie which sent them. 18 The second argument taken of the end of this order, which is not onely most profitable, but also very necessary: seeing that by this meanes vertue is rewarded, and vice punished: wherein the quietnesse and happinesse of this life consisteth. 19 He declareth the first argument more amply, shewing that Christian libertie doeth amongst all things, least, or not all, consist herein, to wit, to cast off the bridle of laws, (as at that time some altogether unskilfull in the kingdome of God reported) but rather in this, that living holily according to the will of God, we should make manifest to all men, that the gospel is not a cloak for sinne and wickednesse, seeing we are in such sort free, that yet we are still the servants of God, and not of sinne. † Gr. having. 20 He divideth the civil life of man, by occasion of those things which he spake, into two generall parts: to wit, into those dueties which private men owe to private men, and especially the faithfull to the faithfull, and into that subjection whereby inferiours are bound to their superiours: but so, that kings be not made equall to God, seeing that fear is due to God, and honour to kings. d Be charitable and dueifull towards all men. ‡ Or, esteem. e The assembly and fellowship of the brethren, as Zech. 11, 12. 21 He goeth to the duetie of servants towards their masters, which he describeth with these bounds, that servants submit themselves willingly, and not by constraint, not only to the good and courteous, but also to the froward and sharp masters. 22 The taking away of an objection: indeed the condition of servants is hard, especially if they have froward masters: but this their subjection shall be so much the more acceptable to God, if his will prevail more with servants, than the masters injuries. f Because he maketh a conscience of it, to offend God, by whose good will and appointment he knoweth this burden is layd upon him. ‡ Or, thank. 23 He mitigateth the grievousnesse of servitude, while he sheweth plainly that Christ died also for servants, that they should beare so much the more patiently this inequality betwixt men which are of one self-same nature: moreover setting before them Christ that Lord of Lords for an ensample, he signifieth that they cannot but seem too delicate, which shew themselves more grieved in bearing of injuries, than Christ himself who was most just, and most sharply of all afflicted, yet was most patient. g A borrowed kinde of speech taken of painters and school-masters. ‡ Some reade for you.

themselves a master and judge in heaven, who will justly revenge the injuries done to servants without any respect of persons. 24 He calleth the servants back from the consideration of the injuries which they are constrained to beare, to think upon the greatnesse and the end of the benefit received of Christ. ‡ Or, to.

Chap. III.

1 He teacheth the duty of wives and husband to each other; 8 exhorting all men to unitie and love, 14 and to suffer persecution. 19 He declareth also the benefits of Christ toward the old world.

Likewise, [1] ye wives, be in subjection to your own husbands, [2] that if any obey not the word, they also may without the word be wonne by the conversation of the wives:

2 While they behold your chaste conversation coupled with fear.

3 [3] Whose adorning, let it not be that outward adorning, of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel,

4 But let it be the [a] hidden man of the heart: in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the [b] sight of God of great price.

5 [4] For after this manner in the old time, the holy women also who trusted in God adorned themselves, being in subjection unto their own husbands.

6 Even as Sara obeyed Abraham, calling him Lord, whose † daughters ye are as long as ye do well, and are [5] not afraid with any amazement.

7 [6] Likewise ye husbands, [c] dwell with them according to [d] knowledge, [7] giving [e] honour unto the wife as unto the weaker [f] vessel, and as being [g] heirs together of the [g] grace of life, [9] that your prayes be not hindred.

8 [10] Finally, he ye all of one minde, having compassion one of another, ‡ love as brethren, be pitifull, be courteous:

9 [11] Not rendring evil for evil, or railing for railing: but contrariwise blessing, [12] knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should inherit a blessing.

1 In the third place he setteth forth the wives dueties to their husbands, commanding them to be obedient. 2 He speaketh, namely, of them which had husbands that were not Christians, which ought so much the more be subject to their husbands, that by their honest and chaste conversation, they may gain them to the Lord. 3 He condemneth the riot and excesse of women, and setteth forth their true apparelling, such as is precious before God, to wit, the inward and incorruptible, which consisteth in a meek and quiet spirit. a Who hath his seat fastened in the heart: so that the hid man is set against the outward decking of the body. b Precious in deed, and so taken of God. 4 An argument taken out of the example of women, and especially of Sara, which was the mother of all beleevers. ‡ Gr. children. 5 Because women are of nature fearefull, he giveth them to understand that he requireth of them that subjection, which is not wrung out of them either by force or feare. 6 He teacheth husbands also their dueties, to wit, that the more understanding and wisedome they have, the more wisely and circumspectly they behave themselves. c Do all the dueties of wedlock. d The more wisedome the husband hath, the more circumspectly he must behave himself in bearing those discommodities, which through the womans weakenes oftimes cause trouble both to the husband and the wife. 7 The second argument, because the wife notwithstanding that she is weaker by nature than the man, is an excellent instrument of the man, made to far more excellent uses: whereupon it followeth that she is not therefore to be neglected, because she is weak, but on the contrary part she ought to be so much the more cared for. e Having an honest care of her. f The woman is called a vessel after the manner of the Hebrews, because the husband useth her as his fellow and helper, to live faithfully before God. 8 The third argument: for that they are equall in that which is the chiefest (that is to say, in the benefit of eternall life) which otherwise are unequall as touching the governance and conversation at home, and therefore they are not to be despised although they be weak. g Of that gracious and free benefit whereby we have everlasting life given us. 9 The fourth argument: All brawlings and chidings must be eschewed, because they hinder prayers and the whole service of God, whereunto both the husband and wife are equally called. 10 He returneth to common exhortations, and commandeth concord, and whatsoever things pertain to the maintenance of peace and mutuall love. ‡ Or, loving to the brethren. 11 We must not only not recompense injurie for injurie, but we must also recompense them with benefits. 12 An argument taken of comparison: Seeing that we our selves are called of God whom we offend so often, to so great a benefit, (so farre is he from revenging the injuries which we do unto him) shall we rather make our selves unworthy of so great bountifulnesse, than forgive one anothers faults? And from this verse to the end of the chapter, there is a digression or going from the matter he is in hand with, to exhort us valiantly to beare afflictions.

10 [13] For * he that will love life, and [h] ſee good dayes, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they ſpeak no guile.

11 Let him eſchew evil and do good, let him ſeek peace, and enſue it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his eares are open unto their prayers: but the [i] face of the Lord is † againſt them that do evil.

13 [14] And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?

14 But and if ye ſuffer for righteouſneſſe ſake, happy are ye, and be not * [15] afraid of their [k] terrour, neither be troubled:

15 But [l] ſanctifie the Lord God in your hearts, and [16] be ready alwayes to give an anſwer to every man that asketh you a reaſon of the hope that is in you, with meekneſſe and ‡ fear:

16 Having a good conſcience, that whereas they ſpeak evil of you, as of evil doers, they may be aſhamed that falſly accuſe your good converſation in Chriſt.

17 [17] For it is better, if the will of God be ſo, that ye ſuffer for well doing, than for evil doing.

18 [18] For Chriſt alſo hath once ſuffered for ſinnes, the [19] juſt for the unjuſt: ([20] that he might bring us to God) [21] being put to death in the [m] flesh, but quickened by the Spirit:

19 [22] By which alſo he went and preached unto the ſpirit in priſons;

20 Which ſome time were diſobedient, when [n] once the long-ſuffering of God waited in the dayes of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is eight [o] ſouls, were ſaved by water.

21 [23] The like figure whereunto, even baptiſme, doth alſo now ſave us, (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the anſwer of a good conſcience towards [p] God) by the [24] reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt:

22 Who is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God, angels, and authorities, and powers being made ſubject unto him.

13 A ſecret objection: But this out patience ſhall be nothing elſe but a fleshing and hardening, of the wicked in their wickedneſſe, to make them ſet upon us more boldly and deſtroy us. Nay, (ſaith the apoſtle by the words of David) to live without doing hurt and to follow after peace when it flieth away, is the way to that happie and quiet peace. And if ſo be any man be afflicted for doing juſtly, the Lord maketh all things, and will in his time deliver the godly, which crie unto him, and will deſtroy the wicked.

* Pſal. 34, 13. &c.

h Lead a bleſſed and happie life.

i This word (Face) after the manner of the Hebrews, is taken for (anger.)

† Gr. upon.

14 The ſecond argument: when the wicked are provoked, they are more wayward: therefore they muſt rather be overcome with good turns. And if they cannot be gotten by that meanes alſo, yet notwithſtanding we ſhall be bleſſed, if we ſuffer for righteouſneſſe ſake.

* Iſa. 8, 12, 13.

15 A moſt certain counſel in afflictions, be they never ſo terrible, to be of a conſtant mind, and to ſtand faſt. But how ſhall we attain unto it? If we ſanctifie God in our mindes and hearts, that is to ſay, if we reſt upon him as one that is Almighty, that loveth mankinde, that is good and true indeed.

k Be not diſmayed as they are.

l Give him only all praiſe and glory.

16 He will have us, when we are afflicted for righteouſneſſe ſake, to be carefull not for redeeming of our life, either with denying or renouncing the truth, or with like violence, or any ſuch meanes: but rather to give an account of our faith boldly, and yet with a meek ſpirit: and full of godly reverence, that the enemies may not have any thing juſtly to object, but may rather be aſhamed of themſelves.

‡ Or, reverence.

17 A reaſon which ſtandeth upon two generall rules of Chriſtianie, which notwithſtanding all men allow not of. The one is, if we muſt needs ſuffer afflictions, it is better to ſuffer wrongfully than rightfully: the other is this, becauſe we are ſo afflicted not by hap, but by the will of our God.

18 A proof of either of the rules, by the example of Chriſt himſelf our chief pattern, who was afflicted not for his own ſins (which were none) but for ours; and that according to his Fathers decree.

19 An argument taken of compariſon: Chriſt the juſt, ſuffered for us that are unjuſt, and ſhall it grieve us which are unjuſt, to ſuffer for the juſts cauſe?

20 Another argument being partly taken of things coupled together, to wit, becauſe Chriſt bringeth us to his Father that ſame way that he went himſelf, and partly from the cauſe efficient: to wit, becauſe Chriſt is not only ſet before us for an example to follow, but alſo holdeth us up by his vertue in all the difficulties of this life, untill he bring us to his Father.

21 Another argument, taken of the happie end of theſe afflictions, wherein alſo Chriſt goeth before us both in example and vertue, as one who ſuffered moſt grievous torments even unto death, although but in one part onely of him, to wit, in the flesh, or mans nature: but yet became conqueror by the vertue of his divinitie.

m As touching his manhood, for his body was dead, and his ſoul felt the ſorrows of death.

22 A ſecret objection: Chriſt in deed might do this, but what is that to us? Yes (ſaith the Apoſtle) for Chriſt hath ſhewed forth his vertue in all ages both to the preſervation of the godly, were they never ſo few and miſerable, and to revenge the rebellion of his enemies, as it appeareth by the hiſtorie of the floud: for Chriſt is he which in thoſe dayes (when God through his patience appointed a time of repentance to the world) was preſent, not in corporall preſence, but by his divine vertue, preaching repentance, even by the mouth of Noah himſelf, who then prepared the ark, to thoſe diſobedient ſpirits which are now in priſon, waiting for the full recompence of their rebellion, and ſaved thoſe few, (that is, eight onely perſons) in the water.

n This word (once) ſheweth that there was a furthermoſt day appointed, and if that were once paſt, there ſhould be no more.

o Men.

23 A proportionall applying of the former example to the time which followed the coming of Chriſt: for that preſervation of Noah in the waters was a figure of our baptiſme, not as though the materiall water of baptiſme ſaveth us, as thoſe waters which bare up the ark ſaved Noah, but becauſe Chriſt with his inward vertue, which the outward baptiſme ſhadoweth, preſerveth us being waſhed, ſo that we may call upon God with a good conſcience.

p The conſcience being ſanctified, may freely call upon God.

24 That ſelf-ſame vertue, whereby Chriſt roſe again, and now being carried up into heaven, hath received all power, doeth at this day defend and preſerve us.

Chap. IIII.

He exhorteth them to ceaſe from ſinne by the example of Chriſt, and the conſideration of the generall end that now approacheth: 12 and comforteth them againſt perſecution.

FOraſmuch [1] then as Chriſt hath ſuffered for us in the flesh, arm your ſelves likewiſe with the ſame minde: for he that hath ſuffered in the flesh, hath ceaſed from ſinne:

2 That he no longer ſhould live the [a] reſt of his time in the flesh, to the luſts of men, but to the will of God.

3 [2] For the time paſt of our life may ſuffice us to have wrought the [b] will of the Gentiles, when we walked in laſciviouſneſſe, luſts, exceſſe of wine, revellings, banquetings, and abominable idolatries:

4 [3] Wherein they think it [c] ſtrange that you run not with them to the ſame exceſſe of riot, ſpeaking evil of you:

5 Who ſhall give account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead.

6 [4] For, for this cauſe was the goſpel preached alſo to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the ſpirit.

7 [5] But the end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore ſober and watch unto prayer.

8 [6] And above all things have fervent charity among your ſelves: for charity ſhall cover the multitude of ſinnes.

9 [7] Uſe hoſpitalitie one to another without grudging.

10 [8] As every man hath received the gift, even ſo miniſter the ſame one to another, [9] as good ſtewards of the manifold grace of God.

11 [10] If any man ſpeak, let him ſpeak as the oracles of God: if any man miniſter, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth, that God in all things may be glorified through Jeſus Chriſt; to whom be praiſe and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

12 [11] Beloved, think it not [d] ſtrange [12] concerning the fiery triall, which is to try you, as though ſome ſtrange thing happened unto you.

13 [13] But rejoyce in as much as ye are partakers of Chriſts ſufferings; that when his glory ſhall be revealed, ye may be glad alſo with exceeding joy.

14 [14] If ye be reproached for the name of 1 Having ended his digreſſion, and ſliding from his matter now he returneth to the exhortation which he brake off, taking occaſion by that which he ſaid touching the death and reſurrection of Chriſt, ſo defining our ſanctification, that to be ſanctified, is all one as to ſuffer in the flesh, that is to ſay, to leave off from our wickedneſſe, and viciouſneſſe: and to riſe again to God, that is to ſay, to be renewed by the vertue of the Holy Ghoſt, that we may lead the reſt of our life which remaineth, after the will of God.

a So much of this preſent life as remaineth yet to be paſſed over.

2 By putting us in minde of the diſhoneſtie of our former life led in the filth of ſin, he calleth us to earneſt repentance.

b Wickedly and licentiouſly after the manner of the gentiles.

3 That we be not moved with the enemies perverſe and ſlanderous judgements of us, we have to ſet againſt them that laſt judgement of God which remaineth for them: for none, whether, they be then found living, or were dead before, ſhall eſcape it.

c They think it a new and ſtrange manner.

4 A digreſſion: becauſe he made mention of the laſt generall judgement. And he preventeth an objection, that ſeeing Chriſt came very lately, they may ſeem to be excuſeable which died before. But this the apoſtle denieth:

for (ſaith he) this ſelf-ſame goſpel was preached unto them alſo (for he ſpeaketh unto the Jews) and that to the ſame end that I now preach it unto you, to wit, that the flesh being abolished and put away (that is to ſay, that wicked and naughtie corruption which reigneth in men) they ſhould ſuffer themſelves to be governed by the vertue of the ſpirit of God.

5 He returneth to his purpoſe, uſing an argument taken from the circumſtance of the time. Becauſe the laſt end is at hand, and therefore we muſt ſo much the more diligently watch and pray, with true ſobrietie of minde.

6 He commendeth charitie of one towards another, becauſe it doeth as it were burie a multitude of ſins, and therefore preſerveth and maintaineth peace and concord: for they that love one another, do eaſily forgive one another their offences.

7 Of all the dueties of charitie, he commendeth one, namely, which was at that time moſt neceſſarie, to wit, hoſpitalitie, which he will have to be voluntarie, and moſt courtious and bountifull.

8 He ſheweth the uſe of charitie, to wit, that every man beſtow that gift which he hath received, to the profit of his neighbour.

9 A reaſon: Becauſe that whatſoever gift we have, we have received it of God upon this condition, to be his diſpoſers and ſtewards.

10 He reckoneth up two kindes of theſe gifts as chief, to wit, the office of teaching in the church, and the other eccleſiaſticall functions, wherein two things eſpecially are to be obſerved: to wit, that the pure word of God be taught, and whatſoever is done, be referred to the glory of God the Father in Chriſt, as to the proper mark.

11 Becauſe the croſſe is joyned with the ſincere profeſſion of religion, the apoſtle, fitly repeateth that which he touched before, warning us not to be troubled at perſecutions and afflictions, as at a new and ſtrange thing.

d As though ſome new thing had befallen you, which you never thought of before.

12 The firſt reaſon: Becauſe the Lord meaneth not to conſume us with this fire (as it were) but to purge us of our droſſe, and make us perfit.

13 Another reaſon: Becauſe the afflictions of the godly and the wicked differ very much, and chiefly in three points. Firſt, becauſe the godly communicate with Chriſt in their afflictions, and therefore ſhall in their time be partakers alſo of his glory.

14 Secondly, becauſe that although the infidels think far otherwiſe, who in afflicting the godly, blaſpheme God, yet the godly in that they are ſo railed upon, are honoured of God with the true ſpirituall glory, and their adoption is ſealed to them by the Spirit of God.

Chriſt

Christ, happy are ye; for the [c] spirit of glory, and of God resteth upon you: on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified.

15 [15] But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil doer, or as a busie body in other mens matters.

16 Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorifie God on this behalf.

17 [16] For the time is come that judgement must begin at the house of God: and if it [17] first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?

18 And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?

19 [18] Wherefore, let them that suffer according to the will of God, commit the keeping of their souls to him in well doing, as unto a faithfull Creatour.

c By spirit he meaneth the gifts of the Spirit.
15 The third difference, for the godly are not afflicted for their evil doings, but for righteousnesse sake as Christians: whereby it cometh to passe that the crosse, seeing it is a testimony unto them of faith and righteousnesse, ministreth to them not an occasion of sorrow, but of unspeakable joy: now the apostle propounded this third difference under the form of an exhortation.
16 The third reason: Because the Lord of all the world being especially carefull for them of his houshold, doeth therefore chastise them first of all, yet so that he keepeth a measure in his greatest severitie: and as he hath alwayes used to do heretofore, so doth he now, especially when as he exhibited himself in person to his church. 17 Lest the godly should be offended and stumble at that vain shadow of felicitie of the wicked, as though God were not the governour of the world, for that the wicked are in good case, and the godly in evil, the apostle teacheth by an argument of a comparison of them together, that God who spareth not his own, but nourtureth them under the crosse, will at length in his time handle the rebellious and wicked farre otherwise, whom he hath appointed to utter destruction. 18 The conclusion: Seeing the godly are not afflicted by chance, but by the will of God, they ought not to despair, but go forward notwithstanding in the way of holinesse and well doing, commending themselves to God their faithfull Creator, that is to say, their Father.

Chap. V.

1 He exhorteth the elders to feed their flocks, 5 the younger to obey, 8 and all to be sober, watchfull and constant in the faith: 9 to resist the cruel adversary the devil.

THe [1] elders which are among you [2] I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witnesse of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed.

2 [3] [a] Feed the [4] flock of God ‡ which is [5] among you [6] taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly: not for filthy lucre, but of a ready minde.

3 Neither as ‡ being lords over Gods [b] heritage: but being ensamples to the flock.

4 [7] And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

5 [8] Likewise ye younger, submit your selves unto the elder: yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: [9] for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

6 Humble your selves therefore [10] under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time:

7 Casting all your care upon him: for he careth for you.

8 [11] Be sober, be vigilant: because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion walketh about seeking whom he may devoure.

9 Whom resist stedfast in the faith, [12] knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your [c] brethren that are in the world.

10 [13] But the God of all grace who hath called us into his eternall glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you.

11 To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

12 [14] By Silvanus a faithfull brother unto you, (as I suppose) I have written briefly, exhorting and testifying, that this is the true grace of God wherein ye stand.

13 [15] The church that is at [d] Babylon elected together with you, saluteth you, and so doth Marcus my sonne.

14 Greet ye one another with a kisse of charity: Peace be with you all that are in Christ Jesus. Amen.

1 He describeth peculiarly the office of the elders, that is to say, of them that have the care of the church.
2 He useth a preface touching the circumstance of his own person: to wit, that he as their companion communeth with them not of matters which he knoweth not, but wherein he is as well experienced as any, and propoundeth unto them no other condition but that which he himself hath sustained before them, and doth still take the same pains, and also hath one self-same hope together with them. 3 The first rule: He that is a shepherd let him feed the flock. a He saith not, offer for the quick and the dead, and sing patched shreds in a strange tongue, but (feed.) 4 The second: Let the shepherds consider, that the flock is not his, but Gods. ‡ Or, as much as in you is. 5 The third: Let not the shepherds invade other mens flocks, but let them feed that which God had committed unto them. 6 Let the shepherds govern the church with the word, and example of godly and unblameable life, not by constraint, but willingly, not for filthy lucre, but of a ready minde, not as lords over Gods portion and heritage, but as his ministers.

‡ Or, overruling.
b Which is the Christian people.
7 That the shepherds mindes be not overcome either with the wickednesse of men, or their cruelty, he warneth them to cast their eyes continually upon that chief shepherd, and the crown which is laid up for them in heaven.
8 He commendeth many peculiar Christian vertues, and especially modestie: which admonition all of us stand in need of, but especially the younger sort, by reason of the untowardnesse and pride of that age.
9 Because pride seemeth to many to be the way unto the glory of this life, the apostle witnesseth on the contrary side, that ignominie and shame is the reward of pride, and glory the reward of modestie.
10 Because those proud and loftie spirits threaten the modest and humble, the apostle warneth us to set the power of God against the vanitie of proud men, and to hang wholly upon his providence.
11 The cruelty of Satan, who seeketh by all means to overcome by watchfulnesse and faith.
12 The persecutions which Satan stirreth up, are neither new nor proper to any one man, but from old and ancient time common to the whole church, and therefore we must suffer that patiently, wherein we have such and so many fellowes of our conflicts and combats. c Amongst your brethren, which are dispersed throughout the world. 13 He sealeth up as it were with a seal, the former exhortation with a solemn prayer, again willing them to ask increase of strength at his hands, of whom they had the beginning, and hope to have the accomplishment: to wit, of God the Father in Christ Jesus, in whom we are sure of the glory of eternall life. 14 Continuance and perseverance in the doctrine of the Apostles, is the onely ground and foundation of Christian strength. Now the sum of the Apostles doctrine, is salvation freely given of God.
15 Familiar salutations. d In that famous citie of Assyria, where Peter the apostle of the circumcision then was.

CHAP. I.

1 Confirming them in hope of the increaſe of Gods graces, 5 he exhorteth them by faith and good works, to make their calling ſure: 12 whereof he is carefull to remember them, knowing that his death is at hand: 16 and warneth them to be conſtant in the faith of Chriſt, who is the true Sonne of God, by the eye-witneſſe of the apoſtles beholding his majeſtie, and by the teſtimonie of the Father, and the prophets.

SImon [1] Peter, a ſervant and an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, to them that have obtained like precious faith with us, through the [a] righteouſneſſe of God, and our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt:

1 A ſalutation, wherein he giveth them to underſtand, that he dealeth with them as Chriſts ambaſſadour, and otherwiſe agreeth with them in one ſelfſame faith which is grounded upon the righteouſneſſe of Jeſus Chriſt, our God and Saviour.
a In that that God ſtanding to his promiſes, ſhewed himſelf faithfull, and therefore juſt unto us.

2 Grace and peace be multiplied unto you [2] through the knowledge of God, and of Jeſus our Lord.

2 Faith is the acknowledging of God and Chriſt, from whence all our bleſſedneſſe iſſueth and floweth.

3 [3] According as his [b] divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto [c] life and godlineſſe, through the [d] knowledge of him that hath called us ‡ to glorie and vertue:

3 Chriſt ſetteth forth himſelf unto us plainly, in the Goſpel, and that by his onely power, and giveth us all things which are requiſite both to eternall life, wherein he hath appointed to glorifie us, and alſo to godlineſſe, in that he doth furniſh us with true vertue.
b He ſpeaketh of Chriſt, whom he maketh God, and the only Saviour.
c Unto ſalvation.
d This is the ſum of true religion, to be led by Chriſt to the Father, as it were by the hand.
‡ Or, by.

4 [4] Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promiſes; that by theſe you might be partakers of the [e] divine nature, having eſcaped the corruption that is in the [f] world through [g] luſt.

4 An explication of the former ſentence, declaring the cauſes of ſo great benefits, to wit, God and his free promiſe, from whence all theſe benefits proceed, I ſay, theſe moſt excellent benefits, whereby we are delivered from the corruption of the world, (that is, from the wicked luſts which we carrie about us) and are made after a ſort, like unto God himſelf.
e By the divine nature he meaneth not the ſubſtance of the Godhead, but the partaking of thoſe qualities, whereby the image of God is reſtored in us.
f In men.
g For luſt is the ſeat of corruption, and hath it's place even in our very bowels and inmoſt parts.

5 [5] And beſides this, giving all diligence, [h] adde to your faith, vertue; and to vertue, knowledge;

6 [6] And to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godlineſſe;

7 And to godlineſſe, brotherly kindneſſe, and to brotherly kindneſſe, charity.

8 [7] For if theſe things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye ſhall neither be barren nor unfruitfull in the knowledge of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

9 But he that lacketh theſe things, is blinde, and [i] cannot ſee farre off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old ſins.

10 [8] Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election ſure: for if ye do theſe things, ye ſhall never fall:

5 Having laid the foundation, (having declared the cauſes of our ſalvation, and eſpecially of our ſanctification) now he beginneth to exhort us to give our mindes wholly to the true uſe of this grace. And he beginneth with faith, without which nothing can pleaſe God, and he warneth us to have it full fraught with vertue, (that is to ſay, with good and godly manners) being joyned with the knowledge of Gods will, without which, there is neither faith, neither any true vertue.
h Supply alſo and ſupport or aide.
6 He reckoneth up certain other principall vertues, whereof ſome pertain to the firſt table of the law, others to the laſt.
7 As thoſe fruits do ſpring from the true knowledge of Chriſt, ſo in like ſort the knowledge it ſelf is foſtered, and groweth by bringing forth ſuch fruits, in ſo much that he that is unfruitfull, did either never know the true light, or hath forgotten the gift of ſanctification which he hath received.
i He that hath not an effectuall knowledge of God in him, is blinde as touching the kingdome of God, for he cannot ſee things that are afarre off, that is to ſay, heavenly things.
8 The concluſion: Therefore ſeeing our calling and election is approved by thoſe fruits, and is confirmed in us, and moreover ſeeing this is the onely way to the everlaſting kingdome of Chriſt, it remaineth that we caſt our mindes wholly that way.

11 For ſo an entrance ſhall be miniſtred unto you abundantly, into the everlaſting kingdome of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.

12 [9] Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you alwayes in remembrance of theſe things, though ye know them, and be eſtabliſhed in the preſent truth.

9 An amplifying of the concluſion joyned with a modeſt excuſe, wherein he declareth his love towards them, and foretelleth them of his death which is at hand.
k In this body.

13 Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this [k] tabernacle, to ſtirre you up, by putting you in remembrance.

14 Knowing that ſhortly I muſt put off this my tabernacle, even as * our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath ſhewed me.

* John 21, 18.

15 Moreover, I will endeavour, that you may be able after my deceaſe, to have theſe things alwayes in remembrance.

16 [10] For we have not followed cunningly deviſed fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, but were eye witneſſes of his majeſtie.

10 Another amplification taken both of the great certaintie, and alſo excellencie of his doctrine, as whereof our Lord Jeſus Chriſt the Son of God is authour, whoſe glory the apoſtle himſelf both ſaw and heard.

17 For he received from God the Father, honour and glory, when there came ſuch a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Sonne in whom I am well pleaſed.

18 And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount.

19 [11] We have alſo a more ſure word of propheſie, [12] whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that ſhineth in a dark place, untill the day [l] dawn, and the [m] day-ſtarre ariſe in your hearts:

11 The truth of the Goſpel is hereby alſo manifeſt, in that it agreeth wholly with the foretellings of the prophets.
12 The doctrine of the apoſtles doth not ſhut out the doctrine of the prophets, for they confirm: each other, by each others teſtimonies, but the prophets were as candles which gave light unto the blinde, untill the brightneſſe of the Goſpel began to ſhine.
l A more full and open knowledge, than was under the ſhadowes of the law.
m That clearer doctrine of the goſpel.

20 [13] Knowing this firſt, that no propheſie of the [n] ſcripture is of any [o] private interpretation.

21 For the propheſie came not ‡ in old time by the will of man: but [p] holy men of God ſpake as they were [q] moved by the holy Ghoſt.

13 The prophets are to be read, but ſo, that we aſk of God the gift of interpretation, for he that is the authour of the writings of the prophets, is alſo the interpreter of them.
n He joyneth the ſcripture and propheſie together, to diſtinguish true prophecies from falſe.
o For all interpretation cometh from God.
‡ Or, at any time.
p The Godly interpreters and meſſengers.
q In ſpirit of God: and theſe their motions were in very good order, and not ſuch as were the motions of the profane ſoothſayers, and foretellers of things to come.

CHAP. I.

1 He foretelleth them of falſe teachers, ſhewing the impiety and puniſhment both of them and their followers: 7 from which the godly ſhall be delivered, as Lot was out of Sodom: 10 and more fully deſcribeth the manner of thoſe profane and blaſphemous ſeducers, whereby they may be the better known and avoided.

BUt [1] there were falſe prophets alſo among the [a] people, even as there ſhall be falſe

1 As in times paſt there were two kinds of prophets, the one true, the other falſe, ſo Peter foretelleth them, that there ſhall be ſome true, and ſome falſe teachers in the church, in ſo much that Chriſt himſelf ſhall be denied of ſome, which notwithſtanding ſhall call him Redeemer.
a Under the law while the ſtate and policie of the Jews was yet ſtanding.

teachers

teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction.

2 [a] And many shall follow their ‡ pernicious wayes, by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of.

3 [b] And through covetousnesse shall they with fained words make [b] merchandise of you; [c] whose judgement now of a long time lingreth not, and their damnation slumbreth not.

4 For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to [c] hell, and delivered them into [d] chains of darknesse, to be reserved unto judgement:

5 And spared not the [e] old world, but saved Noe the eighth person, [f] a preacher of righteousnesse, bringing in the floud upon the world of the ungodly:

6 And turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrha into ashes, condemned them with an overthrow, making them an ensample unto those that after should live ungodly:

7 And delivered just Lot, vexed with the filthy conversation of the wicked:

8 (For that righteous man dwelling among them, in [g] seeing and hearing, [h] vexed his righteous soul from day to day, with their unlawfull deeds)

9 The Lord [i] knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgement to be punished:

10 [k] But chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleannes, and despise ‡ government, * presumptuous are they, self willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of [k] dignities.

11 Whereas angels which are greater in power and might, bring no railing accusation ‡ against them before the Lord.

12 [l] But these, as naturall brute beasts, [l] made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not, and shall utterly perish in their [m] own corruption;

13 And shall receive the reward of unrighteousnesse, as they that count it pleasure to riot in the day time: spots they are and blemishes, sporting themselves with their own deceivings, while they [n] feast with you:

14 [l] Having eyes full of † adultery and that cannot cease from sinne, beguiling unstable souls, an heart they have exercised with covetous practises: cursed children.

15 Which have forsaken the right way, and are gone astray, following the way of Balaam the sonne of Bosor, who loved the wages of unrighteousnesse:

16 But was rebuked for his iniquity: the dumbe asse speaking with mans voice, forbad the madnesse of the prophet.

17 [g] These are [o] wells without water, clouds that are carried with a tempest, to whom the [p] mist of darknesse is reserved for ever.

18 For when they speak great [q] swelling words of vanity, they [r] allure through the lusts of the flesh, through much wantonnesse, those that were ‡ [s] clean escaped from them who live in errour.

19 While they promise them libertie, they themselves are the servants of corruption: for of whom a man is overcome, of the same is he brought in bondage.

20 [t] For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again intangled therein, and overcome; the latter end is worse with them than the beginning.

21 For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousnesse, than after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them.

22 But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb, The dog is turned to his own vomit again, and the sow that was washed, to her wallowing in the mire.

Chap. III.

He assureth them of the certainty of Christs coming to judgement, against those scorners who dispute against it: 8 warning the godly for the long patience of God, to hasten their repentance. 10 He describeth also the manner how the world shall be destroyed: 11 exhorting them from the expectation thereof, to all holinesse of life: 15 and again, to think the patience of God to tend to their salvation.

THis [1] second epistle (beloved) I now write unto you, in both which I stirre up your pure mindes by way of remembrance:

2 That ye may be mindfull of the words which were spoke before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour:

3 [a] Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last dayes [a] scoffers, walking after their own lusts,

4 [3] And saying, Where is the promise of his coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation.

5 [4] For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the word of God the heavens were of old, and the [b] earth † standing out of the water, and in the water.

6 [4] Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with [c] water, perished.

7 [6] But the heavens and the earth which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgement, and perdition of ungodly men.

8 [7] But

a There shall not onely be heresies, but also many followers of them. ‡ Or, lascivious wayes, as some copies reade.

b Covetousnesse for the most part is a companion of heresie, and maketh merchandise even of souls.

b They will abuse you, and sell you, as they sell cattel in a faire.

c A comfort for the godly: God who cast the angels that fell away from him, headlong into the darknesse of hell, at length to be judged: and who destroyed the old world with the flood, and preserved Noe the eight person: and who burned Sodom, and saved Lot, will deliver his elect from these errors, and will utterly destroy those unrighteous.

c So the Grecians called the deep dungeons under the earth, which should be appointed to torment the souls of the wicked in.

d Bound them with darknesse, as it were with chains: and by darknesse, he meaneth that most miserable state of life that is full of horrour.

e Which was before the floud: not that God made a new world, but because the world seemed new.

f For he ceased not the space of an hundred and twenty yeares to warn the wicked both by word and deed, what wrath of God hanged over their heads.

g Which way soever he looked, and turned his eares.

h He had a troubled soul, and being vehemently grieved, lived a painfull life.

i Hath been long practised in saving and delivering the righteous.

k He goeth to another sort of corrupt men, which notwithstanding are within the bosome of the church, which are wickedly given, and do seditiously speak evil of the authority of magistrates (which the angels themselves that ministet before God, do not dispraise.) A true and lively description of the Romish clergy (as they call it.) ‡ Or, dominion. * Jude 8. k Princes and great men, be they never so high in authority. ‡ Some reade, against themselves. 6 A lively painting out of the same persons, wherein they are compared to beasts, which are made to snare themselves to destruction, while they give themselves to fill their bellies: for their is no greater ignorance than is in these men: although they most impudently finde fault with those things which they know not: and it shall come to passe that they shall destroy themselves as beasts with those pleasures wherewith they are delighted, and dishonour and defile the company of the godly. l Made to this end to be a prey to others: So do these men willingly cast themselves into Satans snares. m Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction. n When as by being amongst the Christians in the holy banquets which the church keepeth, they would seem by that means to be true members of the church, yet they are indeed but blots of the church. 7 He condemneth those men, as shewing, even in their behaviour and countenance an unmeasurable lust, as making merchandise of the souls of light persons, as men exercised in all the crafts of covetousnesse, to be short, as men that sell themselves for money, to curse the sons of God after Balaams example, whom the dumbe beast reproved. † Gr. an adulteresse.

1 The remedy against those wicked enemies, both of true doctrine & holines, is to be sought for by the continuall meditation of the writings of the prophets and apostles.

2 He voucheth the second coming of Christ against the epicures by name.

a Monstrous men, who would seem wise by their contempt of God and wicked boldnesse.

3 The reason which these mockers pretend, because the course of nature is all one, as it was from the beginning, therefore the world was from everlasting, and shall be for ever.

4 He setteth against them the creation of heaven and earth by the word of God, which these men are willingly ignorant of.

b Which appeared, when the waters were gathered together into one place. † Gr. consisting. 5 Secondly he setteth against them the universall floud, which was the destruction, as it were, of the whole world. c For the waters returning into their former place, the world, that is to say, this beauty of the earth which we see, and all living creatures which live upon the earth perished. 6 Thirdly, he pronounceth that it shall not be harder for God to burn heaven and earth with fire, in that day which is appointed for the destruction of the wicked (which thing he will also do) than it was for him in times past to make them with his onely word, and afterward to overwhelm them with water.

8 Another note, whereby they may be well known what manner of men they are, because they have inwardly nothing but either utter vain or very hurtfull, although they make a shew of some great goodnes, but they shall not escape unpunished for it, because under pretence of false liberty, they draw men into most miserable slavery of sinne.

o Which boast of knowledge, and have nothing in them.

p Most grosse darknesse.

q They deceive men with vain and swelling words.

r They take them as fishes are taken with the hook.

‡ Or, for a little, or a while, as some reade.

s Unfainedly and indeed, clean departed from idolatry.

9 It were better to have never known the way of righteousnesse, than to turn back from it to the old filthinesse: and men that do so, are compared to dogs and swine.

8 7 But (beloved) be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thouſand yeares, and a thouſand yeares as one day.

9 8 The Lord is not ſlack concerning his promiſe, (as ſome men count ſlackneſſe) 9 but is long-ſuffering to us-ward, not willing that any ſhould perish, but that all ſhould come to repentance.

10 10 But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens ſhall paſſe away with a great [d] noiſe, and the elements ſhall melt with fervent heat, the earth alſo and the works that are therein ſhall be burnt up.

11 11 Seeing then that all theſe things ſhall be diſſolved, what manner of perſons ought ye to be in all holy converſation and godlineſſe, 12 Looking for and [e] ‖ haſting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire ſhall be diſſolved, and the elements ſhall melt with fervent heat?

13 Nevertheleſſe we, according to his promiſe, look for new heavens and a new earth, [f] wherein dwelleth righteouſneſſe.

14 Wherefore (beloved) ſeeing that ye look for ſuch things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in [g] peace, without ſpot, and blameleſſe.

15 And account that the long-ſuffering of our Lord is ſalvation, 12 even as our beloved brother Paul alſo, according to the wiſdome given unto him, hath written unto you.

16 As alſo in all his epiſtles, ſpeaking in them of theſe things, 13 [h] in which are ſome things hard to be underſtood, which they that are unlearned and unſtable wreſt, as they do alſo the other ſcriptures, unto their own deſtruction.

17 Ye therefore, beloved, ſeeing ye know theſe things before, beware leſt ye alſo being led away with the errour of the wicked, fall from your own ſtedfaſtneſſe.

18 But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt: to him be glory both now and for ever. Amen.

7 The taking away of an objection: In that he ſeemeth to deferre this judgement a long ſeaſon: in reſpect of us it is true but not before God, with whom there is no time either long or ſhort.

8 The Lord will ſurely come, becauſe he hath promiſed: and that neither ſooner nor later than he hath promiſed.

9 A reaſon why the latter day cometh not out of hand, becauſe God doth patiently wait till the elect be brought to repentance, that none of them may perish.

10 A very ſhort deſcription of the laſt deſtruction of the world, but in ſuch ſort as nothing could be ſpoken more gravely.

d With the violence as it were of a hiſſing ſtorm.

11 An exhortation to puritie of life, ſetting before us that horrible judgement of God, both to bridle our wantonneſſe, and alſo to comfort us, ſo that we be found watching, and ready to meet him at his coming.

e He requireth patience of us, yet ſuch patience as is not ſlothfull.

‖ Or, haſting the coming.

12 Pauls epiſtles are allowed by the expreſſe teſtimony of Peter.

13 There be certain of theſe things obſcure and dark, whereof the unlearned take occaſion to overthrow ſome men that ſtand not faſt, wreſting the teſtimonies of the ſcripture to their own deſtruction. But this is the remedy againſt ſuch deceit, to labour that we may daily more and more grow up and increaſe in the knowledge of Chriſt.

h That is to ſay, among the which things: for he diſputeth not here whether Pauls epiſtles be plain or dark, but ſaith, that amongſt thoſe things which Paul hath written of in his epiſtles, and Peter himſelf in theſe two of his own, there are ſome things which cannot be ſo eaſily underſtood, and therefore are of ſome drawn to their own deſtruction: and this he ſaith to make us more attentive and diligent, and not to remove us from the reading of holy things, for to what end ſhould they have written vain ſpeculations?

f In which heaven.

g That you may try to your profit, how gentle and peaceable he is.

The firſt Epiſtle generall of JOHN.

CHAP. I.

1 He deſcribeth the perſon of Chriſt in whom we have eternall life by a communion with God: 5 to which we muſt adjoyn holineſſe of life, to teſtifie the truth of that our communion and profeſſion of faith, as alſo to aſſure us of the forgiveneſſe of our ſinnes by Chriſts death.

1 THat [1] which was from the beginning, which we have [a] heard, which we have ſeen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled of the [b] word of life:

2 (For the life was manifeſted, and we have ſeen it, and bear witneſſe, and [c] ſhew unto you that eternall life which was with the Father, and was manifeſted unto us)

3 That which we have ſeen and heard, declare we unto you, [2] that ye alſo may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Sonne Jeſus Chriſt.

4 And theſe things write we unto you, that your joy may be full.

5 3 This then is the meſſage which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkneſſe at all.

6 If we ſay that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkneſſe, we lie, and do not the truth:

7 But if we walk in the [d] light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and [4] the bloud of Jeſus Chriſt his ſonne cleanſeth us from all ſinne.

8 5 If we ſay that we have no ſinne, we [e] deceive our ſelves, and the [f] truth is not in us.

9 6 If we confeſſe our ſinnes, he is [g] faithfull, and juſt to [h] forgive us our ſinnes, and to cleanſe us from all unrighteouſneſſe.

10 7 If we ſay that we have not ſinned, we make him a [i] liar, and his [k] word is not in us.

1 He beginneth with the deſcription of the perſon of Chriſt, whom he maketh one and not two: and him both God from everlaſting (for he was with the Father from the beginning, and is that eternall life) and alſo made true man, whom John himſelf and his companions both heard, and beheld, and handled.

a I heard him ſpeak, I ſaw him my ſelf with mine eyes, I handled with mine hands him that is very God, being made very man and not I alone, but others alſo that were with me.

b That ſame everlaſting word by whom all things are made, and in whom onely there is life.

c Being ſent by him: and that doctrine is rightly ſaid to be ſhewed, for no man could ſo much as have thought of it, if it had not been thus ſhewed.

2 The uſe of this doctrine is this, that all of us being coupled and joyned together with Chriſt by faith, might become the ſons of God: in which thing onely conſiſteth all happineſſe.

3 Now he entreth into a queſtion, whereby we may underſtand that we are joyned together with Chriſt to wit, if we be governed with his light, which is perceived by the ordering of our life. And thus he reaſoneth: God is in himſelf moſt pure light, therefore he agreeth well with them which are light-ſome, but with them that are darkſome he hath no fellowship.

d God is ſaid to be light of his own nature, and to be in light, that is to ſay, in that everlaſting infinite bleſſednesse:

and we are ſaid to walk in light in that the beams of that light do ſhine unto us in the word.

4 A digreſſion, or going from the matter he is in hand with, to the remiſſion of ſinnes: for this our ſanctification which walk in the light, is a teſtimony of our joyning and knitting together with Chriſt: but becauſe this our light is very dark, we muſt needs obtain another benefit in Chriſt, to wit, that our ſinnes may be forgiven us being ſprinkled with his bloud: and this in concluſion is the prop and ſtay of our ſalvation.

5 There is none but needeth this benefit, becauſe there is none that is not a ſinner.

e This place doth fully refute that perfitneſſe and works of ſupererogation, which the Papiſts dream of.

f So then, John ſpeaketh not thus for modeſties ſake, as ſome ſay, but becauſe it is ſo indeed.

6 Therefore the beginning of ſalvation is to acknowledge our wickedneſſe, and to require pardon of him, who freely forgiveth all ſinnes, becauſe he hath promiſed ſo to do, and he is faithfull and juſt.

g So then our ſalvation hangeth upon the free promiſes of God, who becauſe he is faithfull and juſt, will perform that which he hath promiſed.

h Where are then our merits? for this is our true felicity.

7 A rehearſall of the former ſentence, wherein he condemned all of ſinne without exception: inſomuch that if any man perſwade himſelf otherwiſe, he doth as much as in him lieth, make the word of God himſelf vain, and to no purpoſe, yea, he maketh God a liar: for to what end, either in times paſt needed ſacrifices, or now Chriſt and the goſpel, if we be not ſinners?

i They do not onely deceive themſelves, but are blaſphemous againſt God.

k His doctrine ſhall have no place in us, that is, in our hearts.

CHAP.

Chap. II.

1 He comforteth them against the sinnes of infirmity. 3 Rightly to know God, is to keep his commandments, 9 to love our brethren, 15 and not to love the world. 18 We must beware of seducers: 20 from whose deceits the godly are safe.

MY [1] little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sinne not. And if any man sinne, we have an [a] advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous:

2 And he is the [b] propitiation for our sins: and not for ours onely, but also for the sinnes of the [c] whole world.

3 [2] And hereby we do know that we [d] know him, [e] if we keep his commandments.

4 [3] He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

5 [4] But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the [f] love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in [g] him.

6 [5] He that saith he abideth in him, ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked.

7 [6] Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment which ye had from the beginning: the old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning.

8 [7] Again, a new commandment I write unto you, [h] which thing is true in him and in you: because the darkneſſe is paſt, and the true light now shineth.

9 [8] He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darknes even untill now.

10 He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none † occasion of stumbling in him.

11 But he that hateth his brother, is in darkneſſe, and walketh in darkneſſe, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkneſſe hath blinded his eyes.

12 [9] [i] I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for his [k] names sake.

13 [10] I write unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning, [11] I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one. [12] I write unto you, little children, because ye have known the Father.

14 [13] I have written unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one.

15 [14] Love not the [l] world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the [m] love of the Father is not in him.

16 For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world.

17 [15] And the world passeth away and the lusts thereof: but he that doeth the will of God, abideth for ever.

18 [16] [n] Little children, [17] it is the last time, and as [18] ye have heard that Antichrist shall come, even now are there many Antichrists, whereby we know that it is the last time.

19 [19] They went out from us, but they were not of us: for if they had been of us, [o] they would no doubt have continued with us: [20] but they went out, that they might be made manifest, that they were not all of us.

20 [21] But ye have an [p] unction from the [q] holy One, and ye know all things.

21 [22] I have not written unto you, because ye know not the truth: but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth.

22 [23] Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the [r] Christ? he is Antichrist that denieth the Father and the Sonne.

23 [s] Whosoever denieth the Sonne, the same hath not the Father: but he that acknowledgeth the Sonne, hath the Father also.

24 [24] Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning: if that which ye have heard from the beginning, shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Sonne, and in the Father.

25 And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternall life.

26 [25] These things have I written unto you, concerning them that seduce you.

27 But the [t] anointing which ye have received of him, abideth in you: and ye [u] need not that any man teach you: But, as the same [x] anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie: and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him.

28 [26] And now, little children, abide in him,

1 It followeth not hereof, that we must give our wicked nature the bridle, or sinne so much the more freely, because our sinnes are cleansed away by the bloud of Christ, but we must rather so much the more diligently resist sin. And yet we must not despaire because of our weakneſſe, for we have an advocate and a purger, Christ Jesus the just, and therefore acceptable unto his Father.

a In that he nameth Christ, he shutteth forth all other.

b Reconciliation and intercession go together, to give us to understand, that he is both advocate and high priest.

c For men of all sorts, of all ages, and all places, so that this benefit belongeth, not to the Jews onely, of whom he speaketh as appeareth verse 7, but also to other nations.

2 He returneth to the testimony of our conjunction with God, to wit, to sanctification, declaring what it is to walk in the light, to wit, to keep Gods commandements. Whereby it followeth that holiness doth not consist in those things which men have devised, neither in a vain profession of the Gospel.

d This must be understood of such a knowledge as hath faith with it, and not of a common knowledge.

e For the tree is known by the fruit.

3 Holiness, that is, a life ordered according to the prescript of Gods commandements, how weak so ever we be, is of necessitie joyned with faith, that is, with the true knowledge of the Father in the Son. 4 He that keepeth Gods commandement, loveth God indeed: He that loveth God, is in God, or is joyned together with God. Therefore he that keepeth his commandments is in him. f Wherewith we love God. g He meaneth our conjunction with Christ. 5 He that is one with Christ, must needs live his life, that is, must walk in his steps. 6 The apostle going about to expound the commandment of charity one towards another, telleth first, that when he urgeth holines, he bringeth no new trade of life (as they use to do which devise tradition one after another) but putteth them in minde of that same law which God gave in the beginning, to wit, by Moses, at that time that God began to make laws to his people. 7 He addeth that the doctrine indeed is old, but it is now after a sort new, both in respect of Christ, and also of us, in whom he through the gospel, engraveth his law effectually, not in tables of stone, but in our mindes. h Which thing, (to wit, that the doctrine is now which I write unto you) is true in him, and in you. 8 Now he cometh to the second table, that is, to charity one towards another, and denieth that, that man hath true light in him, or is indeed regenerate and the son of God, which hateth his brother: and such an one wandereth miserably in darkneſſe, brag he of never so great knowledge of God, for that wittingly and willingly he casteth himself headlong into hell. † Gr. scandal.

9 He returneth again from sanctification to remission of sins, because that free reconciliation in Christ is the ground of our salvation, whereupon afterwards sanctification must be built as upon a foundation. i Therefore I write unto you, because you are of their number whom God hath reconciled to himself. k For his own sake: And in that he nameth Christ, he shutteth out all other, whether they be in heaven or earth. 10 He sheweth that this doctrine agreeth to all ages, and first of all speaking to old men, he sheweth that Christ and his doctrine are passing ancient, and therefore if they be delighted with old things, nothing ought to be more acceptable unto them. 11 He advertiseth young men, if they be desirous to shew their strength, that they have a most glorious combate set here before them, to wit, Satan the worst enemy, who must be overcome: willing them to be as sure of the victory as if they had already gotten it. 12 Finally, He sheweth to children, that that true Father from whom they have to look for all good things, is set forth unto them in the gospel. 13 He addeth afterward in like order, as many exhortations: as if he should say, Remember, you fathers, as I wrot even now, that the everlasting Sonne of God is revealed to us. Remember ye young men, that that strength whereby I said that you put Satan to flight, is given you by the word of God which dwelleth in you.

14 The world which is full of wicked desires, lusts or pleasures, and pride, is utterly hated of our heavenly Father, Therefore the Father & the world cannot be loved together: and this admonition is very necessary for green and flourishing youth.

l He speaketh of the world, as it agreeth not with the will of God, for otherwise God is said to love the world with an infinite love, John 3, 16. that is to say, those whom he chose out of the world.

m Wherewith the Father is loved.

15 He sheweth how much better it is to obey the Fathers will, than the lusts of the world, by both their natures and unlike event.

16 Now, he turneth himself to little children which notwithstanding are well instructed in the sum of religion: and willeth them by divers reasons to shake off slothfulneſſe which is too familiar with that age.

n He useth this word (little) not because he speaketh to children, but to allure them the more by using such sweet words.

17 First, because the last time is at hand, so that the matter suffereth no delay.

18 Secondly, because Antichrists, that is, such as fall from God, are already come, even as they heard that they should come. And it was very requisite to warn that unheedy and warileſſe age of that danger.

19 A digression against certain offences and stumbling blocks wherat that rude age especially might stumble and be shaken. Therefore that they should not be terrified with the foul falling back of certain, first he maketh plain unto them, that although such as fall from God and his religion had place in the church, yet they were never of the church: because the church is the company of the elect, which cannot perish, and therefore cannot fall from Christ. o So then the elect can never fall from grace. 20 Secondly, he sheweth that these things fall out to the profit of the church, that hypocrites may be plainly known. 21 Thirdly, he comforteth them, to make them stand fast, insomuch as they are annointed of the holy Ghost with the true knowledge of salvation. p The grace of the holy Ghost, and this is a borrowed kinde of speech taken from the anointings used in the law. q From Christ who is peculiarly called Holy. 22 The taking away of an objection. He wrote not these things as to men which are ignorant of religion, but rather as to them which do well know the truth, yea so far forth that they are able to discerne truth from falshood. 23 He sheweth now plainly that false doctrin of the Antichrists, to wit, that either they fight against the person of Christ or his office, or both together, and at once. And they that do so, do in vain boast and brag of God, for that in denying the Son, the father also is denyed. r Is the true Messias. s They then are deceived themselves, and also deceive other which say that the Turks and other infidels worship the same God that we do. 24 The whole preaching of the prophets and apostles is contrary to that doctrine. Therefore it is utterly to be cast away, and this whol'y to be holden, and kept, which leadeth us to seek eternall life in the free promise, that is to say, in Christ alone, who is given us of the Father. 25 The same Spirit which indueth the elect with the knowledge of the truth and sanctifieth them, giveth them therewithall the gift of perseverance, to continue to the end. t The Spirit which you have received of Christ, and which hath led you into all truth. u You are not ignorant of those things, and therefore I teach them not as things that were never heard of, but call them to your remembrance as things which you do know. x He commendeth both the doctrine which they had embraced, and also highly praiseth their faith, and the diligence of such as taught them, yet so, that he taketh nothing from the honour due to the holy Ghost. 26 The conclusion both of the whole exhortation, and also of the former treatise.

that when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

29 [27] If ye know that he is righteous, † ye know that every one that doeth righteousnesse, is born of him.

27 A passing over to the treatise following, which tendeth to the same purpose, but yet is more ample, and handleth the same matter after another order, for before he taught us to go up from the effects to the cause, and in this that followeth, he goeth down from the causes to the effects: And this is the sum of this argument, God is the fountain of all righteousnesse, and therefore they that give themselves to righteousnesse, are known to be born of him, because they resemble God the Father. † Or, know ye.

CHAP. III.

1 He declareth the singular love of God towards us, in making us his sonnes: 3 who therefore ought obediently to keep his commandments, 11 as also brotherly to love one another.

BEhold, [1] [a] what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be [b] called the sons of God: [2] therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not.

2 [3] Behold, now are we the sonnes of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know, that when he shall appear, we shall be [c] like him: for we shall see him [d] as he is.

3 [4] And every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even [e] as he is pure.

4 [5] Whosoever [f] committeth sinne, transgresseth also the law: for [g] sinne is the transgression of the law.

5 [6] And ye know that he was manifested to take away our sinnes, and in him is no sinne.

6 Whosoever abideth in him, sinneth not: whosoever [h] sinneth, hath not seen him, neither known him.

7 [7] Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousnesse, is righteous, even as he is righteous.

8 [8] He that committeth sinne, is of the [i] devil: for the devil [k] sinneth from the [l] beginning: for this purpose the Sonne of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.

9 Whosoever is born of God, doth not commit sinne: for his seed [m] remaineth in him & he cannot sinne, because he is born of God

10 [9] In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousnesse, is not of God, [10] neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 [11] For this is the † message that ye heard from the beginning, that we should love one another.

12 [12] Not as [n] Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother: [13] and wherefore slew he him? because his own works were evil, and his brothers righteous.

13 Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you.

14 [14] We [o] know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren: he that loveth not his brother, abideth in death.

15 [15] Whosoever hateth his brother, is a murderer, and ye know that no murderer hath eternall life abiding in him.

16 [16] Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

17 [17] But whoso hath this [p] worlds good, and seeth his brother have need, and [q] shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

18 [18] My little children, let us not love in word neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth.

19 [19] And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall † [20] assure our hearts before him.

20 For [r] if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things.

21 [21] Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence towards God.

22 [22] And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight.

23 And this is his commandment, that we should beleeve on the name of his Sonne Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave us commandment.

24 And he that keepeth his commandments, dwelleth in him, and he in him: and hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the [s] Spirit which he hath given us.

1 He beginneth to declare this agreement of the Father and the Son, as the highest cause, to wit, as that free love of God toward us, wherewith he so loveth us, that also he adopteth us to be his children.
a What a gift, of how great love.
b That we should be the Sons of God, and so that all the world may perceive we are so.
2 Before he declareth this adoption, he saith two things: the one, that this so great a dignity, is not to be esteemed according to the judgement of the flesh, because it is unknown to the world, for the world knoweth not God the Father himself.
3 The other, this dignity is not fully made manifest to us our selves, much lesse to strangers, but we are sure of the accomplishment of it, insomuch that we shall be like unto the Son of God himself, and shall enjoy his sight indeed, such as he is now, but yet notwithstanding this is deferred untill his next coming.
c Like, but not equall.
d For now we see as in a glasse, 1 Cor. 13, 12.
4 Now he describeth this adoption, (the glory whereof as yet consisteth in hope) by the effect, to wit, because that whosoever is made the Son of God, endeavoureth to resemble the Father in purity. e This word signifieth a likenesse, but not an equality. 5 The rule of this purity can from no whence else be taken but from the law of God, the transgression whereof is that which is called sin. f Giveth not himself to pureness. g A short definition of sin. 6 An argument taken from the materiall cause of our salvation: Christ in himself is most pure, and he came to take away our sins by sanctifying us with the Holy Ghost. Therefore whosoever is truely partaker of Christ, doth not give himself to sin, and contrariwise he that giveth himself to sin, knoweth not Christ. h He is said to sin, that giveth not himself to pureness, and in him sin reigneth: but sin is said to dwell in the faithfull, and not to reigne in them. 7 Another argument of things coupled together: He that liveth justly, is just, and resembleth Christ that is just, and by that is known to be the Son of God. 8 An argument taken of contraries, the devil is the authour of sin, and therefore he is of the devil, or is ruled by the inspiration of the devil, that serveth sin: and if he be the devils son then is he not Gods son, for the devil and God are so contrary the one to the other, that even the Son of God was sent to destroy the works of the devil. Therefore on the contrary side, whosoever resisteth sin, is the Son of God, being born again of his Spirit as of new seed, in so much, that of necessity he is now delivered from the slavery of sin. i Resembleth the devil, as the childe doth the father, and is governed by his Spirit. k He saith not sinned, but sinneth, for he doth nothing else but sin. l From the very beginning of the world. m The Holy Ghost is so called of the effect he worketh, because by his vertue and mighty working, as it were by seed, we are made new men. 9 The conclusion: By a wicked life they are known, which are governed by the spirit of the devil: and by a pure life, which are Gods children. 10 He beginneth to commend charity towards the brethren, as another mark of the sons of God. 11 The first reason taken of the authority of God which giveth the commandement. ‡ Or, commandement.

12 An amplification taken of the contrary example of Cain which slew his brother. n He bringeth forth a very fit and very old example, wherein we may behold both the nature of the Sons of God, and the sons of the devil, and what state and condition remaineth for us in this world, and what shall be the end of both at length.
13 A short digression: Let us not marvell that we are hated of the world for doing our duety; for such was the condition of Abel, who was a just person: and who would not rather be like him than Cain?
14 The second reason: because charity is a testimony that we are translated from death to life: and therefore hatred towards the brethren is a testimony of death: and whosoever nourisheth it, doth as it were foster death in his bosome.
o Love is a token that we are translated from death to life, forasmuch as by the effects the cause is known.
15 A confirmation: whosoever is a murtherer, is in eternall death: who so hateth his brother is a murtherer, therefore is in death. And thereupon followeth the contrary: He that loveth his brother hath passed to life, for indeed we are borne dead.
16 Now he sheweth how farre Christian charity extendeth, even so farre, that according to the example of Christ, every man forget himself, to provide for, and help his brethren. 17 He reasoneth by comparisons: for if we are bound even to give our life for our neighbours, how much more are we bound to help our brothers necessitie with our goods and substance. p Wherewith this life is sustained. q Openeth not his heart to him, nor helpeth him willingly and cheerfully. 18 Christian charitie standeth not in words but in deed, and proceedeth from a sincere affection. 19 He commendeth charitie, by a triple effect: for first of all, by it we know that we are indeed the Sons of God, as he shewed before. Gr. persuade. 20 Therefore it commeth that we have a quiet conscience, as on the contrary side, he that thinketh that he hath God for a judge, because he is guilty to himself, either he is never, or els very rarely, quiet, for God hath a farre quicker sight than we, and judgeth more severely. r If an evil conscience convinceth us, much more ought the judgement of God condemne us, who knoweth our hearts better than we our selves do. 21 A third effect also riseth of the former, that in these miseries we are sure to be heard, because we are the sons of God: as we understand by the grace of sanctification, which is proper to the elect. 22 The conclusion, That faith in Christ, and love one towards another, are things joyned together, and therefore the outward testimonies of sanctification must and do answer that inward testimonie of the Spirit given unto us. s He meaneth the Spirit of sanctification, whereby we are born a new and live unto God.

CHAP. IIII.

1 He warneth them not to beleeve all teachers who boast of the Spirit, but to trie them by the rules of the catholick faith: and by many reasons exhorteth to brotherly love.

BEloved, [1] beleeve not every [a] spirit, but trie the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world.

1 Taking occasion left by the name of the Spirit, love and charity should be separated from the worship of God, which chiefly dependeth of his true knowledge, he returneth to that which he spake of in the second chapter, touching the taking heed of Antichrists. And he will have us here to take heed of two things, the one is, that seeing there be many false prophets, we do not lightly give credit to every man: the other is, that because many men teach false things, we should not therefore beleeve any. We must then observe a mean, that we may be able to discern the Spirit of God which are altogether to be followed, from impure spirits which are to be eschewed. a This is spoken by the figure Metonymie, and it is, as if he had said, Beleeve not every one that saith, that he hath a gift of the Holy Ghost to do the office of a prophet.

2 He giveth a certain and perpetuall rule to know the doctrine of Antichrist by, to wit, if either the divine or humane nature of Christ, or the true uniting of them together be denied: or if the least jot that may be be derogated from his offiee, who is our onely King, Prophet, and everlasting high priest.

2 [2] Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: [b] every spirit that confesseth that [c] Jesus Christ is come in the [d] flesh, is of God.

3 And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist, whereof you have heard that it should come, and even now already is it in the world.

b He speaketh simply of the doctrine, and not of the person.
c The true Messias.
d Is true man.

4 [3] Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them: because greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world.

3 He comforteth the elect with a most sure hope of victory: but yet so, that he teacheth them that they fight not with their own vertue, but with the vertue and power of God.

5 [4] They are of the world: therefore speak they of the world, and the world heareth them.

4 He bringeth a reason, why the world receiveth these teachers more willingly than the true: to wit, because they breath out nothing but that which is worldly: which is another note also to know the doctrine of Antichrist by.

6 [5] We are of God: he that knoweth God, heareth us; he that is not of God, heareth not us: hereby know we the [e] Spirit of truth, and the spirit of errour.

5 He testifieth unto them, that his doctrine, and the doctrine of his followers, is the assured word of God, which of necessity we have boldly to set against all the mouthes of the whole world, and thereby discerne the truth from falshood.

7 [6] Beloved let us love one another: [7] for love is of God; and every one that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God.

8 He that loveth not, knoweth not God, [8] for God is [f] love.

e True prophets, against whom are set false prophets, that is, such as erre themselves, and lead other into errour.

9 In this was manifested the love of God towards us, because that God sent his onely begotten Sonne into the world, that we might live through him.

6 He returneth to the commending of brotherly love and charitie.

10 Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Sonne to be the propitiation for our sinnes.

11 [9] Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.

7 The first reason: Because it is a very divine thing, and therefore very meet for the sons of God: so that whosoever is void of it, can not be said to know God aright.

12 [10] No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is [g] perfected in us.

13 Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit.

8 A confirmation, for it is the nature of God to love men, whereof we have a most manifest proof above all other, in that, that of his onely free and infinite good will towards us his enemies, he delivered unto death, not a common man, but that his own Son, yea, his onely begotten Son, to the end that we being reconciled through his bloud might be made partakers of his everlasting glory. f In that he calleth God, Love, he saith more than if he had said that he loveth us infinitely. 9 Another reason by comparison: if God so loved us, shall not we his children love one another? 10 A third reason: Because God is invisible. therefore by this effect of his spirit, to wit, by charitie, he is understood, yea, and to be not out of us, but joyned with us, and in us, in whom he is so effectually working. g Is surely in us in deed, and in truth. 11 He underlayeth this charitie with another foundation, to wit, faith in Jesus, which joyneth us indeed with him, even as charity witnesseth that we are joyned with him. Furthermore he testifieth of Christ, as who had seen him with his eyes. h With such is confession as cometh from true faith, and is accompanied with love, so that there be an agreement of all things. 12 A fourth reason: God is the fountain and well-spring of charity, yea charity it self, therefore whosoever abideth in it, hath God with him. 13 Again (as a little before) he commendeth love, for that, seeing that by our agreement with God in this thing; we have a certain testimony of our adoption, it cometh thereby to passe, that without fear we look for that latter day of judgement, so that trembling, and that torment of conscience is cast out by this love. ‡ Or love with us. i This signifieth a likenesse, not an equalitie. k If we understand by love, that we are in God, and God in us, that we are sons, and that we know God, and that everlasting life is in us: he concludeth aright, that we may well gather peace and quietnesse thereby.

18 There is [k] no fear in love, but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment: he that feareth, is not made perfect in love.

19 [14] We love him: because he first loved us. 225

14 Lest any man should think that peace of conscience proceedeth from our love, as from the cause, he goeth back to the fountain, to wit, to the free love wherewith God loveth us, although we deserved and doe deserve his wrath. And hereof springeth another double charity, which both are tokens and witnesses of that first, to wit, that there withall we love God who loved us first, and then for his sake our neighbours also. 15 As he shewed that the love of our neighbour cannot be separate from the love wherewith God loved us, because this last engendreth the other: so he denieth that the other kinde of love wherewith we love God, can be separate from the love of our neighbour: whereof it followeth, that they lie impudently, which say they worship God, and yet regard not their neighbours. 16 The first reason taken of comparison, why we cannot hate our neighbour, and love God, to wit, because that he that cannot love his brother, whom he seeth: how can he love God whom he seeth not? 17 A second reason, why God cannot be hated; and our neighbour loved, because the self same law-maker commandeth both to love him and our neighbour.

20 [15] If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: [16] for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?

21 [17] And this commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God, love his brother also.

Chap. v.

He that loveth God, loveth his children, and keepeth his commandment: 4 which to the faithfull are light, and not grievous. 9 Jesus is the Sonne of God, able to save us, 14 and to heare our prayers, which we make for our selves, and for others.

1 He goeth on forward in the same argument, shewing how both those loves come into us, from that love wherewith God loveth us, to wit, by Jesus our Mediatour, laid hold on by faith, in whom we are made the children of God, and doe love the Father, of whom we are so begotten, and also our brethren, which are begotten with us.

WHosoever [1] beleeveth that Jesus is the [a] Christ, is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat, [b] loveth him also that is begotten of him.

a Is the true Messias.
b By one he meaneth all the faithfull.

2 [2] By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep his [c] commandments.

2 The love of our neighbour doth so hang upon the love wherewith we love God, that this last must needs go before the first: whereof it followeth, that that is not to be called love, when men agree together to do evil, neither that, when as in loving our neighbours, we respect not Gods commandement.

3 [3] For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments, [4] and his commandments are [d] not grievous.

c There is no love where there is no true doctrine.

4 [5] For whatsoever is born of God, overcometh the world, [6] and this is the victorie that [e] overcometh the world, even our [f] faith.

5 [7] Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that beleeveth that Jesus is the Sonne of God?

6 [8] This is he that came by water and bloud, even Jesus Christ, [9] not by water onely, but by water and bloud: and it is the [g] Spirit that beareth witnesse, because the Spirit is truth.

7 For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the [h] Word, and the holy Ghost: and these three are [i] one.

8 And there are three that bear witnesse in earth, the spirit, and the water, and the bloud: and these three agree in one.

9 [10] If we receive the witnesse of men, the

3 The reason: for to love God, is to keep his commandements, which being so, and seeing that both the loves are commanded of one and the self-same Lawmaker, (as he taught before) it followeth also, that we do not love our neighbours, when we break Gods commandements. 4 Because experience teacheth us, that there is no abilitie in our flesh, neither yet will to perform Gods commandements, therefore lest the apostle should seem, by so often putting them in minde of the commandements of God, to require things that are impossible, he pronounceth that the commandements of God are not in such sort grievous or burdensome, that we can be oppressed with the burden of them. d To them that be regenerate, that is to say, born anew, which are led by the Spirit of God, and are through grace delivered from the curse of the law. 5 A reason: Because by regeneration we have gotten strength to overcome the world, that is to say, whatsoever striveth against the commandements of Gods. 6 He declareth what that strength is, to wit, faith. e He useth the time that is past, to give us to understand, that although we be in the battel, yet undoubtedly we shall be conqueror, and are most certain of the victory. f Which is the instrumentall cause, and as a mean and hand whereby we lay hold on him, who indeed doeth perform this, that is, hath and doth overcome the world, even Christ Jesus. 7 Moreover, he declareth two things, the one, what true faith is, to wit, that which resteth upon Jesus Christ the Son of God alone: whereupon followeth the other, to wit, that this strength is not proper to faith, but by faith as an instrument is drawn from Jesus Christ the Son of God. 8 He proveth the excellencie of Christ, in whom onely all things are given us, by six witnesses, three heavenly, and three earthly, which wholly and fully agree together. The heavenly witnesses are the Father, who sent the Son, the word it self, which became flesh, and the Holy Ghost, The earthly witnesses are water (that is, our sanctification) bloud (that is, our justification) the Spirit (that is, acknowledging of God the Father in Christ by faith through the testimonie of the holy Ghost.) 9 He warneth us not to separate water from bloud (that is sanctification from justification, or righteousnesse begun, from righteousnesse imputed) for we stand not upon sanctification, but so farre forth as it is a witnesse of Christs righteousnesse imputed unto us: and although this imputation of Christs righteousnesse be never separated from sanctification, yet is it the only matter of our salvation. g Our spirit which is the third witnesse, testifieth that the holy Ghost is truth, that is to say, that that is true which he telleth us, to wit, that we are the sons of God. h Look John 8. 14. i Agree in one. 10 He sheweth by an argument of comparison, of what great weight the heavenly testimony is, that the Father hath given of the Son, unto whom agreeth both the Son himself and the holy Ghost.

witnesse of God is greater: [k] for this is the witnesse of God, which he hath testified of his Sonne.

10 [11] He that beleeveth on the Son of God, hath the witnesse in himself: he that beleeveth not God, hath made him a liar, because he beleeveth not the record that God gave of his Sonne.

11 [12] And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternall life: and this life is in his Sonne.

12 He that hath the Sonne, hath life; and he that hath not the Sonne of God, hath not life.

13 [13] These things have I written unto you that beleeve on the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternall life, and that ye may beleeve on the name of the Sonne of God.

14 [14] And this is the confidence that we have [‡] in him, that if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us.

15 And if we know that he heare us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him.

16 [15] If any man see his brother sinne a sinne which is not unto death, he shall [l] ask, and he shall give him life for them that sinne not unto death. There is a sinne unto death: I do not say that he shall pray for it.

17 [16] All unrighteousnesse is sinne, and there is a sinne not unto death.

18 [17] We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not, but he that is begotten of God, keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

19 [18] And we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickednesse.

20 And we know that the Sonne of God is come, and hath given us an understanding that we may know him that is true: and we are in him that is true, even in his Sonne Jesus Christ. This is the true [m] God, and eternall life.

21 [19] Little children, keep your selves from idols. Amen.

k I conclude thus aright: For that testimony which I said is given in heaven, cometh from God, who setteth forth his Son.
11 He proveth the sureness of the earthly witnesses by every mans conscience, having that testimony in it self, which conscience he saith, cannot be deceived, because it consenteth to the heavenly testimonie which the Father giveth of the Son: for other wise the Father must needs be a lyar, if the conscience which accordeth and assenteth to the Father, should lie.
12 Now at length he sheweth what this testimonie is, that is confirmed with so many witnesses, to wit, that life, or everlasting felicity is the meer and onely gift of God, and proceedeth from him unto us, which by faith are joyned with him, so that without him, life is no where to be found. 13 The conclusion of the epistle, wherein he sheweth first of all, that even they which already beleeve, do stand in need of this doctrine, to the end that they may grow more and more in faith: that is to say, to the end that they may be daily more and more certified of their salvation in Christ, through faith.
14 Because we do not yet in effect obtain that which we hope for, the apostle joyneth invocation or prayer with faith, which he will have to proceed from faith, and moreover to be conceived in such sort, that nothing be asked but that which is agreeable to the will of God: and such prayers cannot be vain. ‡ Or, concerning him.
15 We are to make prayers not onely for our selves, but also for our brethren which do sin, that their sins be not unto them, to death: and yet he excepteth that sin which is never forgiven, or the sin against the Holy Ghost, that is to say, an universall and willfull falling away from the known truth of the Gospel.
l This is as much as if he said, let him desire the Lord to forgive him, and he will forgive him being so desired.
16 The taking away of an objection: indeed all iniquitie is comprehended under the name of sin: but yet we must not despaire therefore, because every sin is not deadly, and without hope of remedy. 17 A reason why not all, nay rather why no sin is mortall to some: to wit, because they be born of God, that is to say, made the sons of God in Christ, and being indued with his Spirit, they do not serve sin, neither are deadly wounded of Satan. 18 Every man must particularly applie to himself the generall promises, that we may certainly perswade our selves, that whereas all the world is by nature lost, we are freely made the sons of God, by the sending of Jesus Christ his son unto us, of whom we are lightned with the knowledge of the true God and everlasting life. m The divinitie of Christ is most plainly proved by this place.
19 He expresseth a plain precept of taking heed of idols: which he setteth against the onely true God, that with this seal as it were he might seal up all the former doctrine.

The second Epistle of JOHN.

He exhorteth a certain honourable matrone with her children, to persevere in Christian love and belief, 8 lest they lose the reward of their former profession: 10 and to have nothing to do with those seducers that bring not the true doctrine of Christ Jesus.

THe elder unto the [a] elect [b] ladie, and her children [1] whom I love in the truth: and not I onely, but also all they that have known the truth:

2 For the truths sake which dwelleth in us, and shall be with us for ever:

3 Grace be with you, mercie, and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ the Sonne of the Father, in [c] truth and love.

4 [2] I rejoyced greatly, that I found of thy children walking [d] in truth, as we have received a commandment from the Father.

5 And now I beseech thee ladie, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another.

6 And this is love, that we walk after his commandments. This is the commandment, that as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it.

7 [3] For many deceivers are entred into the world, who confesse not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an Antichrist:

8 [4] [c] Look to your selves, that we lose not those things which we have [‡] wrought, but that we receive a full reward.

9 Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God, he that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Sonne.

10 [5] If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed.

11 For he that biddeth him God speed, is partaker of his evil deeds.

12 Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink, but I trust to come unto you, and speak [‡] face to face, that our joy may be full.

13 The children of thy elect sister greet thee. Amen.

a This is no proper name, but to be taken as the word soundeth, that is to say, to the worthy and noble lady.
b Excellent and honourable dame.
1 The bond of Christian conjunction, or linking together, is the true and constant profession of the truth.
c With true knowledge which hath alwayes love joyned with it, and following it.
2 This true profession consisteth both in love one towards another, which the Lord hath commanded, and also especially in wholsome and sound doctrine, which also is delivered unto us: for the commandement of God is a sound and sure foundation, both of the rule of manners, and of doctrine, and these cannot be separated the one from the other. d According as the truth directeth them.
3 Antichrists, fighting against the person and office of Christ, were already crept into the church in the time of the apostles.
4 He that maketh shipwrack of doctrine, loseth all.
c Beware, and take good heed.
‡ Or, gained. Some copies reade, which ye have gained, but that ye receive, &c.

The third Epiſtle of J O H N.

He commendeth Gaius for his piety, 5 and hoſpitiality, 7 to true preachers; 9 complaining of the unkind dealing of ambitious Diotrephes on the contrary ſide, 11 whoſe evil example is not to be followed: 12 and giveth ſpeciall teſtimonie to the good report of Demetrius.

1 THE [1] elder unto the welbeloved Gaius, whom I love [‡] in the truth:

2 Beloved, I [‡] wish above all things that thou mayeſt proſper and be in health, even as thy ſoul proſpereth,

3 For I rejoyced greatly when the brethren came and teſtified of the truth that is in thee, even as thou walkeſt in the truth.

4 I have no greater [a] joy than to heare that my children walk in truth.

5 Beloved, thou doeſt [b] faithfully whatſoever thou doeſt to the brethren, and to ſtrangers:

6 Which have born witneſſe of thy charitie before the church: whom if thou [c] bring forward on their journey after a godly ſort, thou ſhalt do well:

7 Becauſe that for his names ſake they went forth, taking nothing of the Gentiles.

8 We therefore ought to receive ſuch, that we might be [d] fellow-helpers to the truth.

9 [2] I wrote unto the church, but Diotrephes who loveth to have the preeminence among them, receiveth us not.

10 Wherefore if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, prating againſt us with malicious words: and not content therewith, neither doth he himſelf receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and caſteth them out of the church.

11 Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good, is of God: but he that doeth evil, hath not [e] ſeen God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the truth it ſelf: yea, and we alſo bear record, and ye know that our record is true.

13 I had many things to write, but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee.

14 But I truſt I ſhall ſhortly ſee thee, and we ſhall ſpeak [†] face to face. Peace be to thee. Our friends ſalute thee. Greet the friends by name.

The generall Epiſtle of J U D E.

He exhorteth them to be conſtant in the profeſſion of the faith. 14 Falſe teachers are crept in to ſeduce them: for whoſe damnable doctrine and manners, horrible puniſhment is prepared: 20 whereas the godly by the aſſiſtance of the holy Spirit, and prayers to God, may perſevere, and grow in grace, and keep themſelves, and recover others out of the ſnares of thoſe deceivers.

1 JUde the ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, and [a] brother of James, to them that are ſanctified [b] by God the Father, and [c] preſerved in Jeſus Chriſt, and called:

2 Mercy unto you, and peace and love be multiplied.

3 [1] Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the [d] common ſalvation: it was needfull for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye ſhould [e] earneſtly contend for the faith which was [f] once delivered unto the ſaints.

4 [2] For there are certain men crept in unawares, who were before of old ordained to this condemnation, [3] ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into laſciviouſneſſe, and denying the onely Lord God, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

5 [4] I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord having ſaved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward deſtroyed them that beleeved not.

6 [5] And the angels which kept not their [‡] firſt eſtate, but left their own habitation, he hath reſerved in everlaſting chains under darkneſſe, unto the judgement of the great day.

7 Even as Sodom and Gomorrha, and the cities about them, in like manner giving themſelves over to [g] fornication, and going after [†] [h] ſtrange flesh, are ſet forth for an example, ſuffering the vengeance of eternall fire.

8 Likewiſe alſo theſe filthy [i] dreamers defile the flesh, [‡] deſpiſe [k] dominion, and ſpeak evil of dignities.

a This is put to make a difference between him and Judas Iſcarioth.
b Of God the Father.
c Set apart by the everlaſting counſel of God to be delivered to Chriſt to be kept.
1 The end and mark whereat he ſhooteth in this epiſtle, is that he confirmeth the godly againſt certain wickedmen, both in wholeſome doctrine and good manners.
d Of thoſe things that pertain to the ſalvation of all of us.
e That ye ſhould defend the faith by all the might you can, both by true doctrine and good example of life. f Which was once ſo given, that it may never be changed. 2 It is by Gods providence and not by chance: that many wicked men creep into the church.
3 He condemneth this firſt in them, that they take a pretence or occaſion to wax wanton, by the grace of God: which cannot be, but the chief empire of Chriſt muſt be abrogated, in that ſuch men give up themſelves to Satan, as at this day the ſect of Anabaptiſts doth, which they call Libertines.
4 He ſetteth forth the horrible puniſhment of them which have abuſed the grace of God to follow their own luſts.
5 The fall of the angels was moſt ſeverely puniſhed; how much more then will the Lord puniſh wicked and faithleſſe men?
‡ Or, principalitie.
g Following the ſteps of Sodom and Gomorrha.
† Gr. other.
h Thus he covertly ſetteth forth their horrible and monſtrous luſts. i Which are ſo blockiſh and void of reaſon, as if all their ſenſes and wits were in a moſt dead ſleep. 6 Another moſt pernicious doctrin of theirs, in that they take away the authoritie of magiſtrates, and ſpeak evil of them, as at this day the Anabaptiſts do. k It is a greater matter to deſpiſe government than the governours, that is to ſay the matter it ſelf, than the perſons.

9 [7] Yet Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil, he diſputed about the body of Moſes, durſt not bring againſt him a railing accuſation, but ſaid, * The Lord rebuke thee.

10 [8] But theſe ſpeak evil of thoſe things which they know not: but what they know naturally, as brute beaſts; in thoſe things they corrupt themſelves.

11 [9] Wo unto them, for they have gone in the way of Cain, and ran greedily after the errour of Balaam for reward, and perished in the gainſaying of Core.

12 [10] Theſe are ſpots in your [l] feaſts of charity, when they feaſt with you, feeding themſelves without [m] fear: clouds they are without water, carried about of windes; trees whoſe fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots;

13 Raging waves of the ſea, foming out their own ſhame; wandring ſtarres, to whom is reſerved the [n] blackneſſe of darkneſſe for ever.

14 And Enoch alſo the ſeventh from Adam, propheſied of theſe, ſaying, Behold, the Lord [o] cometh with ten thouſands of his ſaints,

15 To excute judgement upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them, of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard ſpeeches, which ungodly ſinners have ſpoken againſt him.

16 Theſe are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own luſts, and their mouth ſpeaketh great ſwelling words, having mens perſons in admiration becauſe of advantage.

17 [11] But beloved, remember ye the words which were ſpoken before of the apoſtles of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt:

18 How that they told you there ſhould be mockers in the laſt time, who ſhould walk after their own ungodly luſts, 19 [12] Theſe be they who ſeparate themſelves, ſenſuall, having not the Spirit.

20 But ye beloved, building up your ſelves on your moſt holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghoſt.

21 Keep your ſelves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt unto eternall life.

22 [13] And of ſome have compaſſion, making a difference:

23 And others ſave with [p] fear, pulling them out of the fire: hating even the [q] garment ſpotted by the flesh.

24 [14] Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to preſent you faultleſſe before the preſence of his glory with exceeding joy,

25 To the onely wiſe God our Saviour, be glory and majeſty, dominion and power, now and ever. Amen.

7 An argument of comparison: Michael one of the chiefeſt angels, was content to deliver Satan, although a moſt curſed enemy, to the judgement of God to be punished and theſe ſervers men are not aſhamed to ſpeak evil of the powers which are ordained of God. * Zech. 3, 2.

8 The concluſion, Theſe men are in a double fault, to wit both for their raſh folly in condemning ſome, & for their impudent and ſhameleſſe contempt of that knowledge, which when they had gotten, yet notwithſtanding they lived as bruit beaſts, ſerving their bellies.

9 He foretelleth their deſtruction, becauſe they reſemble or ſhew forth Cains ſhameleſſe malice, Balaams filthy covetouſneſſe, and to be ſhort, Cores ſeditious and ambitious head.

10 He rebuketh moſt ſharply with many other notes and marks, both their diſhoneſty, or, filthineſſe and their ſawcineſſe, but eſpecially, their vain bravery of words and moſt vain pride, joyning therewithall a moſt grave and heavy threatning out of a moſt ancient propheſie of Enoch touching the judgement to come. l The feaſts of charitie were certain banquets, which the brethren which were members of the church kept altogether, as Tertullian ſetteth them forth in his Apologie, chap. 39. m Impudently, without all reverence either to God or man. n Moſt groſſe darkneſſe. o The preſent time, for the time to come.

11 The riſing up of ſuch monſters was ſpoken of before, that we ſhould not be troubled at the newneſſe of the matter.

12 It is the property of Antichriſts to ſeparate themſelves from the Godly, becauſe they are not governed by the Spirit of God: and contrariwiſe, it is the property of Chriſtians to edifie one another through godly prayers, both in faith, and alſo in love, untill the mercy of Chriſt appeare to their full ſalvation.

13 Amongſt them which wander and go aſtray, the godly have to uſe this choiſe, that they handle ſome of them gently, and that otherſome being even in the very flame, they endevour to ſave with ſevere and ſharp inſtruction of the preſent danger: yet ſo, that they do in ſuch ſort abhorre the wicked and diſhoneſt, that they eſchew even the leaſt contagion that may be. p By fearing them, and holding them back with godly ſeverity. q An amplification, taken from the forbidden things of the law which did defile. 14 He commendeth them to the grace of God, declaring ſufficiently that it is God, onely that can give us that conſtancie which he requireth of us.

THE REVELATION OF S. JOHN THE DIVINE.

CHAP. I.

4 John writeth his revelation to the seven churches of Asia, signified by the seven golden candlesticks. 7 The coming of Christ. 14 His glorious power and majestie.

THE [1a] Revelation of [b] Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to shew unto his servants things which must shortly come to passe; and he sent and signified it by his angel unto his servant John:

2 Who bare record of the word of God, and of the testimony of Jesus Christ, and of all things that he saw.

3 Blessed is he that readeth, and they that heare the words of this prophesie, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand.

4 [2] John to the seven churches in Asia, Grace be unto you, and peace, [3] from him * [c] which is, and which was and which is to come, and [4] from the seven spirits which are [d] before his throne:

5 And from Jesus Christ, who [5] is the faithfull witnesse, and the * first begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth: Unto him that loved us, * and washed us from our sinnes in his own bloud,

6 And hath * made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever Amen.

7 * Behold, he cometh with clouds, and every [e] eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him: even so, Amen.

8 [6] I am [f] Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the LORD, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almightie.

9 [7] I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdome and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the isle that is called [g] Patmos, for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ.

10 I was in the [h] Spirit on the [i] LORDS day, and heard behinde me a great voice, as of a trumpet, 11 Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last: and what thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia, unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamos, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea.

12 [8] And I turned to [k] see the voice that spake with me. [9] And being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks;

13 And in the midst of the seven candlesticks, one like unto the Sonne of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle.

14 His head, and his hairs were white like wooll as white as snow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire,

15 And his feet like unto fine brasse, as if they burned in a furnace: and his voice as the sound of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand seven starres: and out of his mouth went a sharp

---

1 This chapter hath two principall parts, the title or inscription which standeth in stead of an exordium: and a narration going before the whole prophesie of this book. The inscription is double, generall and particular. The generall containeth the kinde of prophesie, the authour, end, matter, instruments, and manner of communicating the same, in the first verse: the most religious faithfulnesse of the apostle as a publick witnesse, verse 2. And the use of communicating the same taken from the promise of God, and from the circumstance of the time, vers. 3.

a As opening of a hid and secret thing.

b Which the Son opened to us out of his Fathers bosome by angels.

2 This is the particular or singular inscription, wherein salutation is written unto certain churches by name, which represent the church Catholick: and the certaintie and truth of the same is declared, from the authour thereof unto the eight verse.

3 That is from God the Father; eternall, immortall, immutable: whose unchangeablenesse, Saint John declareth by a form of speech which is undeclined. For there is no incongruitie in this place, where of necessity the words must be attemper'd unto the mysteries, and not the mysteries corrupted or impaired by the words. * Exod. 3: 14.

c By these three times, Is, Was, and Shall be, is signified this word Jehovah, which is the proper name of God.

4 That is, from the holy Ghost which proceedeth from the Father and the Sonne. This Spirit is one in person according to his substance: but in communication of his vertue and in demonstration of his divine works in those seven churches, doth so perfectly manifest himself, as if there were so many spirits, every one perfectly working in his own church. Wherefore after Chap. 5: 6. they are called the seven horns and seven eyes of the Lambe, as much to say, as his most absolute power and wisedome: and Chapter 3: 1. Christ is said to have those seven Spirits of God, and chap. 4: 5. it is said, that seven lamps do burn before his throne, which also are those seven Spirits of God. That this place ought to be so understood, it is thus proved. For first, grace and peace is asked by prayer of this Spirit, which is a divine work, and an action incommunicable in respect of the most high Deitie. Secondly, he is placed between the Father and the Sonne, as set in the same degree of dignitie and operation with them, besides, he is before the throne, as of the same substance with the Father and the Sonne: as the seven eyes and the seven horns of the Lambe, moreover, these Spirits are never said to adore God, as all other things are. Finally, that is, the power whereby the Lambe openeth the book, and looseth the seven seals thereof, when none could be found amongst all creatures by whom the book might be opened, chap 5. Of these things long ago Master John Luide of Oxford wrote learnedly unto me, Now the holy Ghost is set in order of words before Christ, because there was in that which followeth a long processe of speech to be used concerning Christ.

d These are the seven spirits, which are afterward, chap 5. vers. 6. called the horns and eyes of the Lambe, and are now made as a guard waiting upon God.

5 A most ample and grave commendation of Christ, first, from his offices, the priest hood and kingdom: secondly, from his benefits, as his love toward us, & washing us with his bloud, in this verse, & communication of his kingdome, and priest hood with us: thirdly, from his eternall glory and power, which is alwayes to be celebrated of us, verse 6. Finally, from the accomplishment of all things once to be effected by him, at his second coming, what time he shall openly destroy the wicked, and shall comfort the godly in the truth, verse 7. * 1 Cor. 15: 20. Coloss. 1: 18. * Hebr. 9: 14. * 1 Petr. 2: 5.

* Matth. 24: 30.

e All men.

6 A confirmation of the salutation aforegoing, taken from the words of God himself: in which he avoucheth his operation in every singular creature, the immutable eternitie that is in himself, and his own potencie in all things: and concludeth in the unitie of his own essence, that Trinity of persons which was before spoken of.

f I am he before whom there is nothing, yea, by whom every thing that is made, was made, and shall remain though all they should perish.

7 The narration, opening the way to the declaring of the authority and calling of Saint John the Euangelist in this singular Revelation, and to procure faith and credit unto this prophesie. This is the second part of this Chapter, consisting of a propositon, and an exposition, sheweth, first who was called unto this Revelation, in what place, and how occupied, vers. 9. Then at what time, and by what meanes, namely, by the spirit, and the word, and that on the Lords day, which day ever since the resurrection of Christ, was consecrated for Christians unto the religion of the Sabbath: that is to say, to be a day of rest, verse 10. Thirdly, who is the authour that calleth him, and what is the sum of his calling.

g Patmos is one of the Isles of Sporas, whither John was banished, as some write.

h That is that holy ravishment expressed, wherewith the prophets were ravished, and being as it were carried out of he world, were conversant with God: and so Ezekiel saith often, that he was carried from place to place of the Lords spirit, and that the spirit of the Lord fell upon him.

i He calleth it the Lords day, which Paul calleth the first day of the week, 1 Cor. 16: 2.

8 The exposition declaring the third and last point of the proposition (for the other points are evident of themselves) wherein is spoken, first, of the Authour of his calling, unto the 17 verse. secondly, of the calling it self, unto the end of the chapter. And first of all the occasion is noted in this verse, in that Saint John turned himself towards the vision: after is set down the description of the Authour, in the verses following, 13. 14, 15. 16.

k To see him whose voice I had heard.

9 The description of the Authour, which is Christ: by the candlesticks that stand about him, that is, the churches that stand before him, and depend upon his direction in this verse by his properties, that he is one furnished with wisdome and dexterity to the atchieving of great things, verse 13. with ancient gravity and most excellent sight of the eye, verse 14. with strength invincible, and with a mighty word, verse 15. By his operations that he ruleth the ministery of his servants in the church, giveth effect thereunto by the sword of his word, and enlightening all things by his countenance, doth most mightily provide for every one by his divine providence, verse 16.

two edged sword: and his countenance was as the sunne shineth in his strength.

17 [10] And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead: [11] and he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not, [12] I am the first and the last.

18 I am he that liveth, and was dead: and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen, and have the keyes of hell and of death.

19 [13] Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall be hereafter, 20 [14] The mystery of the seven starres which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks. The seven starres are the [1] angels of the seven churches: and the seven candlesticks which thou sawest, are the seven churches.

10 A religious feare that goeth before the calling of the Saints, and their full confirmation to take upon them the vocation of God.
11 A divine confirmation of this calling, partly by signes, and partly by word of power. * Isa. 41: 4. and 44: 6.
12 A most elegant description of this calling contained in three things, which are necessary unto a just vocation: First, the authority of him that calleth, for that he is the beginning and end of all things, in this verse, for that he is eternall and omnipotent, verse 18. Secondly, the sum of this propheticall calling and revelation, verse 19. Lastly, a declaration of those persons unto whom this prophesie is by the commandement of God, directed in the description thereof, verse 20. 13 The sum of this prophesie, that the apostle must write whatsoever he should see, adding nothing, not taking away any thing, verse 2. Hereof there are two parts: one is a narration of those things which are, that is, which then were at that time contained in the second and thirtd chapter: the other part is of those things which were to come, contained in the rest of this book. 14 That is the thing which was mysticall, signified by the particulars of the vision before going. 1 By angels he meaneth the ministers of the church.

CHAP. II.

What is commanded to be written to the angels, that is, the ministers of the churches of 1 Ephesus, 8 Smyrna, 12 Pergamos: 18 Thyatira: and what is commended, or found wanting in them.

UNto [1] the angel of the church of Ephesus, write, [2] These things saith he that holdeth the seven starres in his right hand, who walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks:

2 [3] I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil, and thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars.

3 And hast born, and hast patience, and for my names sake hast laboured, and hast not fainted.

4 Nevertheless, I have somewhat [a] against thee, because thou hast left thy first love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works, or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent.

6 But this thou hast, that thou hatest the deeds of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.

7 [4] He that hath an eare, let him heare what the spirit saith unto the churches, To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the [5] midst of the [b] paradise of God.

8 [6] And unto the angel of the church in [c] Smyrna, write, These things saith the first and the last, which was dead, and is alive,

9 [7] I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews and are not, but are the synagogue of Satan.

10 Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried, and ye shall have [8] tribulation ten dayes: be thou faithfull unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

11 [9] He that hath an eare, let him heare what the Spirit saith unto the churches, He that overcometh, shall not be [10] hurt of the second death.

12 [11] And to the angel of the church in [d] Pergamos, write, These things saith he, which hath the sharp sword with two edges, 13 [12] I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satans seat is, and thou holdest fast my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in those [e] dayes wherein Antipas was my faithfull martyr, who was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

14 But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of * Balaam, who taught Balac to cast a stumbling block before the children of Israel, to [f] eat things sacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication.

15 So hast thou also them that hold the doctrine of the [13] Nicolaitans; which thing I hate.

16 Repent, or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

17 [14] He that hath an eare, let him heare what the spirit saith unto the churches, To him that covercometh will I give to eat [15] of the hidden [g] manna, and will give him a [h] white stone, and in the stone a [16] new name written, which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it,

18 [17] And unto the [18] angel of the church in Thyatira, write, These things saith the Sonne of God, who hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet are like fine brasse, 19 I know thy [19] works, and charity, and service, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works, and the last to be more than the first.

20 Notwithstanding, I have a few things against thee, because thou sufferest that woman * Jezebel, which calleth her self a pro-

1 The former part of this book is comprised in a narration of those things which then were, as S. John taught us, Chap. 1: 19. it belongeth wholly unto instruction, and in these two next chapters, containeth seven places, according to the number and condition of those churches which were named before, Chap. 1: 11. figured verse 12. and distributed most aptly into their pastours and flocks, verse 20. which verse of that chapter is as it were a passage unto the first part. Every one of these seven places hath three principall members: an exordium taken from the person of the authour: a proposition, in which is praise and commendation of that which is good, reprehension of that which is evil; and instruction, containing either an exhortation alone, or withall a dissuasion opposite unto it, and a conclusion stirring up unto attention, by divine promises. And this first place is unto the pastors of the church of Ephesus. 2 The exordium, wherein are contained the speciall praises of Christ Jesus the authour of this prophecie, out of the 6 and 13 verses of the first chapter. 3 The proposition, first commending the pastour of this church, vers. 2, 3. then reproving him, verse 4, after informing him, and withall threatning that he will translate the church to another place, vers. 5. This commination, or threat, Christ mitigateth by a kinde of correction, calling to minde the particular vertue and piety of that church, which God never leaveth without recompense, vers. 6. Concerning the Nicolaitanes, see after upon the 15 verse. a To deal with thee for. 4 The conclusion containing a commandment of attention, and a promise of everlasting life, shadowed out in a figure, of which Gen. 2: 9. 5 That is, in Paradise after the manner of the Hebrew phrase. b This Christ speaketh as he is Mediatour. 6 The second place is unto the pastours of the church of the Smyrnians. The exordium is taken out of the 17 and 18 verses of the first chapter. c Smyrna was one of the cities of Jonia in Asia.

7 The proposition of praise is in this verse, and of exhortation joyned with promise, is in the next verse.

8 That is, of ten yeares. For so commonly both in this book, and in Daniel, yeares are signified by the name of dayes that God thereby might declare, that the space of time is appointed by him, and the same very short. Now because Saint John wrote this book in the end of Domitian the emperour his reigne, as Justinus and Ireneus doe witnesse, it is altogether necessary that this should be referred unto that persecution which was done by the authority of the emperour Trajan, who began to make havock of the Christian churches in the tenth yeare of his reigne, as the Historiographers do write: and his bloudy persecution continued untill Adrian the Emperour had succeeded in his place: The space of which time is precisely ten yeares, which are here mentioned.
9 The conclusion, verse 7.
10 See chap. 20: 6.
11 The third place is unto the pastours of Pergamos. The exordium is taken out of the 16 verse of the first chapter.
d Pergamos was the name of a famous city in old time in Asia, where the kings of the Attalians were alwayes resident.
12 The proposition of praise, is in this verse, of reprehension in the two following, and of exhortation joyned with a conditionall threat, vers. 16. Now this Antipas was the angel or minister of the church of Pergamos, as Aretas writeth.
e The faith of them of Pergamos is so much the more highly commended, because they remained constant even in the very heat of persecution. * Num. 25.
f That which is here spoken of things offered to idols, is meant of the same kinde which Paul speaketh of, 1 Cor. 10: 14.
13 Which follow the footsteps of Balaam, and such as were abandoned unto all filthinesse: as he shewed in the verse aforegoing, and is here signified by a note of similitude. And thus also must the first verse be understood. For this matter especially, Ireneus must be consulted withall.
14 The conclusion, standing of exhortation as before, and of promise.
15 The bread of life, invisible, spirituall, and heavenly, which is kept secretly with God, from before all eternitie, g He alludeth to that sermon which we read of, Joh. 6. and to the place we finde, Psal. 105: 40. h Aretas writeth, that such a stone was wont to be given to wrestlers at games, or else that such stones did in old time witnesse the quitting of a man.
16 Which is a signe and witnesse of forgivenesse and remission of sins, of righteousnesse and true holinesse, and of puritie incorrupted, after that the old man is killed,
17 A signe and testimony of newnesse of life in righteousnesse and true holinesse, by putting on the new man, whom none doeth inwardly know, save the spirit of man, which is in himself, the praise whereof is not of men, but of God, Romanes 2: 28.
18 The fourth place is unto the pastours of Thyatira. The exordium is taken out of the fourteenth and fifteenth verses of the first chapter.
19 The proposition of praise is in this verse of reprehension, for that they tolerated with them the doctrine of unrighteousnesse and ungodlinesse, is verse 20. the authours whereof, though they were called back of God, yet repented not, verse 21. wherunto is added a most heavy threatning, verse 22. and 23. of a conditionall promise, and of exhortation to hold fast the truth, in the two verses following. i So he calleth those offices of charitie which are done to the Saints. * 1 Kings 16: 31.

Chap. III.

1 The angel of the church of Sardis is reproved. 3 exhorted to repent, and threatned if he do not repent. 8 The angel of the church of Philadelphia. 10 is approved for his diligence and patience. 15 The angel of Laodicea rebuked, for being neither hot nor cold, 19 and admoniſhed to be more zealous. 20 Chriſt ſtandeth at the doore, and knocketh.

AND [1] unto the angel of the church in [a] Sardis write, Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſeven ſpirits of God, and the ſeven ſtarres, [2] I know thy works, that thou haſt a [b] name that thou liveſt, and art dead.

2 Be watchfull, and ſtrengthen the things which remain, that are [c] ready to die: for I have not found thy works perfect before God:

3 Remember therefore how thou haſt received and heard, and hold faſt, and repent. * If therefore thou ſhalt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou ſhalt not know what houre I will come upon thee.

4 Thou haſt a few names even in Sardis, which have [3] not defiled their garments, and they ſhall walk with me in [4] white: [5] for they are [d] worthy.

5 He that overcometh; the ſame ſhall be clothed in white raiment, and I will not blot out his name out of the * book of life, but I will confeſſe his name before my father, and before his angels.

6 He that hath an eare, let him heare what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

7 [6] And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write, Theſe things ſaith he that is holy, he that is true, he that hath the [e] key of David, he that openeth, and no man ſhutteth; and ſhutteth, and no man openeth;

8 [7] I know thy works: behold I have ſet before thee an open doore, and no man can ſhut it: for thou haſt a little ſtrength, and haſt kept my word, and haſt not denied my name.

9 Behold, I will make them [f] of the ſynagogue of Satan (which ſay they are Jews, and are not, but do lie) behold, I will make them to come and [8] worſhip before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee.

10 Becauſe thou haſt [8] kept the word of my patience, I alſo will keep thee from the houre of temptation, which ſhall come upon all the world, to trie them that dwell upon the earth.

11 Behold, I come quickly: hold that faſt which thou haſt, that no man take thy crown.

12 [9] Him that overcometh, will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he ſhall go no more out: & I will [10] write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jeruſalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name.

13 He that hath an eare, let him heare what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

14 [11] And unto the angel of the church [i] of the Loadiceans, write, Theſe things ſaith the [h] Amen, the faithfull and true witneſſe, the [i] beginning of the creation of God, 15 [12] I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot.

16 So then becauſe thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will ſpue thee out of my mouth.

17 Becauſe thou ſayeſt, I am rich, and increaſed with goods, and have need of nothing: and knoweſt not that thou art wretched, and miſerable, and [13] poore, and blinde, and naked.

18 I counſel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayeſt be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayeſt be clothed, and that the ſhame of thy nakedneſſe do not appear, and anoint thine eyes with eye-ſalve, that thou mayeſt ſee.

CHAP. IV.

2 John seeth the throne of God in heaven. 4 The foure and twenty elders. 6 The foure beasts full of eyes before and behinde. 10 The elders lay down their crowns, and worship him that sat on the throne.

1 Here after followeth the second part of this book, altogether prophetical, foretelling those things which were to come, as was said before, chap. 1:19. This is divided into two histories: one common unto the whole world, unto the 9 chapter: and another singular of the church of God thence unto the 22 chap. and these histories are said to be described in severall books, chap. 5: 1. and 10. vers. 2. Now this first verse, is as it were a passage from the former part unto the second: where it is said, that the heaven was opened, that is, that heavenly things were unlocked, and that a voice of a trumpet sounded in heaven, to stirre up the apostle, and call him to the understanding of things to come. The first historie hath two parts: one of the causes of things done, and of this whole Revelation, in this and the next Chapter. Another of the acts done in the next foure chapters. The principall causes according to the distinction of persons in the unitie of the divine essence, and according to the œconomie or dispensation thereof, are two: one the beginning, which none shall approach unto, that is, God the father, of whom is spoken in this chapter. The other, the Son, who is the mean cause, easie to be approached unto, in respect that he is God and man in person, of whom. Chap. 5. 2 The manner of Revelation, as before, 1: 10. a Look chap. 1: 10. 3 A description of God the father, and of his glory in the heavens, framed unto the manner of men by his office, nature, company attending, effect, instruments, and events that follow afterwards. In this verse he is presented in office a Judge, as Abraham said, Gen. 18. which is declared by his throne, as an ensigne of judgement, and his sitting thereupon. 4 By his nature, in that he is the father, most glorious in his own person, and with his glory overshining all other things. 5 By the company attending about him, in that, as that most high Judge, he is accompanied with the most honorable attendance of prophets and apostles, both of the old and new church, whom Christ hath made to be priests and kings, Chap. 1: 6. and 5: 10. 6 By effects, in that most mightily he maketh all things by his voice, and word, as Psal. 29: 3. and with the light of his spirit and prudence perviseth and passeth through all. 7 By instruments used, in that he both hath a most ready treasury, and as it were a work house excellently furnished with all things, unto the executing of his will, which things flow from his commandement, as is repeated, Chap. 15: 2. and hath also the angels most ready administers of his counsels and pleasure, unto all parts of the world, continually watching (in this verse) working by reason, otherwise than the instruments without life last mentioned, couragious as lions, mighty as buls, wise as men, swift as eagles, verse 7 most apt unto all purposes, as furnished with wings on every part, most piercing of sight, and finally, pure and holy spirits alwayes in continuall motion, vers. 8. b Every beast had six wings. † Or, they have no rest. 8 By events in that for all the causes before mentioned, God is glorified, both of angels, as holy, Judge, omnipotent, eternall, and immutable vers. 8. and also after their example he is glorified of holy men, vers. 9. in signe and in speech, vers. 10: 11. * Isa. 6: 3. c God is said to have glory, honour, kingdome, and such like given unto him, when we godly and reverently set forth that which is properly and onely his.

After [1] this I looked, and behold, a doore was opened in heaven: and the first voice which I heard, was as it were of a trumpet talking with me, which said, Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which must be hereafter.

2 And [2] immediately I was in the [a] spirit: [3] and behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat on the throne,

3 [4] And he that sat, was to look upon like a jasper, and a sardine stone: and there was a rain-bow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.

4 [5] And round about the throne were foure and twenty seats, and upon the seats I saw foure and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment, and they had on their heads crowns of gold.

5 [6] And out of the throne proceeded lightnings, and thundrings, and voices: and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God.

6 [7] And before the throne there was a sea of glasse like unto crystall: and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were foure beasts full of eyes before and behinde.

7 And the first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calf, and the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying eagle.

8 And the [b] foure beasts had each of them six wings about him, & they were full of eyes within, and † they rest not [8] day and night, saying, * Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

9 And when those beasts give [c] glory, and honour, and thanks to him that sat on the throne, who liveth for ever, and ever,

10 [9] The foure and twenty elders fall down before him that sat on the throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying,

11 [10] * Thou art worthy, O Lord, to [11] receive glory, and honour, and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

9 Three signes of divine honour given unto God: prostration or falling down, adoration and casting their crowns before God: in which the godly, though made kings by Christ, do willingly empty themselves of all glory, moved with a religious respect of the majestie of God. 10 The summe of their speech: that all glory must be given unto God: the reason, because he is the eternall beginning of things, from whose onely will they have their being, and are governed: and finally, in all respect are that which they are. * Chap. 5: 12. 11 That is, that thou shouldst challenge the same of thy self alone. But as for us we are unworthy, that even by thy goodnesse we should be made partakers of this glorie. And hitherto hath been handled the principall cause unapproachable which is God,

CHAP. V.

1 The book sealed with seven seals: 9 which onely the Lambe that was slain is worthy to open. 12 Therefore the elders praise him, 9 and confesse that he redeemed them with his bloud.

And [1] I saw in the [2] right hand of him that sat on the throne, a [3] book written within, and on the backside sealed with seven seals.

2 And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book and to loose the seals thereof?

3 [4] And no man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

4 And I wept much because no man was found worthy to open, and to reade the book, neither to look thereon.

5 [5] And one of the elders saith unto me, Weep not: behold, * the [6] lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof.

6 And I beheld, and lo, in the [7] midst of the throne, and of the foure beasts, and in the midst of the elders stood a Lambe as it had been slain, having seven horns, and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth.

7 [8] And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

8 [9] And when he had taken the book, the foure beasts, and foure and twenty elders fell down before the Lambe, having every one of them [10] harps, and golden vials full of † odours, which are the [a] prayers of saints.

9 And they sung a [b] new [11] song, saying, [12] Thou

1 A passing unto the second principall cause which is the Son of God, God and man, the mediatour of all, as the eternall word of God the Father, manifested in the flesh. This chapter hath two parts: one that prepareth the way unto the Revelation, by rehearsall of the occasions that did occurre in the first 4 verses. Another, the history of the Revelation of Christ, thence unto the end of the chapter. 2 That is, in the very right hand of God. 3 Here are shewed the occasions for which the principall cause, and this Revelation was also necessarie: the same are three, the first a present vision of the book of the counsels of God, concerning the ogvernment of this whole world, which book is said to be laid up with the Father as it were in his hand: but shut and unknown to all creatures, in this verse. The second is a religious desire of the angels of God to understand the mysteties of this book, verse 2. whereof see 1 Petr. 1: 12. The third is a lamentation of S. John and all the godly, moved by the same desire, vers. 4. when they saw that it was a thing unpossible for any creature to effect: which is declared in vers. 3. 4 Thus neither of them that are in heaven, nor of them which are in the earth, &c. And this I like better. Now this enumeration of parts is sufficient to the denying of the whole: For of the creatures, one sort is in heaven, above the earth: another in the earth, and another under the earth in the sea, as is afterward declared, Verse 13. 5 The second part of this chapter, in which is set down the Revelation of the Son, as before was said. This part containeth first an history, of the manner how God prepared S. John to understand this Revelation, in this verse. Secondly, the Revelation of the Sonne himself, unto the 7 verse. Thirdly, the accidents of this Revelation, in the rest of the chapter. The manner how, is here described in two sorts: one from without him, by speech, in this verse: another within, by opening the eyes of S. John (which before were held) that he might see, in the verse following. * Gen. 49: 9. 6 That is, the most mighty and most approved prince: according to the use of the Hebrew speech. 7 The summe of this Revelation, Christ the mediatour taketh and openeth the book, vers. 6, 7. Therefore in this Revelation is described the person of Christ, in this verse. His fact in the next verse. The person in thus described: Christ the mediatour between God, angels, and men, as the eternall word of God, and our redeemer: as the Lamb of God, standing as slain, and making intercession for us by the vertue and merit of his everlasting sacrifice, is armed with the spirit of God in his own person, that is, with the power and wisedome of God effectually unto the government of this whole world. 8 The fact of Christ the Mediatour: that he cometh unto the throne of the father, of which chap. 4. and taketh the book out of his hand to open it. For that he opened it, it is first expressed, chap. 6: 1. &c. 9 Now follow in the end the accidents of the Revelation last spoken of: that all the holy angels and men did sing unto him: both the chief, verse 9, 10. and the common order of angels, verse 11, 12. and of all things created, verse 13. the princes of both sorts agreeing thereunto, verse 14. 10 The symbol, or signes of praise, sweet in savour and acceptable unto God, see chap. 8: 3. † Or, incense. a Look chap. 8: 3. b No common song. 11 That is, composed according to the present matter, the Lambe having received the book as it were with his feet, and opened it with his horns, as it is said in the Canticle. 12 The song of the nobles or princes standing by the throne, consisting of a publication of the praise of Christ, and confirmation of the same from his benefits, both which we have received of himself (as are the suffering of his death, our redemption upon the crosse by his bloud, and in this verse: and our communion with him in kingdome and priest-hood, which long ago he hath granted unto us with himself) and which we hereafter hope to obtain, as our kingdom to come in Christ, in the verse following.

art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy bloud, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation:

10 * And hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reigne on the earth.

11 [13] And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne, and the beasts, and the elders, [14] and the number of them was [c] ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands.

12 Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lambe that was slain, to [d] receive power, and riches, and wisdome, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

13 [15] And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I, saying, Blessing, honour, glory, and power be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lambe for ever and ever.

14 [16] And the foure beasts said, Amen. And the foure & twenty elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever.

CHAP. VI.

1 The opening of the seals in order, and what followed thereupon, containing a propheſie to the end of the world.

AND [1] I saw when the Lambe opened one of the seals, and I heard, as it were the noise of thunder, one of the foure beasts, saying, Come, and see.

2 And I saw, and [2] behold, a white horse, and he that sat on him had a bow, and a crown was given unto him, and he went forth conquering, and to conquer.

3 [3] And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second beast say, Come, and see.

4 And there went out another horse that was red: and power was given to him that sat thereon, to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another: and there was given unto him a great sword.

5 [4] And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third beast say, Come, and see. And I beheld, and lo, a black horse, and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the midst of the foure beasts say, ‡ [a] A measure of wheat for a peny, and three measures of barley for a penie, and see thou hurt not the [5] oyl and the wine.

7 [6] And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth beast say, Come, and see.

8 And I looked, and behold, a pale horse, and his name that sat on him was Death, and hell followed with him: and power was given ‡ unto them, over the fourth part of the earth to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

9 [7] And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimonie which they held.

10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our bloud on them that dwell on the earth?

11 And [8] white robes were given unto every one of them, and it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season, untill their fellow-servants also, and their brethren that should be killed as they were, should be [b] fulfilled.

12 [9] And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and lo, there was a great earthquake, and the sunne became black as [c] sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as bloud, 13 And the starres of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig-tree casteth her ‡ untimely figs when she is shaken of a mighty winde.

14 * And the heaven departed as a scrole when it is rolled together, and every mountain and island were moved out of their places:

15 [10] And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens, and in the rocks of the mountains,

16 And said to the mountains and rocks, [11] Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lambe:

17 For the great day of this wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?

2 This is the second part of this first historie (which I said was common, and of the whole world) of the works of God in the government of all things. Of this there are generally 3 members: the foresignifying, the caution, and the execution of all the evils, which God powreth out upon this world, which hath most hardly deserved of him. The foresignifying is set down in this chapter, the caution for preserving the church is in the next chapter, and the execution is described, chap. 8: 9. In every part of the foresignifying, there are three branches: the severall and expresse calling of Saint John, to prepare himself to take knowledge of the things that were to be shewed unto him in the opening of the seals: the signe, and the word expounding the signe: And albeit the expresse calling of S. John, be used onely in four of the signes, yet the same is also to be understood in the rest that follow. The author of the fore-signifyings, is the lambe, as that word of the father made the Mediator, opening the seals of the book. The instruments are the angels in most of the visions, who expound the signe and the words thereof. Now this first verse containeth an expresse calling of S. John to mark the opening of the first seal. 2 The first signe joyned with declaration is that God for the sinnes and horrible rebellion of the world, will invade the same: and first of all will as afar off: with his darte of pestilence most suddenly, mightily, and gloriously, beat down the same as Judge, and triumph over it as conquerour. 3 The second signe joyned with words of declaration (after the expresse calling of S. John as before) is, that God being provoked unto wrath by the obstinacie and hard heartednesse of the world, not repenting for the former plague: as setting upon the same at hand, will kindle the fire of debate amongst men, and will destroy the inhabitants of this world, one by the sword of another. 4 The third signe with declaration, is that God will destroy the world with famine, withdrawing all provision: which is by the figure synecdoche comprehended in wheat, barley, wine, and oil. ‡ The word chœnix signifieth a measure containing one wine quart, and the twelfth part of a quart. a Hereby is signified what great scarcitie of corn there was, for the word here used, a kinde of measure of dry things, which is in quantitie but the eight part of a bushel, which was an ordinary portion used to be given to servants for their stint of meat one day. 5 I had rather distinguish and read the words thus, and the wine and the oyl thou shalt not deal unjustly. In this sense likewise the oil and the wine shall be sold a very little for a peny. Thou shalt not deal unjustly, namely, when thou shalt measure out a very little for a great price: so is the place evident: otherwise that is most true, which the wise man saith, That who withholdeth the corn, shall be cursed of the people, Prov. 11: 26. 6 The fourth signe joyned with words of declaration, is that God will addict the fourth part of the world indifferently, unto death and hell, or the grave, by all those meanes at once, by which before severally and in order he had recalled their mindes unto amendment. Unto these are also added the wilde & cruel beasts of the earth, out of Lev. 26: 22. Thus doth God according to his wisedom, dispense the treasures of his power, justly towards all, mercifully towards the good & with patience or long sufferance toward his enemies, all commotion, flee away for fear, and hide himself, in this verse, and wish unto himself most bitter death, for exceeding horror of the wrath of God, and of the Lambe, at which before he was astonished. Now this perplexitie is not of the godly but of the wicked, whose portion is in this life, as the psalmist speaketh, Psal. 17: 14. Not that sorrow which is according unto God, which worketh repentance, unto salvation, whereof a man shall never repent him, but that wordly sorrow that bringeth death, 2 Cor 7: 9. as their wishings do declare: for this history of the whole world, is severed from the history of the church, as I have shewed before, Chap. 4: 1. 11 These are words of such as despaire of their escape: of which despaire there are two arguments; the presence of God, and of the lambe provoked to wrath against the world, in this verse: and the conscience of their own weaknesse, whereby men feel that they are no way able to stand in the day of the wrath of God, verse 17. as it is said, Esay 14: 27. Luke 23. verse 30.

‡ Or, to him.

7 The fifi signe is, that the holy martyrs which are under the altar, whereby they are sanctified, that is, received into the trust and tuition of Christ (into whose hands they are committed) shall cry out for the justice of God, in an holy zeal to advance his kingdome, and not of any private perturbation of the minde, in this and the next verse, and that God will in deed signe, and work comfort in them, verse. 11.

8 As before 3, 4.

b Untill their number be fulfilled.

9 The sixt signe, and the event. The signe is, that the earth, heaven, and the things that are in them, for horrot of the sins of the world upon these most heavie foretellings of God, and complaint of the Saints shall be shaken most vehemently, trembling in horrible manner, and losing their light, in this verse: falling from on high, verse 13. withdrawing themselves, and flying away for the greatnesse of the trouble, verse. 14. So holily do all creatures depend upon the will of God, and content themselves in his glory.

c So they called in old time those woven works that were of haire.

‡ Or, green figs.

* Isa. 34: 4.

10 The event of the signe afore going: that there is no man that shall not be astonished at that gene-

1 The second member of this part, is a preventing of danger, as we distinguished the same before, chap 6: 1. that is, of the caution whereby God took care before hand and provided for his, that after the example of the Israelites of old, Exod. 2: 23. the faithfull might be exempted from that plague of this wicked world. This whole place is a certain interlocution and bringing in for this whole chapter by occasion of the prediction and argument of the sixt seal. For first that evil is prevented in the elect, unto the 9 verse. Then thanks are given by the elect for that cause verse 10, 11, 12. Lastly, the accomplishment of the things is set forth unto the end of the chapter. The first verse is a transition, speaking of the angels which keep the inferiour parts from all evil, untill God do command. For (as it is excellently figured by Ezek. chap. 1: 11, 12.) their faces and their wings are reached upwards, continually waiting upon, and beholding the countenance of God for their direction, and every of them goeth not out of the way, that is, they depart not so much as a foot breadth from that path commanded them of God. 2 On the four quarters or coasts of the earth.

earth, holding the foure winds of the earth, that the winde ſhould not blow on the earth, nor on the ſea [2] nor on any tree.

2 [3] And I ſaw [4] another angel aſcending from the eaſt, having the ſeal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the foure angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the ſea,

3 Saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the ſea, nor the trees, till we have ſealed the ſervants of our God in their foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of them which were ſealed: and there were ſealed, [5] an hundred and fourtie and foure thouſand, of all the tribes of the children of Iſrael.

5 Of the tribe of Juda were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Reuben were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Gad were ſealed twelve thouſand.

6 Of the tribe of Aſer were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Nephthali were ſealed twelve thouſand Of the tribe of Manaſſes were ſealed twelve thouſand.

7 Of the tribe of Simeon were ſealed twelve thouſand. [6] Of the tribe of [b] Levi were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Iſſachar were ſealed twelve thouſand.

8 Of the tribe of Zabulon were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of [c] Joſeph were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were ſealed twelve thouſand.

9 After this I beheld, and lo, a great multitude, which [7] no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, [8] ſtood before the throne, & before the Lambe, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands:

10 [9] And cryed with a loud voice, ſaying, Salvation to our God which ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lambe.

11 And all the angels ſtood round about the throne, and about the elders, and the foure beaſts, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worſhipped God, 12 Saying, Amen: Bleſſing, and glory, and wiſdome, and thankſgiving, and honour, and power, and might be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen.

13 [10] And one of the elders anſwered, ſaying unto me, What are theſe which are arayed in white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I ſaid unto him, Sir, thou knoweſt. And he ſaid to me, [11] Theſe are they which came out of great tribulation, and have waſhed their robes, and made them white in the bloud of the Lambe.

15 Therefore are they before the throne of God, and ſerve him [d] day and night in his temple: and he that ſitteth on the throne ſhall * dwell [e] among them.

16 * They ſhall hunger no more, neither thirſt any more neither ſhall the ſunne light on them, nor any heat.

17 For the Lambe which is in the midſt of the throne, ſhall feed them, and ſhall lead them unto living fountains of waters: * * and God ſhall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

Chap. VIII.

1 At the opening of the ſeventh ſeal, 2 ſeven angels had ſeven trumpets given them. 6 Foure of them ſound their trumpets, and great plagues follow. 3 Another angel putteth incenſe to the prayers of the ſaints on the golden altar.

And [1] when he had opened the ſeventh ſeal, there was ſilence in heaven about the ſpace of half an houre.

2 [2] And I ſaw the ſeven angels which [a] ſtood before God, and to them were given ſeven trumpets.

3 [3] And another angel came and ſtood at the altar, having a golden cenſer, and there was given unto him much incenſe, that he ſhould † offer it with the prayers of all ſaints upon the golden altar, which was before the throne.

4 And the ſmoke of the incenſe which came with the prayers of the ſaints, [b] aſcended up before God, out of the angels hand.

5 And the angel took the cenſer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and caſt it into the earth: and there were voices, and thundrings, and lightnings, and an earthquake.

6 [4] And the ſeven angels which had the ſeven trumpets, prepared themſelves to ſound.

7 [5] The firſt angel ſounded, and there followed hail, and fire mingled with bloud, and they were caſt upon the earth, and the third part

3 Now God provideth againſt the danger of his elect, by his commandement, verſ. 2 and 3. and by ſigne or figure, both for thoſe of the nation of the Jews, thence unto the 8 verſe, and alſo of the Gentiles, verſe 9.

4 Not onely another, or differing in number from the common angels of God, but alſo in eſſence, office and operation exceeding all angels: that is, Ghriſt Jeſus the eternall angel or word of God, and mediatour of the covenant. So here after Chap. 8: 3. and 10: 1.

5 That is, of the Jews, a number certain in it ſelf before God, and ſuch as may be numbred of us: for which cauſe alſo the ſame is here ſet down as certain. But of the elect which are of the Gentiles, the number indeed is in it ſelf certain with God, but of us not poſſibly to be numbered, as God, Gen. 15: 5. and often elſewhere, and Eſay figured moſt excellently, chap. 49. and 60. This therefore is ſpoken with reſpect, when a certaine number is put for an uncertaine. Conferre this with verſ. 9.

6 Here the tribe of Levi is reckoned up in common with the reſt, becauſe all the Iſraelites were equally made prieſts with them in Chriſt by his prieſt-hood, Chap. 1: 6. and 5. 10. Rom. 12: 1. and 1 Petr. 2: 9. The name of Dan is not mentioned, becauſe the Danites long before forſaking the worſhip of God, were fallen away from the fellowship of Gods people, unto the part of the Gentiles: which evil many ages before Jacob foreſaw, Gen. 49. verſ. 18. for which cauſe alſo there is no mention made of this tribe in the firſt book of the Chronicles.

b He skipped Dan, and reckoneth Levi. c Of Ephraim who was Joſephs other ſonne, and had the birthright given him, whereof he is called Joſeph. 7 See before upon the 4 verſe. 8 As prieſts, kings, and glorious conquerours by martyrdome: which things are noted by their proper ſignes in this verſe. 9 The praiſe of God, celebrated firſt by the holy men in this verſe, then by the heavenly angels, in the two verſes following. 10 A paſſage over unto the expounding of the viſion, of which the angel enquireth of S. John to ſtir him up withall, in this verſe, and John in the form of ſpeech, both acknowledgeth his own ignorance, attributing knowledge unto the angel, and alſo in moſt modeſt manner requeſteth the expounding of the viſion. 11 The expoſition of the viſion, wherein the angel telleth firſt the Acts of the Saints, that is, their ſufferings and work of faith in Chriſt Jeſus, in this verſe. Secondly, their glory, both preſent, which conſiſteth in two things, that they miniſter unto God, and that God proteeteth them, verſe 15. and to come in their perfect deliverance from all annoyances, verſe 16. and in participation of all good things, which even the memory of former evils ſhall never be able to diminish, verſe 17. The cauſe efficient, and which containeth all theſe things, is onely one, even the Lambe of God, the Lord, the Mediator, and the Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.

d He alludeth to the Levites, which ſerved day and night, for elſe there is no night in heaven.

+ Iſa. 49: 10.

* Iſa. 25: 8. Chap. 21: 4.

1 He returneth to the hiſtory of the ſeals of the book, which the Lambe opened. The ſeventh ſeal is the next foreſignification, and a preciſe commandement of the execution of the moſt heavie judgements of God upon this wicked world, which foreſignification being underſtood by the ſeal, all things in heaven are ſilent, and in horrour through, admiration, untill commandement of execution be ſeverally given of God unto the miniſters of his wrath. So he paſſeth unto the third member, of which I ſpake before in Chap. 6. verſ. 1. which is of the execution of thoſe evils wherewith God moſt juſtly determined to afflict the world.

2 Now followeth the third branch of the common hiſtory, as even now I ſaid: which is the executions of the judgements of God upon the world. This is the firſt, generally prepared unto the 6 verſe: then by ſeverall parts expounded according to the order of thoſe that adminiſtred the ſame unto the end of the chapter following. Unto the preparation of this execution, are declared theſe things: firſt, who are the adminiſters and inſtruments thereof in this verſe. Secondly, what is the work both of the prince and angels, giving order for this execution, thence unto the 5 verſe. and of his adminiſters in the 6 verſe. The adminiſters of the execution are ſaid to be ſeven angels: their inſtruments, trumpets, whereby they ſhould, as it were, ſound the alarm at the commandement of God. They are propounded ſeven in number, becauſe it pleaſed God not at once to powre out his wrath upon the rebellious world, but at divers times, and by piecemeal, and in ſlow order, and as with an unwilling minde to exerciſe his judgements upon his creatures ſo long called upon both by word and figures, if happily they had learned to repent.

a Which appeareth before him as his miniſters. 3 This is that great Emperour the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, our King and Saviour, who both maketh interceſſion to God the father for the Saints, filling the heavenly ſanctuarie with moſt ſweet odour, and offering up their prayers, as the calves and burnt ſacrifices of their lips, in this verſe: in ſuch ſort as every one of them (ſo powerfull is that ſweet ſavour of Chriſt, and the efficacie of his ſacrifice) are held in reconcilement with God and themſelves, made moſt acceptable unto him, verſe 4. And then alſo out of his treaſurie, and from the ſame ſanctuarie powereth forth upon the world the fire of his wrath, adding alſo divine tokens thereunto: and by that meanes (as of old the heralds of Rome were wont to doe) he proclaimeth warre againſt the rebellious world. † Or, addeth to the prayers. b Our prayers are nothing worth unleſſe that true and ſweet ſavour of that onely oblation be eſpecially and before all things with them, that is to ſay, unleſſe we being firſt of all juſtified through faith in his Son be acceptable unto him. 4 This is the work of the adminiſters. The angels the adminiſters of Chriſt, onely by ſounding trumpet and voyce (for they are onely as heralds) doe effectually call forth the inſtruments of the wrath of God, through his power. Hitherto have been things generall. Now followeth the narration of things particular, which the angels ſix in number wrought in their order, ſet out in the 10 verſe of the next chapter, and is concluded with the declaration of the event which followed upon theſe things done in the worlds end, in the 10 and 11 chapters. 5 The firſt execution at the ſound of the firſt angel, upon the earth that is, the inhabitants of the earth (by metonymie) and upon all the fruits thereof: as the comparing of this verſe with the ſecond member of the 9 verſe doth not obſcurely declare.

of trees was burnt up, and all green grasse was burnt up.

6 The second execution upon the sea, in this verse, and all things that are therein, in the next verse.

8 [6] And the second angel sounded, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea, and the third part of the sea became bloud:

9 And the third part of the creatures which were in the sea, and had life, died, and the third part of the ships were destroyed.

7 The third execution upon the flouds and fountains, that is, upon all fresh waters, in this verse: the effect whereof is, that many are destroyed with the bitternesse of waters, in the verse following.

10 [7] And the third angel sounded, & there fell a great starre from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters:

8 This is spoken by a metaphore, of the name of a most bitter herb, and commonly known: unlesse perhaps a man following those that note the derivation of words had rather expound it adjectively, for that which by reason of bitternesse cannot be drunk, or which maketh the liquor into which it is powred more bitter, than that any man can drink the same.

11 And the name of the starre is called [8] Wormwood, and the third part of the waters became wormwood, and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter.

9 The fourth execution upon these lightsome bodies of heaven, which minister unto this inferiour world.

12 [9] And the fourth angel sounded, and the third part of the sunne was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the starres, so as the third part of them was darkened: and the day shone not for a third part of it, and the night likewise.

10 A lamentable prediction or foretelling of those parts of the division of the next chapter.

13 And I beheld, and heard an angel flying through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice, [10] Wo, wo, wo to the inhabiters of the earth, by reason of the other voices of the trumpet of the three angels which are yet to sound.

execution which yet are behinde, which also is a passage unto the argument Of all these things in a manner, Christ himself expressly foretold in the 21 chapter of S. Luke, vers. 24, &c. and they are common plagues generally denounced, without particular note of time.

Chap. IX.

1 At the sounding of the fifth angel, a starre falleth from heaven, to whom is given the key of the bottomlesse pit. 2 He openeth the pit, and there came forth locusts like scorpions. 12 The first wo past. 13 The sixth trumpet soundeth. 14 Foure angels are let loose, that were bound.

1 The fift execution upon the wicked men inhabiting the earth (as a little before the angel said) wrought by the infernall powers is declared in this place unto vers. 11. and after the sixt executing thence unto vers. 19. And lastly, is shewed the common event that followed the former execution in the world, in the two last verses.

AND [1] the fifth angel sounded, and I saw a [2] starre fall from heaven unto the earth: and [3] to him was given the key of the [a] bottomlesse pit.

2 [4] And he opened the bottomlesse pit, and there arose a smoke out of the pit, as the smoke of a great furnace, and the sunne and the aire were darkened, by reason of the smoke of the pit.

7 A description of the malignant spirits invading the world, taken from their nature, power, form, and order. From their nature, for that they are like unto certain locusts, in quicknesse, subtilty, hurtfulnesse, number, and such like, in this verse. From their power, for that they are as the scorpions of the earth of secret force to do hurt: for our battel is not here with flesh and bloud, but with powers, &c. Ephes. 6: 12. This place of the power of the devils generally noted in this verse, is particularly declared afterwards in the three next verses.

4 [6] And it was commanded them that they should not hurt the grasse of the earth, neither any green thing, neither any tree, but onely those men which have not the seal of God in their foreheads.

5 And to them it was given that they should not kill them, but that they should be tormented five moneths: and their torment was as the torment of a scorpion, when he striketh a man.

6 And in those dayes shall men seek death, and shall not finde it, and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them.

7 [7] And the shapes of the locusts were like unto horses prepared unto battel, and on their heads were as it were crowns like gold, and their faces were as the faces of men.

8 And they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth were as the teeth of lions.

9 And they had brest-plates, as it were breast-plates of iron, and the sound of their wings was as the sound of chariots of many horses running to battel.

10 And they had tails like unto scorpions, and there were stings in their tails, and their power was to hurt men five moneths.

11 [8] And they had a king over them, which is the angel of the bottomlesse pit, whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name ‡ Apollyon.

6 Here that power of the devils is particularly described according to their actions and the effects of the same. Their actions are said to be bounded by the counsel of God: both because they hurt not all men, but onely the reprobate (for the godly and elect in whom their part is any of a better life, God guardeth by his decree) whom Christ shall not have sealed, in this verse: and also because they neither had all power, nor at all times, no not over those that are their own, but limited in manner and time, by the prescript of God, vers. 5. So their power to afflict the godly is none, and for the wicked it is limited in act and in effect by the will of God: for the manner was prescribed unto them, that they should not slay, but torment the wretched world. The time is for five moneths, or for a hundred and fifty dayes, that is, for so many yeares, in which the devils have indeed mightily perverted all things in the world: and yet without that publike and unpunished licence of killing, which afterwards they usurped, when the sixt angel had blown his trumpet, as shall be said upon vers. 13. Now this space is to be accounted from the end of the thousand yeares, mentioned Chap. 20: 3. and that is from the popedome of that Gregorie the 7. a most monstrous necromancer, who before was called Hildebrandus Senensis: for this man being made altogether of impiety and wickednesse, as a slave of the devil, whom he served, was the most wicked firebrand of the world: he excommunicated the emperour Henry the fourth: went about by all manner of treacherie to set up and put down empires and kindomes as liked himself, and doubted not to set Rodolph the Sweden over the empire in stead of Henry before named, sending unto him a crown, with this verse annexed unto it: Petra dedit Petro, Petrus diadema Rodolpho: That is, the rock to Peter gave the crown, and Peter Rodolph doth renown. Finally, he so finally bestirred himself in his affaires, as he miserably set all Christendom on fire, and conveyed over unto his successours the burning brand of the same: who enraged with like ambition, never ceased to nourish that flame, and to enkindle it more and more: whereby cities, common-weals, and whole kingdomes set together by the eares amongst themselves by most expert cut-throats, came to ruine, whiles they miserably wounded one another. This tenn of an hundred and fifty yeares, taketh end in the time of Gregory the 9. or Hugolinus Anaguiensis (as he was before called) who caused to be compiled by one Raimond his chapleine and confessour, the body of decretals, and by sufferance of the kings and princes, to be published in the Christian world, and established for a law: for by this slight at length the popes arrogated unto themselves licence to kill whom they would, whiles others were unwares: and without fear established a butchery out of many of the wicked canons of decretals, which the trumpet of the fift angel had expressly forbidden, and had hindered untill this time. The effects of these bloudy actions are declared upon he sixt verse: that the miserable world languishing in so great calamities, should willingly run together unto death, and preferre the same before life, by reason of the grievousnesse of the miseries that oppressed them. 7 The form of these hellish spirits and administers is shadowed out by signes and visible figures in this sort: that they are very expert and swift: that whersoeeve they are in the world, the kingdome is theirs: that they manage all their affaires with cunning and skill in this verse: that making shew of mildnesse and tender affection to draw on men with all, they most impudently rage in all mischief: that they are most mighty to do hurt, vers. 8. that they are freed from being hurt of any man, as armed with the colour of religion and sacred authority of priviledge: that they fill all things with horrour, verse the 9. that they are fraudulent: that they are venemous and extremely noysome, though their power be limited, vers. 10. All which things are properly in the infernall powers, and communicated by them unto their ministers and vassals. 8 The order of powers of malitiousnesse: that they are subject to one infernall king, whom thou mayest call in English, The destroyer: who driveth that whole world both Jews and Gentiles into the destruction that belongeth unto himself. And I cannot tell whether this name have respect unto the Etymologicall interpretation of Hildebrand, by a figure often used in the holy scripture: which albeit it may otherwise be turned of the Germanes (as the sence of compound words is commonly ambiguous) yet in very deed it signifieth as much as if thou shouldest call, The firebrand, that is, he that setteth on fire those that be faithfull unto him. ‡ That is, to say, a destroyer.

1 At the sounding of the fifth angel, a starre falleth from heaven, to whom is given the key of the bottomlesse pit. 2 He openeth the pit, and there came forth locusts like scorpions. 12 The first wo past. 13 The sixth trumpet soundeth. 14 Foure angels are let loose, that were bound.

2 That is, that the angel of God glittering with glory, as a starre fell down from heaven. Whether thou take him for Christ, who hath the keyes of hell of himself, and by princely authority, Chap. 1. vers. 18. or whether for some inferiour angel, who hath the same key permitted unto him, and occupieth it ministerially, or by office of his ministery here, and chap. 21. so the word, falling is taken, Gen. 14: 10. and 24. vers. 46. and Hebr. 6: 6. 3 The key was given to this star. For those powers of wickednesse are thrust down into hell, and bound with chains of darknesse: and are there kept unto damnation, unlesse God for a time do let them loose, 2 Petr. 2: 4. Jude 6. and of this book, Chap. 21: 20. the historie of which chapters hath agreement of time with this present chapter. a By the bottomlesse pit, he meaneth the deepest darknesse of hell. 4 Unto this is added, the smoke of the hellish and infernall spirits, all dark, and darkening all things in heaven and in earth, the spirituall darknesses are the causes of all disorder and confusion. For the devill at a certain time (whereof verse the fift) sent these darknesses into his kingdome, that he might at once and with one impression overthrow all things, and pervert, if it were possible the elect themselves. By this darknesse, all spirituall light, both active as of the sunne, and passive, as of the aire which is lightened by the sunne, is taken away: and this is that which goeth before the spirits: it followeth of the spirits themselves.

12 [9] One wo is paſt, and behold there come two woes more hereafrer.

13 [10] And the ſixth angel ſounded, and I [11] heard a voice from the [b] foure horns of the golden altar, which is before God.

14 Saying to the ſixth angel which had the trumpet, [12] Looſe the foure angels which are bound in the great river Euphrates.

15 [13] And the foure angels were looſed, which were prepared [‡] for an houre, and a day, and a moneth, and a yeare, for to ſlay the third part of men.

16 And the number of the armie of the horſemen were two hundred thouſand thouſand: and I heard the number of them.

17 And thus I ſaw the horſes in the viſion, and them that ſat on them, having breaſt-plates of fire, and of jacinct, and brimſtone, and the heads of the horſes were as the heads of lions, and out of their mouthes iſſued fire, and ſmoke, and brimſtone.

18 By theſe three was the third part of men killed, by the fire, and by the ſmoke, and by the brimſtone, which iſſued out of their mouthes.

19 For their power is in their mouth, and in their tails, [14] for their tails were like unto ſerpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt.

20 [15] And the reſt of the men which were not killed by theſe plagues, yet repented not of the works of their hands, that they ſhould not worſhip devils, * and idols of gold and and ſilver, and braſſe, and ſtone, and of wood: which neither can ſee, nor heare, nor walk:

21 Neither repented they of their murders, nor of their ſorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts.

9 A paſſage unto the next point and the hiſtorie of the time following.

10 The ſixt execution done upon the world by the tyrannicall powers thereof, working in the foure parts of the earth, that is, in moſt cruel manner executing their tyrannous dominion through the whole world: and killing the miſerable people without punishment, which before was not lawfull for them to do in that ſort, as I ſhewed upon the fourth verſe, This narration hath two parts: a commandment from God, in the 14 verſe, and an execution of the commandment, in the verſe following.

11 The commandement given by Chriſt himſelf, who is governour over all.

c He alludeth to the altar of incenſe, which ſtood in the court which the prieſts were in over againſt the ark of the covenant, having a vail betwixt them.

12 As if he ſhould have ſaid, theſe hitherto have been ſo bound by the power of God, that they ſhould not freely run upon all men as themſelves luſted, but were ſtayed and reſtained at that great floud of Euphrates, that is, in their ſpirituall Babylon (for this is a periphraſis of the ſpirituall Babylon, by the limites of the viſible Babylon long ſince overthrown) that they might not commit thoſe hortible ſlaughters, which they long breathed after. Now, go to, let looſe thoſe four angels, that is, adminiſters of the wrath of God, in that number that is convenient for the ſlaughtering of the foure quarters of the world: ſtirre them up, and give them the bridle, that rushing out of that Babylon of theirs, which is the ſeat of the wicked ones, they may flee upon all the world: therein to rage, and moſt licentiouſly to practiſe their tyrannie, as God hath ordained. This was done when Gregorie the ninth by publique authoritie ſtablished for law, his own decretals, by which he might freely lay trains for the life of ſimple men. For who is that that ſeeth not the laws decretals, moſt of them as ſnares to catch ſouls withall? Since that time (O good God) how great ſlaughters have been? how great maſſacres? All hiſtories are full of them: and this our age aboundeth with moſt horrible and monſtrous examples of the ſame. 13 The execution of the commandement is in two points: one, that thoſe butchers are let looſe, that out of their tower of the ſpirituall Babylon they might with furie runne abroad through all the world, as well the chief of that crew which are moſt prompt unto all aſſayes, in this verſe, as their multitudes both moſt copious, of which a number certain is named for a number infinite, verſ. 16. and in themſelves by all meanes fully furnished to hide and to hurt, verſe the 17. as being armed with fire, ſmoke and brimſtone, as appeareth in the colour of this amour, which dazleth the eyes of all men, and have the ſtrength of lyons to hurt withall, from which (as out of their mouth) the ſirie, ſmokie, and ſtinking darts of the pope are ſhot out, verſe 18. The other point is, that theſe butchers have effected the commandement of God by fraud and violence, in the two verſes following. ‡ Or, at.

14 That is, they are harmfull every way: on what part ſoever thou put thine hand unto them, or they touch thee, they doe hurt. So the former are called ſcorpions, verſe 3.

15 Now remaineth the event (as I ſaid upon the firſt verſe) which followed of ſo many and ſo grievous judgements in the moſt wicked world, namely, an impenitent obſtirmation of the ungodly in their impietie and unrighteouſneſſe, though they feel themſelves moſt vehemently preſſed with the hand of God, for their obſtinate ungodlineſſe is ſhewed in this verſe: and their unrighteouſneſſe in the verſe following. Hitherto hath been the generall hiſtorie of things to be done univerſally in the whole world, which becauſe it doeth not ſo much belong to the church of Chriſt, is therefore not ſo expreſſly diſtinguished by certaintie of time, and other circumſtances, but is woven, as they ſay, with a ſlight hand. Alſo there is none other cauſe why the hiſtorie of the ſeventh angel is paſſed over in this place, than for that the ſame more properly appertaineth unto the hiſtory of the church. But this is more diligently ſet out according to the time thereof, chap. 11. and 16. as ſhall appear upon thoſe places. * Pſal. 115: 4. and 135: 15.

Chap. X.

A mighty ſtrong angel appeareth with a book open in his hand. 6 He ſweareth by him that liveth for ever, that there ſhall be no more time. 9 John is commanded to take and eat the book.

1 And [1] I ſaw [2] another mightie angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud, and a rain bow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the ſun, and his feet as pillars of fire.

2 And he had in his hand [3] a little book open: and he ſet his right foot upon the ſea, and his left foot on the earth,

3 And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, ſeven thunders uttered their voices.

4 [4] And when the ſeven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven, ſaying unto me, [a] Seal up thoſe things which the ſeven thunders uttered, and write them not.

5 And the angel which I ſaw ſtand upon the ſea, and upon the earth, [b] lifted up his hand to heaven,

6 And ſware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven and the things that therein are, and the earth and the things that therein are, and the ſea and the things which are therein, [5] that there ſhould be [c] time no longer:

7 But in the dayes of the [6] voice of the ſeventh angel, when he ſhall begin to ſound, the myſterie of God ſhould be finiſhed, as he hath declared to his ſervants the prophets.

8 [7] And the voice which I heard from heaven ſpake unto me again, and ſaid, Go, and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel which ſtandeth upon the ſea, and upon the earth.

9 And I went unto the angel, and ſaid unto him, Give me the little book. And he ſaid unto me, * Take it, and eat it up, and it ſhall make thy belly bitter, but it ſhall be in thy mouth ſweet as honey.

10 And I took the little book out of the angels hand, and ate it up, & it was in my mouth ſweet as honey, and aſſoon as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

11 [8] And he ſaid unto me, Thou muſt propheſie again before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings.

1 Now S. John paſſeth unto the other propheticall hiſtorie which is of the church of God, as I ſhewed that this book ſhould be diſtinguished, chap. 4. verſ. 1. This ſtorie reacheth hence unto the two and twentieth chapter. And this whole chapter is but a tranſition from the common hiſtory of the world unto that which is particular of the church. There are in this tranſition or paſſage, two preparatives, as it were, unto the church ſtorie compriſed in this whole chapter. One is the authoritie of Chriſt, revealing his myſteries, and calling his ſervant unto the ſeventh verſe. The other is S. John his calling proper unto this place, and repeated from before unto the end of this chapter. Authoritie is given unto this Revelation, by theſe things: firſt, by the appearing from heaven in this habite and countenance, ſtrong, ready, glorious, ſurveying all things by his providence, and governing them by his omnipotencie, verſ. 1. Secondly, that he brought not by chance, but out of a book, this open Revelation, ſet fourth unto the eye, to ſignifie the ſame unto the ſea, and land, as the Lord over all, verſ. 2. Thirdly, that he offered the ſame not whiſpering or muttering in a corner (as falſe prophets do) but crying out with a loud voice unto them which ſleep, and with a lionish & terrible noiſe rouſed up the ſecure: the very thunders themſelves giving teſtimonie thereunto, verſe 3. Laſtly, for that he confirmed all by an oathe, verſ. 5, 6, 7.

2 Chriſt Jeſus, ſee chapter 7. verſ. 2.

3 Namely, a ſpeciall book of the affairs of Gods church: For the book that containeth things belonging unto the whole world, is ſaid to be kept with the Creatour, chapter 5, verſe 1. but the book of the church, with the Redeemer: and out of this book is taken the reſt of the hiſtorie of this Apocalyps.

4 A godly care is laudable, but muſt be joyned with knowledge Therefore nothing is to be taken in hand but by calling, which muſt be expected and waited for of the godly.

a Keep them cloſe.

b This was a geſture uſed of one that ſweareth, which men do now a dayes uſe.

5 Neither time it ſelf, nor the things that are in time: but that the world to come is at hand which is altogether of eternitie, and beyond all times.

c There ſhall never be any more time.

6 Whereof chap. 11: 15. and 16: 17.

7 The other part of this chapter, concerning the particular calling of S. John to the receiving of the propheſie following, which is enjoyned him, firſt by ſigne, in three verſes, then in plain words in the laſt verſe. Unto the ſetting down of the ſigne, belong theſe things: That S. John is taught from heaven to demand the book, of the propheeie in this verſe, for theſe motions and deſires God doeth inſpire, that demanding the book, he is charged to take it in a figurative manner, the uſe whereof is expounded verſe the ninth, (as in the ſecond chapter of Ezekiel, and the ninth verſe) whence this ſimilitude is borrowed: laſtly, for that S. John at the commandement of Chriſt took the book, and found by experience, that the ſame, as proceeding from Chriſt, was moſt ſweet, but in that it foretelleth the afflictions of the church, it was moſt bitter unto his ſpirit. * Ezek 2: 8. and 3: 3.

8 A ſimple and plain declaration of the ſigne before going, witneſſing the divine calling of S. John and laying upon him the neceſſitie thereof.

Chap.

CHAP. XI.

3 The two witneſſes propheſie: 6 they have power to ſhut heaven, that it rain not. 7 The beaſt ſhall fight againſt them, and kill them. 8 They lie unburied, 11 and after three dayes and an half riſe again. 14 The ſecond wo is paſt. 15 The ſeventh trumpet ſoundeth.

1 The authority of the intended revelation being declared, together with the neceſſitie of that calling which was particularly impoſed upon S. John: hereafter followeth the hiſtory of the eſtate of Chriſt his church, both conflicting or warfaring, and overcoming in Chriſt. For both the true church of Chriſt is ſaid to fight againſt that which is falſly ſo called, over the which antichriſt ruleth, Chriſt Jeſus overthrowing antichriſt by the ſpirit of his mouth: and Chriſt is ſaid to overcome moſt gloriouſly, untill he ſhall ſlay the antichriſt by the appearance of his coming, as the apoſtle excellently teacheth, 2 Theſſ. 2: 8. So this hiſtory hath two parts: one of the ſtate of the church conflicting with the temptations, unto the 16 chap. the other of the ſtate of the ſame church obtaining victory, thence unto the 20 chapt. The firſt part hath two members moſt conveniently diſtributed into their times, whereof the firſt containeth an hiſtory of the Chriſtian church for 1260 yeares, what time the Goſpel of Chriſt was as it were taken up from amongſt men into heaven: the ſecond containeth an hiſtory of the ſame church unto the victory perfected. And theſe two members are briefly, though diſtinctly, propounded in this chapter, but are both of them more at large diſcourſed after in due order. For we underſtand the ſtate of the church conflicting, out of chapters 12 and 13. and of the ſame growing out of afflictions, out of the 14, 15. and 16 chapters. Neither did S. John at unawares joyne together the hiſtory of theſe two times in this chapter, becauſe here is ſpoken of propheſie, which all confeſſe to be but one juſt and immutable in the church, and which Chriſt commanded to be continuall. The hiſtory of the former time reacheth unto the 14 verſe: the latter is ſet down in the reſt of this chapter. In the former are ſhewed theſe things, the calling of the ſervants of God in 4 verſes: the conflicts which the faithfull muſt undergo in their calling for Chriſt and his church, thence unto the 10 verſe, and their reſurrection, & receiving up into heaven, unto the fourteenth verſe. In the calling of the ſervants of God are mentioned two things: the begetting and ſetling of the church in two verſes, and the eduction thereof in two verſes. The begetting of the church is here commended unto S. John by ſigne, and by ſpeech: the ſigne is a meaſuring rod, and the ſpeech a commandement to meaſure the temple of God, that is, to reduce the ſame unto a new form: becauſe the Gentiles are already entred into the temple of Jeruſalem, and ſhall ſhortly defile and overthrow the ſame utterly. 2 Either that of Jeruſalem, which was a figure of the church of Chriſt, or that heavenly exemplar whereof verſe 19. but the firſt liketh me better, and the things following do all agree thereunto. The ſenſe thereof is, Thou ſeeſt all things in Gods houſe, almoſt from the paſſion of Chriſt, to be diſordered: and that not onely the city of Jeruſalem, but alſo the court of the temple is trampled underfoot of the nations, and of profane men whither Jews or ſtrangers: and that onely the temple, that is, the body of the temple, with the altar, and a ſmall company of good men which truly worship God, do now remain, whom God doth ſanctifie and confirm by his preſence. Meaſure therefore this, even this true church, or rather the true type of the true church, omitting the reſt, and ſo deſcribe all things from me, that the true church of Chriſt may be as it were a very little center, and the church of antichriſt as the circle of the center, every way in length & breath compaſſing about the ſame, that by way of propheſie thou mayeſt ſo declare openly, that the ſtate of the temple of God, and the faithfull which worship him, that is, of the church, is much more ſtreight than the church of antichriſt. 3 As if he ſhould ſay, It belongeth nothing unto thee, to judge thoſe which are without, 1 Cor. 5: 12. which are innumerable: look unto thoſe of the houſhold onely, or unto the houſe of the living God. a He ſpeaketh of the outer court which was called the peoples court, becauſe all might come into that. † Gr. caſt out. b That is, counted to be caſt out, which in meaſuring is refuſed as profane. 4 To profane perſons, wicked and unbeleevers, adverſaries unto the church. 5 Or a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore dayes, as is ſaid in the next verſe, that is, a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore years, a day for a year, as often in Ezechiel and Daniel, which things are noted before 2, 10. The beginning of theſe thouſand two hundred and threeſcore years, we account from the paſſion of Chriſt, whereby (the partition wall being broken down) we were made, of two, one, Epheſ. 2: 14. I ſay, one flock, under one ſhepherd, John 10: 16. and the end of theſe yeares preciſely falleth into the popedome of Boniface the eight, who a little before the end of the year of Chriſt, a thouſand two hundred ninety foure, entred the popedome of Rome in the feaſt of Saint Lucie (as Bergomenſis ſayeth) having put in priſon his predeceſſour Celeſtinus, whom by fraud, under colour of oracle he deceived: for which cauſe that was well ſaid of him, Intravit ut vulpes, regnavit ut leo, mortuus eſt ut canis: That is, He entred like a fox, reigned like a lion, and died like a dog. For if from a thouſand two hundreth ninetie four yeares, thou ſhalt take the age of Chriſt, which he lived on the earth, thou ſhalt finde there remaineth juſt one thouſand two hundreth and threeſcore yeares, which are mentioned in this place and many others. 6 I had rather tranſlate it illud than illam, the temple, than the citie: for God ſaith, I will give that temple, and commit it unto my two witneſſes, that is, unto the miniſters of the word, who are few in deed, weak and contemptible: but yet two, that is, of ſuch a number as one of them may help another, and one confirm the teſtimonie of another unto all men, that from the mouth of two or three witneſſes every word may be made good amongſt men, 2 Corinth. 13: 1. ‡ Or, I will give unto my two witneſſes that they may propheſie. 7 They ſhall exerciſe their office enjoyned by me, by the ſpace of thoſe thouſand two hundred and ſixtie yeares, in the midſt of afflictions though never ſo lamentable, which is figuratively ſhewed by the mourning garment. * Zech. 4: 3, 11, 14. 8 That is, the ordinary and perpetuall inſtruments of ſpirituall grace, peace, and light in my church, which God by his onely power preſerved in this temple. 9 The power and efficacie of the holy miniſtery, and which is truely euangelicall, is declared both in earth and in heaven, protecting the adminiſters thereof, and deſtroying the enemies, in this verſe, vertue indeed divine, moſt mightily ſhewing it ſelf forth in heaven, earth, and the ſea, verſe 6. as it is deſcribed, 2 Corinth. 10: 4. according to the promiſe of Chriſt, Mark 16: 17. And this is the ſecond place (as I ſaid before) of the combats which the ſervants of God muſt needs undergo in the executing of their calling, and of the things that follow the ſame combats. In the combats or conflicts are theſe things, to overcome, in theſe two verſes: to be overcome and killed, verſe 7. After the ſlaughter, follow theſe things, that the carkeiſes of the godly are laid abroad, verſe 8. being unburied, are made a matter of ſcorn, together of curſing and bitter execrations, verſe 9. and that therefore gratulations are publikely and privately made, verſe 10.

3 But the [a] court which is without the temple † [b] leave out, and meaſure it not: for it is given unto the [4] Gentiles, and the holy city ſhall they tread under foot fourty and [5] two moneths.

2 [3] But the [a] court which is without the temple † [b] leave out, and meaſure it not: for it is given unto the [4] Gentiles, and the holy city ſhall they tread under foot fourty and [5] two moneths.

3 [6] And ‡ I will give power unto my two witneſſes, and they ſhall [7] propheſie a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore dayes clothed in ſackcloth.

4 * [8] Theſe are the two olive-trees, and the two candleſticks ſtanding before the God of the earth.

5 [9] And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies: and if any man will hurt them, he muſt in this manner be killed.

6 Theſe have power to ſhut heaven, that it rain not in the dayes of their propheſie: and have power over waters to turn them to bloud, and to ſmite the earth with all plagues, as often as they will.

7 [10] And when they ſhall have [c] finiſhed their teſtimonie, [11] the beaſt that aſcendeth out of the bottomleſſe pit, ſhall make warre againſt them, and ſhall [12] overcome them, and kill them.

10 That is, when they have ſpent thoſe thouſand two hundred and ſixtie yeares mentioned verſe, 2. and 3 in publiſhing their teſtimony according to their office.

c When they have done their meſſage.

11 Of which, after chap. 13. &c. That beaſt is the Romane empire, made long agoe of civil, eccleſiaſticall: the chief head whereof was then Boniface the eight, as I ſaid before: who lifted up himſelf in ſo great arrogancie, (ſaith the authour of Faſciculus temporum) that he called himſelf, Lord of the whole world, as well in temporall cauſes, as in ſpirituall. There is an extant of that matter, written by the ſame Boniface moſt arrogantly, ſhal I ſay, or moſt wickedly, Cap. Unam ſanctam extra de majoritate & obedientia. And in the ſixt of Decretals (which is from the ſame authour) many things are found of the ſame argument.

8 And their dead bodies ſhall lie in the [13] ſtreet of the great city, which [d] ſpiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, [14] where alſo our Lord was crucified.

9 And they of the people, and kindreds, and tongues, and nations, ſhall ſee their dead bodies [15] three dayes and an half, and ſhall not ſuffer their dead bodies to be put in graves.

10 And they that dwell upon the earth ſhall [16] rejoyce over them, and make merry, and ſhall ſend gifts one to another, becauſe theſe two prophets [17] tormented them that dwelt on the earth.

11 [18] And after [19] three dayes and an half, the [20] Spirit of life from God entred into them: and [21] they ſtood upon their feet, and great fear fell upon them which ſaw them.

12 And they heard a great voice from heaven, ſaying unto them, [22] Come up hither. And d After a more ſecret kinde of meaning and underſtanding. 14 Namely in his members, as alſo he ſaid unto Saul, Acts 9: 5. 15 That is, for three yeares and a half: for ſo many yeares Boniface lived after his jubile, as Bergomenſis witneſſeth. 16 So much the more ſhall they by this occaſion exerciſe the jolity of their jublile. 17 The goſpel of Chriſt is the affliction of the world, and the miniſterie thereof, the ſavour of death unto death, to thoſe that perish, 2 Corinth. 2: 16. 18 The third place as I noted before, is of the riſing again of the prophets from the dead, and their carying up into heaven. For their reſurrection is ſhewed in this verſe: their calling and lifting up into heaven, in the verſe following. 19 That is, what time God ſhall deſtroy that wicked Boniface. 20 That is, the prophets of God ſhall in a ſort riſe again, not the ſame in perſon (as they ſay) but in ſpirit: that is, in the power and efficacie of their miniſtery, which S. John expreſſed before, verſe 5. and 6. And ſo the propheſie that is ſpoken of Elias, is interpreted by the angel to be underſtood of John Baptiſt, Luke 1: 17. For the ſame Boniface himſelf, who ſought to kill and deſtroy them, was by the fire of Gods mouth (which the holy miniſtery ſheweth and exhibiteth) devoured, and died miſerably in priſon, by the endeavour of Sarra Columnenſis and Nogaretus a French knight, whom Philip the faire king of France ſent into Italy, but with a very ſmall power. 21 That is, the moſt grievous heat of afflictions and perſecution ſhall ſtay for a while, for the great amaze that ſhall ariſe upon the ſudden and unlooked for judgement of God. 22 They were called by God into heaven, and taken out of this malignant world, into the heavenly church, which alſo lyeth hidden here in the earth, to excerciſe their calling ſecretly: as of whom this wretched world was unworthy, Hebr. 11: 38. For the church of the wicked is by compariſon called the earth, or the world, and the church of the godly, heaven. So in ancient time amongſt the godly Iſraelites: ſo amongſt the Jews in the dayes of Manaſſes, and other kings, when the earth refuſed the heires of heaven, we read that they lay hidden as heaven in the earth.

fixt of Decretals (which is from the ſame authour) many things are found of the ſame argument.

12 He ſhall perſecute moſt cruelly the holy men, & put them to death, and ſhall wound and pierce through with curſings, both their names and writings. And that this was done to very many godly men, by Boniface, and others, the hiſtories do declare, eſpecially, ſince the time that the odious, and condemned name amongſt the multitude, firſt, of the brethren Waldenſes or Lugdunenſes, then alſo of the Fratricels, was pretended, that good men might with more approbation be maſſacred. 13 That is, openly at Rome where at that time was a moſt great concourſe of people, the year of jubile being then firſt ordained by Boniface unto the ſame end, in the year of Chriſt 1300. example whereof is, read Chap. 1. Extra, de penitentiis & remiſſionibus. So by one act he committed double injurie againſt Chriſt, both abolishing his truth by the reſtoring of the type of the jubile, and triumphing over his members by moſt wicked ſuperſtition. O religious heart: Now that we ſhould underſtand the things of Rome, S. John himſelf is the authour, both after in the 17 chapter almoſt throughout, and alſo in the circumſcription now next following, when he ſaith, it is that great citie (as chap. 17: 18. he calleth it) and is ſpiritually termed Sodom and Egypt: and that ſpiritually (for that muſt here again be repeated from before) Chriſt was there crucified. For the two firſt appellations ſignifie ſpirituall wickedneſſe: the latter ſignifieth the ſhew and pretence of good, that is, of Chriſtian and ſound religion. Sodom ſignifieth moſt licentious impietie and injuſtice: Egypt, moſt cruell perſecution of the people of God: and Jeruſalem ſignifieth the moſt confident glorying of that city, as it were in true religion, being yet full of falshood and ungodlineſſe. Now who is ignorant that theſe things do rather and more agree unto Rome, than unto any other city? The commendations, of the city of Rome for many yeares paſt, are publikely notorious, which are not for me to gather together. This onely I will ſay, that he long ſince did very well ſee what Rome is, who taking his leave thereof, uſed theſe verſes:

Roma vale, vidi, ſatis eſt vidiſſe: revertar
Quum leno, meretrix, ſcurra, cinadus ero.

Now farewell Rome, I have thee ſeen, it was enough to ſee:
I will return when as I mean, bawd, harlot, knave to be.

they

they ascended up to heaven in a cloud, [23] and their enemies beheld them.

13 [24] And the same houre was there a great earth-quake, and the tenth part of the city fell, & in the earth-quake were slain † of men seven thousand: and the remnant were affrighted, [25] and [e] gave glory to the God of heaven.

14 [26] The second wo is past, and behold, the third wo cometh quickly.

15 [27] And the seventh angel sounded, and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdomes of this world are become [28] the kingdomes of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reigne for ever and ever.

16 [29] And the foure and twenty elders which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, 17 Saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned.

18 [30] And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets; and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great, and shouldest destroy them which ‡ destroy the earth.

19 And the temple of God was [31] opened in heaven, and there was seen in his temple the ark of his testament, and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earth-quake, and great hail.

23 Yet could they not hinder the secret ones of the Lord (as the Psalmist called them, Psal. 83: 4.) but they that went on forward in his work.

24 Bergomensis saith, in the yeare of our Lord, 1201. this year a blazing starre foretelling great calamity to come, appeared in heaven: in which year upon the feast of S. Andrew, so great an earthquak arose, as never before: which also continuing by times, for many dayes, overthrew many stately houses. This saith he of the year next following the Jubile, which S. John so many ages before, expressed word for word.

† Or, names of men.

25 They were in deed broken with present astonishment of minde, but did not earnestly repent as they ought to have done.

e Glorified God by confessing his name.

26 He passeth unto the second history, which is the second part of this chapter. S. John calleth these the second and third woe, having respect unto chap. 9. vers. 22.

27 Of whose sounding the trumpet, Christ expressly foretold, chap. 10: 7. and this is the second part of this chapter, containing a generall historie of the Christian church, from the time of Boniface 8. unto the consummation of the victorie declared by voice from heaven. In this historie there are three branches, a preparation by the sound of the angels trumpet: a narration by the voices of heavenly angels and elders, and a confirmation by signe. 28 The narration hath two parts an acclamation of the heavenly creatures in this verse, and both an adoration by all the elders, verse 16. and also a most ample thanksgiving, verse 17: 18. The sence of the acclamation is. Now the Lord is entred on his kingdome, and hath restored his church, in which most mightily recovered from the profanation of the Gentiles, he may glorifie himself, namely, that, which the Lord ordained, when first he ordained his church, that the faith of the Saints doeth now behold as accomplished. 29 As before, 7, 11. This giving of thanks is altogether of the same content with the words going before. 30 A speech of the Hebrew language, as much to say, as Gentiles being angry, thine inflamed wrath came upon them, and shewed it self from heaven, occasioned by their anger and furie. ‡ Or, corrupt. 31 This is the confirmation of the next prophecie before going, by signes exhibited in heaven, and that of two sorts, whereof some are visible, as the passing away of the heaven, the opening of the temple, the ark of the covenant appearing in the temple, and testifying the glorious presence of God, and the lightnings: others apprehended by ear and such dull sence, which bear witnesse in heaven and earth to the truth of the judgements of God.

CHAP. XII.

1 A woman clothed with the sunne travaileth. 4 The great red dragon standeth before her, ready to devoure her childe: 6 when she was delivered she fleeth into the wildernesse. 7 Michael and his angels fight with the dragon, and prevail. 13 The dragon being cast down into the earth, persecuteth the woman.

AND [1] there appeared a great ‡ wonder in heaven, [2] a woman clothed with the sunne, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve starres:

2 And [3] she being with childe, cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered.

3 And there appeared another ‡ wonder in heaven, [4] and behold, a great red dragon: having [5] seven heads, and ten [6] horns, and seven crowns upon his heads.

4 [7] And his tail drew the third part of the starres of heaven, and did cast them to the earth: and the dragon [a] stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, for [9] to devoure her childe assoon as it was born.

5 [10] And she bronght forth a [11] man-childe, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her childe was caught up unto God, and to his throne.

6 [12] And the woman fled into the wildernesse where she hath a place prepared of God, that [13] they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and threescore dayes.

7 And there was warre in heaven, [14] Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels:

8 [15] And prevailed not, neither was their [a] place found any more in heaven.

9 And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the devil and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

10 And I heard a loud voice saying [16] in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdome of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night.

11 And they overcame him by the bloud of the Lambe, and by the word of their testimonie, and they [b] loved not their lives unto the death.

3 For this is that barren woman that brought not forth, of the which Esa. 45: 1. and Gal. 4: 27. she cried out for good cause, and was tormented at that time, when in the judgement of all she seemed near unto death, and in manner ready to give up the ghost, by reason of her weaknesse and povertie.

‡ Or, signe.

4 That is, the devil or Satan (as is declared, vers. 9) mighty, angry, and full of wrath.

5 Thereby to withstand those seven churches spoken of, that is, the Catholick church, and that with kingly furniture and tyrannicall magnificence: signified by the crowns set upon his heads, as if the same without controversie belonged unto him by the proper right: as also he boasted unto Christ, Matth. 4: 9. see after upon Chap. 13: 1.

6 More than are the horns of the Lambe, or than the churches are: so well furnished, doth the tyrant brag himself to be unto all manner of mischief.

7 After the description of Satan, followeth this action, that is, his battel offered unto the church, partly, to that which is visible, wherein the wheat is mingled with the chaff, and the good fish with that which is evil: a good part thereof though in appearance it shined as the starres shine in heaven, he is sayed to be thrust down out of heaven, and to pervert: for if it were possible he would pervert even the elect, Matth. 24: 24. and partly, to the elect members of the holy Catholike church in the second part of this verse. Many therefore of the members of this visible church (saith S. John) he overthrew and triumphed upon them. 8 He withstood that elect church of the Jews which was now ready to bring forth the Christian church, and watched for that she should bring forth. For the whole church, and whole body is compared unto a woman: and a part of the church unto that which is brought forth, as we have noted at large upon Can. 7: 6. 9 Christ mysticall (as they call him) that is, the whole church, consisteth of the person of Christ as the head, and of the body united thereunto by the spirit, so is the name of Christ taken, 1 Corinth. 12: 12. 10 The second history of this church delivered of childe: in which first the consideration of the child born, and of the mother is described in two verses: secondly, the battel of the dragon against the young childe, and the victory obtained against him in 3 verses following: last of all is sung a song of victory, unto the 12 verse. Now S. John in consideration of the childe born, noteth two things: for he describeth him, and his station or place in this verse. 11 That is, Christ the head of the church joyned with his church (the beginning, root, and foundation whereof is the same Christ) indowed with kingly power, and taken up into the heaven out of the jawes of Satan (who as a serpent did bite him upon the crosse) that sitting upon the celestiall throne, he might reigne over all. 12 The church of Christ which was of the Jews, after his assumption into heaven, hid it self in the world as in a wildernesse, trusting in the only defence of God, as witnesseth S. Luke in the Acts of the apostles. 13 Namely, the apostles and servants of God ordained to feed with the word of life; the church collected both of the Jews and Gentiles, unlesse that any man will take the word alatur impersonally, after the use of the Hebrews, in stead of alatur: but I like the first better. For he hath respect unto those two prophets, of whom chap. 11: 3. as for the meaning of the 1260 dayes, look the same places. 14 Christ is the prince of angels, and the head of the church, who beareth that yron rod, vers. 5. See the notes upon Daniel, chap. 12: 1. In this verse a description of the battel, and of the victory in the 2 verses following. The Psalmist had respect unto this battel, Psal. 68: 19. and Paul, Ephes. 4: 8. and Col. 2: 15. 15 The description of the victory, by denying of one thing in this verse, and by affirming the contrary in the next verses. As that Satan gained nothing in heaven, but was by the power of God thrown down in the world whereof he is prince, Christ himself and his elect member standing still by the throne of God. a They were cast out so, that they were never seen any more in heaven. 16 The song of victory or triumph, containing, first a proposition of the glorie of God and of Christ shewed in that victory: Secondly, it containeth a reason of the same proposition, taken from the effects, as that the enemie is overcome in battel, in this verse, and that the godly are made conquerours (and more than conquerours, Rom. 8: 37) vers. 11. Thirdly, a conclusion wherein is an exhortation unto the angels, and to the saints, and unto the world, a prophesie of great misery, and of destruction procured by the devil against mankind lest himself should shortly be miserable alone, verse 12. b He is said in the Hebrew tongue, to love his life, that esteemeth nothing more precious than his life: and on the other side, he is said not to love his life, who doubteth not to hazard it, whereseever need requireth.

* ‡ Hitherto hath been the generall prophecie, comprehended in two parts, as I shewed upon chap. 11. Now shall be declared the first part of this prophecie, in this and the next chapter, and the latter part in the 14, 15. and 16 chap. Unto the first part, which is of the conflicting or militant church, belong two things. The beginning and the progresse of the same in conflicts and Christian combats. Of which two, the beginning or up-spring of the church is described in this chapter, and the progresse thereof in the chapter following. The beginning of the Christian church we define to be from the first moment of the conception of Christ; untill that time wherein this church was as it were weaned and taken away from the breast or milk of her mother: which is the time when the church of the Jews with their city and temple was overthrown by the judgement of God. So we have in this chapter the story of 60 yeares and upwards. The parts of this chapter are three. The first, is the historie of the conception and bearing in womb, in 4 verses. The second, an historie of the birth from the 5 verse unto the 12. The third is, of the woman that had brought forth, unto the end of the chap. And these severall parts have every one their conflicts. Therefore in that first part are two things contained, one, the conception and bearing in wombe in two verses: and another of the laying in wait of the dragon against that should be brought forth, in the next two verses. In the first point are these things, the description of the mother, verse 1. and the dolours of childbirth, verse 2. all shewed unto John from heaven. ‡ Or, signe. a A type of the true holy church which then was in the nation of the Jews. This church (as is the state of the holy church Catholique) did in it self shine about with glory given of God, trode under feet mutablitie and changeableneſse, and possessed the kingdome of heaven as the heire thereof.

12 Therefore rejoyce, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them: wo to the inhabiters of the earth, and of the ſea: for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, becauſe he knoweth that he hath but a short time.

13 And when [17] the dragon ſaw that he was caſt unto the earth, he perſecuted the woman which brought forth the man-childe.

14 [18] And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might flie into the wilderneſſe, into her [c] place: where she is nourished for [19] a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the ſerpent.

15 [20] And the ſerpent caſt out of his mouth water as a floud, after the woman: that he might cauſe her to be carried away of the floud.

16 [21] And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and ſwallowed up the floud which the dragon caſt out of his mouth.

17 [22] And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went to make warre with the remnant of her ſeed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt.

17 The third part: an hiſtory of the woman delivered, conſiſting of two membeis, the preſent battel of Satan, againſt the church of the Jewiſh nation, in four verſes: and the battel intended againſt the ſeed thereof, that is, againſt the church of the gentiles, which is called holy, by reaſon of the goſpel of Chriſt, in the two laſt verſes.

18 That is, being ſtrenthened with divine power: and taught by oracle, shee fled ſwiftly from the aſſault of the devil, and from the common deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and went into a ſolitary citie beyond Jordan called Pella, as Euſebius telleth in the 5 chap. of the 3 book of his eccleſiaſticall hiſtorie: which place God had commanded her by revelation. c Into that place which God had appointed for her. 19 That is, for three yeares and an half: ſo the ſame ſpeech is taken, Dan. 7: 25. This ſpace of time is rekoned in manner from that laſt and moſt grievous rebellion of the Jews, unto the deſtruction of the citie and temple, for their defection or falling away, began in the twelfth yeare of Nero, before the beginning whereof, many fore-ſignes and predictions were ſhewed from heaven, as Joſephus writeth, lib. 7. cap. 12. and Hegeſippus l. 5. c. 44. amongſt which this is very memorable, then in the feaſt of pentecoſt not onely a great ſound and noiſe was heard in the temple, but alſo a great voice was heard of many out of the ſanctuary, which cried out unto all. Let us depart hence. Now three yeares and a half after this defection was begun of the Jews, and thoſe wonders happened, the citie was taken by force, the temple overthrown, and the place forſaken of God: and this compaſſe of time S. John noted in this place. 20 That is, he inflamed the Romanes and nations, that they perſecuting the Jewiſh people with cruell armies, might by the ſame occaſion invade the church of Chriſt, now departed from Jeruſalem, and out of Juda. For it is an uſuall thing in ſcripture, that the raging tumults, of the nations should be compared unto waters. 21 That is, there was offered in their place other Jews, unto the Romanes and nations raging againſt that people, and it came to paſſe thereby, that the church of God was ſaved whole from that violence, that moſt raging floud of perſecution, which the dragon vomited out, being altogether ſpent in the deſtruction of thoſe other Jews. 22 Being ſet on fire by this means, he began to be more mad, and becauſe he perceived that his purpoſe againſt the Chriſtian church of the Jewiſh remnant was come to nought, he reſolved to fall upon her ſeed, that is, the church gathered alſo by God of the Gentiles, and the holy members of the ſame. And this is that other branch, as I ſaid upon the thirteenth verſe, in which the purpoſe of Satan is ſhewed, verſ. 17. and his attempt, verſ. 18.

CHAP. XIII.

1 A beaſt riſeth out of the ſea with ſeven heads and ten horns, to whom the dragon giveth his power. 11 Another beaſt cometh up out of the earth: 14 cauſeth an image to be made of the former beaſt, 15 and that men ſhould worſhip it, 16 and receive his mark.

23 That is, a moſt mightie tempeſt that he rushed upon the whole world (whoſe prince he is) to raiſe the floods, and provoke the nations, that they might with their furious billows toſſe up and down, drive here and there, and finally, deſtroy the church of Chriſt with the holy members of the ſame. But the providence of God reſiſted his attempt, that he might favour the church of the Gentiles, yet tender, and as it were green. The reſt of this ſtory of the dragon is excellently proſecuted by the apoſtle S. John hereafter in the 20 chapter. For here the dragon endevouring to do miſchief, was by God caſt into priſon. 1 The apoſtle having declared the ſpringing up of the Chriſtian church, and the eſtate of the church from which ours taketh her beginning, doth now paſſe unto the ſtory of the progreſſe thereof, as I ſhewed in the entrance of the former chapter. And this hiſtory of the progreſſe of the church & the battels thereof, is ſet down in this chapter, but diſtinctly in two parts, one is of the civil Romane empire, unto verſ. 10. Another of the body eccleſiaſticall or propheticall, thence unto the end of the chapter. In the former part are ſhewed theſe things. Firſt, the ſtate of that empire, in 4 verſes: then the acts thereof in 3 verſes: after the effect, which is exceeding great glory, verſ. 8. And laſt of all is commended the uſe, and the inſtruction of the godly againſt the evils that ſhall come from the ſame, verſ. 9, 10. The hiſtory of the ſtate, containeth a moſt ample deſcription of the beaſts firſt entrie, verſ. 1, 2. and then reſtored after hurt, verſ. 3, 4. 2 On the ſand whereon ſtood the devil practiſing now tempeſts againſt the church, in the verſ. next before going: what time the empire of Rome was endangered by domeſticall diſſenſions, and was mightily toſſed, having ever and anon new heads, and new emperours. See in the 17 chap. and verſ. 8. 3 Having the ſame inſtruments of power, providence, and moſt expert government which the dragon is ſaid to have had, in the 12 chapter and the third verſe. 4 We reade in the twelfth chapter and 3 verſe, that the dragon had 7 crowns ſet upon 7 heads, becauſe the chief avoucheth himſelf to be proper lord and prince of the world, but this beaſt is ſaid to have ten crowns ſet upon ſeverall, not heads but horns: becauſe the beaſt is beholden for all unto the dragon, verſ. 2. and doeth not otherwiſe reigne, than by law of ſubjection given by him, namely, that he employ his horns againſt the church of God. The ſpeech is taken from the ancient cuſtome and form of dealing in ſuch caſe: by which they that were abſolute kings did weare the diademe upon their heads: but their vaſſals, and ſuch as reigned by grace from them, wore the ſame upon their hoods: for ſo they might commodiouſly lay down their diademes when they came into the preſence of their ſovereignes: as alſo their elders are ſaid when they adored God which ſate upon the throne, to have caſt down their crowns before him, chap. 4, verſ. 10.

AND I ſtood upon the ſand of the ſea, and [1] ſaw a beaſt riſe [2] up out of the ſea, having ſeven heads, and ten [3] horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, [4] and upon his heads the [‡] [5] name of blaſphemy.

2 And the beaſt which I ſaw was [6] like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: [7] and the dragon gave him his power, and his ſeat, and great authority.

3 [8] And I ſaw one of his heads, as it were wounded to death, and his deadly wound was healed: & all the world wondred after the beaſt.

4 And they worſhipped the dragon which gave power unto the beaſt, and they worſhipped the beaſt, ſaying, Who is like unto the beaſt? who is able to make warre with him?

5 [9] And there was given unto him a mouth ſpeaking great things, and blaſphemies; and power was given unto him [10] ‡ to continue fourty and two moneths.

6 And he opened his mouth in blaſphemie againſt God, to blaſpheme his name, [11] and his tabernacle, [12] and them that dwell in heaven.

7 And it was given unto him to make warre with the ſaints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations.

8 And all that dwell upon the earth ſhall worſhip him, [13] whoſe names are not written in the book of life of the Lambe ſlain from the foundation of the world.

9 [14] If any man have an eare, let him heare.

10 He that leadeth into captivity, ſhall go into captivity, * He that killeth with the ſword,

‡ Or, names

5 Contrary to that which God of old commanded ſhould be written in the head-piece of the high prieſt, that is, Sanctitas Jehova, Holineſſe unto the Lord. The name of blaſphemy impoſed by the dragon, is (as I think) that which S. Paul ſaith in the ſecond chapter of his 2 epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, the fourth verſe: He ſitteth as God, and boaſteth himſelf to be God. For this name of blaſphemie both the Romane emperours did then challenge unto themſelves, as Suetonius and Dion do report of Caligula and Domitian: and after them the popes of Rome did with full mouth profeſſe the ſame of themſelves, when they challenged unto themſelves ſovereigntie in holy things: of which kinde of ſayings the ſixt book of the decretals, as Clementines and the extravagants, are very full. For theſe men were not content with that which Anglicus wrote in his Poetria, (the beginning whereof is, Papa ſtupor mundi. The pope is the wonder of the world) Nec Deus es, nec homo, ſed neuter es inter utrumque: Thou art not God, neither art thou man, but neither mixt of both: as the gloſſe witneſſeth upon the ſixt book: But they were bold to take unto themſelves the very name of God: and to accept it given of other: according as almoſt an hundred and twenty yeares ſince, there was made for Sixtus the fourth, when he should firſt enter into Rome in his dignitie papall, a pageant of triumph, and cunningly fixed upon the gate of the citie he should enter at, having written upon it this blaſphemous verſe:

Oraculo vocis mundi moderaris habenas,
Et merito in terris crederis eſſe Deus.

That is,

By oracle of thine own voice, the world thou goverſt all,
And worthily a god on earth men think and doe thee call.

Theſe and ſix hundreth the like, who can impute unto that modeſty whereby good men of old would have themſelves called the ſervants of the ſervants of God? Verily either this is a name of blaſphemie, or there is none at all. 6 Swift as the leopard, eaſily claſping all things, as the bear doth with his foot, and tearing and devouring all things with the mouth as doth the lion. 7 That is, he lent the ſame unto the beaſt to uſe, when he perceived that himſelf could not eſcape, but muſt needs be taken by the hand of the angel, and caſt into the bottomleſſe pit, Chap. 20. yet did not he abandon the ſame utterly from himſelf, but that he might uſe it as long as he could. 8 This is the other place that appertaineth to the deſcription of the beaſt of Rome: that beſides that naturall dignity, and amplitude of the Romane empire, which was ſhadowed in the two former verſes, there was added this alſo as miraculous, that one head was wounded, as it were, unto death, and was healed again, as from heaven in the ſight of all men. This head was Nero the emperour, in whom the race of the Cæſars fell from the imperiall dignitie, and the government of the common-weal was tranſlated unto others: in whoſe hands the empire was ſo cured and recovered unto health, as it ſeemed unto all ſo much the more deeply rooted and grounded faſt, than ever before and hence followed thoſe effects, which are next ſpoken of: Firſt an admiration of certain power, as it were, ſacred and divine, ſuſtaining the empire and governing it: Secondly, the obedience and ſubmiſſion of the whole earth, in this verſ. Thirdly, the adoration of the dragon, and moſt wicked worſhipping of devils, confirmed by the Romane emperours: Laſtly, the adoration of the beaſt himſelf, which grew into ſo great eſtimation, as that both the name and worſhip of a god was given unto him, verſe the fourth. Now there were two cauſes which brought in the mindes of men to this religion: the ſhew of excellencie, which bringeth with it reverence: and the ſhew of power invincible, which bringeth fear. Who is like (ſay they) unto the beaſt? Who ſhall be able to fight with him? † Or, ſtain. 9 The ſecond member containing an hiſtorie of the acts of the beaſt, as I ſaid verſe 1. The hiſtorie of them is concluded in two points: the beginning, and the manner of them. The beginning as the gift of the dragon, who put and inſpired into the beaſt both his impiety againſt God, and his inhumanitie and injuſtice againſt all men, eſpecially againſt the godly, and thoſe that were of the houſhold of faith, verſe the fift. The manner of the acts, or actions done, is of two ſorts, both impious in minde, and blaſphemous in ſpeech againſt God, his church, and the godly, verſe the ſixt: and alſo moſt cruell and injurious in deeds, even ſuch as were done of moſt raging enemies, and of moſt inſolent and proud conquerours, verſe the ſeventh. 10 Namely, his actions, and manner of dealing. As concerning thoſe two and fourty moneths, I have ſpoken of them before in the 12 chapter, and ſecond verſe. ‡ Or, to make warre. 11 That is, the holy church, the true houſe of the living God. 12 That is, the godly in ſeverall who hid themſelves from his cruelty. For this bloudy beaſt ſurcharged thoſe holy ſouls moſt falſly with innumerable accuſations for the name of Chriſt, as we reade in Juſtine martyr, Tertullianus, Arnobius, Minutius, Euſebius, Auguſtine, and others: which examples the latter times followed moſt diligently, in deſtroying the flock of Chriſt: and we in our own memory have found by experience, to our incredible grief. Concerning heaven, See in the 12 chapter and in the 18 verſe. 13 That is, ſuch as were not from everlaſting, elected in Chriſt Jeſus. For this is that Lambe ſlain, of which chap. 5. vers 6. Theſe words I do with Aretas diſtinguish in this manner: Whoſe names are not written from the laying of the foundation of the world, in the book of life of the Lambe ſlain. And this diſtinction is confirmed by a like place hereafter, chap. 17: 8. 14 The concluſion of this ſpeech of the firſt beaſt, conſiſting of two parts: An exhortation to attentive audience, in this verſe: and a foretelling, which partly containeth threatnings againſt the wicked, and partly comforts for thoſe which in patience and faith ſhall wait for that glorious coming of our Lord and Saviour Chriſt, verſe the tenth, * Matth. 26: 52.

sword, must be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints.

11 [15] And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth, [16] and he had two horns like a lambe, and he spake as a dragon.

12 [17] And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth, and them which dwell therein, [18] to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed

13 [19] And he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth, in the sight of men,

14 And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth, by the means of those miracles which he had power to do in the sight of the beast, saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an [20] image to the [21] beast which had the wound by a sword, and did live.

15 [22] And he had power to give † [a] life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast, should be killed.

16 [23] And he causeth all both small and great, rich and poore, free and bond, † to receive [24] a [b] mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads:

17 And that no man might [25] buy or sell save he that had the [26] mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

18 [27] Here is wisdome. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the [28] number of a man, and his number is six hundred threescore and six.

15 The second member of the vision, concerning the ecclesiasticall dominion, which in Rome succeeded that which was politike, and is in the power of the corporation of false prophets, and of the forgers of false doctrine. Wherefore the same beast, and the same body, or corporation is called by S. John by the name of false prophet, Chap. 16. vers. 13. and 19. vers. 20. The form of this beast is first described in this verse, then his acts in the verses following: and the whole speech is concluded in the last verse. This beast is by his breed, a son of the earth (as they say) obscurely born, and by little and little creeping up out of his abject state.

16 That is, in shew he resembled the Lambe (for what is more milde or more humble, than to be the servant of the servants of God?) but in deed he played the part of the dragon, and of the wolf, Matth. 7: 15. For even Satan changeth himself into an angel of light, 2 Cor. 11: 14. & what should his honest disciples and servants doe? 17 The historie of the acts of this beast containeth in sum three things, hypocrisie, the witnesse of miracles, and tyrannie: of which the first is noted in this verse, the second in the 2 verses following, the third in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses. His hypocrisie is most full of leasing, whereby he abuseth both the former beast and the whole world: in that albeit he hath by his cunning, and as it were by little, made of the former beast a most miserable σκέλετον or anatomie, usurped all his authority unto himself, and most impudently exerciseth the same in the sight and view of him: yet he carrieth himself so, as if he honoured him with most high honour, and in very good truth cause him to be reverenced of all men. 18 For unto this beast of Rome, which of a civil empire is made an ecclesiasticall hierarchie, are given divine honours, & divine authority so farre, as he is beleeved to be above the scriptures, which the glosse upon the decretals declareth by this devilish verse.

Articulos fidei, & sanctorum facis generalem.
That is:
He changeth the articles of faith, & giveth authoritie to generall councels.

Which is spoken of the papall power. So the beast is by birth, foundation, seat, and finally substance, one: onely the pope hath altered the form and manner thereof, being himself the head both of that tyrannicall empire, and also of the false prophets: for the empire hath he taken unto himself, and thereunto hath added this cunning device. Now these words, Whose deadly wound was cured, are put here for distinction sake as also sometimes afterward: that even at that time the godly readers of this prophecie, might by this signe be brought to see the things as present: as if it were said, that they might adore this very empire that now is, whose head we have seen in our own memory to have been cut off, and to be cured again. 19 The second point of the things done by the beast, is the credit of great wonders or miracles, and pertaining to the strengthening of this impietie: of which signes some were given from above, as it is said, that fire was sent down from heaven by false sorcerie, in this verse. Others were shewed here below in the sight of the beast, to establish idolatry, and deceive souls: which part Saint John setteth forth beginning (as they say) at that which is last, in this manner: First, the effect is declared in the words: He deceiveth the inhabitants of the earth. Secondly, the common manner of working, in two sorts, one of miracles: For the signes which were given him to do in the presence of the beast: the other of the words added to the signes, and teaching the idolattie by those signes, Saying unto the inhabitants of the earth, that they should make an image unto the beast, which, &c. Thirdly, a speciall manner is declared. That it is given unto him to put life unto the image of the beast: and that such a kinde of quickening, that the same both speaketh by answer unto those that ask counsel of it, an also pronounceth death against all those that doe not obey nor worship it: all which things oftentimes by false miracles through the procurement & inspiration of the devil, have been effected and wrought in images. The histories of the papists are full of examples of such miracles, the most of them fained, many also done by the devil in images, as of old in the Serpent, Genesis the third chapter, and the first verse. By which examples is confirmed not the authority of the beast, but the truth of God and these propheses. 20 That is, images, by enallage or change of the number: for the worship of them ever since the second councel of Nice, hath been ordained in the church by publike credite and authoritie, contrary to the law of God. 21 In the Greek the word is of the Dative case, as much to say, as unto the worship, honour and obeying of the beast, for by this maintenance of images, this pseudopropheticall beast doeth mightily profit the beast of Rome, of whom long ago he received them. Wherefore the same is hereafter very fitly called the image of the beast, for that images have their beginning from the beast, and have their form or manner from the will of the beast, and have their end and use fixed in the profit and commoditie of the beast. 22 And of this miracle of the images of the beast, (that is, which the beast hath ordained to establish idolatry) which miraculously speak, and give judgement, or rather marvellously, by the fraud of the false prophets, the papists books are full fraughted. † Or, breath.

a To give life, as Jannes and Jambres imitated the wonders that Moses wrought. 23 The third place, is a most wicked and most insolent tyranny, as was said before, usurped over the persons of men, in this verse: and over their goods and actions, in the next verse. For he is said both to bring upon all persons a tyrannous servitude, so that as bondslaves they might serve the beast: and also to exercise over all their goods and actions, a pedler-like abuse of indulgences and dispensations (as they term them) amongst their friends, and against others, to use most violent interdictions, and to shoot out cursings, even in naturall and civill, private and publike contracts, wherein all good faith ought to have place. † Or, to give. 24 That is, their crisme, by which in the Sacrament (as they call it) of confirmation, they make servile unto themselves, the persons and doings of men, signing them in their forehead and hands, and as for the signe left by Christ. (Of which chapter 7: 3.) and the holy sacrament of baptisme they make as void. For whom Christ hath joyned unto himself by baptisme, this beast maketh callenge unto them by his greasie crisme, which he doubteth not to preferre before baptisme, both in authoritie and in efficacie.

b The mark of the name of the beast.

25 That is, have any traffique or entercourse with men, but they onely which have this anointing and consecrating of clearkly tonsure, as they call it, Read Gratian, De consecrationes, distinctione tertia, omnes spiritus sanctus, &c. of these matters. 26 Here the false prophets do requite three things, which are set down in the order of their greatnesse, a character, a name, and the number of the name. The meaning is, that man that hath not their first anointing, and clericall tonsure or shaving: secondly, holy orders, by receiving whereof is communicated the name of the beast: or finally, hath not attained that high degree of pontificall knowledge, and of the law (as they call it) Canonicall, and hath not as it were made up in account and cast the number of the mysteries thereof: for in these things consisteth the number of that name of the beast. And this is excellently set forth in the next verse. 27 That is, in the number of the beast consisteth that popish wisedome, which unto them seemeth the greatest of all others. In these words Saint John expoundeth that saying, which went before of the number of the beast, what it hath above his mark or cognisance and his name. These things, saith Saint John, the mark and the name of the beast do easily happen unto any man, but to have the number of the beast, is wisedome: that is, onely the wise and such as have understanding, can come by that number: for they must be most illuminate doctours that attain thereunto, as the words following do declare. 28 How great and of what denomination this number of the beast is, by the which the beast accounteth his wisedome, saint John declareth in these words, Doest thou demand how great it is? it is so great that it occupieth the whole man: he is alway learning, and never cometh to the knowledge thereof: he must be a man indeed that doeth attain unto it. Asket thou of what denomination it is? verily it standeth of six throughout, and pefectly riseth of all the parts thereof in their severall denominations (as they term them:) it standeth of six by unities, tens, hundreds, &c. so as there is no one part in learning and order pontificall, which is not either referred unto the head, and as it were, the top thereof, or contained in the same: so fitly doe all things in this hierarchie agree one with another, and with their head, Therefore that cruel beast Boniface the eight, doeth commend by the number of six those decretals which he perfected, in the proceme of the sixt book. Which book (saith he) being to be added to five other books of the same volume of decretals, we thought good to name Sextum, the sixt: that the same volume by addition thereof containing a senarie, or the number of six books (which is a number perfect) may yeeld a perfect form of managing all things, and perfect discipline of behaviour. Here therefore is the number of the beast, who poureth from himself all his parts, and bringeth them all back again unto himself by his discipline in most wise and cunning manner. If any man desire more of this, let him reade the glosse upon that place. I am not ignorant that other interpretations are brought upon this place: but I thought it my duetie, with the good favour of all, and without the offence of any, to propound mine opinion in this point. And for this cause especially, for that it seemed unto me neither profitable, nor like to be true, that the number of the beast, or of the name of the beast should be taken as the common sort of interpreters do take it. For this number of the beast teacheth, giveth out, imprinteth, as a publike mark of such as be his, and esteemeth that mark above all others, as the mark of those whom he loveth best. Now those other expositions seem rather to be farre removed from this propertie and condition of that number: whether you respect the name Latinus, or Titan, or any other. For these the beast doth not teach, nor give forth, nor imprint, but most diligently forbiddeth to be taught, and audaciously denieth: he approveth not these, but reproveth them: and hateth them that think so of this number, with an hatred greater than that of Vatinius.

Chap. XIV.

1 The Lambe standing on mount Sion with his company: 6 an angel preacheth the gospel. 8 The fall of Babylon. 15 The harvest of the world, and putting in of the sickle. 20 The vintage and wine-presse of the wrath of God.

AND I looked, & lo, a Lambe [1] stood on the mount Sion, and with him [2] an hundred fourty and foure thousand, having his Fathers [3] name written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps:

4 These are they which were not defiled with women: for they are virgins: these are they which follow the Lambe whithersoever

1 The historie of the church of Christ being finished for more than a thousand and three hundreth years, at which time Boniface the eight lived, as before hath been said: there remaineth the rest of the history of the conflicting or militant church, from thence unto the time of the last victorie in three chapters. For first of all, as the foundation of the whole historie is described, the standing of the lambe with his armie and retinue in five verses, after his worthy acts which he hath done, and yet doth in most mighty manner, whilest he overthroweth Antichrist with the spirit of his mouth, in the rest of this chapter, and in the two following. Unto the description of the Lambe, are propounded three things, his situation, place and attendance: for the rest are expounded in the former visions, especially upon the 5 chapter. 2 As ready girt to do his office (as Acts 7: 56.) in the midst of the church, which aforetime mount Sion did prefigure. 3 This retinue of the Lambe is described first by divine mark (as before 7: 2.) in this verse. Then by divine occupation, in that all and every one in his retinue most vehemently and sweetly (verse 2.) do glorifie the Lambe with a speciall song before God and his elect angels: which song flesh and bloud cannot hear, nor understand, vers. 3. Lastly, by their deeds done before, and their sanctification in that they were virgins pure from spirituall and bodily fornication, that is, from impietie and unrighteousnesse, that they followed the Lambe as a guide unto all goodnesse, and cleaved unto him: that they are holy unto him, as of grace redeemed by him: that in truth and simplicitie of Christ they have exercised all these things, sanctimonie of life, the direction of the Lambe, a thankfull remembrance of redemption by him; finally (to conclude in a word) that they are blamelesse before the Lord, vers. 4, 5.

he

he goeth: theſe † were redeemed from among men, being the firſt-fruits unto God, and to the Lambe.

† Gr. were bought.

5 And in their mouth was found no guile: for they are without fault before the throne of God.

4 The other part (as I ſaid on the firſt verſe) is of the acts of the Lambe, the manner whereof is delivered in two ſorts, of his ſpeech and of his facts. His ſpeeches are ſet forth unto the 13 verſe of this chapter, and his facts unto the 16 chap. In the ſpeech of the Lamb, which is the word of the goſpel, are taught in this place theſe things: The ſervice of the godly conſiſting inwardly of reverence towards God, and outwardly of the glorifying of him: the viſible ſigne of which is adoration, verſ. 7. The overthrowing of wicked Babylon, verſe 8. and the fall of every one of the ungodly which worſhip the beaſt, verſ. 9, 10, 11. Finally, the ſtate of the holy ſervants of God, both preſent, verſe 11. and to come, moſt bleſſed, according to the promiſe of God, verſe 13.

6 ⁴ And I ſaw ⁵ another angel flie in the midſt of heaven, having the everlaſting goſpel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people.

7 ⁶ Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the houre of his judgement is come: * and worſhip him that made heaven and earth, and the ſea and the fountains of waters.

8 And there followed another angel, ſaying, * Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, becauſe ſhe made all nations drink of the wine of the ª wrath of her fornication.

9 And the third angel followed them ſaying with a loud voice, ⁷ If any man worſhip the beaſt and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand,

10 The ſame ſhall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture, into the cup of his indignation, and he ſhall be tormented with fire and brimſtone, in the preſence of the holy angels, and in the preſence of the Lambe:

11 And the ſmoke of their torment aſcendeth up for ever and ever. And they have no reſt day nor night, who worſhip the beaſt and his image, and whoſoever receiveth the mark of his name.

12 ⁸ Here is the patience of the ſaints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jeſus.

13 And I heard a voice from heaven ſaying unto me, Write, Bleſſed are the dead which die ᵇ in the Lord, ‡ from henceforth, yea, ſaith the Spirit, that they may reſt from their labours, and their ᶜ works do follow them.

14 ⁹ And I looked, and behold, a ¹⁰ white cloud, and upon the cloud one ſat, like unto the Sonne of man, ¹¹ having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a ¹² ſharp ſickle.

15 ¹³ And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that ſat on the cloud, * Thruſt in thy ſickle and reap, for the time is come for thee to reap, for the harveſt of the earth is ‡ ripe.

16 And he that ſat on the cloud, thruſt in his ſickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17 ¹⁴ And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, he alſo having a ſharp ſickle.

18 And another angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire, and cried with a loud cry to him that had the ſharp ſickle, ſaying, Thruſt in thy ſharp ſickle, and gather the cluſters of the vine of the earth, for her grapes are fully ripe.

19 And the angel thruſt in his ſickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and caſt it into the great wine-preſſe of the wrath of God.

20 And the wine-preſſe was troden without the city, ¹⁵ and bloud came out of the wine-preſſe, even unto the horſe-bridles, by the ſpace of a thouſand and ſix hundred furlongs.

5 This angel is a type or figure of the good and faithfull ſervants of God, whom God eſpecially from that time of Boniface the 8 hath raiſed up to the publiſhing of the goſpel of Chriſt, both by preaching and by writing. So God firſt, neare unto the time of the ſame Boniface uſed Peter Caſſidorus an Italian: after Arnold de villa nova, a Frenchman, then Occam, Dante, Petrarch, after that, Johannes de rupe ceſſa, a Franciſcane: after again, John Wicklife an Engliſhman, and ſo continually one or another unto the reſtoring of the truth, and enlarging of his church. 6 That is, Babylon is deſtroyed by the ſentence and judgement of God: the execution whereof S. John deſcribeth, Chap. 18. And this voice of the miniſters of Chriſt hath continued ſince the time that Babylon (which is Rome) hath by deliberate counſel and manifeſt malice oppugned the light of the goſpel offered from God. * Pſal. 146, 5, 6. Acts 14, 15. * Iſa. 21, 9. Jer. 51, 8. Chap. 18, 2. ª Of her fornication, whereby God was provoked to wrath. 7 That is, ſhall not worſhip God alone, but ſhall transferre his divine honour unto this beaſt, whether he doe it with his heart, or counterfeiting in ſhew, For he (ſaith Chriſt) that denieth me before men, him will I denie before my Father and his angels, Matth. 10, 32. And this is that voice of the holy miniſterie, which at this time is very much uſed of the holy and faithfull ſervants of God. For having now ſuffiently found out the publike obſtinacie of Babylon, they labour not any longer to thunder out againſt the ſame: but to ſave ſome particular members by terrour (as S. Jude ſpeaketh) and to pluck them out of the publike flame: or els by vehement commiſeration of their eſtate to lead them away, they ſet before them eternall death, into which they rush unawares, unleſſe in good time they return unto God: but the godly which are of their own flock, they exhort unto patience, obedience, and faith in the Lord Jeſus, and charge them to give light by their good example, of good life unto others. 8 The patience, ſanctification, and juſtification by faith: the conſequence whereof are, reſt, felicitie, and glory eternall in the heavenly fellowship of God and his angels. b That is, for the Lord. ‡ Or, from henceforth ſaith the Spirit, yea. c By works, is meant the reward which followeth good works. 9 The ſecond part of this chapter, as I ſaid verſe 1. of the acts and doings of Chriſt, in overthrowing of Antichriſt and his church by the Spirit of his divine mouth: ſeeing that having been called back by word both publikely and privately unto his duty, and admoniſhed of his moſt certain ruine: he yet ceaſeth not to maintain and protect his own adherents, that they may doe him ſervice: and to afflict the godly with moſt barbarous perſecutions. Of thoſe things which Chriſt doth, there are 2 kinds: one common or generall in the reſt of this chap. another particular againſt that ſavage and rebellious beaſt and his worſhippers, chap. 15, 16. That common kinde is the calamity of wars ſpread abroad through the whole earth, and filling all things with bloud, and that without reſpect of any perſon. This is figured or ſhadowed out in 2 types, of the harveſt and vintage. Since the time that the light of the goſpel began to ſhine out, and ſince propheeie or preaching by the grace of God was raiſed up again, how horrible wars have been kindled in the world: how much humane flesh hath been thrown to the earth by this divine reaping? how much bloud (alas for wo) hath overflown for theſe 100 yeares almoſt? all hiſtories do cry out, and this our age (if ever before) is now in horror by reaſon of the rage of that ſickle which Antichriſt calleth for. In this place is the firſt type, that is, of the harveſt. 10 Declaring his fierceneſſe by his colour, like unto that which is in the white or milk circle of heaven. 11 As one that ſhall reigne from God, and occupie the place of Chriſt in this miſerable execution. 12 That is, a moſt fit and commodious inſtrument of execution, deſtroying all by hewing and thruſting through: for who may ſtand againſt God? 13 Chriſt giveth a commandement in this verſe, and the angel executeth it in the next verſe. * Joel. 3, 13. ‡ Or, dried. 14 The other type (as I ſaid ver. 14.) is the vintage: the manner whereof is one with that which went before if thou except this, that the grape gathering is more exact in ſeeking out every thing than is the harveſt labour. This is therefore a more grievous judgement, both becauſe it ſucceedeth the other, and becauſe it is underſtood to be executed with great diligence. 15 That is, it ſo overflowed very deep, and very farre and wide: the ſpeech is hyperbolicall or exceſſive, to ſignifie the greatneſſe of the ſlaughter. And theſe be thoſe pleaſant fruits forſook, of the contempt of Chriſt, and deſiring of Antichriſt rather than him, which the miſerable, mad, and blinde world doth at this time reap.

CHAP. XV.

1 The ſeven angels with the ſeven laſt plagues. 3 The ſong of them that overcome the beaſt. 7 The ſeven vials full of the wrath of God.

AND ¹ I ſaw another ſigne in heaven, great and marvellous, ſeven ² angels having the ſeven laſt plagues, for in them is filled up the wrath of God.

1 This is that other place of the acts of Chriſt, as I noted before 14, 14. Now therefore is ſhewed a ſingular work of the judgement of God belonging to the overthrow of Antichriſt and his forces, of which divine work the preparation is deſcribed in this chapter: and the execution in the next. The preparation is firſt ſet down generally, and in type in this verſe: and is after particularly ſet forth in the reſt of the chapter. 2 Of which chap. 8, 9. in powring forth the plagues of the world: for even theſe plagues do for the moſt part agree with thoſe.

2 ³ And I ſaw ⁴ as it were a ſea of glaſſe, mingled with fire, and ⁵ them that had gotten the victory over the beaſt, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, ⁶ ſtand on the ſea of glaſſe, having the harps of God.

3 And they ſing ⁷ the ſong of Moſes the ª ſervant of God, and the ſong of the Lambe, ſaying, ⁸ Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty, * juſt and true are thy ᵇ wayes, thou King of ſaints.

4 * Who ſhall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorifie thy name? for thou onely art holy: for all nations ſhall come and worſhip before thee, for thy judgements are made manifeſt.

3 There are two parts of the narration: one, the confeſſion of the Saints, gloryfying God, when they ſaw the preparation of the judgements of God, unto the 4 verſe: another the vocation, inſtruction, and confirmation of thoſe inſtruments which God hath ordained for the execution of his judgements, in foure others verſes. 4 This part of the viſion alludeth unto that ſea, or large veſſel of braſſe, in which the prieſts waſhed themſelves in the entrance of the temple: for in the entrance of the heavenly temple (as it is called verſe 5.) is ſaid to have been a ſea of glaſſe, moſt lightſome and clear, unto the commoditie of choiſe mixt with fire, that is, as containing the treaſury of the judgements of God, which he bringeth forth and diſpenſeth according to his own pleaſure: for out of the former, the prieſts were cleanſed of old: and out of this the ungodly are deſtroyed now, chap. 4, 6. 5 That is, the godly martyrs of Chriſt, who ſhall not give place even in miracles unto that beaſt: of theſe ſee before, chap. 13, 17. and 14, 9, 10. 6 Glorifying God, from the particular obſervation of the weapons and inſtruments of Gods wrath, floting in the ſea of glaſſe. 7 That ſong of triumph, which is Exod. 15, 2. ª So is Moſes called for honours ſake, as it is ſet forth, Deut. 34, 10. 8 This ſong hath two parts: one a confeſſion, both particular, in this verſe, and generall, in the beginning of the next verſe: another, a narration of cauſes belonging to the confeſſion, whereof one kinde is eternall in it ſelf, and moſt preſent unto the godly, in that God is both holy, and alone God: another kinde is future, and to come, in that the elect taken out of the Gentiles (that is, out of the wicked ones and unbeleeving: as chap 17, 2.) were to be brought unto the ſame ſtate of happineſſe, by the magnificencie of the judgement of God in the next verſe. * Pſal. 145, 17. ᵇ Thy doings. * Jer. 10, 7.

5 [9] And after that I looked, and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened:

6 And the seven angels came out of the temple, having the [10] seven plagues, clothed in [11] pure and white linnen, and having their breasts [12] girded with golden girdles.

7 And one of the [13] foure beasts gave unto the seven angels, seven golden vials full of the wrath of God, who liveth for ever and ever.

8 And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God, and from his power, [14] and no man was able to enter into the temple, till the seven plagues of the seven angels were fulfilled.

9 The second part of the narration (as was noted vers. 3.) wherein first, the authoritie of the whole argument and matter thereof is figured, by a forerunning type of a temple opened in heaven, as Ch. 11, 19. namely, that all those things are divine and of God, that proceed from thence, in this verse. Secondly, the administers or executers, come forth out of the temple, vers. 6. Thirdly, they are furnished with instruments of the judgements of God, and weapons fit for the manner of the same judgements, ver 7. Finall, they are confirmed by testimony of the visible glorie of God, in the last verse. A like testimony whereunto was exhibited of old in the law, Exod. 40, 34. 10 That is, commandements to inflict those seven plagues. Here is the figure called Metonymia. 11 Which was in old time a signe of the kingly or princely dignitie. 12 This girding was a signe of diligence, and the girdle of gold was a signe of sinceritie, and trustinesse in taking in charge the commandements of God. 13 Of these before, Chap. 4, 7. 14 None of those 7 Angels might return, till he had performed fully the charge committed unto him, according to the decree of God.

CHAP. XVI.

2 The angels poure out of their vials full of wrath. 6 The plagues that follow thereupon. 15 Christ cometh as a thief. Blessed are they that watch.

1 [1] AND I heard a great voice out of the temple, saying to the seven angels, Go your wayes and poure out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.

2 [2] And the first went, and poured out his vial upon the earth, and there fell a noisome and grievous sore upon the men which had the mark [3] of the beast, and upon them which worshipped his image.

3 [4] And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea, and it [a] became as the bloud of a dead man: and every living soul died in the sea.

4 [5] And the third angel poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of waters, and they became bloud.

5 And I heard the angel of the waters say, Thou art righteous, O Lord, which art, & wast, and shalt be, because thou hast judged thus:

6 For they have shed the bloud of saints and prophets, and thou hast given them bloud to drink, for they are worthy.

7 [6] And I heard another out of the altar say, Even so, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgements.

8 [7] And the fourth angel poured out his vial upon the sunne, and power was given unto him to scorch men with fire.

9 And men were ‡ scorched with great heat, and blasphemed the name of God, which hath power over these plagues: and they repented not, to give him glory.

10 [8] And the fift angel poured out his vial upon the seat of the beast, and his kingdome was full of darknesse, and they gnawed their tongues for pain,

11 And blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their sores, and repented not of their deeds.

12 [9] And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river [10] Euphrates, and [11] the water thereof was dried up, [12] that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.

13 And I saw [13] three unclean spirits [14] like frogs come out of the mouth of the [15] dragon, and out of the mouth of the [16] beast, and out of the mouth of the [17] false prophet.

14 For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battel of that great day of God Almighty.

15 * [18] Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked and they see his shame.

16 [19] And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue [20] Armageddon.

17 [21] And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the [22] aire, and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from [23] the throne, saying, [24] it is done.

18 [25] And there were voices, and thunders, & lightnings: & there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake and so great.

19 [26] And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities [27] of the nations fell: and great [28] Babylon came in remembrance before God, * to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fiercenesse of his wrath.

20 And every island fled away, and the mountains [29] were not [b] found.

1 In the former chapter was set down the preparation unto the work of God: here is delivered the execution thereof. And in this discours of the execution, is a generall commandement in this verse, then a particular recitall in order of the execution done by every of the seven angels, in the rest of the chapter. This speciall execution against antichrist and his crew, doth in manner agree unto that which was generally done upon the whole world, chap. 8. and 9. and belongeth (if my conjecture fail me not) unto the same time. Yet herein they do differ one from another, that this was particularly effected upon the princes and ringleaders of the wickednesse of the world, the other generally against the whole world being wicked. And therefore these judgements are figured more grievous than those.

2 The history of the first angel, whose plague upon the earth is described almost in the same words with that sixt plague of the Egyptians, Exod. 9, 9. But it doth signifie a spirituall ulcer, and that torture or butchery of conscience, feared with an hot yron, which accuseth the ungodly within, and both by truth of the word (the light whereof God hath now so long shewed forth) and by bitternesse stirreth up and forceth out the sword of Gods wrath. 3 See chap. 13, 16. 4 The history of the second angel, who troubleth and molesteth the seas, that he may stir up the conscience of men sleeping in their wickednesse, See chap. 8, 8. a It was turned into rotten and filthy bloud, such as is in dead bodies. 5 The story of the third angel striking the rivers in this verse, who proclaiming the justice of God, commendeth the same by a most grave comparison of the sins of men, with the punishment of God: which is common to this place, and that which went before. Wherefore also this praising is attributed to the angel of the waters, a name common to the second and third angels, according as both of them are said to be sent against the waters, albeit the one of the sea, the other of the rivers, in two verses. 6 A confirmation of the praise before going, out of the sanctuary of God, whether immediately by Christ, or by some one of his angels, for Christ also is called another angel, chap. 7. 2, 3. and 12, 1. 7 The story of the fourth angel, who throweth the plague upon the heaven and upon the sun, of which, Luke 21, 26. the effects whereof are noted two. The one peculiar, that it shall scorch men with heat in this verse. The other proceeding accidentally from the former, that their fury shall so much the more be enraged against God, in the next verse, when yet (O wonderfull mercie and patience of God) all other creatures are first striken often and grievously by the hand of God before mankinde, by whom he is provoked: as the things before going do declare. ‡ Or, burned.

8 The story of the fift angel, who striketh the kingdome of the beast with two plagues, abroad with darknesse, within with biles and dolours most grievous, throughout his whole kingdome, that thereby he might wound the conscience of the wicked, and punish that most perverse obstinacie of the idolaters: whereof arose perturbation and thence a furious indignation and desperate madnesse, raging against God, and hurtfull unto it self.

9 The story of the sixt angel, divided into his act, and the event thereof. The act is, that the angel did cast out of his mouth the plague of a most glowing heat, wherewith even the greatest floods, and which most were wont to swell and overflow (as Euphrates) were dried up, by the counsel of God in this verse. The event is, that the meer madnesse wherewith the wicked are inraged that they may scorn the judgements of God, and abuse them furiously to serve their own turn, and to the executing of their own wicked outrage.

10 The bond of the spirituall Babylon, and to the fortresses of the same, Chap. 9, 14.

11 So the church of the ungodly, and kingdome of the beast, is said to be left naked, all the defences thereof in which they put their trust, being taken away from it. 12 That is, that even they which dwell further off, may with more commoditie make haste unto that sacrifice which the Lord hath appointed. 13 That is, every of them bent their whole force, and conspired that by wonders, word and work, they might bring into the same destruction, all kings, princes and potentates of the world, cursedly bewitched of them by their spirits, and teachers of the vanity and impurity of the beast that committed fornication with the kings of the earth. And this is a right description of our times. 14 Croking with all importunity, and continually day and night provoking and calling forth to arms, as the trumpets and furies of wars, as is declared in the next verse. 15 That is, the devil, as chap. 11, 5. 16 Whereof chap. 13, 1. 17 That is, of that other beast, of which chap. 13, 11. for so is he called also, chap. 19, 20. and 20, 10. * Matth. 24, 43. 18 A parenthesis for admonition, in which God warneth his holy servants, who rest in the expectation of Christ, alwayes to addresse their minds unto his coming, and to look unto themselves, that they be not shamefully made naked and circumvented of these unclean spirits, and so they be miserably unprepared at the coming of the Lord, so Matth. 24, 29. and 25, 13. 19 Namely, the angel, who holily according to the commandment of God, was to do sacrifice: notwithstanding that those impure spirits doe the same wickedly, as servants, not unto God, but unto the beast that hath seven heads. 20 That is (to say nothing of other expositions) the mountain it self, or mountain places of Megiddon. Now it is certain by the holy scriptures, that Megiddon is a citie and territorie in the tribe of Manasses, bordering upon Issachar and Asher, and was made famous by that lamentable overthrow of king Josias, whereof 2 Reg. 22, 30. and 2 Chron. 35, 22. and Zach. 12, 11. In this mountain country God saith by figure, or type, that the kings of the peoples which serve the beast, shall meet together: because the Gentiles did alwayes esti that lamentable overthrow in the teeth of the church of the Jews, unto their great reproach: and therefore were perswaded that that place should be most fortunate unto them (as they speak) and unfortunate unto the godly. But God here pronounceth, that that reproach of the church, and confidence of the ungodly, shall by himself be taken away, in the self-same place where the nations perswaded themselves, they should mightily exult and triumph against God and his church. 21 The story of the seventh angel unto the end of the chapter, in which first is shewed by signe and speech, the argument of this plague, in this verse, and then is declared the execution thereof in the verses following. 22 From whence he might move the heaven above, and the earth beneath. 23 That is, from him that sitteth on the throne, by the figure called Metonymia. 24 That is, Babylon is undone, as is shewed verse 19. and in the chapters following. For the first onset (as I might say) of this denunciation, is described in this chapter: and the last containing a perfect victory, is described in those that follow. 25 Now is declared the execution (as is said in verse 17.) and the things that shall last come to passe in heaven and in earth before the overthrow of the beast of Babylon: both generally, verse 18. and particularly in the cursed city, and such as have any familiaritie therewith, in the three last verses. 26 The seat or standing place of antichrist. 27 Of all such as cleave unto antichrist, and fight against Christ. 28 That harlot, of whom in the next chapter following. Now this phrase, to come into remembrance, is after the common use of the Hebrew speech, borrowed from men, and attributed unto God. * Jer. 25, 15. 29 That is, were seen no more, or were no more extant. A borrowed Hebraisme. b Appeared not, which the Hebrews utter after this sort, Were not, Gen. 5, 24.

21 [30] And

21 30 And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every ſtone about the weight of a c talent: and men blaſphemed God becauſe of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

30 The manner of the particular execution, moſt evidently teſtifying the wrath of God by the originall and greatneſſe thereof: the event thereof is the ſame with that which is Chap. 9, 13. and that which hath been mentioned in this chapter, from the execution of the fourth angel hitherto, that is to ſay, an incorrigible pertinacie of the world in their rebellion, and an heart that cannot repent, yer ſe 9. and 11. c As it were about the weight of a talent, and a talent was threeſcore pound, that is, ſix hundred groats, whereby is ſignified a marvellous and ſtrange weight.

CHAP. XVII.

3, 4. A woman arayed in purple and ſcarlet, with a golden cup in her hand, ſitteth upon the beaſt. 5 which is great Babylon the mother of all abominations. 9 The interpretation of the ſeven heads, 12 and the ten horns. 8 The puniſhment of the whore. 14 The victory of the Lambe.

1 AND 1 there came one of the ſeven angels which had the ſeven vials, and talked with me, ſaying unto me, Come hither, I will ſhew 2 unto thee the a judgement of the great whore, that ſitteth upon many waters:

2 With whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabiters of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication.

3 3 So he carried me away in the ſpirit into the wilderneſſe: and I ſaw a woman ſit upon a b ſcarlet-coloured beaſt, full of names of blaſphemy, having ſeven heads, and ten horns.

4 And the 4 woman was arayed 5 in purple, and ſcarlet colour, and † decked with gold and precious ſtone and pearls, having 6 a golden cup in her hand, full of abominations and filthineſſe of her fornication.

5 7 And upon her forehead was a name written, MYSTERIE, 8 BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF 9 HARLOTS, AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH.

6 9 And I ſaw the woman drunken with the bloud of the ſaints, and with the bloud of the martyrs of Jeſus: 10 and when I ſaw her, I wondred with great admiration.

7 11 And the angel ſaid unto me, Wherefore didſt thou marvel? I will tell thee the myſtery of the woman, and of the beaſt that carrieth her, which hath the ſeven heads and ten horns.

1 The ſtate of the church militant being declared now followeth the ſtate of the church, overcoming and getting victory, as I ſhewed before in the beginning of the tenth chapter. This ſtate is ſet forth in foure chapters. As in the place before going I noted, that in that hiſtory the order of time was not alwayes exactly obſerved, ſo the ſame is to be underſtood in this hiſtory, that it is diſtinguiſhed according to the perſons of which it treateth, and that in the ſeverall ſtories of the perſons is ſeverally obſerved in the time thereof. For firſt is delivered the ſtory of Babylon deſtroyed in this and the next chapter, (for this Babylon, out of all doubt, ſhall perish before the two beaſts and the dragon) Secondly, is delivered the deſtruction of both the two beaſts, chap. 19. And laſtly of the dragon, chap. 18. In the ſtory of the ſpirituall Babylon, are diſtinctly ſet forth the ſtate thereof in this chapter, and the overthrow done from God, chap. 18. In this verſe and that which followeth, is a tranſition or paſſage unto the firſt argument, conſiſting of the particular calling of the prophet (as often heretofore) and a generall proportion. 2 That is, that damnable harlot, by a figure called hypallagie. For ſaint John as yet had not ſeen her. Although another interpretation may be born, yet I like this better. 3 The ſentence that is pronounced againſt this harlot. 3 Henceforth is propounded the type of Babylon and the ſtate thereof, in foure verſes. After, a declaration of the type, in the reſt of this chapter. In the type are deſcribed two things, the beaſt (of whom chapter 13) in the 3 verſe: and the woman that ſitteth upon the beaſt, verſe 4, 5, 6. The beaſt in proceſſe of time hath gotten ſomewhat more than was expreſſed in the former viſion. Firſt, in that it is not reade before that he was apparelled in ſcarler, a robe imperiall and of triumph. Secondly, in that this is full of names of blaſphemy: the other carried the name of blaſphemy onely in his heads. So God did teach that this beaſt is much increaſed in impietie and injuſtice, and doth in this laſt age, triumph in both theſe more inſolently and proudly than ever before. b A ſcarlet colour, that is, with a red and purple garment: and ſurely it was not without cauſe that the Romiſh clergie were ſo much delighted with this colour. 4 That harlot, the ſpirituall Babylon which is Rome. She is deſcribed by her attire, profeſſion and deeds. 5 In attire moſt glorious, triumphant, moſt rich, and moſt gorgeous. † Gr. gilded. 6 In profeſſion the nouriſher of all, in this verſe, and teaching her myſteries unto all, verſe 5. ſetting forth all things moſt magnificently: but indeed moſt perniciouſly beſotting miſerable men with her cup, and bringing upon them a deadly giddineſſe. 7 Deceiving with the title of religion, and publick inſcription of myſtery: which the beaſt in times paſt did not beare. 8 An expoſition in which S. John declareth what manner of woman this is. 9 Or, fornications. 9 In manner of deeds: She is red with bloud, and ſhedderh it moſt licenciouſly, and therefore is coloured with the bloud of the ſaints, as on the contrary part, Chriſt is ſet forth imbrued with the bloud of his enemies, Eſai 63, 1. 10 A paſſage unto the ſecond part of this chapter, by occaſion given of S. John, as the words of the angel do ſhew in the next verſe. 11 The ſecond part of place as I ſaid verſe 1. The enarration of the viſion promiſed in the verſe following. Now there is delivered firſt an enarration of the beaſt and his ſtory, unto the 14 verſe. After, of the harlot, unto the end of the chapter.

8 12 The beaſt that thou ſaweſt, was, 13 and is not, & 14 ſhal aſcend out of the bottomleſſe pit, and go into perdition, and they that dwell on the earth ſhall wonder, (whoſe names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world) 15 when they behold the beaſt that was, and is not, and yet is.

9 16 And here is the minde which hath wiſdome. The c ſeven heads 17 are ſeven mountains, on which the woman ſitteth.

10 18 And there are ſeven kings, 19 five are fallen, 20 and one is, 21 and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh, he muſt continue a ſhort ſpace.

11 22 And the beaſt that was, and is not even he is 23 the eighth, and is 24 of the ſeven, 25 and goeth into perdition.

12 26 And the ten horns which thou ſaweſt, are 27 ten kings, which have received no

12 The ſtory of the beaſt hath a triple deſcription of him. The firſt is a diſtinction of this beaſt from all that ever have been at any time: which diſtinction is contained in this verſe. The ſecond is a delineation or a painting out of the beaſt by things preſent, by which he might even at that time be known of the godly: and this delineation is according to his heads, verſe 12, 13, 14. This beaſt is that empire of Rome of which I ſpake chap. 13, 11. according to the mutations and changes whereof, which then had already hapned, the Holy Ghoſt hath diſtinguiſhed and ſet out the ſame. The apoſtle diſtinguiſheth this beaſt from all others in theſe words: The beaſt which thou ſaweſt, was, and is not. For ſo I expound the words of the apoſtle for the evidencie ſake, as I will further declare in the notes following. 13 The meaning is, that beaſt which thou ſaweſt before (chap. 13, 1.) and which yet thou haſt now ſeen, was, (was I ſay) even from Julius Cæſar in reſpect of beginning, riſing up, ſtation, glory, dominion, manner and ſtock, from the houſe of Julius: and yet is not now the ſame, if thou look unto the houſe and ſtock: for the dominion of this family was tranſlated unto another, after the death of Nero from that other unto a third, from a third unto a fourth, and ſo forth, was varied and altered by innumerable changes. Finally, the empire is one, as it were one beaſt: but exceedingly varied by kinreds, families, and perſons. It was therefore (ſaith S. John) in the kinred or houſe of Julius: and now it is not in that kinred, but tranſlated unto another. 14 As if he ſhould ſay, Alſo this ſame that is, ſhall ſhortly not be: but ſhall aſcend out of the depth, or out of the ſea (as was ſaid, chap. 13, 1.) that is, ſhall be a new ſtock from amongſt the nations without difference, and ſhall in the ſame ſtate go unto deſtruction, or run and perish: and ſo ſhall ſucceſſively new princes or emperours come and go, ariſe and fall, the body of the beaſt remaining ſtill, but toſſed with ſo many and often alterations as no man can but marvell that this beaſt was able to ſtand and hold it out, in ſo many murations, verily no empire that ever was toſſed with ſo many changes, and as it were with ſo many tempeſts of the ſea, ever continued ſo long. 15 That is, as many as have not learned the providence of God, according to the faith of the ſaints, ſhall marvell at theſe grievous and often changes: when they ſhall conſider the ſelf ſame beaſt, which is the Romane empire, to have been, and not to be, and to be, and ſtill moleſted with perpetuall mutation, and yet in the ſame to ſtand and continue. This in mine opinion, is the moſt ſimple expoſition of this place confirmed by the event of the things themſelves. Although the laſt change alſo, by which the empire, that before was civill, became eccleſiaſticall, is not obſcurely ſignified in theſe words, of which two, the firſt exerciſed cruelty upon the bodies of the ſaints: the other alſo upon their ſouls: the firſt by humane order and policy, the other under the colour of the law of God, and of religion, raged and imbrued it ſelf with the bloud of the godly. 16 An exhortation, preparing unto audience by the ſame argument, with that of Chriſt: He that hath eares to heare, let him heare. Wherefore for mine own part: I had rather reade in this place, Let there be here a minde, &c. So the angel paſſeth fully unto the ſecond place of this deſcription. c Very children know what the ſeven hilled citie is, which is ſo much ſpoken of, and whereof Virgil thus reporteth, And compaſſeth ſeven towers in one wall that citie it is, that when John wrote theſe things, had rule over the kings of the earth. It was, and is not, and yet it remaineth to this day, but it is declining unto deſtruction. 17 This is the painting out of the beaſt by things preſent (as I ſaid before) whereby S. John endevoured to deſcribe the ſame, that he might be both known of the godly in that age, and be further obſerved and marked of the poſterity afterwards. This delineation hath one type, that is, his heads, but a double deſcription or application of the type: one permanent, from the nature it ſelf, the other changeable, by the working of men. The deſcription permanent, is by the ſeven hils, in this verſe, the other that fleeteth, is from the ſeven kings, verſe 10, 11. And here it is worthy to be obſerved, that one type hath ſome time two or more applications, as ſeemeth good to the Holy Ghoſt to expreſſe, either one thing by divers types, or divers things by one type. So I noted before of the ſeven ſpirits, chap. 1, 4. Now this woman that ſitteth upon ſeven hills, is the city of Rome, called in times paſt of the Grecians, ἑπτάλοφος, that is, of ſeven tops or creſts, and of Varro ſeptices, that is, of her ſeven heads (as here) or ſeven heads, and of others, ſeptemcollis, that is, ſtanding upon ſeven hills. 18 The beginning of theſe kings or emperours, is almoſt the ſame with the beginning of the church of Chriſt, which I ſhewed before, chap. 11, 1. Namely, from the yeare 25, after the paſſion of Chriſt, what time the temple and church of the Jews was overthrown. In which yeare it came to paſſe by the providence of God, that that ſaying, The beaſt was, and is not, was fulfilled before the deſtruction of the Jews immediatly following, came to paſſe. That was the yeare from the building of the citie of Rome, 809. from which yeare S. John both numbreth the emperours which hitherto had been, when he wrote theſe things, and foretelleth of two others next to come: and that with this purpoſe, that when this particular prediction or foretelling of things to come, ſhould take effect, the truth of all other predictions in the church 5 might be the more confirmed. Which ſigne God of old mentioned in the law, Deut. 18. and Jeremie confirmeth, chapter 28, 8. 19 Whoſe names are theſe: the firſt, Servius Sulpitius Galba, who was the ſeventh emperour of the people of Rome, the ſecond, Marcus Salvius Otho, the third, Aulus Vitellius, the fourth, Titus Flavius Veſpaſianus, the fifth, Titus Veſpaſianus his ſonne, of his own name. 20 Flavius Domitian, ſonne of the firſt Veſpaſian. For in the latter end of his dayes, S. John wrote theſe things, as witneſſeth Irenæus, Lib. 5 adverſus hæreſes. 21 Netva, the empire being now tranſlated from the family of Flavius. This man reigned onely onely yeare, foure moneths, and nine dayes, as the hiſtory writers do tell. 22 This is ſpoken by the figure ſynecdoche, as much to ſay, as that head of the beaſt which was and is not, becauſe it is cut off, and Nerva in ſo ſhort time extinguiſhed. How many heads there were, ſo many beaſts there ſeemed to be in one. See the like ſpeech in the third verſe of the thirteenth chapter. 23 Nerva Trajanus, who himſelf in divers reſpects is called here the ſeventh and the eighth. 24 Though in number and order of ſucceſſion he be the eighth, yet he is reckoned together with one of theſe heads, becauſe Nerva and he were one head. For this man obtained authority together with Nerva, and was conſul with him, when Nerva left his life. 25 Namely, to moleſt with perſecutions the churches of Chriſt, as the hiſtories do accord, and I have briefly noted, chapter 2, 10. 26 The third place of this deſcription, as I ſaid verſe 8. is a prophericall prediction of things to come, which the beaſt ſhould do, as in the words following ſaint John doth not obſcurely ſignifie, ſaying, Which have not yet received the kingdome, &c. For there is an antitheſis or oppoſition betweene theſe kings, and thoſe that went before. And firſt the perſons are deſcribed in this verſe, then their deeds in the two verſes following. 27 That is, ariſing with their kingdomes out of the Romane beaſts: at ſuch times as that politicall empire began by the craft of the popes, greatly to fall.

kingdome as yet: but receive power as kings [28] one houre with the beast.

13 [29] These have one minde, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast.

14 These shall make warre with the [30] Lambe, and the Lambe shall overcome them: * for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings, and they that are with him, are called, and chosen, and faithfull.

15 [31] And he saith unto me, The waters which thou saweſt, where the whore ſitteth [32] are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues.

16 And the ten [33] horns which thou saweſt upon the beast, these shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate, and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire.

17 [34] For God hath put in their hearts to fulfill his will, and to agree, and give their kingdome unto the beast, untill the words of God shall be fulfilled.

18 And the woman which thou saweſt, is that [35] great city which reigneth over the kings of the earth.

28 Namely, with that second beast, whom we called before a false prophet, which beast ascending out of the earth, got unto himself all the authority and power of the first beast, and exerciseth the same before his face, as was said, chapter 14. 11, 12. For when the politicall empire of the west began to bow downwards, there both arose those ten kings, and the second beast took the opportunitie offered, to usurp unto himself all the power of the former beast. These kings long agoe, many have numbred and described to be ten, and a great part of the events plainly testifieth the same in this our age.

29 That is by consent and agreement, that they may conspire with the beast, and depend upon his beck. Their storie is divided into three parts, counsels, acts, and events The counsellers some of them consist in communicating of judgements and effections: and some in communicating of power, which they are said to have given unto this beast, in this verse. 30 With Christ and his church, as the reason following doth declare, and here are mentioned the facts and events, which followed for Christ his sake, and for the grace of God the Father towards those that are called, elected, and are his faithfull ones in Christ. * 1 Tim. 6, 15. Chap. 19, 16. 31 This is the other member of the enarration, as I said verse 7. belonging unto the harlot, shewed in the vision, verse 3. In this history of the harlot, these three things are distinctly propounded, what is her magnificency, in this verse, what is her fall, and by whom it shall happen unto her in the 2 verses following: and lastly, who that harlot is, in the last verse. This place which by order of nature should have been the first, is therefore made the last, because it was more fit to be joyned with the next chapter. 32 That is, as unconstant and variable as are the waters. Upon this foundation sitteth this harlot as queen, a vain person, upon that which is vain. 33 The ten kings, as verse 12. The accomplishment of this fact and event is daily increased in this our age, by the singular providence and most mighty government of God. Wherefore the facts are propounded in this verse, and the cause of them in the verse following. 34 A reason rendred from the chief efficient cause, which is the providence of God, by which alone Saint John by inversion of order affirmeth to have come to passe, both that the kings should execute upon the harlot that which pleased God, and which he declared in the verse next before going: and also that by one consent and counsel, they should give their kingdome unto the beast, &c. verſ. 33, 34. for as these being blinded have before depended upon the beck of the beast that lifteth up the harlot, so it is said, that afterward it shall come to passe, that they shall turn back, and shall fall away from her, when their hearts shall be turned into better state by the grace and mercy of God. 35 That is, Rome, that great city, or onely city (as Justinian calleth it) the king and head whereof was then the emperour, but now the pope, since that the condition of the beast was changed.

Chap. XVIII.

2 Babylon is fallen. 5 The people of God commanded to depart out of her. 9 The kings of the earth, 11 with the merchants and mariners, lament over her. 20 The saints rejoyce for the judgements of God upon her.

1 The second place (as I said before chap. 17, 1.) of the historie of Babylon is of the wofull fall and ruin of that whore of Babylon. This historicall prediction concerning her, is threefold. The first a plain and simple foretelling of her ruine, in 3 verses. The second a figurative prediction by the circumstances, thence unto the 20 verse. The third, a confirmation of the same by signe or wonder, unto the end of the chapter.

AND [1] after these things I saw another [2] angel come down from heaven, having great power, and the earth was lightned with his glory.

2 And he cried mightily with a strong voice, [3] saying, * Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hatefull bird.

3 For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the ‡ abundance of her delicates.

2 Either Christ the eternall word of God the Father (as often elsewhere) or a created angel, and one deputed unto this service, but throughly furnished with greatnesse of power, and with light of glory, as the ensigne of power. 3 The prediction or foreshewing of her ruine, containing both the fall of Babylon, in this verse, and the cause thereof uttered by way of allegorie concerning her spirituall and carnall wickednesse, that is, her most great impiety and unjustice in the next verse: her fall is first simply declared of the angel, and then the greatnesse thereof is shewed here, by the events, when he saith, it shall be the seat and habitation of devils, of wilde beasts, and of cursed fowls, as of old, Esay 13, 21. and often elsewhere. * Chap. 14, 8. ‡ Or, power.

4 [4] And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, [5] Come out of her my people, that ye [6] be not partakers of her sinnes, and that ye receive not of her plagues:

5 For her sinnes have [a] reached unto heaven and God hath remembred her iniquities.

6 [7] Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double, according to her works: in the cup which she hath filled, fill to her double.

7 How much she hath glorified her self, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her: for she saith [b] in her heart, I sit a * queen, and am [c] no widow, and shall [d] see no sorrow.

8 Therefore shall her plagues come in [e] one day, death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burnt with fire: for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her.

9 And [8] the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication, and lived deliciously with her, shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning:

10 Standing afarre off for the fear of the torment, saying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city; for in one houre is thy judgement come.

11 [9] And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her, for no man buyeth her merchandise any more.

12 The merchandise of gold and silver, and precious stones, and of pearls, and fine linnen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and all ‡ thyne wood, and all manner vessels of ivory, and all manner vessels of most precious wood, and of brasse, and iron, and marble,

13 And cinnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincense, and wine, and oyl, and fine floure, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and chariots. and ‡ slaves, and souls of men.

14 [10] And the [f] fruits that thy soul lusted after, are departed from thee, and all things which were dainty and goodly, are departed from thee, and thou shalt finde them no more at all.

15 The merchants of these things which were made rich by her, shall stand afarre off, for the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing,

16 And saying, Alas, alas, that great city, that was cloathed in fine linnen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls:

17 [11] For in one houre so great riches is come

4 The second prediction, which is of the circumstances of the ruine of Babylon of these there are two kinds: one going before it, as that before hand the godly are delivered, unto the ninth verse: the other following upon her ruine, namely, the lamentation of the wicked, and rejoycing of the godly, unto the twentieth verse.

5 Two circumstances going before the ruine, are commanded in this place: one is, that the godly depart out of Babylon: as I mentioned chap. 12. to have been done in time past, before the destruction of Jerusalem, this charge is given here, and in the next verse. The other is, that every one of them occupie themselves in their own place in executing the judgement of Gods as it was commanded the Levites of old, Exod. 32, 27. and that they sanctifie their hands unto the Lord, verse 6, 7, 8.

6 Of this commandment there are two causes: to avoid the contagion of sin, and to shun the participation of those punishments that belong thereunto.

a He useth a word which signifieth the following of sinnes one after another, and rising one of another in such sort that they grew at length to such an heap, that they came up even to heaven.

7 The provocation of the godly, & the commandment of executing the judgements of God, stand upon three causes which are here expressed. the unjust wickednesse of the whore of Babylon, in this verse, her cursed pride, opposing it self against God, which is the fountain of all evil actions, ver. 7. & her most just damnation by the sentence of God verse 8.

b With her self.

* Isa. 47, 8

c I am full of people and mighty.

d I shall taste of none.

e Shortly, and at one instant. 8 The circumstances following the fall of Babylon, of the consequents thereof (as I distinguished them, verse 4.) are two: Namely the lamentation of the wicked, unto the 19 verse, and the rejoycing of the godly, verse 20. This most sorrowfull lamentation, according to the persons of them that lament, hath three members: the first whereof is, the mourning of the kings and mighty men of the earth, in two verses: The second is the lamentation of the merchants that traffick by land, thence unto the 16 verse: The third is, the wailing of those that merchandise by sea, verſ. 16, 17, 18. In every of those the cause and manner of their mourning is described in order, according to the condition of those that mourn, with observation of that which best agreeth unto them. 9 The lamentation of those that trade by land, as I distinguished immediatly before. ‡ Or, sweet. ‡ Or, bodies. 10 An apostrophe, or turning of the speech by imitation: used for more vehemencie, as if those merchants, after the manner of mourners, should in passionate speech speak unto Babylon, though now utterly fallen and overthrown. So Esay 12, 9. and in many other places. f By this is meant that season which is next before the fall of the leaf, at what season fruits ripen, and the word signifieth such fruits as are longed for. 11 The manner of mourning used by them that trade by sea.

to nought. And every ship-master, and all the company in ships, and sailers, and as many as trade by sea, stood afarre off, 18 And cryed when they saw the smoke of her burning, saying, What city is like unto this great city?

19 And they cast dust on their heads, and cryed, weeping and wailing, saying, Alas, alas, that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships in the sea, by reason of her costlinesse for in one houre is she made desolate.

20 [12] Rejoyce over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apostles and prophets, for God hath avenged you on her.

21 [13] And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great mil-stone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great, city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all.

22 [14] And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpetters, shall be heard no more at all in thee: and no craftsman, of whatsoever craft he be, shall be found any more in thee: and the sound of a mil-stone shall be heard no more at all in thee.

23 And the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee: and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee: for thy merchans were the great men of the earth: for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived.

24 And in her was found the [15] bloud of prophets [16] and of saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth.

12 The other consequent upon the other ruine of Babylon, is the exultation or rejoycing of the godly in heaven and in earth, as was noted verse 9.

13 The third prediction, as I said verse 1. standing of a signe, and the interpretation thereof: the interpretation thereof is in two sorts, first by a simple propounding of the thing it self, in this verse, and then by declaration of the events, in the verses following.

14 The events are two, the one of them opposite unto the other, for amplification sake, There shall be, saith he, in Babylon no mirth nor joy at all, in this and the next verse, but all heavy and lamentable things from the bloudy slaughters of the righteous, and the vengeance of God coming upon it for the same.

15 That is, shed by bloudy massacres, and calling for vengeance.

16 That is, proved and found out, as if God had appointed a just iniquirie concerning the impiety, unnaturalnesse, and unjustice of these men.

CHAP. XIX.

1 God is praised in heaven for judging the great whore, and avenging the bloud of his saints. 7 The marriage of the Lambe. 10 The angel will not be worshipped. 17 The fowls called to the great slaughter.

1 This chapter hath in sum two parts, one transitory, or of passage unto the things that follow, unto the tenth verse, another historicall of the victory of Christ gotten against both the beasts, unto the end of the chapter: which I said was the second history of this argument, chap. 17, 1. The transition hath two places, one of praising God for the overthrow done unto Babylon in 4 verses: and another likewise of praise, and propheticall, for the coming of Christ unto his kingdome, and his most royall marriage with his church thence unto the 10 verse. The former praise hath three branches, distinguished after the ancient manner of those that sing, ἀντιφώνως, that is, an invitation, or provokement in two verses: ἀντιφωνία, a response or answer in the third verse: and συμφωνία 5 close or joyning together in harmony: all which I thought good of purpose to distinguish in this place, lest any man should with Porphyrius, or other like dogs, object unto Saint John or the heavenly church, a childish and idle repetition of speech. a Praise the Lord. 2 The proposition of praise with exhortation in this verse, and the cause thereof, in the next verse. 3 The song of the antiphonie or response, containing an amplification of the praise of God, from the perpetuall and most certain testimony of his divine judgement as was done at Sodom and Gomorrha, Gen. 19. 4 The second place of praise, as I said verse 1. which first is commanded from God in this verse: and then is in most ample manner pronounced of the creatures, both because they see that kingdome of Christ so come, which most they desire, verse 6. also because they see that the church is called forth to be brought home into the house of her husband by holy marriage, unto the fellowship of this kingdome, verse 7, 8. Wherefore Saint John is commanded to write in a book the epiphonema, or acclamation joyned with a divine testimony, verse 9. 5 Out of the temple from God, as 11, 19.

AND [1] after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, [a 2] Alleluja, salvation, and glory, and honour, and power unto the Lord our God:

2 For true and righteous are his judgements, for he hath judged the great whore, which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the bloud of his servants at her hand.

3 And again they said, [3] Alleluja: and her smoke rose up for ever and ever.

4 And the foure and twenty elders, and the foure beasts fell down and worshipped God that sat on the throne, saying, Amen, Alleluja.

5 [4] And a voice came out of the [5] throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his servants, and ye that fear him, both small and great.

6 And I heard [6] as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thundrings, saying, Alleluja: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth.

7 Let us be glad and rejoyce, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lambe is come, and his wife hath [7] made her self ready.

8 And to her was granted, that she should be arayed in [8] fine linnen, clean and white: for the fine [9] linnen is the [b] righteousnesse of saints.

9 [10] And he saith unto me, Write, * Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage-supper of the Lambe. And he saith unto me, These are the true sayings of God.

10 [11] And I fell at his feet to worship him: and he said unto me, See thou do it not: I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren that have the [c] testimonie of Jesus, worship God: for the testimonie of [d] Jesus is the spirit of propheſie.

11 [12] And I saw [13] heaven opened, and behold a white horse, and he that sat upon him was called faithfull and true, and in righteousnesse he doth judge and make warre.

12 His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns, and he had a name written that no man knew but he himself.

13 * And he was clothed with a vesture dipt in bloud, and his name is called, The word of God.

14 [14] And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linnen, white and clean.

15 [15] And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron: and he treadeth the wine-presse of the fierceneſſe and wrath of Almighty God.

16 [16] And he hath on his vesture, and on his thigh a name written, * KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

17 [17] And I saw an angel standing in the [18] sun, and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that flie in [19] the midst of heaven, Come and gather your selves together unto the supper of the great God:

18 That ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great.

19 [20] And I saw the beast, & the kings of the earth, and their armies gathered together to 6 Without the temple in heaven.

7 Namely, unto the holy marriage both her self in person in this verse, and also furnished of her spouse with marriage gifts princely and divine, is adorned and prepared in the next verse.

8 As an ensigne of kingly and priestly dignitie: which dignitie Christ bestoweth upon us, Chap. 1, 6.

9 This is a gift given by the husband for marriage sake, and a most choice ornament which Christ bestoweth upon us, as upon his spouse.

b Good works which are lively testimonies of faith.

* Matth. 22, 2.

10 Namely, the angel, as appeareth by the next verse.

11 The particular historie of this verse is brought in by occasion, & as it were besides the purpose, that Saint John might make a publick example of his own infirmity, and of the modest sanctimony of the angel, who both renounced for himself the divine honours, and recalled all the servants of God unto the worship of him alone, as also 22, 8.

c Which are commanded to beare witnesse of Jesus.

d For Jesus is the mark that all the propheſies shoot at.

12 The second place of this chapter (as I said verse 1.) is of the victory gotten by Christ against both the beasts: in which first: Christ is described as one ready to fight, unto the 16 verse, then is shewed the battell to be begun, thence unto the 18. verse. Lastly, is set forth the victory, unto the end of the chapter. In this place do shine forth most excellent properties of Christ, as our heavenly judge and revenger, according to his person, company, effects and names. 13 Properties belonging to his person, that he is heavenly judge, faithfull, true, just, in this verse, searching out all things, ruling over all to be searched out of none. verse 12, the triumpher, and the very essentiall word of God, verse 13. * Isa. 63, 2. 14 The company or retinue of Christ holy, innumerable, heavenly, judiciall, royall, and pure. 15 The effects of Christ prepared unto battel, that with his mouth he striketh the gentiles, ruleth and destroyeth. 16 The name agreeing unto Christ, according to the former properties, expressed after the manner of the Hebrews. * Chap. 17, 14. 17 The second member, as I said verse 11. A reproachfull calling forth of his enemies unto battel: in which not themselves (for why should they be called forth of the King of the world, or provoked being his subjects? for that were not comely) but in their hearing the birds of the aire are called to eat their carkeises. 18 That is, openly, and in sight of all, as Num. 25, 4. and 2 Sam. 12, 11. 19 That is, through this inferiour heaven, and which is nearer unto us: an Hebrew phrase. 20 The third member (as was said verse 11.) of the victorie obtained by Christ. Unto this appertaineth two things: his buckling with the beast and his forces, in this verse: and the event most magnificent, described after the manner of men, in the verses following. All these things are plain.

make warre againſt him that ſat on the horſe, and againſt his army.

20 And the beaſt [21] was taken, and with him the falſe prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the [22] mark of the beaſt, and them that worshipped his image. Theſe both were caſt alive into a lake of fire burning with brimſtone.

21 And the remnant were ſlain with the ſword of him that ſat upon the horſe, which ſword proceeded out of his mouth: and all the fowls were filled with their flesh.

21 Namely, that beaſt with ſeven heads, of which before chapter 13, 1. and 17, 2.

22 That is, that beaſt with two heads, of which 13, 11. Look more, chapter 16, 14.

CHAP. XX.

2 Satan bound for a thouſand yeares. 6 The firſt reſurrection: they bleſſed that have part therein. 7 Satan let looſe again. 8 Gog and Magog. 10 The devil caſt into the lake of fire and brimſtone. 12 The laſt and generall reſurrection.

AND [1] I ſaw an angel come down from heaven, having the key [2] of the bottomleſſe pit, and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he laid hold on the dragon that old ſerpent, which is the devil and Satan, and bound him [3] a thouſand yeares,

3 And caſt him into the bottomleſſe pit, and ſhut him up, and ſet a ſeal upon him, that he ſhould deceive the nations [4] no more, till the thouſand yeares ſhould be fulfilled: and after that, he muſt be looſed [5] a little ſeaſon.

4 [6] And I ſaw [8] thrones, and they ſat upon them, and [7] judgement was given unto them; and I ſaw the ſouls of them that were [8] beheaded for the witneſſe of Jeſus, and for the word of God, and which [9] had not worshipped the beaſt, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Chriſt a thouſand yeares.

5 [10] But the reſt of the dead [11] lived not again untill the thouſand yeares were finished. This is the firſt reſurrection.

6 Bleſſed and holy is he that hath part in the firſt reſurrection: on ſuch the [12] ſecond death hath no power, but they ſhall be prieſts of God, and of Chriſt, [13] and ſhall reigne with him a thouſand yeares.

7 [14] And when the [15] thouſand yeares are expired, Satan ſhall be looſed out of his priſon,

8 [16] And ſhall go out to deceive the nations, which are in the foure quarters of the earth, * Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battel: the number of whom is as the ſand of the ſea.

9 And they went up on the [b] breadth of the earth, and compaſſed the camp of the ſaints about, and the beloved citie: and [17] fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

10 [18] And the devil that deceived them, was caſt into the lake of fire and brimſtone, where the beaſt and the falſe prophet are, and ſhall be tormented day and night, for ever and ever.

11 [19] And I ſaw a great [20] white throne, and him that ſat on it, [21] from whoſe face the earth and the heaven fled away, and there was found no place for them.

12 And I ſaw the dead, ſmall and great, ſtand before [22] God: and the [23] books were opened: and another * book was opened, which is the book [24] of life: and the dead were judged out of thoſe things which were written in the books, according to their works.

13 [25] And the ſea gave up the dead which were in it: and death and ‡ hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.

14 [26] And death and hell were caſt into the lake of fire: this is the ſecond death.

15 And whoſoever was not found written in the book of life, was caſt into the lake of fire.

1 Now followeth the third place of the propheticall hiſtory, which is of the victory whereby Chriſt overcame the dragon, as I noted, Chap. 7, 1. This place muſt neceſſarily be joyned with the end of the 12 chapter, and be applied unto the juſt underſtanding thereof. This chapter hath two parts, one of the dragon overcome unto the 10 verſe: the other of the reſurrection and laſt judgement, unto the end of the chapter. The ſtory of the dragon is doubled: Firſt, of the firſt victory, after which he was bound by Chriſt, unto the 6 verſe. The ſecond is of the laſt victory, whereby he was thrown down into everlaſting punishment, thence unto the 16 verſe. This firſt hiſtory hapened in the firſt time of the Chriſtian church, when the dragon thrown down from heaven by Chriſt, went about to moleſt the new birth of the church in the earth, chap. 12. 1, 18. For which cauſe I gave warning, that this ſtory of the dragon muſt be annexed unto that place. 2 That is, of hell whither God threw down the angels which had ſinned, and bound them in chaines of darkneſſe to be kept unto damnation, 2 Pet. 2, 4. Jude 6. 3 The firſt, whereof (continuing this hiſtory with the end of the 12 chapter) in the 36 year from the paſſion of Chriſt, when the church of the Jews being overthrown, Satan aſſayed to invade the Chriſtian church gathered of the Gentiles, and to deſtroy part of her ſeed, chap. 12, 17. The thouſandth year falleth preciſely upon the times of that wicked Hildebrand, who was called Gregorie the ſeventh, a moſt damnable necromancer and ſorcerer, whom Satan uſed as an inſtrument when he was looſed out of bonds, thence forth to annoy the Saints of God with moſt cruel perſecutions, and the whole world with diſſentions and moſt bloudly warres: as Benno the Cardinall reporteth at large. And this is the firſt victory gotten over the dragon in the earth. 4 Namely, with that publike and violent deceit which he attempted before, chap. 12. and which after a thouſand years (alack for wo) he moſt mightily procured in the Chriſtian world. 5 Which being once expired, the ſecond battel and victory ſhall be, of which verſe 7, 8. 6 A deſcription of the common ſtate of the church of Chriſt in the earth, in that ſpace of a thouſand years, for which the devil was in bonds: in which firſt, the authoritie, life, and common honor of the godly is declared, verſe 4. Secondly, newneſſe of life is preached unto others by the goſpel, after that ſpace, verſe 5. Finally, he concludeth with promiſe, verſe 7. a For judgement was committed to them, as to members joyned to the head: not that Chriſts office was given over to them. 7 This was a type of the authority of the good and faithfull ſervants of God in the church, taken from the manner of men. 8 Of the martyrs which ſuffred in thoſe firſt times. 9 Of the martyrs which ſuffred after that both the beaſts were now riſen up, chap. 15. for there, theſe things are expounded. 10 Whoſoever ſhall lie dead in ſinne, and not know the trueth of God. 11 They ſhall not be renewed with that newneſſe of the life by the enlightning of the goſpel of the glory of Chriſt. For this is the firſt reſurrection, by which the ſouls of the dead do riſe from their death, in the ſecond reſurrection their bodies ſha'll riſe again. 12 That whereby both body and ſoul, that is, the whole man is addicted and delivered unto eternall death, See chap. 2, 11. 13 A return unto the intended hiſtory, by reſuming the words which are in the end of the fourth verſe. 14 The ſecond hiſtorie, of the latter victory of Chriſt, as was ſaid verſe 1. In which are ſummarily deſcribed the work, overthrow, and eternall puniſhment of Satan. 15 Of which I ſpake, ver. 2. Then therefore ſha'll be given unto him liberty to rage againſt the church, and to moleſt the Saints for the ſinnes of men: unto whom the faithfull ſhall have aſſociated themſelves more than was meet, taſting with them of their impuritie of doctrine and life.

16 The work, or act of Satan (which is the firſt member, as I diſtinguiſhed in the verſe before going) to deceive the whole world, even unto the uttermoſt nations thereof: to arme them againſt the people of God, in this verſe, and to beſiege and oppreſſe the church with his whole ſtrength, in the verſe following. * Ezek. 38, 2. and 39, 1.

b As if he ſaid, in ſo much that the whole face of the earth, how great ſo ever it is, was filled.

17 The wrath of God conſuming the adverſaries, and overthrowing all their enterpriſes, Heb. 10, 27. And this is the ſecond member mentioned, verſe 7. overthrow of Satan.

18 The third member, eternall deſtruction againſt thoſe that are overcome: as I noted in the ſame place.

19 The ſecond part of this chapter, in which is deſcribed the judge, in this verſe, and the laſt judgement in the verſe following.

20 That is, a tribunall ſeat moſt princelike and glorious: for ſo doth the Greek word alſo ſignifie.

21 That is, Chriſt, before whom when he cometh unto judgement, heaven and earth ſhall perish for the greatneſſe of his majeſty, 2 Pet. 3, 7, 10, &c. 22 That is, Chriſt the Judge, 2 Cor. 5, 10. 23 As it were his books of reckoning or accompts, that is, the teſtimony of our conſcience, and of our works, which by no means can be avoided. This is ſpoken after the manner of men. * Chap. 3, 5. 24 The book of the eternall decree of God, in which God the Father hath elected in Chriſt according to the good pleaſure of his will, thoſe that ſhall be heires of life. This alſo is ſpoken according to the manner of men. 25 This is a prevention or an anſwer to an objection for happily ſome man will ſay, but they are dead, whom the ſea, death and the grave hath conſumed, how ſhall they appear before the Judge, S. John anſwereth, By reſurrection from death, whereunto all things (how ſoever repugnant) ſhall miniſter and ſerve at the commandement of God, as Dan. 12. ‡ Or, grave. 26 The laſt enemie which is death ſhall be abolished by Chriſt (that he may no more make any attempt againſt us) 1 Cor. 15, 16. and death ſhall feed upon the reprobate in hell for evermore, according to the righteous judgement of God, in the next verſe.

CHAP. XXI.

1 A new heaven and a new earth. 16 The heavenly Jeruſalem, with a full deſcription thereof. 23 She needeth no ſunne, the glory of God is her light. 24 The kings of the earth bring their riches unto her.

AND * [1] I ſaw a new heaven, and a new earth: for the firſt heaven and the firſt earth were paſſed away, and there was no more ſea.

2 [2] And I John ſaw the holy citie, new Jeruſalem coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.

* Iſa. 65, 17. 2 Pet. 3, 13.

1 Now followeth the ſecond part of the hiſtorie propheticall (as I ſaid chapter 1. and 11, 1.) of the future eſtate of the church in heaven after the laſts judgement, unto the fift verſe of the next chapter. In this are two things briefly declared: The ſtation, ſeat, or place thereof, verſe 1. Then her ſtate and condition, in the verſes following, before the ſtate of the church deſcribed, is ſet down the ſtate of the whole world, that there ſhall be a new heaven, and a new earth, as Eſa. 65, 7. and 66, 12. and 2 Pet. 3, 13. and this is the ſeat or place of the church, in which righteouſneſſe ſhall dwell. 2 The ſtate of this glorious church, is firſt deſcribed generally, unto the 8 verſe, and then ſpecially, and by parts, in the verſes following. The generall deſcription conſiſteth in a viſion, ſhewed afar off, verſe 2. and in ſpeech ſpoken from heaven. In the generall theſe things are common, that the church is holy, new, the workmanship of God, heavenly, moſt glorious: the ſpouſe of Chriſt, and partaker of his glory in this verſe.

3 [3] And

3 The church is deſcribed by ſpeech, firſt of an angel, in two verſes, then of God himſelf, in four verſes. The angels ſpeech deſcribeth the glorie of the church by a moſt familiar cohabitation of God therewith, by communication of all manner good things according to the covenant, in this verſe: and by removing or putting far away of all evil things, in the verſe following.

3 [3] And I heard a great voice out of heaven, ſaying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they ſhall be his people, and God himſelf ſhall be with them, and be their God.

4 * And God ſhall wipe away all tears from their eyes: and there ſhall be no more death, neither ſorrow, nor crying, neither ſhall there be any more pain: for the former things are paſſed away.

* Chap. 7, 17.

4 In the ſpeech of God himſelf deſcribing the church, is firſt a certain exordium, or entrance, verſe 5, Then followeth a magnificent deſcription of the church by the preſent and future good things of the ſame, in three verſes following, In the exordium God challengeth unto himſelf the reſtoring of all the creatures, of which verſe 1. and witneſſeth the calling of Saint John unto the writing of theſe things, in this verſe.

5 [4] And he that ſat upon the throne, ſaid, * Behold, I make all things new. And he ſaid unto me, Write: for theſe words are true and faithfull.

* 2 Cor. 5. 17.

6 And he ſaid unto me, [5] It is done: * I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, * I will give unto him that is athirſt, of the fountain of the water of life freely.

* Iſa. 55, 1.

7 He that overcometh ſhall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he ſhall be my ſonne.

8 But the fearfull, and unbeleeving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and ſorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, ſhall have their [a] part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimſtone: which is the ſecond death.

a Their lot, and inheritance as it were.

9 [6] And there came unto me one of the ſeven angels, which had the ſeven vials full of the ſeven laſt plagues, and talked with me, ſaying, Come hither, I will ſhew thee the bride, the Lambes wife.

6 A tranſition unto the particular deſcribing of the heavenly church, by the expreſſe calling of S. John in this verſe, and his rapting up by the Spirit, in confirmation of the truth of God in the verſe following.

10 And he carried me away in the ſpirit to a great and [7] high mountain, and ſhewed me [8] that great citie, the holy Jeruſalem, deſcending out of heaven from God,

7 He meaneth the place and ſtately ſeat of the church, ſhadowed out in a mountain.

11 Having the glorie of God: And her light was like unto a ſtone moſt precious, even like a jaſper ſtone, clear as cryſtall;

8 A type of that church which is one, ample, or Catholike, holy, celeſtiall, built of God, in this verſe: and glorious, in the verſe following. This type propounded, generally, is after particularly declared, verſe 12, &c. 9 A particular deſcription (as I noted verſe 2.) of the celeſtiall church. Firſt, by the eſſentiall parts of the ſame, under the ſimilitude of a citie, unto verſ. 22. Secondly, by the forrein accidents, unto the end of the chapter. Thirdly, by the effects, in the beginning of the next chapter, the eſſentiall parts are noted, the matter and the form in the whole work: of theſe the ſuperficies and foundation of the wall are entire parts (as they uſe to be called) which parts are firſt deſcribed in figure, unto the 14 verſe, afterwards more exactly. 10 According to the number of the tribes, of which chap. 7. For here the outward part is attributed unto the old Teſtament, and the foundation to the new Teſtament. 11 He meaneth the prophets, who are meſſengers of God, and watchmen of the church. 12 That is, foundation ſtones, according to the number of the gates, as is ſhewed, verſe 19. 13 A tranſition unto a more exquiſite deſcription of the parts of the church, by finding out of the meaſure of the ſame, by the angel that meaſured them. 14 The meaſure and form moſt equall, in two verſes. b A four-ſquare figure hath equall ſides, and outright corners, and therefore the Grecians call by this name thoſe things that are ſteady, and of continuance, and perfect.

12 [9] And had a wall great and high, and had [10] twelve gates, and at the gates [11] twelve angels, and names written thereon, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Iſrael.

13 On the eaſt three gates, on the north three gates, on the ſouth three gates, and on the weſt three gates.

14 And the wall of the citie had [12] twelve foundations, and in them the names of the twelve apoſtles of the Lambe.

15 [13] And he that talked with me, had a golden reed to meaſure the citie, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof.

16 [14] And the citie lieth [b] foure-ſquare, and the length is as large as the breadth: and he meaſured the citie with the reed, twelve thouſand furlongs: the length, and the breadth, and the height of it are equall.

17 And he meaſured the wall thereof, an hundred and fourtie and foure cubits, according to the meaſure of a man, that is, of the [c] angel.

c He addeth this becauſe the angel had the ſhape of a man.

18 [15] And the building of the wall of it was of Jaſper, and the citie was pure gold, like unto clear glaſſe.

15 The matter moſt precious and glittering, which the preſence of God maketh moſt glorious.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the citie were garniſhed with all manner of precious ſtones. The firſt foundations was jaſper, the ſecond ſaphire, the third a chalcedonie, the fourth an emerald, 20 The fifth ſardonyx, the ſixth ſardius, the ſeventh chryſolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth a topaz, the tenth a chryſophraſus, the eleventh a jacinct, the twelfth an amethyſt.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls, every ſeverall gate was of one pearl, and the [d] ſtreet of the citie was pure gold, as it were tranſparent glaſſe.

d By ſtreet, he meaneth the broadeſt places of the citie.

22 And I ſaw no temple therein: for the Lord God Amighty, and the Lambe, are the temple of it.

23 * [16] And the city had no need of the ſun, neither of the moon to ſhine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lambe is the light thereof.

* Iſa. 60, 19.

16 The ſecond form of particular diſcription (as I ſaid verſe 12.) from forrein and outward accidents which are theſe. Light from God himſelf in this verſe: glory from men, verſ. 24. perfit ſecuritie from all harm, verſ. 25. Finally, ſuch truth and incorruption of glory (verſ. 26.) as can bear and abide with it, nothing that is inglorious, verſe the laſt.

24 * And the nations of them which are ſaved, ſhall walk in the light of it: and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it.

* Iſa. 60, 3.

25 * And the gates of it ſhall not be ſhut at all by day: for there ſhall be no night there.

* Iſa. 60, 11.

26 And they ſhall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it.

27 And there ſhall in no wiſe enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatſoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie: but they which are written in the Lambes book of life.

CHAP. XXII.

1 The river of the water of life. 2 The tree of life. 5 The light of the city of God is himſelf. 9 The angel will not be worſhipped. 18 Nothing may be added to the word of God, nor taken therefrom.

AND [1] he ſhewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as cryſtall, proceeding out of the throne of God, and of the Lambe.

1 Here is abſolved and finiſhed the deſcription of the celeſtiall church (as I ſhewed before, chap. 21, 12.) by the effects in 5 verſes, and then this book is concluded in the reſt of the chap. The effects proceeding from God, who dwelleth in the church, are theſe: the everlaſting grace of God, in this verſe, the eternall living of the godly, as Chap. 2, 7. the eternall fruits which the godly bring forth unto God, themſelves and others, verſ.

2 In the midſt of the ſtreet of it, and on either ſide of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yeelded her fruit every moneth: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

3 And there ſhall be no more curſe, but the throne of God and of the Lambe ſhall be in it, and his ſervants ſhall ſerve him.

4 And they ſhall ſee his face, and his name ſhall be in their foreheads.

5 * And there ſhall be no night there, and

2. freedom and immunitie from all evil, God himſelf taking pleaſure in his ſervants, and they likewiſe in their God, verſ 3. The beholding and ſight of God, and ſealing of the faithfull from all eternitie, verſe 4. the light of God, and an everlaſting kingdom & glory, ver. 5. * Cha. 21, 23.

they

248 they need no candle, neither light of the sunne; for the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reigne for ever and ever.

6 [2] And he said unto me, These sayings are faithfull and true. And the Lord God of the holy prophets sent his angel to shew unto his servants the things which must shortly be done.

7 Behold, I come quickly: blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophesie of this book.

8 And I John saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel, which shewed me these things.

9 Then saith he unto me, * See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God.

10 [3] And he saith unto me, [4] Seal not the sayings of the prophesie of this book: for the time is at hand.

11 [5] He that is unjust, let him be unjust still:
and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still:
and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.

12 [6] And behold, I come quickly, and my reward is with me, * to give every man according as his work shall be.

13 I am Alpha and Omega, * the beginning and the end, the first and the last.

14 Blessed are they that do his commandments, [7] that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.

15 For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie.

16 [8] I Jesus have sent mine angel to testifie unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning-starre.

17 And the Spirit and the bride say, Come.
And let him that heareth, say, Come. * And let him that is athirst, come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely.

18 [9] For I testifie unto every man that hear-eth the words of the prophesie of this book,
* If any man shall adde unto these things, God shall adde unto him the plagues that are written in this book:

19 And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophesie, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.

20 [10] He which testifieth these things, saith, Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even so, Come Lord Jesus.

21 [11] The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

2 This whole book is concluded and made up by a confirmation and a salutation. The confirmation hath three places: The words of the angel unto the 15 verse, the words of Christ, vers. 16, 17. and the obtestation made by Saint John from divine authority, thence unto the 20 verse. By the speech of the angel this prophecie is confirmed, unto the 8 verse, and then he speaketh of the use of this book in the verses following. The prophecie is first confirmed by the angel from the nature thereof, that it is faithfull and true: Secondly, from the nature of the efficient cause both principall which is God, and instrumentall, which is the angel in this verse. Thirdly, from the promises of God concerning his coming to effect all these things, and concerning our salvation, verse 7. Fourthly from the testification of Saint John himself, verse 8. The rest of the speech of the angel tending to the same end. Saint John interrupted or brake off by his unadvised act of worshipping him in the same verse which the angel forbidding, teacheth him that adoration must be given not to him, but only to God, as for himself, that he is of such nature and office, as he may not be adored: which thing also was in like manner done, Chap. 16 verse 10. * Chap. 19, 10. 3 The angel returneth unto his former speech: in which he teacheth the use of this book both towards our selves, in this and the next verse: and in respect of God for declaration of this truth, thence unto the 15 verse. 4 That is, propound this prophecie openly unto all, and conceall no part of it. The contrary whereunto is commanded, Esa. 8, 6. and Dan. 8, 26. 5 An objection prevented, But there will be some that will abuse this occasion unto evil, and will wrest this scripture unto their own destruction, as Peter saith, What then saith the angel, the mysteries of God must not therefore be concealed, which it hath pleased him to communicate unto us. Let them be hurtfull unto others, let such be more and more vile in themselves whom this scripture doeth not please: yet others shall be further confirmed thereby unto righteousnesse, and true holinesse. The care and reformation of these may not be neglected, because of the voluntary and malicious offense of others. 6 The second place belonging unto the use of this book, as I said, verse 10. Also (saith God by the angel) though there should be no use of this book unto men: yet it shall be of this unto me, that it is a witnesse of my truth unto my glory, who will come shortly, to give and execute just judgement, in this verse: who have taught that all these things have their being in me, in the 13. verse, and have denounced blessednesse unto my servants in the church, verse 14. and reprobation unto the ungodly, verse 15.

* Rom. 2, 6.

* Isa. 41, 1. and 14, 6.

7 The blessednes of the godly set down by their title and interest thereunto: and their fruit in the same.

8 The second place of confirmation (as I said verse 6.) is the speech of Christ, ratifying the vocation of S. John, and the authority of his calling and testimonie, both from the condition of his own person, being God and man, in whom all the promises of God are Yea and Amen, 2 Cor. 1, 20. and also from the testification of other persons, by the acclamation of the Holy Ghost, who here is as it were an honorable assistant of the marriage of the church as the spouse, and of every of the godly as members: and finally, from the thing present, that of their own knowledge and accord, they are called forth unto the participation of the good things of God, verse 17.

* Isa. 55, 1.

9 The obtestation of S. John (which is the third place of the confirmation, as was noted ver. 6.) joyned with a curse of execration, to preserve the truth of this book entire and uncorrupted in two verses. * Deut. 4, 2. Prov. 30, 6. 10 A divine confirmation or sealing of the obtestation, first from Christ avouching the same, and denouncing his coming against all those that shall put their sacrilegious hands hereunto: then from S. John himself, who by a most holy prayer calleth Christ to take vengeance of them. 11 The salutation apostolicall, which is the other place of the conclusion, as I said verse 6. and is the end almost of every epistle: which we wish unto the church, and to all the holy and elect members thereof, in Christ Jesus our Lord, untill his coming to judgement. Come Lord Jesus, and doe it. Amen, again Amen.
